[illegible] DISPATCHES

At Pilgrims' Dinner in London to Honor of Stanley Baldwin, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, the American Ambassador Declared Loans Made by America Were Made Without Any Guarantee of Payment by Great Britain—Explained That Britain Was Not Singled Out and Damned, as on the Same Day the United States Gave Notice to All Debtors—Merely the Customary Preliminary to Payment on the Negotiations of Terms.

London, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The Pilgrims gave a dinner this evening in honor of Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, who headed the British funding mission to Washington. Lord Desborough acted as chairman and the principal speakers were the American Ambassador, George Harvey, and Mr. Baldwin.

The Prince of Wales surprised the Pilgrims by dropping in unexpectedly. He is a member of the Pilgrims, and he explained that he did not want to make a speech or be toasted, but came simply as a member to hear the speeches and to have dinner.

This was the first public dinner the Prince of Wales attended since his Indian tour; he is getting plenty of American atmosphere, which apparently he likes as luminous night he will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the American University Union dinner.

Others at the dinner included the Duke of Devonshire, the Brazilian ambassador, Dr. Harry Garfield, Viscount Peel, Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame, Viscount Davenport, Sir Hamar Greenwood, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Captain Charles L. Hussey, naval attache of the American embassy, and Robert P. Skinner, the American consul-general at London.

In the course of the speech Ambassador Harvey said:

"We have met to celebrate a great achievement. I do not think I exaggerate when I pronounce it the first successful settlement of a really vital world problem since the armistice. It narrows, far more than the greatest financial transaction reported in history, it bore with it enhancement of mutual respect and, I firmly believe, the everlasting friendship of the two great nations to which the entire world looks for the preservation of its safeguard and stability which are essential to the prosperity and happiness of [illegible]

[illegible] many [illegible] dispelling misapprehension, said Mr. Harvey, and the settlement of terms relatively minor importance, he added, could [illegible] be [illegible] in any other spirit than that of a devastating misfortune.

"No agreement should not win the appreciative and [illegible] satisfaction of all [illegible] people who comprise the British empire and the American republic. That object has been attained."

The great majority in congress presented conclusive evidence of unmistakable gratification in the United States, and the unanimity manifested in Great Britain afforded "eloquent testimony to the sense of relief, even joy."

"The United Kingdom," said the ambassador, "continues to rest on the rock of financial integrity and national honor."

Recounting the circumstances under which the debt was incurred, Mr. Harvey said that the pressing need when the United States joined the allies was for munitions, clothing and food, which the United States was able to supply, but the process was less easy than might be supposed.

"Our treasury had no available funds," he explained, "and could obtain adequate supply only through taxation and the pledging of its credit. Both methods were adopted instantly to the limit of its capacity."

Ambassador Harvey combatted the assertion that the United States had refused to make huge advances to the other allies unless payment was guaranteed by Great Britain, declaring: "Great Britain was never asked to guarantee, and never did guarantee, the payment of a single dollar loaned by the United States for the use of any country other than Great Britain herself."

The United States, according to the ambassador, voluntarily gave a pledge that Great Britain should not be held to account for any portion of the supplies delivered to her representatives for transportation to or to be used by another ally.

"In point of fact," he continued, "a very considerable percentage of the debt of Great Britain to the United States was incurred in the purchase of food and clothing for people living in England."

Mr. Harvey pointed out that the first advance made by the United States to any ally was hundreds of millions of dollars to Great Britain to enable her to discharge a pressing obligation and maintain her waning credit, and also that the United States had released to 10,540,000,000 sterling, cash, remarking: highest class bonds and shares as security.

"The obligation thus discharged," added Mr. Harvey, "constitutes part of the debt which is now funded, and the British government still holds the securities. Surely asking for the repayment of such a loan could not right fully be regarded as an act of a Shylock demanding his pound of flesh."

He pointed out the interesting fact that the cost of the great war in money to the United States and Great Britain was about the same—giving aid exclusively, though indirectly.

"The human mind cannot comprehend as sum as [illegible] billions," but nobody here I am confident, will deny that the outcome was worth the money, and probably—God pity us all—the [illegible].

Another misapprehension regarding the United States he wished to remove, he said, was that we [illegible] Great Britain. We had nothing to fear from the [illegible] of the three years during which we had agreed to bear the [illegible] Sweden was approaching, and [illegible] our government gave [illegible] to all our debtors to that effect. [illegible] was merely the customary [illegible] to payment as the result of [illegible] armed. One or two debtors [illegible] the weather [illegible] received and talked [illegible] The outcome was the completed [illegible] of this generous financial [illegible] less than a month.

"Now we have [illegible] to settle with the [illegible] continued the ambassador. "We were [illegible] to [illegible] for [illegible] not to [illegible] than the British debtor when that problem had been thoroughly examined, stringencies we waived and claims in the allied favor—certainly a well meant act at the time even though this fix the [illegible] has been productive [illegible] unfortunate.

While not wishing to claim or seek credit for the part the United States played in the war, Mr. Harvey wanted to make clear that "war contributions was undoubtedly hopeful; it may, indeed, in the generous words of your premier, have been decisive."

He thought the fact that ninety per cent of the sixty millions who were [illegible] United States bonds were descended from the United Kingdom could imply but one thing—"that if our people had supposed they were giving aid exclusively, though indirectly, through the British government to the other allies, we simply could not have raised the money. It is also certainly thought we were helping England."

He would not have mentioned the matter, he said, "but for the circumstances that an official statement of the British government promulgated August 1 last contains the specific assertion that 'under the agreements arrived at the United States insisted, in substance if not in form, that though our allies were to spend the money, it was only on our security that they were prepared to lend it."

The ambassador expressed the opinion that at some suitable time "the British government will, with equal formality and no less explicitness remove the misapprehension created by this unfortunate allusion."

He assured his hearers that the United States had no intention of ruining the credit of any other country by cancelling its debts.

Chancellor Baldwin, in his speech at the Pilgrims' dinner, said: "The debt funding commission could not have dealt with men more competent, more fair or more desirous of helping to a settlement. I would say any of the debt that we stand in this country as we have known Mr. Harvey as Ambassador, as stands there—[illegible] Americans [illegible] We made a fair settlement, we got a fairly fair, and we all realize that it has been done."

"If there is one thing that the world needs today more than another," said the chancellor, "it is that the two great countries, Great Britain and America, should understand, know an d appreciate each other.

"There is nothing to be more desired than that the statesmen and budding in both countries should learn by personal contact something of the other. The two things the world wants today, and without which there can be no prosperity, are peace, first and foremost, and economic stability, and that economic stability can only come when peace is assured. Without those two things there is nothing before the human race but ultimate bankruptcy, bloodshed and starvation.

"It behooves those who have faith strongly in them to stand up and join hands, and if the English-speaking peoples join hands in the determination that their ideals shall prevail in the world, it will be even as they will."

WARMER WEATHER OPENS UP ICEBOUND HARBORS

Boston, Feb. 12.—The ice blockade of harbors on the Massachusetts coast was breaking under higher temperatures tonight. Floating ice, however, slowed navigation. Favorable winds during the day caused a general drift of floes from harbors into the open sea.

Plans for dynamiting icebound harbors and for movement of additional naval tugs and coast guard cutters for ice-breaking duty were halted owing to the favorable turn in the weather and chief escort at Hingham, where dynamite from the naval magazine there was used to open up the harbor at that place.

Conditions in Boston harbor, New Bedford, Vineyard Haven and in Cape Cod waters were reported as decidedly improved.

The coast guard cutter Gresham tonight was near Cape Cod, heading for the Cape Cod canal. She has been ordered to keep that thoroughfare and adjacent ports open, while the Tuscanet, regularly stationed in those waters, has been detailed to the Maine coast to break out harbors there.

Along the Maine coast, where difficulties [illegible] still being encountered in keeping open channels of navigation, lighthouse tenders were at work hacking the ice. Most of the communities along the coast where food and fuel shortages had existed have been relieved.

HELD FOR PARTICIPATION IN RATHENAU ASSASSINATION

Stockholm, Feb. 12.—(By The A. P.)—The police are holding a German, Hans Hanniaz Von Behr, on the allegation that he participated in the assassination of the German foreign minister, Dr. Walter Rathenau, last June, and in the attempt on the life of Philip Scheidemann.

According to the authorities, Von Behr, who arrived here by way of Kiel disguised as a sailor, confessed that he fired several shots at Dr. Rathenau's automobile, but declared he acted under orders from a secret German society, and that some weeks later he participated in the assassination of Herr Scheidemann.

SLAIN MAN HAD MANY WOMEN AMONG HIS FRIENDS

New York, Feb. 12.—The process of unfolding the mystery surrounding the slaying of Frederick Schneider, wealthy contractor, led the authorities today into details of the gay life he led at his Bronx apartment and at his private camp at Glen Lake in the Adirondacks, and revealed that he counted many beautiful women among his friends.

In the meantime Mrs. Anna Stassi, the woman with whom he lived for several years, and who was held as a material witness, instituted habeas corpus proceedings for her release. She certainly thought she was helping England."

He would not have mentioned the matter, he said, "but for the circumstances that an official statement of the British government promulgated August 1 last contains the specific assertion that 'under the agreements arrived at the United States insisted, in substance if not in form, that though our allies were to spend the money, it was only on our security that they were prepared to lend it."

Feel Old and Lame After Sleep?

Do You Have Backache? Feel Old and Lame and Stiff After Sleep, Suffer Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old and lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache with a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just can't stand it any longer?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills are mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys must filter out. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold leaves you with fortunday backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Don't neglect these early symptoms! Kidneys troubles, if treated early, are usually easily corrected. Neglected, the way is paved for dropsy, gravel, or dreaded Bright's disease. Help your weakened kidneys before it is too late. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Norwich Folks:

JAMES L. AUSTIN, Carpenter, 26 Hickory Ave., says: "It seems quite some time ago my back and kidneys and all those aches and pains settled across my back. If I bend over for any length of time it is just like having a knife thrust into my back to straighten up. My kidney action is irregular. Doan's Kidney Pills used from Hickox Drug Store, and always cured those attacks. I have tried other medicines but have always found it necessary to use Doan's to get relief."

MRS. JAMES A. MORAN, 16 Sacred Road, says: "A cold settled in my kidneys and weakened them. My back ached continually. For some time and I could hardly get around to do my housework. My kidneys didn't act right at all. I had heard of Doan's Kidney Pills helping another member of my family, so I used them and found relief. Lately I had another attack of kidney trouble and Doan's Pills put an end to it during the night, as they were the first thing I thought of."

STONINGTON

Connection is made in the Silk Museum of the recent exhibit of silk machinery at the second international silk exposition at New York showing Peterson & Hawkes of the Stonington Machine of silks, crepes, velvets and the essentials in the manufacture and sale of silks. The Atwood Machine Company's construction was an exhibit of silk machinery, exemplied six complete beetles on the opening floor. The Atwood Machine Company sent 17 of their machines, consisting of several spinning, winding, doubling, reels, a twister and a beaming frame. Everything entirely new was introduced in the famous 8D spinner which is a radical departure from the style of machines that have previously been made by the local company. This machine was designed by Stephen Atwood, advisory director of the company, and chief engineer. Other features of the newly designed machine is a patented drive for spindles of the spinning frame, so that a 2 per cent. variation in speed is obtained, thus making it possible to run at a higher speed than ever before. The machine also has a patented thread guide which is claimed to be the most perfect device of its kind ever made. The machine was the wonder of all the machines exhibited and was operated by employees from the A. T. Wilcox mills of Pawtucket. The machine drew in operation a great deal of the attentional [illegible] of the exhibition.

I Set Out to Find the Secret of Iron Muscles Like These

And Found That a Slight Change in Your Daily Meals Will Often Add Astonishing Increases in Your Strength, Energy, Endurance and Physical and Mental Power

Years ago, I simply took my mind that there must be some vital secret that explained the great difference between the amount of strength, health and power of ordinary weak people and those of us who are strong. I had noticed this time and time again in my own family and also had been especially interested in athletics. Another thing I noticed was that the men who were the most successful in their chosen lines of work were usually the ones who had the most energy and vim and vitality. Somehow, I felt sure that there was a reason for all this and determined that if I could find out what it was I would also [illegible] something of great value to me and to others.

New York, Feb. 28.—(By Radio)—Finnish-American [illegible] Nurmi, who set a new world's indoor record, [illegible] surpassed the previous mark for three miles in defeating John Ray, Chicago star, in a handicap run at the 22d Street armory at the annual games of the Athletic Club of Columbus, New York, tonight. Nurmi's time was 14:31 4-5.

The Finn won the race in a sensational sprint in the final lap, taking the lead from the weary Ray who had led up to that point. It was one of the most exciting contests seen on local tracks in years, Nurmi and Ray [illegible] started from scratch, being [illegible] by a field of handicapped runners. It was a heart-breaking defeat to the Chicagoan, who set the early pace. He never was able to shake off the enduring Finn, who holds the world's record at ten miles, but he forced the grind to its standing [illegible]. Ray finished five yards behind.

The former indoor record of 14:17 4-5, was made by Al Shrubb, Nurmi's [illegible] of the Finnish-American club, finished third tonight.

Jake Driscoll, of the Boston Athletic association, won the "Casey" 600. Vincent Lally, St. Anselm's A. C., finished second, and Tom Campbell, of Yale, third. The time was 1:14.

The champion's speed had his opponent bewildered throughout the fast match. The amputated of part of one of Tilden's fingers on his racquet hand apparently did not hamper his playing.

The surprise of the first round was Sandy Wiener's victory over Charles Kern of Philadelphia. Weiner, 17½, [illegible] 18 year old protege, playing in his first [illegible] tournament, outclassed his older and more experienced opponent. He won in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4.

Play in the doubles division started tonight.

U. senior indoor record for 1000 yards in the 23d regiment armory, defeating among others, Joie Ray, who a year later equalled Overton's record of 2:14 for that distance.

HERMAN WANTS BOUTS OUTSIDE OF NEW YORK

Babe Herman, who holds the featherweight title of the Pacific coast, and who now has faced the sensation of eastern boxing circles, wants to show his wares outside of Gotham.

Since coming east as the protege of champion Jack Dempsey, the little Californian flash has won all his fights with one exception— his knockout victims include such good youngsters as "Irish" Johnny Curtin, Joe Metrengo, of New Orleans; Andy "Red" Ball, of Atlantic City; Joe Mendell, of Philadelphia; Jimmy Regan, of Brooklyn; Kid Beran, of Philadelphia; Billy Henry, of Chicago; Joe Stanley, of Philadelphia and Willie Dancy, of Brooklyn. He has won referee decisions over Kid Kaster, of New Orleans; Billy DeFoe, Andy Cudney, Johnny Reisler, Kid Wagner, of Philadelphia; Sid Kaplan, of Meriden; Tony McHugh, of Philadelphia; Johnny Mara, Eddie Brady, Packy O'Dasty, and Willie Mohler.

Herman is the legitimate contender for Johnny Kilbane's title and we will back him against the title holder for any stake by the champion.

Failing in his attempt to get a contest with Kilbane, he stands ready to meet any other featherweight or junior weight in the world. Efforts are now being made to match Herman with Johnny Dundee for the Junior lightweight title at the Pole Grounds on May 30th.

Herman has accepted the offer from promoter O'Rourke and we await the signature of the Junior lightweight champion.

DANIELSON WINS FROM BOSTON BY SMALL MARGIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Feb. 28.—With Referee Joseph Norton directing an officer to remove Captain O'Connell of the visiting team from the floor the game between the Boston Whirlwinds, champions of New England, and the Danielson five ended in a flurry of excitement at the town hall Wednesday night with Danielson leading 32 to 30. Danielson's final point was scored from a foul goal tossed in by Berry after Referee Norton had called the foul on Captain O'Connell for use of vile language to him. O'Connell appeared to lose his head and became abusive, when, with only five seconds to play Berry tapped the ball out to the crowd. O'Connell protested that Berry was deliberately delaying the game, with a view to maintaining Danielson's lead of one point and when the referee insisted that he could not consider Berry's act as deliberate and intended to delay, O'Connell called Norton a vile name and the referee immediately retaliated by penalizing him with a foul and ordering him from the floor. He refused to go so the referee called for an officer to take him off but in the meantime Berry had scored on the free try and the game was at an end—also the argument.

The fans that crowded the hall saw a wonderfully high classed game. The Whirlwinds were strengthened by Conaty and Schenelke of the New York Celtics. Danielson was strengthened by players from Newport Naval Reserve and Worcester. The first half ended in an 8 to 8 tie and looked comparatively slow because of the cleverness of each and every man on both teams, so closely covering his opponent and preventing such speed as developed in the second half when the players had obtained a better line on each other and set a terrific pace. It was a great game to watch because of the remarkable work of the individual stars and well worth the extra admission charged especially in view of the fact that the Danielson Tigers and the Plainfield Buddies put up such a cracking preliminary contest, Danielson winning 43 to 23. The Danielson and Whirlwinds line-up follows:

Danielson.		Whirlwinds.
Reddy	R. F.	Curtain
Martin, Berry	C.	Morley
Sullivan	R. G.	Conaty
Harvey	L. G.	Schenelke
Berry, Martin	L. F.	O'Connell

Field goals: Martin 2, Sullivan 2, Berry 4, Harvey, Reddy, Conaty 2, Curtin 4, Morley, Schenelke.

Foul goals: Berry, Martin 2. Referee Norton. Timer Bennette.

Barber is open to all challengers and is anxious to meet the top-notchers in the game.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Doris Kenyon, the noted film [illegible] William Seymour, has taken up golf.

New York Athletic club is building a golf club, limited to 500 members, to be called Winged Foot Golf Club, and located in Westchester county, it is announced.

Members of a varsity crew [illegible] they are preparing for the annual intercollegiate events which [illegible] at Pasa[illegible] row between [illegible] miles in practice.

University of Michigan alumni in six western cities will entertain Coaching H. Yost, Michigan athletic director and football coach, during his western tour, March 19 to April 4.

Rumor has it that Jack Ryan, at present an assistant at Dartmouth, and at one time head coach at Marquette University, resigned, as head mentor of Wisconsin football team.

Yale is in line to win another intercollegiate rink championship. Two old Eli skaters have won five meets this winter and lost none and are easily the class of the eastern colleges.

Eddie Collins is generally regarded as one of the brightest players in the major leagues. He richly deserves that distinction, because brains, is always a part of his play.

At the recent Westminister show in New York, Tanglewood Kenneh-oconing Canuckian, a smooth Fox terrier, went from puppies to winners, something that is rarely done at this kennel classic.

Harvard is greatly in need of pitchers, and, as a result, the base ball situation isn't especially encouraging for the Crimson. Hermann of last year's freshman nine, Hill and Brown are the only twirlers in sight.

Slow moving pictures of William M. Johnson and Gerald L. Patterson, tennis stars, are being distributed to clubs and colleges in the country as part of the educational campaign of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

A team managers' duties usually allow no time for his own athletic edification, Yost Larry Snell, of Pontiac, Michigan's track manager, finds time every day to go through a round of hand ball with Billy Fallon, track trainer.

Earl (Greasy) Neale, former big league base ball player, and now foot ball coach of the University of Virginia, played seven years in the National league with defective eyesight, according to an eye specialist whom he recently consulted.

Eddie Collins of the White Sox, is preparing for his season's work. The great second sacker has consented to aid in the coaching of the University of Pennsylvania diamond squad and while so doing Eddie will be getting himself into condition.

The new Yale University track an American model, is situated close to the big bowl at the New Haven institution, and when seating accomodations are completed the Blue will be ready to ask for the intercollegiate classic which previously was held by Penn. and Harvard on alternate years.

Wonder if Molla Bjurstedt Mallory has forgotten the defeat she suffered during the Panama Exposition, when she was Miss Bjurstedt. Anita Meyers of California defeated the champio in the California state tournament. It is another one of the things Molla wishes to forget. Miss Meyers, who was one of the few who conquered Molla, has given the game up for business interests.

New York, Feb. 28.—A marriage license was issued to Harvey Arthur Lee, 30, a New York art dealer, and Mrs. Nora Mary McMullen Mellon, 44, divorced wife of Andrew W. Mellon of Pittsburgh, secretary of the treasury.

Mrs. Mellon could not be reached at her apartment, 340 Park avenue, but servants said they had been informed the marriage would not occur until after this week.

The Mellon divorce proceedings became an international question, following their separation in 1909, and was brought before parliament in England on several occasions. Mrs. Mellon obtained a divorce in Pittsburgh in 1912. They were married in 1900.

Mrs. Mellon, before her marriage was Nora Mary McMullen, daugher of one of the founders of the Guiness Brewing Company of Dublin, Ireland. When Mrs. Mellon instituted divorce proceedings against her she appealed to King George and parliament, alleging that she had been deprived of her rights as a British citizen. She accused her husband of violating an agreement, not to divorce her, made in 1909, under which she received a trust fund of $1,250,000 and $250,000 for their two children.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Appearance Of The Whale

Now, let me see, I promised to tell you in the last story what the Polar Bear said. Of course, I did, but dear-ness me, I can't, for just as he opened his mouth to speak, a great big whale swam up to the Boatmobile and said, "What are you doing, out here in my ocean?

You'll soon be seasick with the up and down motion.

You two little rabbits, you'd better turn back,

And hop away home to your Bramble Bush shack."

"We can't—that is, we can't just yet," said Little Jack Rabbit. "We're going to take Mr. Polar Bear back to the North Pole."

"Yes, that's what we're going to do,"

said Uncle Lucky, and he took off his old wedding stovepipe hat and brushed his hair back over his head and after that he looked at the compass, which was fastened on the end of his watch chain.

"How did you come to get so far away from home?" said the whale, winking at the Polar Bear.

"I'll tell you another time said the Polar Bear. "I'm so hungry now that I don't want to talk," and then he picked up Little Jack Rabbit's knapsack, but before he could open it, the little rabbit said:

"It isn't time for supper,

You hungry Polar Bear,

At half-past eight, you'll get a plate,

And a hotel bill of fare."

"Oh, you dine at half-past eight," said the whale. "Well save a place for me and a little cup of tea. I'd like to dine with all of you. I'm very fond of oyster stew."

And then, he gave a great dip with his tail and disappeared under the water, and by and by, after a while, a great stream of water went up into the air and poor Uncle Lucky had to put up his umbrella to keep his dear, old wedding stovepipe hat from getting wet but he didn't care as long as the umbrella didn't blow away, and pretty soon the whale stopped spouting and then the old gentleman rabbit folded up his green gingham umbrella and put it under the seat.

Well, by and by, it was supper time, but the whale never came back. Perhaps he lost the way or had another invitation or maybe he was over downtown late with business, but just the same, the two little rabbits and the polar bear had something to eat, and after a while, when the evening star came out in the sky, dear Uncle Lucky began to sing:

"Oh, evening star, how bright you are,
Above the wide, wide sea,
From out the sky, your little eye,
Goes winky, wink at me."

And then, the old gentleman rabbit ran his fingers over the strings of his guitar, tum, tum, tum, tum, twenty-tum, tum, tum, tum and then he sang the words all over again and if he hadn't I don't believe I ever would have remembered them.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Creation of a joint congressional commission of gold and silver inquiry is authorized in a resolution adopted today by the senate and sent to the house where action is expected before adjournment.

The resolution was introduced by Senator Nicholson, republican, Colorado and its adoption was recommended after hearings by a subcommittee.

WHO GOES APPOINTMENTS.

Two more important nominations are those which have been made by President Harding for director of the veterans' bureau and governor of Puerto Rico. Both are positions of great importance which call for general, able administrators with tact and ability.

The veterans' bureau has experienced its troubles. To organize such a bureau of the government's business, on such a large scale in so short a time has been no small job. There can be no question as to the interest of the administration concerned in it. There may have been mistakes, there have been intimations that unfortunate have failed to appoint capable men and there have been cases where injustices have been done to the service because of political pressure. Experience has shown what internal affairs can arise from such handicaps.

General Hines, whose appointment both in the last days of the Wilson administration and in the first days of the present administration, it is believed will get the senate confirmation that it demands, is a man who has had experience in the handling of large affairs and has demonstrated his executive ability. Governor M. Trotter, with a number of endorsements for governor of Puerto Rico, President Harding has chosen the chairman of the senate finance committee of that island who has served in the senate and been reelected to the senate, judge and lawyer. While it doesn't appear that he has had much direct experience in governing, which would probably, without question, be useful in view of his legal training as a college graduate and his long senate career, which has brought him into contact with numerous conditions and problems, his interest in and his attitude in Porto Rico and what is to be done there seem to be well explained to us even though his previous activities have not been connected with such administrative work. There are good reasons to believe that the Porto Ricans will welcome his selection.

CONSERVATION LAW EVADERS.

Many bank managers in letting down the bars which are designed for the protection of outside investors in well established blue skies of the Canadian investment type, against which general opposition has always existed, which now is shown to need restriction, is a hitherto unthought of phenomenon.

Perhaps this carelessness has made it necessary for the government, for instance, to put through the Ontario legislature the measure which is to be the subject of investigation of seven months' duration by the Ontario government, before it can be passed. The measure is designed to prevent others from doing by the same method, what it is charged under the Ontario Power act by forged vouchers is done three to four times the amount of the power which can be entitled under the act. It is apparent that there is a great deal of laxity in that law which needs immediate attention.

The immigration law fails to prevent those who are to their making use of the country's aid. Some of these only be undesirable but that doesn't mean that they should escape the law. And why that they do not give the impression that they are what they are wanted.

Just how many have been able to evade the conservation law in this province is not yet told. There is no question however but what the revelations coming with the Ontario power act will be startling.

MINING SCANDAL.

Much attention has been attracted to the recent reports concerning the mining of coal in Nova Scotia. It is to talk into the matter which the Sydney Mines Review has undertaken for the high price of coal in this province.

Whether or not the charges of the Review are true, it is certain that the people of Nova Scotia need protection from a ruthless monopoly.

The coal industry has made it very difficult for manufacturers to get coal at reasonable prices. There has been a reduction in all kinds of materials to circumvent the coal. Naturally it has been in the attention of the Industrial bureau and the department of labor that immigrants were coming through the door and engaging in mining without passing the requirements of mining permission. They have also been smuggled across the boundary at some isolated point, but have in through the large ports as members of the crews of vessels.

It is time to be appreciated that a full and thorough investigation has been instituted. The arrest and conviction of seven men charged with having been directly and indirectly in the mining industry only add to the need of preventing others from doing it by the same method.

It is possible under the Labor act for foreign vessels to remain three to four times the time they can be entitled unless they can show that they are in the city for the benefit of labor in that way they should immediate attention.

This immigration law fails to prevent those who are to their making use of the country's aid. Some of these only be undesirable but that doesn't mean that they should escape the law. And why that they do not give the impression that they are what they are wanted.

Just how many have been able to evade the conservation law in this province is not yet told. There is no question however but what the revelations coming with the Ontario power act will be startling.

WIVES OF FAMOUS MEN

Grace Fletcher Wife of Daniel Webster

Grace Fletcher was the daughter of a minister, and lived in Hopkinton, where Daniel Webster met her soon after he settled in Portsmouth. His engagement was rather a surprise to Webster's friends, because, not long before he became engaged, he had written to one of his relatives:

"I am making no progress toward matrimony. In point of time, Miss 23 years younger to it than Which I was born; but, in point of probability I cannot say that I am apt."

It was in 1807 that Webster had met and proposed to Miss Fletcher. History has it that he saw his future wife for the first time in church. She was visiting a sister in Salisbury at the same time that he was there. At any rate, they did not know each other very long before they were married.

At the time of their marriage, Mrs. Webster was 27 years old, each year her husband's senior. She proved an ideal wife for this famous American statesman. She had the character and education which enabled her not only to appreciate, but also to share in her husband's political successes. Her dignity, composure and refinement made it easy for her to exercise her duties as a wife of so great a man of affairs. She was not only considered a model wife, but also a perfect mother to their one child, a girl, who was named after the mother. Without losing her poise, she could be merry and animated, and always made every one feel perfectly at home.

In his biography of Webster, Mr. Curtis quotes Mr. Tickner as saying:

"Mrs. Webster was pleasing and animated, and her manner to the friends of her husband, kind to us young men, was very kind and cordial."

For 20 years they lived happily together in peace and harmony, with no domestic trouble to mar the public career of one of America's greatest patriots

FEDERAL BUILDING PLAN.

Appropriations for federal buildings like these for rivers and harbors have so often been used for political purposes without regard for the amount spent or the need of the outlay that suspicion is apt to surround whatever efforts are made in behalf of such a plan when undertaken on a large scale. And yet if properly applied it can be appreciated that through such outlays and the utilizing of such funds at points where they are actually needed and would result in a saving to the department, there would be a decided benefit to the department and the government.

The offices which are being circulated in behalf of a postal building programme are intended to get this matter down to a business basis. If there could be $10,000,000 appropriated annually for government-owned buildings in the cities where it would be cheaper for the government to own adequate and substantial buildings than to lease them it can be seen that, it would be beneficial to the service.

Bettering the postal service in this manner cannot be left to politics. Under such a distribution of postoffice buildings other things than the best interests of the department are likely to get consideration, and the points where the real need exists will be neglected.

The idea of a fixed amount to be spent each year by the department where needed is aimed at efficiency, but that doesn't necessarily mean that it can be carried through or get deserved attention. Persistent efforts, as in the case of the tree seed bill, may in time get results.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Volentown Has Woman Statistician.

Mr. Editor: In the Bulletin of Friday, Feb. 9, you state that Miss Mary L. Dunbar, of Voluntown, is the first woman to be elected to the chairmanship of a town committee by any party in this state.

Unless Mrs. Dunbar was elected before October, 1921, you are taken as the first who has been chairman of the Voluntown democratic town committee since that date. I was elected chairman of the democratic town committee of the Second Militia district, 734 Main street, Conn., Leonard B. Kinsley and William H. Dawley of Voluntown.

Sincerely yours,

MARY C. HINES.

Should Women Assume the Role of Teacher.

Mr. Editor: Allow me to make reply to John Trotter who seems to have gained a misconception of fact from my previous letter in regard to women and her position in the church.

I did not intend to imply by my statement that women should in any sense of the word be powerless chattels, but I do maintain that God's word in the Bible allows, therefore, rules and certain laws of order laid down in the New Testament for the Christian to follow, which women may not be violating when they are not assuming authority over any one.

And I am supported by no less an authority than the apostle Paul himself (1 Tim. 2:12)—that woman's position in the church should not be that of teacher. If we are to be governed by the sayings and precepts laid down by the Lord Jesus and the apostles then women should not be allowed to assume leadership and headship in the church. There are many phases of Christian activity in which women can engage without usurping the authority of a teacher and leader.

There is no doubt but that Mrs. Eddy set aside the injunction of St. Paul (1 Tim. 2:12) when she assumed the role of teacher, and she violated another rule followed by Christ and the apostles when she levied fees for her teachings, while Mrs. Eddy became quite wealthy from her healing and teaching, yet the son of Mary owned no place on which to lay his head and all of the apostles died poor and with no accumulated wealth to leave either to the church or Adysha Eddy.

As Mr. Trotter says, the wife is surely a picture of the church of the gospel age. But for the true church to follow this picture to the letter, it seems to me, would mean that the church should be subject to the authority rightly belonging to her husband in its every attempt to portray this picture. To follow out this reasoning in this regard would, I believe, destroy the dignity, refinement and beauty of the picture. It shadows true church for her husband as queen of the house. Then there is only himself added to the church without bringing the sure knowledge they always expect. Women, by nature of more tender sensibilities than man and needs to be shielded from the stern and severe responsibilities that naturally come to one who is a leader in God's work. The apostle

Mind Broad Smith.

Two young women were discussing one of the recent activities of a well known young man. "He is married a second time," one declared. "Because he took such good care of his first wife?" asked the other.

"No, they had quarrel only part of the conversation she got in was all about something she said about the bread things," she explained. "Somehow when he was speaking his mind seemed to go blank. And every time he got his mind back before the judge he put his hands in his pockets and then the judge got peeved again and fined him. Anyhow, if they wasn't married again they'd allow in our town $10 and pay back."

When The Armistice Was Signed.

The historic spot in the history of Shropshire, where the armistice that ended the war was signed on November 11, 1918, has been shared with several impressive ceremonials have been established in commemoration of that historic event. Wrekin Memorial Hall, Wellington, Shropshire, already described as a unique memorial, has been laid on the spot where the train conveying the German envoys halted. Midway between these two points, a third one larger, and with a lofty inscription, marks the spot where the armistice was signed. At the end of the avenue leading from the main clearing to the Armistice memorial, a monumental Mas been erected in the memory of the soldiers of France, presented to the town of Compiegne by a Paris newspaper.

Safety Signal System.

A new safety signal system, described in Popular Mechanics Magazine, and developed with especial reference to the requirements of coal mines and other underground workings, but applicable to many operations where ground, has for its principal feature a combination of bell and light devices, operated from the mine electric circuit. Required so as to be in plain view of the hoisting engineer from his station, is a bell to which is attached a colored lamp that flashes at the same time the bell rings. A signal flash once at the mine station. Another lamp on the bell base enables the engineer that the station is operating. When he wants to get a signal or to give one, for which purpose he is supplied with a conveniently located circuit closer.

The following appeal has been issued by Chairman Clark:

Fellow Citizens: The time has come when I believe we should unite in raising funds with which to provide a much needed home for the Salvation Army in our city. This great charitable organization has become a permanent fixture, an institution in our community and I am firmly convinced that we should put our shoulder to the wheel and raise the necessary funds with which to purchase and remodel the building at 10 Cliff street. Let us get together in this important matter, and make the Salvation Army's vision of a suitable home in Norwich a reality.

Yours very truly,
HARRY M. CLARK,
Chairman of the Executive Committee.

JAKOBIK BOY TESTIFIES OF FIGHT OVER COWS

Frank Jakobik, 13, son of Frank and Sophie Jakobik of Bozrah, who are defending a suit brought by James L. Chapman and Mrs. Anna M. Chapman, husband and wife, for $5,000 damages for assault and battery, which is on trial before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury in the superior court in New London, was on the stand Wednesday morning and told of the row which led up to the suit. He said that on the day of the alleged assault and battery, Aug. 16, 1921, he and his sister Sophie, 15, went into the Burgess lot to drive the cattle belonging to his father home, and Mrs. Chapman and her father, William A. Burgess, were there. The former rushed at them with a stick, the boy testified, and told him to get off the lot or she would kill him. They went off and went and notified their parents.

The witness said that his father and mother came out of the house and went up the road to get their cattle and he and his sister walked along behind. They were accosted by Mrs. Chapman, who called his parents a foul name, and then she rushed at them with a hickory stick. Mrs. Chapman struck a blow at his father which the latter warded off with his arm, and then she rushed at his mother and struck her. The blow struck a stick which his mother had in her hand and knocked it out of her hand on to the ground. Then Mrs. Chapman struck her a blow on the head which inflicted a deep gash on the forehead. Mrs. Chapman then grappled with his mother, who threw Mrs. Chapman to the ground, and the latter then went into her home, from which she came out with a loaded shotgun and threatened his mother.

Mrs. Jakobik gave corroborating testimony and showed her shirtwaist, torn and bloody, which she was wearing at the time of the assault.

The defense has more witnesses to be heard before the testimony is ended.

SKIPPING $100 BOND, SENDS LETTER TO CHIEF

William Khaner, 37, of Valley Plain, N. Y., who was arrested here Tuesday by State Policeman M. R. Sterling on the charge of violation of the motor vehicle law, skipped his $100 cash bond rather than appear in police court Wednesday morning, but he sent a letter back to Chief George Ligton, in which he willed $50 of the bond to his attorney, J. J. Desmond, $25 to Chief Linton and $25 to Officer Charles Smith.

As for State Policeman Sterling, who kept Khaner held at police headquarters almost all day Tuesday, Khaner expressed only words of hate in the letter. He said that the officer treated him like a beast in keeping him at police headquarters when he had chills and he hoped that Sterling would suffer from all the fever he himself had. The letter closed with "Sterling has nothing on me."

The way Khaner skipped his bond rather than return and face whatever charges might be brought against him convinces the authorities that he knew he was under suspicion of trading in a stolen new Ford sedan which he sold to a Norwich man Tuesday morning for $325.

SUPREME MASTER WORKMAN ADDRESSES LOCAL A. O. U. W.

Norwich lodge, No. 12, A. O. U. held a very enthusiastic meeting Wednesday evening in its lodge room in Owis Hall, with Master Workman Raymond Heebner in the chair, and Supreme Master Workman Will M. Narvis of Muscatine, Iowa was the speaker. He is making a tour of the east visiting lodges of the A. O. U. W. in different cities. His talk Monday evening was most inspiring, the members enjoying hearing a man so well informed on matters of the society not generally known to all members.

The facts presented were an inspiration to every member to more diligently strive and labor for the growth of the A. O. U. W. in Norwich.

In 1904 he said, the Grand lodge of Connecticut adopted its present plan. Then the lodge had no assets, but by steady growth and work on the part of the members, 1923 finds the lodge with assets of $1,075,000, a remarkable growth in so short a time. In 1906 the Grand Lodges representing the Supreme Lodge found themselves unable to pay all death claims due to holders of fraternal insurance but today the order has assets of $11,000,000 and any claim can be met within 30 days. Durin 1922 the Grand Lodge wrote insurance totalling $10,000,000 and in Connecticut alone the amount of insurance written reached $700,000.

The order is now doing business upon the plan of rates prepared and recommended by Miles M. Dorsen, of New York, recognized the world over as one of the leading actuaries. As far as safety is concerned the Irates give just as much security as those in an old line company he declares, and even ranks better because it has fraternal features. Under the direction of the Extension Department the order today, is making rapid progress and there is every assurance that this prosperity will continue.

Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and adjournment was at 10.30 o'clock.

TESTIFY PROTECTION WAS REASON FOR A FENCE

Testimony by Willis Austin and Lucius Briggs, officers of the Edward Chappell Co., and by James D. Shute, of Hartford, an inspector for a lumber company, was the evidence for the defense in the superior court suit of C. L. Stewart, administrator of the estate of John C. Morgan, against the Edward Chappell Co., over the erection of gates at the northerly end of Center street on Central Wharf.

Combatting the claim by the plaintiff that the erection of the gates was in order to deter others from purchasing the Morgan coal yard property, the Chappell Co. officers showed that they had been discussing in November, 1921, with a fence concern the type of fence and gates to be used, this being several months before Mr. Morgan died. The company officer testified that they wanted to erect the fence and gates to keep trespassers out of their coal and lumber yard, where tramps had for years slept in the sheds at night, leaving whiskey bottles behind them. A careful check-up on inventories had also showed that lumber and coal was being stolen, which the fence would prevent.

Mr. Shute testified that he had inspected the lumber yard for about seven years and had frequently urged the fence as a protection against fire and it would probably result in some reduction on the fire insurance rate.

Judge Brown took the papers and reserved decision after hearing the arguments which were made by Judge H. H. Pettis and Judge Gardiner Greene for the plaintiffs and by Attorney Arthur M. Brown for the defendants.

Bible Study at Y. M. C. A.

An interesting session of the Men's Bible class was held Wednesday evening at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. The topic of the study was "A traitor in the brotherhood" and the scripture used was Acts 4:33 to 5:6, the story of the early church where they all had things in common, and where Annaias proved untrue in the test.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM

DANIELSON

On this its semi-annual dividend day, March 1, the Brooklyn Savings bank's deposits are shown to have crossed the $4,000,000 mark for the first time in the history of the institution, founded in 1871. At the close of business Wednesday afternoon the deposits were in round figures $4,070,000, an increase of more than $70,000 since the first of the year. The continued and surprising growth of the bank has been the subject of much attention for several years and now that its deposits have reached their present total are the largest in any savings institution in eastern Connecticut outside of Norwich.

Treasurer Sidney W. Bard said Wednesday afternoon that the dividend to be distributed today will amount to $35,000 and is paid on a basis of 4 1-2 per cent. interest annually.

The bank's growth is of particular interest to Danielson because of the fact that there was strong opposition to its removing from Brooklyn to this place when that proposition was first broached publicly ten years ago next October. At that time its deposits were $1,560,000. When the bank removed from Brooklyn Center it came to East Brooklyn, just across the bridge from the Killingly line and remained there for about a year and a half. The first few months of its activities in its new quarters were marked by a dwindling of its deposits by approximately $50,000, this due in large measure to withdrawals of funds of depositors who had opposed removal of the bank from Brooklyn. Then the tide turned and the growth that has continued uninterruptedly for nearly a decade set in. In the meantime the bank has absorbed the Windham County Savings bank, which passed out of existence as a result of the consolidation.

Today with its very large deposits for a community the size of Danielson and its heavy surplus funds it is an institution of which this town is very proud. Its officials are now looking forward to the rapid increase of its deposits to $5,000,000, which figure, past growth considered, should be attained in about three years.

Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, president of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, is to be the speaker at next Tuesday evening's meeting of the Citizenship class at the rooms of the Danielson Girls' club. Mrs. Smith is a Nebraskan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dietrich, a graduate of Bryn Mawr and has wide experience in suffrage, legislative and child welfare work. Particularly valuable were her studies and observance of Washington affairs while resident in that city. She was president of the Child Welfare association in 1921, this organization having worked actively for the passage of legislation creating the children's bureau. Her subject next Tuesday evening will be Current Legislation, and therefore of special and timely interest.

Some of Killingly's manufacturing concerns and others doing business in nearby towns were represented at Hartford Wednesday when there was a hearing at the capitol on a bill that provides for ticketing all bolts of cloth as they come from the mills to show the nature and quality of the materials entering into the manufacture of the textiles. The manufacturers are opposing a favorable report and passage of the bill on various grounds, one of which is that strictly cotton goods are not represented in any event as containing other materials than cotton. But there were various other grounds of opposition, all of which were set forth for the benefit of the committee having the bill in charge.

Some ten years ago a favorite indoor pastime was predicting the end of the usefulness of horses as automobiles grew in numbers and perfection. About 1923 was set as the ultimate period when any useful work could be found for a horse off a farm. It appears that this idea was like per cent. erroneous. To illustrate this it may be stated that nearly two score horses were disposed of at a sale held in Danielson recently and nearly as many more have since come in to town to meet the spring demand for horse flesh. This doesn't look as if the horse were passing out, no more than does the recently published government statistics showing more horses in the United States than ever in its history. Those who would eliminate the horse, from the activities of the nation may take another long look ahead—and still guess as far wrong as they did ten years ago.

Don't lose your home through a chimney fire. Have the flues cleaned. Experienced work. A. F. Bounds, 13 Carter St., Danielson.—adv.

Relatives here were at New London Wednesday for the funeral of Mrs. Mabel Gordon Henesault, wife of John Henesault. The funeral cortege passed through Danielson en route to Putnam, where burial was in Grove street cemetery. Mrs. Henesault, formerly resident in Danielson, died Sunday in a New London hospital.

Killingly High school members will be keen today to hear from New basketball team, which is at New Haven for the conference games. Today's game is with Torrington High, which has a fast and perfected team that has made a good record in its section of the state. If Killingly High makes as good showing at New Haven this year as it did in the conference games last spring, the local student body will be happy in deed, but they hope for even a better showing.

Today brings the opening of March, noted for its high winds. It may be gentle as a lamb or wild as a lion this year, but all householders who have been obliged to use substitute fuels, especially soft coal, do well to have chimney flues on their property cleaned as a precaution against fire. This is an oft repeated warning, but it seems a necessary one this year if Danielson is to be protected from spoiling an excellent record of freedom from disastrous fires such as may develop at any time from a blazing chimney. And the records show that March is the most dangerous month for developing this kind of trouble, due to the fact the chimneys are filled with soot after the winter and that high winds are more or less prevalent.

Samuel J. Coburn, promoter of industrial Places, which has since become Connecticut Villages, one of the great plant of the Connecticut Mills company, has finally decided to develop another large venture in California. Having successfully established several mills since leaving Danielson and achieving particular good fortune in his native Maine, he has now acquired a great tract of land within a dozen miles of Los Angeles and will erect a big worsted mill there. Some time since Mr. Coburn's plans were outlined in this column. He is convinced that the textile industry has a greater future in the south and west than in New England and with that idea firmly fixed in his mind he has gone into California with all the vim that is characteristic of his daring operations. It is likely that 1923 will see his newest development under way in full swing. Mr. Coburn recently returned to California after a hurried visit to his home in Maine.

PUTNAM

The bursting will mark the work in clearing up the wreckage of the Putnam block fire. Although some of this work have been completed it will be a week or two will be required with interest, for there is much to be taken to be recovered and salvaged, including safes and other articles of value. At the present time they cover the street and ice covered, but this will be materially lessened when workmen is carrying on their work.

J. F. Donahue, owner of the building, said Wednesday mean that the insurance on the structure has been adjusted. He has not definitely decided as to the exact type of building that will replace the one destroyed, but it likely will be of brick construction, thoroughly fireproof, two-story structure, and modern in all of its appointments and conveniences.

It is likely the cellar part of which is in ledge that runs all through the section near where the destroyed block was located, will be enlarged. No plans for the proposed building have been prepared as yet, but this is regarded as likely to receive attention in the immediate future.

Resolutions pertaining to the death in Florida of John G. Johnson were adopted Tuesday evening at a meeting of the directors of the Putnam Building and Loan Association, of which Mr. Johnson was a former president and in which he always maintained an active interest. These resolutions pay tribute to Mr. Johnson's sterling worth and to the loss the association and the city at large has sustained in his untimely death.

Mr. Johnson's body is expected to arrive here Friday. Arrangements were being made on Wednesday for his funeral services. Members of the Congregational church particularly deplore Mr. Johnson's death. He was one of its most invaluable members.

The Choir included the music of the church; Hopes, the children's work; Upplookers and Upliftera, the Epworth league work; Religious Education, the Sunday school ork; Chip-ins, the financial standing; and Helpers, the Ladies' Aid work. The principal address of the evening, given by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the Methodist church of Norwich, was excellent and inspiring and much enjoyed by all. His subject was The Power House of the Modern World—The Christian Church.

The menu consisted of beef pie, relishes, mashed potato, cake and coffee, and was delicious, as is typical of all the Ladies' Aid suppers. The table decorations were green and yellow, daffodils being used largely.

The evening was one of enjoyment and fellowship and the financial part very pleasing. The attendance was good, although many were prevented from attending on account of sickness and the bad traveling conditions.

PLAINFIELD

The students of Plainfield High school have chosen a businesslike method for earning money with which to purchase athletic equipment which the school wants very much. They have launched the course in salesmanship provided by a Philadelphia concern, which gives them training in salesmanship, and at the same time provides them with a method for earning this money through securing subscriptions for a magazine outside of school hours this week.

Gordon Forrest, vocational director for this district delivered a very interesting lecture to the students, explaining the present-day need for a knowledge of salesmanship and giving the principles of selling. He followed this with a little two-act play, How Not to Sell and How to Sell. Some very worthwhile instruction in salesmanship was gained, which is to be followed up by the students in their practical sales work this week.

The school is divided into two teams, the Bears with Eugene Bellavance as leader, and the Beavers with Ellen Belknap as leader.

Gold and silver pencils will be awarded by the school to the boy and girl making the best record in salesmanship. Keen rivalry has developed between the opposing sides.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION
Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician
Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.
These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.
If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.
Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

Tom Mix, the bright luminary of western drama, will be at the Breed theatre today, Friday and Saturday in "Do and Dare." His latest Fox production, a stirring story of intrigue, fighting blood and patriotic American revolution.

Under the direction of Edward Sedgwick, the story by Marion Brooks has been vividly picturized and an excellent cast selected for the support including such character actors as Dulcie Cooper, Claude Payton, Lon Klein, Jack Rollins, Hector Sarno, Wilbur Higby, and Gretchen Hartman. Claire Adams, the smiling, winsome leading woman, plays opposite the virile star.

The tale is that of a young eastern westerner who is suddenly intrigued by the lure of romance when he hears the hot-stove league yarns of the adventures of his bold, adventurous forebears, Kit Carson, Boone the pioneer and scout of the great west.

Urged on by his emotions and aided by the dexterity of Pete, the youth soon finds himself in an airplane carrying a military message to the leader of a revolution in the southern continent. What happens to him when he faces a firing squad and later the most beautiful señorita cast of the Andes affords many unusual incidents and absorbing romance in this Fox production.

Other pictures on the bill include Movie Chats and a Sunshine comedy.

A Promising Programme Opens at Broadway Today.

Another very promising B. F. Keith vaudeville show opens at the Broadway theatre today. The feature attraction is Max Bloom and Alice Shaw, names most familiar to the theatre-going public and who are endearingly belonged by that vast army as their own immediate relations. This genuinely kindly feeling and personality can only be constructed as an outpouring of appreciation for their splendid ability to delight, and certains a really wonderful record for two weeks to attain since their professional debut.

For a decade this famous dancing musical stars have headed their own company with Max Bloom furnishing the comedy element and Alice Shaw playing the prima donna role. Such remarkable success in this line of amusement was cause for the vaudeville continent to offer when greater inducements to enter this popular field of entertainment. Their acceptance was a gratifying as their debut in vaudevillians was successful, and much, as their initial entry proved an instantaneous hit, and their offering, which they bill under the caption of "A Tale of a Lonesome Spinner," bids fair to eclipse their phenomenal musical comedy record.

Other acts include Cortese, Cassidy & Co., in a comedy, song and dance act. Boy and Boyer in a Singing, Thrill and a Laugh. Nan Travers and Co., a Songstress with Personality, and Clayton and Clayton in comedy songs and art painting.

The photoplay feature is Richard Talmadge in another thriller, "Putting It Over."

"The World's Applause" Opens at the Strand Today.

Robert Townsend, one of the best known artists in the country, and a wealthy society man, was stabbed to death by some unknown person in his studio in Times Square last night. According to the police, Corrine d'Alys, the celebrated actress, who for many years has been in the public eye, is implicated in the murder.

This incident is one of the many dramatic occurrences in Williamson Mills's superb Paramount picture, "The World's Applause," which will be on view at the Strand theatre starting today for three days. According to the story, written by Rex Beranger and produced by Mr. Mille, Corrine d'Alys, an unsuccessful actress is obsessed by a craze for publicity. She is willing to go to any length to keep herself before the public, and she pays no heed to the protests of John Hilliard, her manager, who secretely loves her and warns her that her course inevitably invite disaster.

The picture is an excellent one, and the supporting cast is made up of screen notables, including amongst others, Kathlyn Williams, Adolphe Menjou, Mayme Kelso, Brandon Hurst, Beatrice Frank and James Neill.

A Christie comedy and News Weekly will make up the remaining subjects.

TICKET SALE FOR GROTTO'S MUSICAL COMEDY

March 7, at Sellas Spa, Franklin square, Norwich, if you call in person. Mail orders. If you desire to avoid the crowd that usually is standing in line, you can mail your plain tickets with cash or check for the difference according to performance or location of seat desired to Alexander Finlayson, 121 McKinley avenue, on or after March 1. Those received prior to March 1 will be held until March 2 before being opened, and thereafter mail orders will be put up in the order of their receipt before the tickets go on public sale on March 5th. Chicago Grain Market.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 22.—With the government weekly crop report showing drought in the west and southwest, as well as elsewhere from the recent cold wave, wheat averaged higher in price today. Profit taking, however, led to a reaction at the last. Enthusiasm appeared unspoiled at 2-3 cent decline to 1-2 cent advance. May 1.16 1-2 to 1.18 5-8, and July 1.13 5-8 to 1.15 1-2. Corn finished unchanged to 3-8 higher, oats up 3-8 to 1-2 & 5-8, and provisions varying from a setback of five to seven cents to a gain of 2 cents.

On the upturn in the wheat market, July and September rose to within about 2 cents of the highest prices which the new crop deliveries have reached this season. There was rather persistent buying of both the new crop months, and it was noticeable that the discount for July as compared with May was tending to become narrower. Expectance that farm legislation at Washington would be pressed quickly to a vote in the house, had a further bullish effect, and so likewise did predictions that farm deliveries for the next two months would be light.

Reports that Germany had obtained all the wheat which would be needed in that country during the next four months and that Russia was offering rye 5 to 6 cents cheaper than American offerings, were partly responsible for the late selling of wheat. Bears contended that a prospective big carry-over supply of wheat at the end of June would make consumers less dependent than usual on the new crop in the season.

Corn responded to talk of farm reserves being light and to signs of a better demand from the seaboard. Offerings of oats were meager.

Provisions were upheld as a result of some hand buying on foreign account.

MYSTIC WOMAN TESTIFIES TO HUSBAND'S CRUELTY

Florence Dudley Lyon of Mystic appeared before Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court in New London Wednesday morning seeking a divorce from Robert R. Lyon of Mayville, Mich., formerly a major in the regular army stationed at Fort Wright, Fishers Island. The action was brought on the grounds of intolerable cruelty. The defendant did not contest the case.

Mrs. Lyon who was married to her husband on May 27, 1914, testified that his cruelty began on Jan. 1, 1916. She declared that he abused and beat her and threatened her life and also that he had said that she was insane and should be sent to an asylum. Mrs. Lyon testified that she was in constant fear of her life from her husband.

Dorothy Dickinson Vinal of Mystic went on the stand and testified that Mrs. Lyon had come to her home on several occasions and showed her marks of violence on her body and that the latter was evidently in fear of her husband.

Mrs. Bertha Dudley, mother of the petitioner, testified to having seen bruises and other marks of violence on her daughter's body. She said that she had never seen the defendant strike her daughter but had been in an adjoining room when her daughter had come to her and showed her the marks and told her that her husband had struck her.

Charles H. Vinal of Mystic corroborated the testimony of Mrs. Vinal.

At the conclusion of the testimony Judge Avery took the papers and reserved decision.

YANTIC

A vestry meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell at Bliss place Tuesday evening to conduct the business affairs of Grace church. The gift of a bell was accepted and it will be placed in Grace church tower later. A committee was appointed consisting of C. S. Townsend, Frederick Fuller, Manning and Senator Herman J. Gibbs, warden, to make arrangements for its installation. The bell is the large bell of a Westminster peal, weighing eight hundred pounds and is now being cast at the McShaney bell foundry at Troy, N. Y.

Since placing the order with this firm the church has had the offer of a smaller bell and now needs only two more bells to complete the Westminster peal.

Day and the cooperation of his parishioners, Yantic will have as complete an Episcopal church as any village in New England.

Norwich Bulletin

The Norwich Savings Society

Incorporated 1842

Main Street Corner Broadway

The net increase granted by the town of Norwich was $41,000 or $6,000 less, according to the report of the board of relief, which completed its month of work yesterday afternoon and signed the report last night. This is a net increase of 11,111 over what has been made by the assessors, which represents mainly the petit taxable property and auto list.

Total additions made by the board of relief were $47,422 and total abatements $28,422.

The three members of the board of relief, Fred G. Prothero, James C. Fitzpatrick and E. Frank Leonard, have been at work today the ninth of February, being the first 30 days for hearings of appeals from the doings of the assessors, and the remaining time in preparing the figures which they were to report.

Additions.

There were 35 lists increased, of which 21 were new lists for automobiles, which totalled $3,440. Each new list has 10 per cent. added to the valuation of the property taxed.

The largest addition was an item of $20,000 on Titus Blatter & Co. of New York, a cloth and lace converting concern, that has a branch of its business here at the United States Finishing Co. plant, where it has been operating for three years, it is understood, but had not previously been included in the Norwich tax list. The Norwich branch does about 20 per cent. of the whole business of the concern, according to information that was given to the board of relief.

Abatements.

There were 85 appeals presented before the board and abatements were made on 42 lists. Twenty-three of the abatements were on claims for soldier exemption, which were substantiated by the claimants when they presented their papers before the board.

Abatements were made on 30 automobiles, totalling $17,813 on this item.

With the 21 more machines which were added to the tax dist, there are now 3,323 motor vehicles taxed in Norwich.

Eighty persons appeared before the board and were questioned and sworn, while notice of intended increase was sent to 36 persons.

There was $873 in 10 per cent. additions and $359 in 10 per cent. abatements.

The following was the board of relief's report:

Assessors' valuation	$20,382,267
Board's reductions (42)	28,422

EXPERTS WILL DISCUSS SOCIAL WELFARE PROBLEMS

An unusual gathering of social welfare experts from all over the country is scheduled for the Connecticut Conference of Social Work which convenes in New Haven April 11-14. According to the first official report of the secretary, John B. Dawson, indications are that all former records both for attendance and a high standard of program will be broken this year. The keynote of the conference, prevention rather than cure, will be sounded by James Rowland Angell, president of Yale university, who will open the proceedings on Wednesday evening, April 11th. This meeting will be devoted to a review of public health questions in Connecticut and for the three following days general and special conferences of a practical kind have been arranged on child welfare work, delinquency, recreation, mental hygiene, health, and relief work with families and individuals. No one will leave the conferences without feeling he has new inspiration and knowledge to take back to be of practical help to him in his own job.

WITHDRAWS BILL FOR TAKING M'COOK PROPERTY

Representative Charles J. Manning of East Lyme announced in Hartford Tuesday that he had asked leave to withdraw a bill introduced by him authorizing the state tuberculosis commission to condemn as a site for a new infirmary building for the Seaside sanatorium for bone tubercular children, property in East Lyme owned by the Miss McCook estate of Hartford.

The condemnation bill requested an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose.

Dr. Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the state tuberculosis commission, said that Representative Manwaring had acted upon his request, and that the proposed withdrawal was due to the fact that Governor Templeton was opposed to the condemnation.

WILL TAKE OFF ALL EXCESS FAT

Do you know that there is a simple, harmless, effective remedy for overfatness that may be used safely and secretly by any man or woman who is losing the slimness of youth? There is, and it is none other than the tablet form of the now famous Marmola Prescription known as Marmola Prescription Tablets. You can well expect to reduce steadily and easily without going through long siege of tiresome exercise and starvation diet. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a case, or you can secure them direct from the Marmola Co., 4613 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. On receipt of price.

SALVATION ARMY COLLECTORS WILL SHOW THEIR PASSES

Colonel W. A. McIntyre, head of the Salvation Army in New England, announced Wednesday his intention of putting a stop to the practice of soliciting funds in the name of The Salvation Army by unauthorized persons, members of other organizations and by Salvationists themselves, who in their zeal often go outside of the territory allotted them.

Col. McIntyre's notice says: In order to govern the activities of our own people and to prevent imposters from swindling the public, we are putting forth a strong effort: First, to regulate our own people keeping them in their proper fields of solicitation; second, to stop indiscriminate soliciting in the name of The Salvation Army by imposters; third, to make it impossible for members of other organizations to pass themselves off as raising money for The Salvation Army, although they may be wearing a uniform that to those who are not well posted would be very deceiving.

Beginning today every Salvation Army officer in New England in a city or town where we have work in progress will be definitely instructed to keep within the limits defined in his pass. This pass will be leather covered, the collector's photograph will be found in the upper right hand corner, the pass will be numbered, and will be signed by myself (W. A. McIntyre, Colonel) and countersigned by William C. Crawford, general secretary. The signature of the officer or collector will also be found on the pass. This will be an aid in checking wherever there is doubt.

Col. McIntyre invites all mayors, police department heads, and editors of newspapers, who hear of Salvationists soliciting in their city or town to challenge them, and examine their credentials. It is hoped that this plan will do away with the practice of collecting in the name of the army without authorization.

SUES FOR EXPENSES IN NEW YORK APARTMENT

Trial of a suit brought by Mrs. Betty Powers Peters, an artist of New York, against Mrs. Louise Keister of New London, formerly of Rogersville, Tenn., was begun before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here late Wednesday afternoon on Mrs. Peters' claim for $1,600 against Mrs. Keister.

The claim is for payments made for expenses of an apartment in New York and for money advanced between 1917 and 1919 both young women at that time being unmarried, the plaintiff's maiden name being Betty Powers and the defendant's maiden name Louise Kenna.

Mrs. Peters was on the stand until court adjourned for the day, giving the details of all the expenses of the apartment, which were paid by her and which Miss Kenna had agreed to share equally with her. The items included some cash advances and railroad fares and hotel charges on trips to Atlantic City, Baltimore and Washington, the whole coming to $1,538. In that time Miss Kenna had repaid her $15 at cards although there had $130 of another time.

After Miss Kenna's marriage to a naval officer named Keister, and while she was living in New London, Mrs. Peters testified that she came to New London to see what Mrs. Keister was going to do about the money that was owed her. At that time she said Mrs. Keister told her to send the bill to her father who would settle it, but Mrs. Peters replied that she wouldn't do that as they other woman's father had always objected to his daughter living in New York and she didn't see what claim she had on the father, Mr. Kenna.

Trial of the case will be continued when court comes in this (Thursday) morning. Attorney Arthur T. Keefe is counsel for the plaintiff and C. Hadlai Hull for the defendant.

ROTARIANS VOTE $10 TO SALVATION ARMY

At the regular noon day meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel reports of various committees were given by the chairman and other business of a routine nature was transacted. Senator William G. Park presided and Alex McNicol acted as song leader. The musical programme was exceptionally delightful and included a number of solos by Henry J. LaFontaine, Joseph C. Worth and Lucius Briggs. The solo by Mr. Worth was especially delightful as he had the moral support of several members of the club, but not the vocal support.

At the business session Charles A. Saxton, chairman of the programme committee, gave a brief outline of the plans for ladies' night and also announced that Dr. R. R. Agnew and Dr. Hugh R. Campbell would have charge of the meeting next week and that Arthur M. Brown would be in charge the week following. James H. Crawford reported for the fellowship committee and urged continued attendance at the meetings.

Herbert M. Larcu spoke in behalf of the Salvation Army drive and recommended that the club contribute $10 to the fund. Mr. Larcu also spoke on the plans for the St. Louis convention of International Rotary and urged that the local club be well represented.

R. LaRue Bliven reported as chairman of the spring conclave committee and said that 30 members of the local club intended to be present at the two sessions at New Haven on March 15th and 16th.

Adelard Morin brought up a matter that was of great interest to the members of the club as citizens of Norwich, namely the high school problem that is being considered by the town school board. Mr. Morin said that while the club could not take any action as a club each member should interest himself in the matter.

John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the chamber of commerce, told the club that Major Peter had intimated that he would make an unfavorable report on the project of widening the Thames river channel, but there would be a final hearing at Providence on Friday. Mr. O'Rourke urged that as many as possible go to this meeting and try and change Major Peterson's attitude. Mr. O'Rourke also mentioned the proposed new train schedule between New London and Worcester.

FIRE IN FLOORING AT CENTRAL BUILDING

A telephone to Central fire station from the Central building Wednesday morning shortly after 10 o'clock brought out squad A and chief Stanton. The fire was located in the flooring over a steam pipe and three gallons of chemical ended the blaze. The fire was discovered by the janitor who saw smoke coming up through a lower hallway and it was found that the flooring over the steam pipe had become carbonated from heat coming from the steam pipe touching the floor. The pipes had been in that position for many years.

NORWICH TOWN

The Ministry of Teaching will be the theme of the mid-week service of the First Congregational church, this (Thursday evening) in the chapel.

At the Young People's Christian Endeavor services last Sunday evening, the leaders were Miss Helen Schwenk for the Congregational society; and Miss Florence Brown for the Methodist society. The topic was "What Are Some Temptations To Lie, and How to Overcome Them?" Prov. 12:17-22.

For the first Sunday of this month, at the Sacred Heart church, there will be mass at 7.30 o'clock in the morning. The usual lenten devotions consisting of Stations of the Cross and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, will take place that evening at 7.30.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church will conduct the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms, assisted by the choir of that church.

Dr. Charles H. Lamb is to have charge of the musical hour at the Backus hospital, Sunday afternoon at 3.15, under the auspices of Home Chapter of the Kings' Daughters, Mrs. John C. Atterbary, leader.

Mrs. Frederick Rees, of Scotland road has been called to New Hampshire, because of the serious illness of her mother.

Friends of Kenneth Skinner, of Otrobando avenue, were sorry to learn Wednesday that he was confined to his bed threatened with pneumonia.

Housewarming at Worcester.

A surprise house warming party was given Dr. and Mrs. Peter A. Colberg last Friday night at Worcester. Dr. Colberg is a former resident of this city, the son of Capt. Martin A. Colberg. Their new residence at 18 Stebbins street has recently been completed. Thirty-two guests, mostly fellow physicians and their wives, neighbors and friends, invaded their home, and gave an informal entertainment.

They presented Dr. and Mrs. Colberg a beautiful electric table lamp. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Eastern Connecticut Health Report

According to the morbidity report for the week ending February 24, the following cases of communicable diseases were reported from Eastern Connecticut. Diptheria, Groton (B) 2, Whooping cough, Groton (B) 2, New London 7, Waterford 2, Willimantic 1, Scarlet fever, Waterford 1, Pomfret 1, Measles, Groton (B) 18, New London 11, Norwich (C) 9, Old Lyme 2, Stonington 2, Killingly 10, Putnam (C) 4, Thompson 2, Woodstock 3.

According to the report for the entire state diphtheria increased from 40 cases to 48 cases over the week ending February 17; whooping cough decreased from 63 to 48, scarlet fever increased from 76 to 82, smallpox decreased from 4 to 3 cases; and measles decreased from 355 to 290 cases.

No case of Typhoid fever was reported during the week.

Asked to Leave Hospital.

William Cramer, of Hartford, who spent considerable time at the state farm for inebriates at Norwich in endeavor to cure himself of the drug habit, has found that his strength is not sufficient to stop his cravings for drugs when he was released in Hartford Tuesday. In the police court he begged Judge Shaw to send him back stating that he believed another period there would work a complete cure. Cramer was in better health Tuesday than when first brought before the court, a physical wreck, but showed signs of the effect of the drug. He was charged with vagrancy. The judge sent him to the hospital for another period.

The Good

MAXWELL

SEDAN, $1,335.00, F. O. B.

The good Maxwell Sedan is a family car of graceful lines, truly handsome in appearance. Refinement is emphasized in every detail, inside and out. The seats are generously wide and deep, so designed as to make riding most comfortable. Unusual care in design is evident throughout.

The distinct individuality of the good Maxwell Sport Touring Car makes an instant appeal. Body and hood in striking Chester Hunt Red, fenders and wheels in black, form a contrast that is accentuated by shimmering nickel—the rims on the wheels, lamps, the winged water indicator, the radiator, front and rear bumpers. The top is of two-ply duck, olive drab in color, and heavily rubberized. Curtains, of course, match the top and open with the doors. Outside door handles of nickel with enamel inlay are attractive and convenient. Upholstery is in bright, black, patent leather. A commodious trunk is mounted on a special platform at the rear. The spare tire, fitted with a waterproof olive drab cover, is carried on the left side. The Sport Touring Car has the same mechanical excellence as other good Maxwell models, assuring fine, low-cost performance.

SPORT TOURING, $1,025.00, F. O. B.

CLUB COUPE, $985.00, F. O. B.

The good Maxwell Club Coupe is a superior two-passenger vehicle of advanced design, embodying substantial elements of comfort, convenience and actual elegance, unique in cars of this class. The wide, comfortable seat, upholstered in real leather, has an abundance of room for two persons. Back of the seat is a convenient package compartment, and there is an unusually large rear deck compartment. The unusual quarter windows, as well as the door windows, can be raised and lowered. The rear window—of regulation closed car size—has a roller curtain. The completeness of this car is attested by the double ventilating windshield, the windshield visor, the wiper, the rear vision mirror and the heater, all of which are standard equipment. The composite steel construction assures continued quietness throughout the long life of the car.

Horace Greeley's Barn

During the illness that resulted in his death, in 1872, Horace Greeley expressed a wish, in talking with his daughter, that after he was gone and forgotten, his old barn would still be serving a useful purpose. Although the famous editor has been dead for half a century, his wish has been made a reality, and his daughter and her husband are living today in the house into which they transformed the old concrete barn. Some years after the death of Greeley, fire destroyed all the frame buildings on the estate, and the family sought refuge in the old barn as an emergency home. Later, with the assistance of an architect, the old barn was remodeled into a comfortable and modern dwelling. The corners and part of the foundations are of recent masonry construction, and the chimneys and trimmings of brick have been added.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Changed Ambition

Time was when a boy's greatest ambition was to become president of the United States, but now the vice presidency of one of our prosperous oil companies promises a greater financial reward, if not so much honor.—Columbus Dispatch.

An Iron Arc.

The Zeiss optical works at Jena have put out a rather curious form of apparatus, says the Washington Star. A so-called iron arc—that is, an electric salts of iron, giving out a light rich in ultra-violet rays—is used with screens, so as to cut off all the heating and luminous rays, leaving none but ultra-violet invisible radiations. In these pure ultra-violet radiations nearly all substances fluoresce, and the light they give out is greatly affected by the degree of their purity, thus providing means of examining the chemical purity of substances.

Cleaning Cotton

A machine that embodies a novel process of opening and cleaning cotton by subjecting it to extremely rapid vibration in a current of air has been developed in England. The machine consists of a cast-iron base that supports a dust-proof sheet-metal casing with a semi-circular top, inside which a horizontal, perforated drum rests for its whole length upon a small rotating brush, which slowly revolves the drum, keeping its perforations clean. Inside and at the bottom of the drum there is a small and rapidly revolving motor with a large number of right and lefthand spiraled blades, so that when the cotton fed into the machine falls on this rotor it is kept in constant motion backward and forward and is thus thoroughly opened up, all dust adhering to it being removed. It then becomes so light that a current of air pumped through a pipe that penetrates one end of the drum blows the cotton through an outlet, at the other end, in a condenser. Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Alps Railroad Power.

At length the electrification of the St. Gothard Railway that crosses the Swiss Alps, and is one of the great arteries of European traffic, has been completed after about nine years of constant effort, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. The result is a triumph of engineering skill and stands as a monument to the determination of the Swiss to be ever in the van of progress. The undertaking involved virtually a reconstruction of the whole railway line, for bridges had to be strengthened or rebuilt, telegraph and telephone lines had to be relaid and repairing sheds and depots had to be extended. Two large power stations had to be built and equipped, one at Amsteg and the other at Piotta, about five miles beyond the southern entrance, with five sub-stations for transformation of current at various points along the line.

All the usual advantages of electrification have resulted from this enterprise, in particular the elimination of smoke and foul air in the tunnels. The whole St. Gothard route, besides being the most picturesque, with its ever-changing scenery, is now also, in every sense of the word, the most enjoyable in all Switzerland.

WHEN AND WHERE SNOW FALLS DEEPEST OR FOR MOST DAYS

The greatest snowfall known in the United States occurs in the Sierra Nevada and Cascade Mountain ranges in the Pacific Coast States, where at some places from 30 to more than 40 feet of snow falls during the winter season, says the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture. At Summit, Calif., which has an elevation of about 7,000 feet, nearly 60 feet of snow have been recorded in a single season, and about 25 feet in a single month.

An appreciable amount of snow usually falls on more than 40 days of the year in northern New York; the upper peninsula of Michigan, northern Minnesota, and northeastern North Dakota, as well as in the higher elevations of the northern Rocky Mountains. Snow may be expected on as many as 30 days as far south as southeastern Pennsylvania, central Ohio, southern Wisconsin, and southern South Dakota, and on 10 days in southern Virginia, western North Carolina, the northern portions of Tennessee and Arkansas, central Oklahoma, and northwestern Texas. In extreme southern South Carolina, south-central Georgia, northern Alabama, and south central Texas, however, snow may be expected only on about one day during the winter.

The relative protection usually afforded winter grains by snow cover in different sections of the country is shown by the number of days that the ground remains covered with snow. East of the Rocky Mountains the number of such days, not necessarily consecutive, decreases with considerable regularity from more than 120 in many of central and northern New England, the mountain districts of northern New York, northwestern Michigan, and the northern portions of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and North Dakota, where the first snow is seen early in October, to 30 days in northern New Jersey, western Virginia, the southern portions of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and central Missouri and Kansas, where it does not usually fall until after November 1. South of Augusta, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., Vicksburg, Miss., and central Texas, the ground is covered with snow usually less than one day during the entire winter season.

The bayonet was invented in Bayonet, France, in 1640.

Woodpeckers and Pecans

Down in the Jamaica Bend country the woodpeckers were mighty diligent in storing pecans last fall. On one farm the barn is inclosed with a fence, the posts of which have been set long enough that they offer excellent quarters for the nests of the birds. Nearly every post contains a cavity drilled out by the woodpeckes and flicker. The owner when he wants a supply of nuts goes to a post and can secure from a pint to a quart of nuts from each one. Earlier in the year, when the nuts were ripening one bird was filling a cavity in a tree limb. The owner of the tree saw the bird dropping the nuts into the hole and with a chisel cut an opening on the lower side of the limb and attached a sack under the opening. The flicker carried about two gallons of nuts and dropped them into the sack before he discovered he was being robbed.—Carrollton (Mo.) Republic.

A First Folio Shakespeare

A cod from Frank Sabin, which meant a bid of £5,900, or about $26,500, secured a first folio Shakespeare at Sotheby's auction rooms. A big effort was made to win the first folio for the United States. A representative of a New York firm carried the bidding to $20,250 before giving way to the London experts. Then followed a duel between Mr. Quaritch and Mr. Sabin which ended in victory for the latter. The copy was from the collection of the late Richard Johnson, Manchester. Last May the famous Daniel copy of the first folio, which was in the Burdett-Coutts library, was sold for £8,500, about $38,700, and later went to the United States.—London Mail.

OPPOSED TO THE COMPULSORY VACCINATION OF CHILDREN

Views of Anti-Vaccinationists Given Before the Legislative Committee on Public Health and Safety—Parents Desire the Right of Freedom of Choice for Themselves and for Their Own Children—Further Hearing on the One-Man Trolley Car—Proposal to be Made to Appoint Three Judges at $3,000 a Year Each for Traffic Courts in Territory Not Now Under the Jurisdiction of a Town Court.

Hartford, March 1.—Anti-vaccinationists had their day before the legislative committee on public health and safety this afternoon. As a general argument they centered their support on those bills which seek to give a parent the right to decide whether his child shall be vaccinated as a condition for school attendance with approval of such clauses in the bill as would give health officers the right to withdraw this parental prerogative during the prevalence of an epidemic.

The vaccination question is an old one before the general assembly and in past years a hearing on bills to make vaccination optional was sure to jam Representative Hall with persons who were antis. This afternoon under direction of the newly formed Connecticut Medical Liberty League incorporated, there was an effort to keep the debate entirely on one or two of the bills which seek to take out compulsory consent to have his child vaccinated, with the further right of securing a certificate from a physician as to the child's condition.

Recently, in the state, there have been several cases where the parents have been in court for failure to send their children to school, these children having been denied school privileges because they were not vaccinated. There are cases still pending. Also, it has been claimed that last year during a prevalence of smallpox there were deaths, and some cases of acute illness due to vaccination.

There were many speakers most of whom took the ground that they were not opposed to vaccination for those who desired it, but wished the right of freedom of choice for themselves and for their own children. A number of members of the legislature declared themselves in favor of vaccination but against the extreme compulsory provisions of the present laws. One physician declared that it was only "a chattered mind" that could believe vaccination would prevent small pox. He said that a vaccinated child was a greater menace to a community than a healthy child who was not vaccinated. He declared that epidemics come periodically, that men cannot prevent them, and they are due to atmospheric conditions and lack of sanitation.

This led Dr. Eddy, house chairman of the committee to ask that speaker, Dr. Milligan, of New Britain, if he believed in anti-toxins. The doctor said he did not, and that there was no such thing as anti-toxin. He said a toxin is poison and an anti-toxin would be merely inert matter. He was asked by Dr. Eddy, not believing in a serum for typhoid fever how he could explain that in the Civil war thousands died of typhoid fever while in the Spanish war there was scarcely a death. Dr. Milligan said it did not believe that was so for while there were figures he did not believe them as he had no way of knowing they were true. He had served in the Civil war and treated sick and wounded soldiers.

Dr. Milligan said that what was wanted was justice and freedom, adding: "When we get law we have to pay for it, and when we want justice we have to fight for it."

Another physician declared that serum therapy was "medical humbuggery," and "medical witchcraft." He had been converted from the use of serum "after seeing children scientifically crippled by the use of vaccine" and believed disease had to be fought with fresh air, sunlight, good food, and good health."

Several health officers spoke against the bills.

Traffic Courts

Another hearing was that before the judiciary committee on the bill of Motor Vehicle Commissioner Steeckel to create traffic courts. The commissioner appeared for a bill not yet drawn, but an explanation with charts was given of what the commissioner wanted. He would use the town courts as traffic courts, and appoint three judges at $3,000 a year each to cover the territory not now under the jurisdiction of a town court. Violations of traffic laws would be tried in these courts exclusively and expert advice on traffic matters would be available for these courts.

The same committee heard sheriff T. L. Reilly, and a delegation speak in behalf of the fraternity of Eagles' Old Age pension bill. The bill of Senator Spielman for an old age pension was withdrawn.

The committee on shell fisheries in executive session finished its work by deciding to reject all bills before it, save one which will give the engineer of the commission a slight increase in salary. The committee felt that all the bills with the one exception were of a "petty" nature drawn by the "natural growers" and aimed at a commissioner who will soon go out of office.

The appropriations committee gave consideration to the projects of starting a memorial to war veterans in the form of markers on the state highways, and for which the appropriation would be $1,000.

One-Man Car Question

The railroads committee again took up the one-man car question and heard both Mr. Funderford of the Connecticut company and Frank O'Meara for the trolley unions. The arguments were short and the latter laid before 21 pages of evidence showing the extent of "unsafeness" of the one-man type of car.

His contention was that by throwing so much responsibility upon the single man operating the car that the safety element was eliminated. The committee also heard bills for amendments to the charters of the two companies which are taking over portions of the old Shore Line Street Railway in eastern Connecticut.

A striking incident in the legislative session was that house adjournment was moved by Mrs. Frink of Canterbury. This was the first time a woman had spoken on the house floor this session. The first speech of a woman in the house was that of Miss Hooker, of Hartford, last summer when she told the men that the women members did not expect them to give up smoking.

The session tomorrow will probably carry legislative matter to a point where the end of hearings is in sight. More than half the committe have finished their work, and hearty three-fourths of all bills introduced have been reported into one branch or the other. This forecasts final adjournment not later than May 1.

APPROPRIATIONS ASKED FOR STATE FARM FOR WOMEN

Hartford, Conn. March 1.—Officials of the Connecticut state farm for women went to the capitol today to request the legislative appropriations committee to recommend appropriations aggregating $323,700 for the new construction and equipment at the institution at Niantic. Before this hearing ended, they trimmed down their requests to approximately $55,000 for the erection of a new cottage, and furnishings to accommodate twenty-two girls.

Mrs. Ida M. S. Thompson of this city, chairman of the board of directors, stated to the committee that the officials of the institution, in requesting $323,700, had done what they believed to be their duty, by listing requirements of the institution. She said that the directors wanted to cooperate with the committe in keeping the expenses within the state's income, and, realising that it was reasonable to ask money for only imperative projects, had not expected to secure the approval of the entire program at once.

For the maintenance of the state farm for the next two years, $397,000 has been requested, and $202,000 recommended by the state board of finance.

Questioned by representative Pierpont of the committee, superintendent Anna M. Peterson of the institution said that the average age of inmates was twenty-six years, and that forty per cent. of them were mental defectives. Mr. Pierpont asked how many of the inmates were so-called "old-rounders." Miss Peterson said she did not recognize that term. She told of a woman well along in years who had been sent to jail sixty-two times in ten years and served 1,300 days for drunkenness, but was reformed at the state farm. She explained that she did not mean to criticise Mr. Pierpont's use of the term, but that the results which had been accomplished at the institution caused her not to recognize it.

DECISIONS RENDERED BY STATE SPREME COURT

New Haven, March 1.—The state supreme court today handed down decisions in 24 cases.

The court found no error in the case of Joseph Cianflone and Mike Rugiero of New Britain, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Enio Renaldino on a deserted road in Farmington in 1920. The men appealed on the ground that they had been convicted as a result of "prejudice."

In the case of the Bethlehem Steel company versus the Ansonia Foundry company the court found error in the decision of Judge Haines and directed the judgment of $5,431 be entered for the Bethlehem company.

In the appeal of Ostilio Fantiani of Meriden that his application for naturalization which had been denied in Meriden, be appealed to the supreme court, the court held that his plea be sustained and that a motion to dismiss the appeal be denied.

NO REDUCTION IN RATES BY UTILTIES WITH SAFETY

Boston, March 1.—Edward K. Hall, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, addressing the chamber of commerce today, said he did not know of a single public utility in the country which could safely make any reduction in rates. In the case of his own company, he said, a reduction of a single cent per day for telephones used last year would have left the company no funds for dividends, and wound have made it necessary to shut down part of the plant. The demand for service today, he said, was out of all proportion to the increase in population.

AGRICULTURAL CREDITS BILL IN CONFERENCE

Washington, March 1.—Senate and house conferees began work late today on the agricultural credits bill, passed today by the house. Two meetings were held and it was said prospects were bright for an early agreement.

The bill includes portions of two senate bills—the Capper and Lenroot-Anderson measure—both of which went through the senate by overwhelming majorities, and before the conference began house conferees expressed the opinion that quick action would be had.

House opponents of the measure indicated today they did not base high hopes on material changes in the conference.

"MONA LISA" GIVEN BY THE METROPOLITAN OPERA CO.

New York, March 1.—Max Schillings' "Mona Lisa" with a German libretto was given for the first time by the Metropolitan Opera company tonight. The premiere of this novelty introduced Barbara Kemp, a new dramatic soprano from the Berlin opera, and a new bass-baritone, Michael Bohnen, from the Munich opera. The German atmosphere was relieved by the fact that all the scenes are laid in Italy and that the libretto is based upon the famous smile of Leonardo Da Vinci's celebrated portrait of "La Gioconda." Thus, though sung in German, the scene was in Florence and the theme was Italian.

CAMERA PARAGRAPHS

London, March 1.—For the first time since the war the German ambassador, Dr. Gustave Stresser, and his wife remained with the king and queen at Buckingham palace today.

MRS. BEAN TO TAKE STAND TODAY IN HER OWN DEFENSE

Farmington, Me., March 1.—Mrs. Ethel H. Bean, on trial here for the murder of her husband, a Rangeley Lakes guide, will probably take the stand tomorrow in her own defense, former State Attorney General Pattangall stated after the state had suddenly and without explanation rested its case today.

After the abrupt ending of the state's case the court granted a recess until tomorrow, as a result of a conference with counsel for the defense and prosecution during which Attorney Pattangall said that the ending of the state's case had surprised the defense and time was required to review the evidence.

Under cross-examination Sheriff W. Burton Small, one of the final witnesses for the prosecution, admitted that the Franklin county authorities had attempted to persuade Mrs. Bean to sign a confession that she had killed her husband and that the woman, although all the while asserting her innocence of the crime, had said that she would sign the statement if she were assured that she would not be arrested until after the marriage of her sister. Sheriff Small also said under cross-examination that County Attorney Holman had told Mrs. Bean that if she signed the paper she would not be arrested that day.

Under re-direct examination Sheriff Small was asked why he did not have the woman sign the paper. He replayed:

"Because I didn't want any paper with any strings on it."

Evidence intended to support the state's claim that jealousy was the motive behind the shooting was given by a number of witnesses, including Elsie M. Stewart and Nellie Greenwood, waitresses at the summer camps where Bean was employed as guide and mail carrier.

Howard L. Potter told of hearing Mrs. Bean accuse her husband of improper conduct with girls at the camps and declared that they quarrelled from 9 o'clock until 2 in the morning in a room below the one he occupied on one occasion.

Charles George of Waterville testified that while trying to sell jewelry to Mrs. Bean she had told him that her husband cared more for "the girls" than for her and that he spent more than he earned "on those girls, especiall one of them."

CAMPAIGN FOR HIGHER WAGES IN COTTON MILLS

Fall River, Mass., March 1.—The movement to make this city the starting point of a campaign for increased wages in New England cotton mills gained strength today with the announcement by President James Tansey of the textile council that its organization had voted to recommend steps to demand the advance.

The textile council, representing local organizations of the American Federation of Textile Operatives, is the advisory body for most of the organized mill workers of the city. Its action was in the nature of a recommendation to its six constituent unions that they petition the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' association for an increase in pay, the amount to be set later by the council. Provision was made for a meeting of the council on March 15 to frame the demand which it was expected the subordinate unions would authorize at special meetings meantime.

When the United Textile Workers of America, acting on a vote by its subordinate, 'the doffers' union, announced two months ago a campaign to obtain restitution of the wage cut of 22 1-2 per cent. made in 1920, the textile council held its hand. The Manufacturers' association let it be known at that time that it would refuse the request and would close its mills rather than grant the 22 per cent. increase in existing wages necessary to restore the cut. Representatives of the textile council met with the Manufacturers' association subsequently, discussed trade conditions, it was announced, but entered into no negotiations for a wage increase.

Today's action of the council, the major element in the organized group of operatives here, in declaring for an increase, if supported by its subordinate unions, will put approximately one-half of the 30,000 mill workers of Fall River back of the formal demand.

SUGAR REFINERS ARE PROTECTING THEMSELVES

New York, March 1.—Buyers in the raw sugar market today paid 5 5-8 cents for Cuban, cost and freight, March shipment, taking upwards of 30,000 bags at that figure, which was the highest price paid since the advance of 1920.

Most of the sugar went to refiners who have recently sold large quantities of refined sugar to the trade and are now protecting themselves with purchases of raws. Back of today's activity and advance was a rumor that the Cuban secretary of agriculture would issue an estimate of around 2 1-2 million tons, or 3,000,000 tons less than the minimum estimate of private estimates then received. There was no confirmation of this, and late Havana cables professed to believe there was no reason for changing previous estimates of four million tons.

Refiners are general holding fine granulated at 9 cents. Raw sugar futures shared the general strength by advancing to 5.86 for May and 5.98 for July or about 10 points net higher and a cent above the low of Tuesday. After moderate reactions, the late afternoon market was stronger again on new buying and covering with last prices 9 to 12 points net higher.

SENATE PASSED THE FILLED MILK BILL

Washington, March 1.—The Voigt filled-milk bill was passed late today by the senate and sent to the house for adjustment of minor differences.

The bill would prohibit interstate shipment of condensed or evaporated milk made from skimmed milk and oil substitutes for butter fat such as cottonseed and cocoanut bil.

Dairy organizations, supported by the farm blocs in both senate and house, were behind the measure, which was passed by the house last May after introduction by Representative Vligt, republican, Wisconsin. Manufacturers of products combining skimmed milk with vegetable fats opposed it, contending that their output was not harmful to health.

There was no record vote by the senate, the bill being passed by unanimous consent.

White Slavery Charge Against Kleagle

Edward Young Clarke of Atlanta, Former Acting Imperial Wizard, Indicted at Houston, Texas.

Houston, Texas, March 1.—An indictment charging violation of the white slave act has been returned by the federal grand jury here against Edward Young Clarke of Atlanta, former acting imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan. It was revealed this afternoon order have been issued for the arrest of Clarke, it is understood.

The specific charge is that Clarke transported a woman from Houston to New Orlean on February 13, 1921. On receipt of information that Clarke was at his office in Atlanta, Ga., T. B. White of the department of justice telephoned Atlanta instruction for his arrest.

Louis F. Schweikart, a Houston fire insurance agent is foreman of the grand jury which returned the indictment. The allegations in the bill are not of an extensive nature, simply setting the charge that the woman named was transported for immoral purposes from one state to another, in violation of the Mann act.

Clarke, was elected imperial giant of the organization at the last conclave and during the absence of Imperial Wizard Simmons in Europe he was acting imperial wizard. He visited Houston twice in company with Simmons, once during the Confederate reunion here, and again when the charter of the Houston, chapter was delivered.

STATEMENT BY THE FORMER ACTING IMPERIAL WIZARD

Atlanta, Ga., March 1.—"It is simply another effort to attempt to discredit me, and, through discrediting me, damage the knights of the Ku Klux Klan," said Edward Young Clarke, former acting imperial wizard of the klan, when told this afternoon of his reported indictment in Houston, Texas.

Mr. Clarke this afternoon issued the following statement:

"I have not yet received any detailed information in regard to the matter, but am not guilty of the charge supposed to have been brought against me and upon which the indictment is reported to have been obtained.

"It is simply another effort to attempt to discredit me and through discrediting me, damage the knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

"I have won every case that has gone to trial which has been brought against me, and I am sure that if indictment has been obtained as indicated, that when the matter goes to trial, I will be fully and entirely vindicated."

MRS. SALUDES COLLAPSED AFTER CROSS-EXAMINATION

New York, March 1.—Mrs. Paulette Saludes, on trial on a charge of murdering Oscar Matelliers, a broker, last October, today weathered hours or grueling cross-examination and then, stepping from the stand, collapsed at her counsel's table.

It was half an hour before she regained consciousness. Then she was taken back to the Tombs, to face another day of cross-examination tomorrow.

Yesterday Mrs. Saludes, under the questioning of her attorney, painted the man she had shot in his Williams street office, as a male vampire who had turned her against her husband, tricker her out of her property, made love to her against her will, and then cast her off.

Today Assistant District Attorney Brothers sought to sketch another picture for the jury.

Mr. Brothers first set out to disprove the allegation of the defendant that she had received little or nothing in the way of money from Matelliere, whom she had charged with cheating her out of home and automobile. Brothers produced checks signed by Matelliere for installments on the machine and obtained from the witness admission that the mortgage on her house would have been foreclosed if Matelliere had not paid the interest.

Then the prosecutor turned to the defendant's personal history and her alleged marriage and desertion by "Saludes."

FORMER PROHIBITION OFFICER ON TRIAL

New York, March 1.—Introduction of evidence by the prosecution in the trial of Harold L. Hart, former prohibition director, William A. Orr and 14 others charged with conspiring to defraud the government through illegal withdrawals of liquor, is expected to be concluded tomorrow.

Witnesses today told of the withdrawals of large amounts of liquor from warehouses and distilleries on permits said to be stolen from the office of the prohibition director. It is alleged that more than $10,000,000 worth of liquor had been withdrawn on 200 permits missing from the director's office.

M. M. Hyland, superintendent and shipping clery of the Sherwood Distillery, Cockneyville, Md., told of deliveries of 1,000 gallons of whiskey on two of the permits, which he identified and said he obtained receipts signed "McCormick." The permits were made out to the Alps Drug Company, one of the defendants.

Bound and Gagged Two Jewelers in New York and Left Them Helpless on the Floor.

New York, March 1.—Three armed bandits tonight held up and bound two jewelers in a Delancey street store, on the lower East Side, and escaped with $66,000 in gems.

The trio entered the store of Max Sosna, and after binding and gagging him rifled the safe of $66,000 in jewels.

As they were leaving, Charles Landau, a Nassau street, jewelrr, entered the store. He, too, was held up and $1,000 in unset gems were taken from him.

The jewelers were left helpless on the floor, while the bandits fled in an automobile, awaiting them in front of the building. It was fifteen minutes before Some and Landau could remove the gags and call for help.

EXPLAINED CLAIM FOR COST OF U. S. ARMY ON RHINE

Paris, March 1.—(By the Associated Press)—The position of the American government regarding its claim for reimbursement for maintenance of the army of occupation on the Rhine was explained by Elliot Wadsworth, assistant secretary of the treasury, at his first conference with financial representatives of France, Great Britain and Italy today.

The meeting was held at the foreign office and was opened without formality. M. Tanner representing France, was in the chair, and opened the discussion by stating the purpose of the meeting. Then followed a free exchange of views which lasted three hours, and was largely in a conversational form, involving discussion of principles rather than figures.

The American views had already been fully set forth in various notes to the allied governments prior to November 23 last, when the allied ambassador's council, finding it difficult to conduct the four-cornered conference, suggested the present conference.

It was decided by the delegates today to defer further consideration until next Monday in order to afford them to think over matters and confront their various governments. It was also decided to observe secrecy, except for the issuance of official communications to the public. The first communique, the framing of which occupied about one-third of the time of today's session, was as follows:

"The committee on the costs of occupation of the American army held today the first session of the conference decided upon as a result of communications exchanged by the interested governments. The committee proceeded to exchange views and explanations of the diverse questions raised by the proble of reimbursing the costs of the American army in order to determine the direction in which a solution can be found. It will hold its next session on Monday, March 5, at 2.30 p. m.

The costs of maintaining the American military forces on the Rhine were estimatd in Washington on February 19 as approximately $265,000,000.

SEARCHING FOR IRISH REBELS IN MOUNTAINS

London, March 1.—The search by the Irish Free State troops for the rebel leader Bofin and his followers in the fastnesses of the Arigna mountains is continuing, says the Belfast correspondent of the Evening News, but it is possible that the rebel commander may be entombed with several comrades in a coal mine, the entrance to which was blown up by their pursuers.

The Free Staters found that Bofin and his men were hiding in disused mines, some of which had been fitted up for habitation. The besieging party set off a charge of explosives, thereby sealing the entrance to one mine in which several rebels, one of them possibly Bofin, were thought to have taken refuge. If the men were in the mine at the time of the explosion, says the correspondent, it is believed they must have been suffocated.

NO EVIDENCE OF REAL SHORTAGE OF SUGAR

Boston, March 1.—The state commission on necessaries of life in a memorandum issued today says that from a preliminary investigation "it is unable to find anything that would indicate the present existence of a real shortage of sugar."

"The fear of a possible shortage of Cuban sugar some ten months from now," says the memorandum, "has been the basis of speculation during the past few months. Speculation in raw sugar is already showing signs of slowing down. The housekolders so far apparently refused to be stampeded into hoarding sugar."

Wainik, who had boasted that he was a pool expert, with a large amount of money to bet on himself, had only a few cents on his person.

Formal Statement Issued by the German Embassy in Washington—Asserts That the Population Has Let Itself Be Led to Acts of Desperation—Declares the Atmosphere of "High Tension" May in the Near Future Lead to "Explosions"—German Government Control Paralyzed by Procedure of the French.

Washington, March 1.—The German embassy in a formal statement issued today declared that should the population in the Ruhr, "already severely tried, let itself be led to acts of desperation, the German government, owing to the paralisation by the French of the German official apparatus in the Ruhr, will not be in a position to guarantee the maintenance of peace and order in the occupied territory."

An atmosphere of "high tension" had gradually been created throughout the occupied zone, it was stated, which "causes the possibility to be feared that this atmosphere may in the near future lead to explosions."

The text of the statement follows:

"Owing to the latest events in the Ruhr territory, especially owing to the ever-more numerous and brutal expulsions, pillages and ill-treatments on the streets, and through the oppression of entire towns such as Recklinghausen, Gelsenkirchen and Bochum, an atmosphere of high tension has gradually been created in the entire occupied territory which causes the possibility to be feared that this atmosphere may in the near future lead to explosions.

"The German government still maintains a policy of mere passive resistance as hitherto applied, and in this policy is backed by the unanimous support of the officials and the entire population. Should, however, the population, already severely tried, let itself be led to acts of desperation, the German government, owing to the paralysation by the French of the German official apparatus in the Ruhr, will not be in a position to guarantee the maintenance of peace and order in the occupied territory.

"How far the German administrative and economic apparatus in occupied territory has been disorganized by the French is shown by the following:

"By orders of the commander of the 133th French division, German security police of Essen, Urban and rural districts has been disbanded. Disarming of the German security police is also reported, during which process it is said that the Ruhr is practically deprived of all its organs of control and assistance provided for the safety and peace of the population.

"Expulsions of the following persons took place up to the present date:

"The governor of the Rhine province, all presidents of administrative districts with one exception, the presidents of three main postal districts, three railway districts, of two mining boards, of two courts of appeal, fourteen lord mayors, thirty-one postal directors, nine customs directors, six directors of the Reichsbank, four directors of newspapers, two secretaries of state, trade unions, thirteen directors of mining companies. Total, besides that, approximately 600 members of families."

GERMAN GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN PAYING FINES

Berlin, March 1.—(By The A. P.)—It would appear from a special despatch from Essen published in the Westische Zeitung today that the German government has been paying the fines assessed by the French court-martial against Essen policemen in order to expedite their release from prison.

The correspondence relates how the Essen police were disbanded a short time ago at the request of the French and men to subsitute Belgian and French officers being used as the "armed" aids that the prohibition against shooting, which was issued by the Prussian minister of the interior, has been the cause of numerous court proceedings against policemen with resultant sentences to many months imprisonment and fines ranging from one to ten marks to hundreds of thousands of marks.

The sentences, according to the correspondent, provided that unless the fines were paid within forty-eight hours the terms of imprisonment would be extended and that failure to remained for the legal representatives of the sentenced men to do so would immediately to official German quarters, get the fine money from the prisoners and take it to the French and that the officers would not need to spend a day longer than was necessary in prison.

The correspondent says that even in the business world the effects are still awaiting trial. He says the deportation regularly follows the payment of sentences.

DECREASE OF $563,851 IN WATERBURY'S GRAND LIST

Waterbury, March 1.—Waterbury's total grand list for 1923 is $61,015,539, according to the figures filed today with the board of finance by the board of tax commissioners. There is a decrease of $563,851 in the grand list of this year as compared with that of last year. The tax rate is 21.5 mills.

The total amount of collectable taxes for the city, according to the grand list, is $4,046,790.63 as against $4,004,663.60 that was collectable in 1922. The increase in the amount of collectable taxes is due to the increase in rate while the decrease in the total grand list is due to the fact that the stocks of local factories decreased during the past year, thereby decreasing the valuation of their holdings.

TESTS SHOW GIRLS ARE POOR COLLEGE MATERIAL

Boston, March 1.—Intelligence tests given to 8,333 pupils in the senior classes of public high schols show that 40 per cent. of the boys and nearly 60 per cent. of the girls are poor college material, a commission on higher education appointed by Governor Cox reported today.

In the survey it was found that the psychological ratings of the girls were consistently lower than those of the boys. The commission found, however, that it is probable that as a rule more girls of a given mental ability will succeed in school and in college than will boys of the same ability, because the former usually show greater seriousness in their studies.

OBITUARY.

Bourke Cockran.

Washington, March 1.—Death today stilled the voice of W. Bourke Cockran, conceded to have been one of the most eloquent orators who ever spoke from the floor of congress.

The famous speaker, a democratic representative from New York, who had matched his powers with many of the greatest of his time, died at 7.10 o'clock this morning from a stroke of apoplexy. Last night he delivered a vigorous denunciation of the farm credits legislation pending in the house. And later he celebrated his sixty-ninth anniversary with an old fashioned birthday party.

Apparently in the best of health, Mr. Cockran entered into the spirit of the occasion with all his heart. He repeatedly remarked to those about him that he "never had felt better." After his guests had departed, and while he was chatting with Mrs. Cockran, he was stricken with a headache and soon lapsed into unconsciousness.

There were many high lights in the life of Mr. Cockran, but those which have stood out in great relief were his oratorical efforts at democratic national conventions. And of these, perhaps the most remembered by the present generation was the crusade of swords with William J. Bryan at the 1920 party gathering in San Francisco. There, he met the "Commoner" himself made famous by a convention speech in a memorable battle over the proposal to put a free silver plank in the platform.

Mr. Cockran played in opposition for president, Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and when the convention concluded, he received one of the most remarkable ovations in American political history.

POLA NEGRI HAS BROKEN ENGAGEMENT TO CHAPLIN

Los Angeles, March 1.—Pola Negri, motion picture actress, has broken her engagement to Charlie Chaplin, comedian of the films, according to an interview the Los Angeles Times will publish tomorrow.

Beyond remarking that there were a thousand reasons why I should not marry Mr. Chaplin," Miss Negri avoided conversation following her announcement that the engagement was off, but confined her explanation of the break to a written statement, the text of which follows:

"I consider I am too poor to marry Charles Chaplin. He needs to marry a wealthy woman and he should have no difficulty in finding one in the United States—the richest and most beautiful country in the world.

"Therefore, I give Mr. Chaplin his freedom and release him from his engagement. I wish him the best of luck and I will always be his devoted friend."

"Please don't ask me any questions," she warned, after her statement had been read, "I am not able to answer them."

Chaplin, reached by telephone, commanded:

"Well, what about it?"

When informed in full of Miss Negri's statement, there was a short silence. Then:

"Oh."

Another short silence followed. Then:

"Is that so?"

Another pause and then came a click as the comedian hung up the receiver.

Earlier today he had been quoted as stating he was "too poor" to marry Miss Negri "just now."

"This is a working world," he said at that interview, and we've all got to stay busy and keep away from climaxes of sentiment."

PLEADED GUILTY TO CHARGE OF STEALING AUTOMILES

Bridgeport, March 1.—Monty Souferin, of this city, arrested last January on a charge of steling automobiles, today pleaded guilty before Judge John T. Kellogg, in the superior court and was sentenced to serve between 10 and 12 years in state's prison. Seven of twelve county of the charges were dropped when Souferin changed his plea of not guilty.

In presenting the case State's Attorney Homer S. Cummings declared that Souferin was one of the leaders of a gang of automobile thieves that had stolen hundreds of cars throughout the eastern section of the country. Attorneys for the defense, however, declared that Souferin was simply the tool of two other men, one of whom is a fugitive from justice in New York, while the other is awaiting trial here.

Judge Kellogg, in announcing the sentence, said he was convinced that Souferin was one of the leaders of the band.

Souferin was arrested with three other men in a general round-up here several months ago by state and local authorities. Two of the men are awaiting trial in the superior court now in session, while the third, Souferin's attorneys claim, has been committed to an insane asylum. Souferin, who found guilty in order to stand trial in other cities, is said to be wanted in Boston, Providence, Hartford and Springfield.

WESTERLY

Deputy Game Warden Horace E. Burdick of Avondale has received word from Everett Watling, head of the game commission in Rhode Island, to surrender his badge and commission to Mr. Watling. Mr. Burdick states that he has sent back the badge to Commissioner Wallington, returned and will continue to refuse to send back his commission. In asking for his resignation Mr. Watling assigned no reason for his act and it was somewhat of a surprise to Mr. Burdick. The game warden asserts that for his services he has never rendered a bill to the state of Rhode Island, has spent a considerable sum of money in buying food and supplying other comforts for the birds, has been on the best of terms with the hunters and had no trouble in keeping them within bounds and off posted land. He is at a loss to account for the action of the game commissioner.

The funeral of Mrs. Cornelius Healey was held Thursday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception with a high mass celebrated by Rev. Daniel F. Sullivan, M. D. During the services Marvin Spellman sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and Miss Helen Gaffney sang "He Leadeth Me." Interment was made in St. Michael's new cemetery.

Luigi Valenda and wife to Guiseppe Brancato, six lots in Prospect Park.

Salvatore Bisco to George Quatremani, two lots in Columbus park.

Herbert F. Clark to Thorp & Trainer, Inc., one lot at Pleasant View.

The followers of Deputy Game Warden Frank G. Booth are much dissatisfied because he has recently received orders from the state game commissioner to return and surrender his badge and commission. Mr. Booth has been very prominent in democratic circles for a number of years and it is thought this is the reason Commissioner Watling has taken advantage of his authority. Mr. Booth's case will be taken before Governor Flynn.

Bread Theatre

As usual Tom Mix was the center and unanimous approval of the audience that packed the Bread theatre yesterday for the opening performance of the robust star's latest William Fox production, The Last Deal.

The daring, dashing type of western picture drama seems to reach new heights with each production and in "The End Deal" and appreciative audience watched breathlessly the fun filled antics of the sure shooting star as he shoot through an hour and a half of supremely entertaining action. And it was action from beginning to end. Even from the time the title was flashed on the silver sheet to the emphatic "effects" at the finish of the love romance.

The clean cut and impetuous characters with which Mix romps about in rejoicing to the habitual movie picture goer. Riding his favorite and famous horse "Tony" across the desert, jumping nimbly over the many physical barriers, flying over the mountain ranges in air machines, and dismissing bands of pursuing investigators are merely a small part of the evening's work. Tom does them with enthusiasm and finesse.

The End Deal will be the feature of the Bread theatre again today and tomorrow and other pictures on the bill include Ruth Roland in The Timber Queen—the Pathe news and a funshine comedy.

At the Broadway

Due to an accident there were only two acts at the Broadway yesterday afternoon. However, last night there were the full five acts of Keith vaudeville that pleased a very large audience.

Clayton and Clayton appeared in novelty songs and all pleasing that is a treat.

Pauline Carvel & Co. offered some very good piano selections and songs.

The feature comedy act was Max Bloom and Alice Shay in the comedy The Trail of a Lonesome Spine. This was a scream from the start.

The closing number was Joy & Boyer, in a comedy acrobatic novelty that was full of laughs and thrills.

Richard Talmadge in Putting It Over, gave some good entertainment on the pictures program.

The World's Applause Scores Triumph at Opening Showing at Strand Theatre.

Proving itself one of the most absorbing picture productions of the current season, The World's Applause, a Williams de Mille production for Paramount featuring Bebe Daniels and Lewis Stone, scored a distinct triumph at the Strand theatre last night.

In this superb offering, Miss Daniels portrays the role of Corinne d'Alva, a highly successful actress, who is not only fond of notoriety but who wears many of the finest creations of the modiste's art. In one exceedingly scenes, Miss Daniels wears something different from the preceding one, the whole constituting a display of fashionable gowns that will interest every woman patron of this popular playhouse. The featured roles are in the capable hands of Miss Daniels and Lewis Stone. The supporting cast is unusually effective.

A Charlie comedy, Second Childhood, was a funny comedy and a very worthy added this superior program.

GENARO WINS FAVOR BY BEATING VILLA AT CLOSE RANGE

New York, March 1.—The American flyweight boxing championship title returned to its native shores tonight in historic Madison Square Garden where a capacity crowd saw Frankie Genaro take it from Pantaleon Villa, the Filipino who won it from Johnny Ray in Brooklyn last summer. The decision was a hairline variety. Newspaper critics at the ringside were divided in their opinion of the justice of the decision. Those who favored it were not enthusiastic and those against were bitter in their censure claims. For one of the few times since boxing bouts have been permitted under recent legislation, the crowd became demonstrative to an extent that worried the police and squads of bluecoats had difficulty in clearing the aisles. It was evident when the men entered the ring, that Genaro's friends were in the majority, and they booed Villa when he was escorted to his dressing room.

For two-thirds of the way the fight was not of championship calibre and the fans, to whom Villa always showed an unfiring aggressiveness, were surprised when he chose a strategy of defense. For ten rounds the bout bordered on sick's but in the last five the mixing was so furious that the spectators were in a most constant uproar.

Caution was the order of the early rounds. The little wirey fellows stood posing for long stretches, moving now and again about like animals about to spring, and frequently they did leap like cats, but the early damage was negligible.

Villa seemed the most aggressive and his punches seemed as steaming as his challenger's, but he was warned more often than the winner for objectionable tactics, and once or twice the crowd booed him contemptuously.

Besides A left hook to the jaw and two handed digs to the ribs, Villa employed, toward the end of the bout, the "rabbit" punch. He used it with his back hand once when Genaro was not exactly facing him and it caused loyal disapproval.

On the whole Genaro was more cautious than his opponent, and in the constant exchanges the Filipino seemed at an advantage. But the New Yorker was not so tired nor did he show the effects of punishment that Villa did. Even so the difference was small. Genaro used his right effectively and though he missed frequently his accuracy was greater than Villa's.

The last round probably gave Genaro the title. Twice his right hand caught the Filipino squarely on the point of the jaw, and the champion's knees sagged. But Poncho came back and after a clinch, was in a furious exchange when the bell rang.

The fight in detail:

ROUND ONE—Genaro was first to land, a right to the jaw. Several times the New Yorker sprang in like a terrier, rushing the champion to the ropes and sinking his left in the ribs. They exchanged left swings to the head. Both men were cautious and Genaro took what offensive there was.

ROUND TWO—They clinched. Genaro swung wildly several times, and then ducked away from the champion's lead. Villa was the aggressor in several body exchanges which were even and then bounced off the ropes when Genaro shot a left swing to the jaw.

ROUND THREE—Villa sprang away when Genaro leaped for him. Genaro sunk his left in the Filipino's stomach after a body exchange. Villa was reprimanded for throwing Genaro against the ropes. Villa led a furious exchange in Genaro's corner.

ROUND FOUR—Villa landed left jabs to stomach and head and catching Genaro along the ropes pummeled his kidneys. The challenger was warned for butting his head on Villa's chin. Genaro rushed Villa across the ring, and the champion toppled outside the ropes. The challenger sent the champion back on his heels with a left to the head; Villa replied with a left that plunged into Genaro's stomach.

ROUND FIVE—Both took hard lefts to the head and clinched. Genaro rushed Villa to the champion's corner with a repeating left to head and body. The champion landed a fusillade on Genaro's body. Villa shot his left to the challenger's jaw. Both were missing frequently.

ROUND SIX—Villa caught Genaro in a clinch and pumped both fists into the challenger's ribs. The Filipino had the best of several exchanges. Genaro rocked him with a left to the jaw, but Villa came back with a two-fisted attack to the head and body. Villa was booed for a back-handed "rabbit" punch.

ROUND SEVEN—So far the bout was slower than anticipated and about even. Genaro got two stiff lefts to the body and one to the head before Villa could return his right to the head. Villa put his left to the body and jaw. Villa was using the "rabbit" punch until the back of Genaro's head was red. Both men posed a great deal.

ROUND EIGHTH—Villa took the lead. He hooked his left to Genaro's head in the clinch landed effectively to the body. After rushing the challenger to the ropes the Filipino slowed down and missed several long swings Genaro caught Villa's jaw with a downward left and then shot his left to the jaw, but the champion did not stagger. They were dancing at the bell.

ROUND NINE—They exchanged to the body in a series of clinches, Villa occasionally hooking Genaro's jaw. Genaro staggered Villa with a left to the jaw, and Villa sunk his left in Genaro's stomach. Villa swung Genaro around with three short lefts to the jaw. The crowd called for action and the boxers answered with alacrity.

ROUND TEN—Again the champion took command, shooting his left to the jaw and the right to the ribs, swinging in ferociously at times landing two out of half a dozen swings and Pantaleon Villa, Filipino champion, who lost the decision to Frankie Genaro in the ring at Madison Square Garden tonight. The decision was disputed by many of the spectators.

Some rolling upon a clinch Villa drove Genaro from the ropes, under the chairs and into the press section. Genaro caught him with a wild lash and the Filipino scrambled, against the ropes. Villa staggered Genaro with a left to the jaw as the round ended.

ROUND ELEVEN—They sprang at each other like tigers and Villa rifled Genaro's head with lefts to the jaw. The challenger began a slashing two-handed attack and Genaro began to clinch. They exchanged hand swings to the jaw.

ROUND TWELVE—After a body exchange Villa rushed Genaro with a right to the jaw, the challenger replying with a left to the jaw, that sent Villa reeling to the ropes. Both men were at it hammer and tongs rocking each other's head with uppercuts and swings. Villa landed half a dozen lefts to the jaw in the last half of the round.

ROUND THIRTEEN—Again they jolted each other with lefts to the jaw. Twice Villa rocked Genaro to the ropes and twice Genaro escaped. They exchanged furiously, each digging into the other's body. Villa caught Genaro off his feet, and plunged his left to the stomach.

ROUND FOURTEEN—They renewed furious mixing and then quieted down. Several times Villa's left caught Genaro flush on the jaw and the challenger swung wildly. Villa missed an uppercut.

ROUND FIFTEEN—They sprang at each other and when they mixed flung like triphammers into each other's ribs. Genaro staggered Villa with a right to the jaw, and after a respite repeated. Genaro missed. They clinched. Villa lashed his right to the jaw and missed an uppercut. Villa soaked Genaro with a right to the jaw. They paced slowly and the bell found them mixing.

FAVORITES CAME THROUGH SECOND ROUUND INTACT

Philadelphia, March 1.—All the favorites, including William T. Tilden, national champion; Wallace F. Johnson, chop stake expert; and Stanley W. Pearson, squash racquets champion, won their second round matches in the middle states indoor tennis tourney today without much difficulty.

Tilden, although not having to extend himself to defeat Neil Sullivan, a local player, gave evidence of his usual dexterity with the racquet, despite the recent operation to one of his fingers. He played a steady game, winning in straight sets.

Johnson played two singles matches today, defeating A. J. Cohen, Philadelphia in the first round, 6-2, 6-0, and Watson Knight, of Philadelphia, in the second 6-1 6-1.

COMBAT TRAIN WINS FROM McGUINNESS' WHIRLWINDS

The Combat Train indoor baseball team came back strong on Thursday evening against McGuinness' Whirlwinds and swamped them by a score of 31 to 16 in a weird game. The Whirlwinds are made up of practically the old Colonial baseball team but their showing on Thursday evening was so much different from their outdoor performance.

"Red" Leaman was the shining light of the Thamesville boys and in the 5th inning made a triple play unassisted. The Woodmansee brothers also flashed brilliantly at time. For the combat train Billy Dixon was the star performer and gloriously made up for his poor showing against Spooner's Colts early in the week. Dix instead of having only one leg was possessed of half a dozen and twice as many hands, he was all over the floor and stopped everything that came his way. Freddy Morrell also covered himself with credit by his fast work behind the bat. Tracy Burdick, the old reliable of the armory, pitched for the soldiers and it was due to his superb hurling that Combat Train added another victory. Al Pinsault showed little improvement. Shorty Malcolm umpired in his usual unerring style.

MILLE LENGLEN EXPLAINS WHY SHE IS NOT IN SINGLES

Monte Carlo, March 1.—(By the Associated Press)—Suzanne Lenglen announced today why she is not playing in the singles in the Monte Carlo tournament, it is simply because Mlle. Lenglen was never entered in the competition. Furthermore, according to the French woman champion, she informed Mr. Simon, secretary of the Monte Carlo Club, three weeks ago that she would be unable to play in any event here, even the woman's doubles.

It was only at the express request of Elizabeth Ryan, joint holder with Mlle Lenglen of the cup for the doubles championship, that she agreed to come to Monte Carlo so that Miss Ryan "would not lose."

Mlle. Lenglen was annoyed at the somewhat cold reception she received and the expression of disappointment she heard among the spectators over her failure to compete in the singles when she appeared on the court today for her doubles match paired with Miss Ryan against Miss May Green and Mrs. Young. Miss Ryan and Mlle. Lenglen won the match easily, 6-0 6-0.

EDDIE ROUSH IS STILL UNDECIDED AS TO BASEBALL

Cincinnati, March 1. — Eddie Roush, star outfielder of the Cincinnati Nationals, has made no plans for the coming baseball season, according to word received here today from his Oakland City (Indiana) home. Eddie is reported as saying that he has not received any notice to report to the Reds and has not heard from the club management for several months.

Cincinnati club officials refused to say whether a contract has been sent to him.

Bubbles Hargrave, catcher, arrived here today and reported to the club management. He was preceded a few hours by John Couch, pitcher, who came from the Pacific coast.

The Reds will have approximately fifty regulars and rookies in the Orlando, Fla., training camp after the final assembling day there on March 12. The majority of the players are going directly from their homes. The California contingent—emeers, Pinelli, Caveney and Bohne—have reported that they will reach Orlando some time next week.

McCarney stated the action was taken on orders from Tex Rickard, boxing promoter.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

AT THE POLAR BEAR'S HOUSE

Oh, the Boatmobile is a goodly craft
As it sails the wide, wide sea,
And the sailor rabbits have no fear,
And the Polar Bear, neither has he.
Oh, it's, Hard-a-lee and Ship Ahoy,
And steer to port of the big red buoy.

"Goodness, gracious, meebus," said Uncle Lucky, rubbing his eyes and stretching out his left hind leg, "where are we?"

And then Little Jack Rabbit and the Polar Bear woke up, and where do you suppose they were. I suppose I might just as well tell you as to wait for you to guess. They were at the North Pole. Yes sir, that's just where they were.

"So you've come back, have you?" she asked

You see, when we left off in the last story, it was just about thirteen o'clock, if I remember right and the two little rabbits and the polar bear had finished supper and Uncle Lucky had just finished singing about the evening star. Oh, yes, oh, yes, that's how it happened—their falling asleep, you know. They just couldn't help it for Uncle Lucky had a nice tenor voice you know, and could sing himself to sleep, even if his after dinner demi tasse, which means a little cup of coffee, you know, tried to keep him awake.

So, now you know how it came to pass when the old gentleman rabbit woke up that he found himself at the North Pole with Little Jack Rabbit and the Polar Bear.

That's where I live, just over there! Shouted the homesick Polar Bear. Oh joy, oh joy, can't you see the smoke?

My wife must have bought a barrel of coke,
For when I left, you couldn't buy coal,
Unless you carried a big bank roll."

Well, after a few minutes, the Boatmobile stopped right in front of the Polar Bear's house and it was a mighty nice little house, let me tell you. It was all made out of ice bricks, the color was blue and white chips.

As soon as Mrs. Polar Bear heard the noise outside, she opened the door. So they all went inside and Mrs. she asked.

At this, the Polar Bear looked sort of foolish and twisted his moustache. Then, he handed her a box of candy and said:

"Here are two good friends of mine, Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot of Rabbitville, U. S. A. and Master Jack Rabbit of the Old Bramble Patch.

"Pleased to meet you," said Mrs. Polar Bear. "Won't you come in and sit down?"

So the yall went inside and Mrs. Polar Bear told Mr. Polar Bear not to make any dust or disarrange which means to get out of order, the furniture, for while he'd been away she'd tired herself out fixing things up.

Just then a little bird in a cage began to sing:

"We're glad to see you, Mr. Bear,
Once more within your big arm-chair."

and in the next story, you shall hear what happened after that.

THE INTERNATIONAL COURT.

Deferring action at this session of congress upon the question of joining the international court of justice as recommended by President Harding is not an unusual step in view of the brief time which there has been to consider it, and when there is such a quantity of other legislation awaiting action.

The delay will postpone the relationship to the court for probably another year at least, but it is believed that favorable action will be ultimately taken. Putting the matter over will permit of a thorough study of the matter and give time to those who are as much determined as ever against going into the league of nations to realize that it is not such a step that is being planned.

The idea of having such a tribunal is one that has gained widespread support in this country. It is in keeping with the effort to settle international affairs in accord with the finest and foremost on that score is open to argument and is in keeping with our views it is proper that we should do our part in supporting it, when we are assured of our equality of standing therein.

Whatever objection there might be against the approval of such a step seems to have been removed by the reservations, which reservations will be approved by the other nations. The fact that the court has been established as the result of the creation of the league of nations and by its action is not sufficient to condemn it and it is not an adequate excuse for refusing to adhere to it. It is not under league control and it is not in the league.

The action of the committee on international law of the bar of New York city in urging the approval of the recommendation is only what might be expected and the endorsement carries additional weight from the fact that Elihu Root is at the head of the committee.

DUTIES COME FIRST.

Although it had at no time been absolutely certain that the affairs of his department would permit Secretary Hughes to attend the Pan-American congress at Santiago, Chili, it had been realized that the opportunity was one to make the most of if possible. Secretary Hughes has attended the opening of the Brazilian exposition but the coming gathering in Chili created the opportunity for coming in contact with the representatives of all of the American countries. In addition to which he would make the most of the chance to visit many of them.

Whatever can be done for the purpose of bringing the countries of the western hemisphere in closer relationship is desirable and no small help is obtained through an exchange of views. Secretary Hughes is remarkably well qualified to represent the country at such a gathering. He is held in high esteem by the nations because of the attitude he has taken in behalf of world peace, and what regret there is here at the interference of important business will be quite as great on the part of the congress.

Just what the European situation holds hidden is uncertain. It is a situation that certainly cannot be ignored, and even though the benefits of his South American trip would be many to the country, there is no one who knows better than the secretary as to whether the duties of his department are such as to warrant his leaving the country at this time.

Other important administration leaders have done much to cement the good feeling between this and the other American republics in years past. Relations at the present time are excellent but for one instance, but the opportunity of preventing misunderstandings is always open and the wisdom of taking advantage of them is always present.

IMMIGRATION PROBLEMS.

What ground there is for the efforts of those seeking to increase the number of common laborers in the country is indicated by the figures of the examinations at Ellis Island when it is shown that for the skilled workmen or professional men who come to this country about ten per cent go away again in the course of a year. But when it comes to the common laborers the percentage of those departing is much greater, for while there were nearly 40,000 who came in there were more than 25,000 who departed during the past six months.

The making of such a large number of the day or common laborers adds but a small gain for the year. The explanation for the large number returning to Europe is that they are for the most part Italians who are going back to their homes at Milan, and that it is the custom of these people to either get jobs here or save some other kind of work after remaining here for a year, then leave with the money they have saved.

HANDLING OUR SHIPS.

The brushing aside of the shipping bill which proposes of it for this session of congress means the amount of the dilbuster and interest now develops as to what course will be followed in dealing with the merchant marine.

The senate has failed to respond to the request of the president that it bring the matter to a vote and dispose of it on its merits. That it refused to do. It must be regarded as a serious mistake.

In urging the adoption of the bill on the grounds of economy and good business the president gave the senate to understand that he was opposed to a continuance of a policy of wastage. That means of course, inasmuch as the senate has failed to act, that the continuance of the shipping activities along the same course they have been following cannot be expected.

Efforts have been made to keep the benefits obtained for the country through its merchant marine, and to have them increased. Instead of disposing of the ships for a song efforts have been made to keep some of them in operation, to develop new lines for trade and have the American ships take the place on the high seas that should be expected from a nation of this size.

There appears to be no more interest now in a merchant marine than there was in the days when we had none. We cannot go on the way we have been going with unwarranted outlays and no improvement. We can of course sell the idle ships for what they will bring, discontinue the lines which do not pay and get out of the business entirely. Possibly that is what the senate by its action is desirous of bringing about. The promised action by the shipping board will tell its own story.

DEALING WITH DUNCAN.

While Secretary Davis of the department of labor has been giving some thought, if quoted correctly, to the taking away of the citizenship of Isadora Duncan because of her denunciation of the country, it isn't probable that anything will be done.

If there are those things that she doesn't like about this country where she was born, whether it is the form of government, the hotels, the unappreciative audiences or the hostile liquor it doesn't appear but what she has a right to criticize them and compare them with others if she so desires. The reason for her criticisms are not hard to find. Possibly she hasn't made the hit that she expected on her return here and she feels resentful. She is probably one of those who must say what she thinks, whether it sounds good or not, or suffer the penalty of a spell of sickness.

If she doesn't like this country it is perfectly evident that she does not have to remain here. There is nothing to restrain her from going elsewhere and it is a course that might be commended to others of a similar type when they become dissatisfied. The one surprising thing is that if she feels such great dislikes for this country and thinks so much of others that she doesn't change her allegiance and become a subject of the country that she thinks so favorably of.

It ought not to be necessary to cancel her citizenship. That is something she should hasten to do herself, and it is believed that any such action would gain for her much greater applause than any of her appearances as a dancer in this country. Otherwise she doesn't show herself very loyal to the country she likes better than this.

Wives of Famous Men

Anne of Austria, Wife of Louis XIII.

Anne of Austria, whose full name was Marie Anne Mauricette, was the daughter of Philip III of Spain and Marguerite of Austria. Her marriage to Louis XIII, King of France, was arranged by the rulers of the two countries to bind them together.

This marriage of convenience, like all others, did not take the wishes of the persons involved into consideration. Anne was but 11 years old when she was betrothed to Louis, which plainly proves that she did not marry from choice.

She was born in September, 1601, only five days before Louis saw the light of the world. She was a fair and charming child, the adoring of the court, as well as of her parents. She had never, like other children of her station, been consigned to the joyless routine of the royal nursery. She was with her mother nearly all the time, even at the court revels.

The marriage ceremony took place in France, August, 1615. Louis was unable to resist his consort when she arrived in France, so he sent his favorite, Luynes, to meet her with a note to His Majesty. At this time the dark clouds of unhappiness which were to mar their future married life were not visible and Anne sent in answer to Louis' gallant note, a charming message in her own musical language.

The intrigues of state were for too sinister to allow much marital joy for the royal couple. Personal interests were swamped in the court intrigues. Anne outlived her husband who left a son and heir to the throne of France. She was very sad at the death of Louis, who seemed to have a place in her heart, even though she had not married him from choice.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Miles Poindexter, the choice of President Harding for the post of American ambassador to Peru, is now one of the representatives of the state of Washington in the United States senate, his senatorial term expiring this week. Like so many of the political leaders of the far western states he is of southern stock and origin, Tennessee having been his birthplace and Virginia the state in which he was educated, both his cultural and his professional degrees coming from the renowned Washington and Lee university. Within a year after completing his law course he was residing in Walla Walla. Before another year had passed he was prosecuting attorney of the county, and he rose to a like position in Spokane after he had settled there. This followed several years as a judge of the state superior court. In 1908 he was sent to Washington on a progressive republican ticket and three years later he was sent to the United States senate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Coffey's Reply.

Mr. Editor: With such modifications as Mr. Coffey makes to his former statements, perhaps there may seem to those who recall my previous correction that no reply now is needed. But as Mr. Coffey adds some further interpretations that leave his contention about where he first began, it may be needful in the interest of the truth to add a word or two in reply.

Mr. Coffey would have you understand that when Mr. Troland said that "as by the woman came the curse, by the woman came also the remedy," that he was just making a rhetorical flourish. This writer is not given to this, as a rule. Neither is he at all ignorant of what the apostle Paul has to say about women teachers. And I most heartily approve; but let us not forget that Paul was speaking of his own practice, and not laying down rules for the church in all coming time. Paul was writing to another preacher and he says of himself: "I suffer not a woman to teach or usurp authority over the man." This was all right, and justifiable no doubt in his case and experience, but Paul was not a pope, to set the canons and articles for church practice for all time. The fact that he speaks of it here shows that other apostles were allowing women to teach.

Mr. Coffey's argument that the woman's sin did not bring the curse is a palpable error, and St. Paul grounds his opposition on this fact, as he says "the woman, being deceived, was in the transgression." "Notwithstanding, she shall be saved in childbearing." (I Tim. 2: 14-15.) This is just what was stated in my letter: The woman brought the curse, and by the woman came the remedy."

I consider it a most beautiful and divinely conceived arrangement, and that it makes appeal to human judgment by the most convincing and logical approach.

The fact that mother Eve named her first-born Cain, saying "I have gotten a man from the Lord," showed that she comprehended the plan, and thought it would be realized directly, and in her own offspring. Alas! for her disappointment.

JOHN TROLAND.

Norwich, March 1, 1922.

Opposed to Inspector in Gas and Electric Department.

Mr. Editor: Kindly permit me a part of your valuable space as I wish to place some facts before the citizens and taxpayers of the city of Norwich.

Today I read an article in a Hartford paper which stated that His Honor Mayor Waters and Corporation Counsel Shields appeared before the judiciary committee at the capitol advocating a favorable report on a bill which was presented by Senator Gibbs whereby municipal gas and electric plants would be given power to appoint an inspector whose duties would be to go into our houses and condemn wiring, also to recommend proper installation of electric wiring and the laying of gas pipes. During the course of Mr. Shields' remarks he stated that an accident happened in Norwich about a year ago and that if the house had been properly wired it might have prevented a fatal accident. I wish to take exceptions to this statement, as it applies to my house, where my son was electrocuted on Nov. 5, 1921. No doubt Mr. Shields received his advice from the officials of the Norwich gas and electric department, and is part of the propaganda which has been going on all over the city in order to make the citizens believe that their system was all right and everybody else was wrong. I am not finding any fault or criticising the mayor or Mr. Shields, but is it absolutely necessary to appoint an inspector, adding more to the burden of an already tax-ridden city? All that is really necessary is to compel our citizens to comply with the rules formulated and adopted by the New England Fire Underwriters' association and the National Association of Electrical Engineers. A man qualified to be a first class electrical inspector would command a salary of at least $5,000 a year. The wiring in my house is still there, not a change has been made. It was installed by reputable men, some who are still in business in the city, and has been there for 15 years. If conditions were so bad as they claim, why was it I was not notified? They seem to lay considerable stress on preventing the secondary wire from the transformer inside the house.

I have interviewed many of the leading electrical men in New England, also have letters in my possession by prominent [illegible] who write for the leading [illegible] and they all agree that [illegible] a splendid proposition and should be considered by the citizens of Norwich. Why not the court of common council call a city meeting and appoint a committee of leading citizens and business men to investigate this matter thoroughly and report their findings at the next city meeting, which will be held in June? A word to the wise should be sufficient.

JOHN A. HOLLAND.

A GLASS OF SALTS CLEARS PIMPLY SKIN

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather ferments, the same as food left in the open air. Says a noted authority. He says belief is that indigestion is caused by hyperacidity meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Then, every thing eaten soars in the stomach like garbage soars in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest; we belch up gas, or vent sour food or have heartburn, distress, water-brash or headache.

He tells us to by-pass all digestive ills and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink it while it is effervescing, and further more to continue this for a week. This relief often follows at once. Also, it is important to help neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-forming waste, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used for many stomach disorders with excellent results.

Gilbert—Lassiter.

The engagement of Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis Fletcher, 24 Lincoln avenue, and the home of a pretty June wedding Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock when their only daughter, Hazel Louise, became the bride of Gilbert Edward Wilson, son of Edith R. Wilson and the late William H. Wilson, of 52 Thirteenth street.

Presiding at the ceremony, Mrs. Megan Cronin rendered I Love You Truly and at the close of the number Miss Cecile Stevens, who had accompanied her on the piano, played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal party entered the parlor. The bridal party was led by Miss Ruth Lester Loring, maid of honor, and Miss Miss Virginia Hazel Worden, flower girl. The bride walked with her father, who gave her in marriage.

Beneath an arch of palms, ferns, evergreen and windows the bridal party was met by the groom and his best man, William H. McClimmed, and as Miss Stevens softly rendered To a Wild Rose the double ring service was performed by Rev. Samuel H. Howe, pastor of Park Congregational church.

The bride was prettily gowned in white crepe de china, her veil being of tulle, with rose point lace cornnet, the ends of which were caught up with pearls. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a string of pearl beads, the gift of the groom. Her going away suit was of navy blue tricotine, with cape of gray, and her hat was of dark green.

The maid of honor was gowned in orchid georgette crepe, with ostrich and silver trimmings, and she carried a shepherd staff bouquet of Columbia roses and pink sweet peas. Little Miss Worden, the flower girl, wore pink tarted Swiss and carried a basket of pink sweet and rosebuds.

Mrs. Fletcher's gown was of gray lace over gray crepe de chine, and Mrs. Wilson, mother of the groom, wore black satin crepe.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, palms, evergreens, ferns, asterwoven with pink silk ribbons, the color scheme being green and pink.

The bride received many beautiful gifts of silverware, cut glass, china, linen, household articles, gold and checks for various amounts.

Following the wedding, a reception was tendered about 100 guests who came from Middletown, Boston, New Britain, Providence, Milford, Mass., Bridgeport, and other cities and a buffet luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left late in the evening for a wedding tour and after their return to reside at their newly furnished home at 170 Broadway, where they will be at home to their many friends after May 1.

The young people are popular in the younger set of this city. The bride is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy, class of 1917, and while there was a member of several organizations, among them the Delta sorority. For the past two years she has been in the office of the city of Norwich gas and electrical department. The groom is also a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy, where he took a prominent part in school activities. He later graduated from the Bowman School of Jewelry in Lancaster, Pa. He enlisted in the army in 1917, serving with the tank corps in various sectors in France. At present he is manager of the J. A. & G. H. Allen jewelry store on Main street. He is also a member of fraternal organizations of this city.

The many friends of the young couple extend their congratulations and wish them every happiness in their married life.

WANT WAGE RATE ON EVERY PIECE OF CLOTH

"I think this is an extremely obnoxious bill," said Ralph J. Wells, lawyer representing the Manufacturers' Association at a hearing this week in Hartford before the committee on labor of the legislature. He referred to a bill introduced by Representative Walker of Plainfield the content of which would make it a criminal offense for the operators of a textile mill to fail to post on every piece of cloth being made the rate of wages paid the weaver.

A large delegation, representing the state council of the weavers' union and various representatives of the local unions favored it.

Thomas Connor, a weaver, of Plainfield and William Hill, Jr., of Wauregan, also a weaver, assured the committee that the bill was not a duplicate of one which had been passed by the Massachusetts general assembly in 1917.

W. E. Litch, representing the Rivet Weaving Co. of Danielson, John Gardner of Quinebaug Mills Co. of Danielson, General George H. Kenyon of Senator Ailing appeared against the bill as drafted but said that they did not object to a bill which would necessitate the posting of the rates of pay for the various styles of cloth. The rates are posted now they said though not in just the manner the weavers desire.

John F. Reinhart of North Grosvenordale, mill operator who ran a mill in Massachusetts under the law like the one proposed said that the legislation was worthless if Massachusetts were to be taken as an example. Neither the operators or the weavers pay any attention to it.

MOON IS TO BE IN PARTIAL ECLIPSE

A partial eclipse of the moon is scheduled for tonight (Friday), and if the sky is clear between about 1 o'clock and midnight, a very interesting phenomenon will be carried out. As almost three-eighths of the moon's diameter will be darkened when the eclipse is at its greatest.

This eclipse of the moon is caused when the moon is full. But the reason many people believe that eclipses usually occur is that the moon, separated by the interval between full moon and new moon, although not always visible from the earth, is then in the shadow of the earth, and that therefore there will be an apparent eclipse of the sun at the period of the new moon, on March 16.

Another illustration of this will be given next Sunday, when a partial eclipse of the moon at the full moon on April 14, will be followed by a total eclipse of the sun at the new moon on April 16.

TO EMPOWER NORWICH TO SPRINKLE STREETS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 1.—Tax Collector Harold T. Perkinson was before the cities and boroughs committee today in support of the bill concerning the sprinkling of streets in the city of Norwich. The bill was introduced by Senator Herman J. Gibbs, of Norwich.

The bill is as follows:

Section 1.—The city of Norwich is hereby authorized to provide for the sprinkling with water, oil or other substances of all public highways, streets and roads within the limits of said city or such portions thereof as may be deemed best by the authorities of the said city having the care of the same, and for that purpose said city may make appropriations, lay and collect taxes in the same manner as for the other expenses and purposes of said city.

Section 2.—The assessments hereafter made by said city for street sprinkling during the year 1922 shall be abated and shall not be collected with the taxes laid at the annual meeting of said city next to be held, provided the electors of said city in said meeting shall so vote.

Attorney Arthur M. Brown was a visitor at the capitol today to appear before the judiciary committee, but the matter in which he was interested was not reached.

TRUCK LOSES WHEEL IN FRANKLIN ST. CRASH

A Southern New England Telephone Co. auto truck, driven by T. B. Brennan, and touring car driven by Frank Rinella crashed together on Franklin street near the corner of Willow street Thursday afternoon about 2 o'clock. The truck had its left forward front wheel torn off and came to a stop with the cab in the middle of the car track. A tool box on the left side of the truck was also broken.

The touring car had its left running board crushed, left rear fender dented and a piece torn out of the tire on the left rear wheel.

The accident happened when the touring car coming up the street met the truck coming in the opposite direction. The truck tried to climb the ridge of ice to turn to the right, but failed to do so and the cars came together. A wrangler had to haul the truck out of the way before the two cars could pass the spot, but the touring car was able to drive off under its own power.

BERKELEY DIVINITY DEAN IS LENTEN PREACHER

Members of Trinity Episcopal and Christ Episcopal church called on Thursday evening at Christ church by the Lenten service at which Rev. William P. Ladd, D. D., dean of Berkeley Divinity School, was the preacher. Rev. Dr. Ladd took for his topic a verse from the 10 Psalms, Make Me Understand Wisdom.

In part he spoke as follows:

The sentence, Make me to understand wisdom, used by the writer in Psalms, is being spoken in all parts of the world today by Christians. When we want to read things about God we do not look to the Brahman Greeks or Egyptians, we look to that small tribe of people who lived on the border of Egypt, people called Hebrews. In those days they did not amount to much as compared with the powerful Egyptian race, but they thought and searched for wisdom, and this is one great thing we must all learn from them.

There are many so-called wise or learned men today. People are studying so never before, they are desirous of acquiring learning. What is wisdom? The psalmist would asked God to give him wisdom did not mean simply give him more education. Wisdom is not learning, not of intellect alone, it is the combined act of the mind and heart working in complete harmony. We know this to be true, for many times our heart and mind tells us this thing is right and later we see our mistakes and this shows that mind and heart were not in harmony.

Think of the scholar who studies and absorbed great quantities of knowledge. What is he doing with it? Does it do anyone any good? Of course he gains by his knowledge but of how much more use would his knowledge be if he would only use his wonderful mind to help others. One of the things that we many learned people have done is to put all their emphasis on science and learning, forgetting that life is bigger than just those things. They may never mind religion is different we want learning, the science. Science has done wonders for us but it has also disrupted our home things that are of real importance in our lives. If people found out religious believes, it is only after a part of its mission no search. A man of wisdom would use science to benefit mankind. A knowledge of science alone is not enough, it takes more than that, it needs wisdom in applying the learning.

Look to the business man, successful, has money. People say he was thrifty and wise and succeeded. What did he do with his money when he got it, and how did he make it? Was he fair with his fellowmen, do his partners and employes think highly of him? If his house is not the shelter of cheerfulness and inspiration for the benefit of his fellowmen, he simply has a wonderful intellect, ability, but no wisdom.

Let us look at it from the other angle; a mother loves her children but oftentimes her heart, her love for that child, fails to work in harmony with her mind, and she does things or allows the child to do things which she knows are not good for the child. Through varying love, the heart and mind not working together, she might spoil her child, make the child selfish, and her acts are often contrary to the best interests of the child.

Look at it from the religious viewpoint. In history we have seen where overzealousness Christians have caused no little trouble when their hearts did not work in harmony with their minds. Today, it would seem to be a habit that Christians should follow the rule of opposing in the Bible. This is not right for if these writers of the Bible could only have foreseen why such action on the part of Christians in later centuries they would have been surprised. Of course we cannot foresee much into the future, but we can never go far wrong if we make a selection for good, and many a person practically all should experience many of the hardships in this world, the true respect for the teachings of the Bible must somehow supply that lesson.

It is unfortunate to say that the Bible is a law book of do's and don'ts from heaven, and a good many people believe this idea. Many of the things in Thou shalt and Thou shalt not, that is emphasized in the Bible, if we are really Christians we will get in our hearts for what those reasons. Let us endeavor to [illegible] will enter God into [illegible] of the early Christians at the [illegible]

We have learned [illegible] we see the wisdom [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

MARRIED—The strange coincidence of the fire visiting two churches of the same denomination within 24 hours of each other, and in which one was burned to the ground entailing a loss of approximately 15,000, has caused many of the residents to wonder, and the more shrewd of these are loath to believe the fires were caused through accident.

DANIELSON

[illegible] the Danielson team [illegible] that probably will be seen by hundreds of people who have never [illegible] one of the best basketball [illegible] the Putnam-Danielson [illegible] Saturday in a bargain-giving spirit. This event will be a part of [illegible] celebration marking the opening of the [illegible] of the first month that merchants at all in the spring season.

What Danielson customers will do in the way of giving special values when they thought in a Dollar day [illegible] be surpassed, even here, Kirby, Allerhand's assistant manager, has amply demonstrated in the past. And it may not be out of place to again assert that their advertising is 100 per cent. honest whether they use Bulletin space or whether they don't, and that those who have seen any announcement relative to Saturday's big bonanza day feel assured that the day will offer them unusual opportunity to make their dollars do almost double duty.

The savings department of the Windham County National Bank offers a safe place for your surplus funds, as they draw interest at the rate of 1-2 per cent., if deposited on or before the fifth day of each month, and, furthermore, are managed by a most conservative board of directors, under the protection of the national banking laws. The Windham County National Bank, Danielson, Conn.—adv.

It will be of interest to his great many friends in this territory, especially in Moosup and Danielson, to know that Archie Hutchins, in charge of the Standard Oil Company of New York interests in Moosup for a long period was on March 1 advanced to be motor oil manager of that great corporation's interests in a territory that will extend from his headquarters at New London [illegible]

Basketball fans here continued to be joyous Thursday because of the fact that the Danielson team nosed out a victory over the Boston Whirlwinds the previous evening. If appears that the visitors, who have a remarkable team, felt cock-sure of getting another victory here and were not backward in predicting such a result before the game. They are professionals, cleaning up where opportunity offers, and bumping into a snag in Danielson was more than a passing surprise to them. Conceding that Reddy was the only Killingly man on the Danielson team—and he rates as one of the best basketball players in New England—it should not be forgotten that the Whirlwinds pick players for their ability, regardless of whence they come, and that the contest was one between experts on both sides, and that the outcome should be judged accordingly. It was a great game and several more such would put basketball on such a high pinnacle in Danielson as it has not attained for nearly a score of years, when sport mad fans poured out their money to give this community the best the country had to offer. Manager Earl Wood is to be congratulated furnishing such a high grade attraction.

Whether Killingly and Putnam citizens as a whole want bathing in Alexander's lake will be aired today (Friday) before the committee on public health at the state capitol in Hartford. Petitions circulated in Danielson and Putnam have found ready signers in favor of allowing the privilege. On the other hand granting of the privilege will be opposed by the Goodyear Cotton Mills, Inc., owners now of the rights vested in the Williamsville Water company, which old corporation supplies residents of Goodyear with water flowed in from the lake.

Without a doubt there is tremendous public opinion in favor of opening the lake to bathing. But to those who favor this plan it is promptly pointed out that few people would submit to drinking water in which indiscriminate bathing with all its abominations is allowed. Most of those who signed the bathing [illegible] what each had rehored would uncover. Very little of all that is of value within the ruins had been removed up to the time the wreckers took up their work.

So the salvaging will go on as the wreckage is taken away. Close inspection of the ruins will show that there is a mass of material to be carted off. Beams and flooring remain in quantities. Much of this will have to be broken apart before it can be made ready ready for carting away. What is in the cellar cannot be observed as yet, but it is anticipated that there is a mass of material there that will have to be carted away.

A citizenship class, with L. F. Batley as director, is to be established at the Putnam evening school next Monday and will continue in session on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings until the end of the evening school period, giving 25 session nights for this new class. Only persons who are able to read, will be admitted to this class, which have as one of the principal objects preparation of the members for recognition of their second naturalization papers.

Members of this class will read the constitution of the United States and discuss it. They will make a study of federal, state, county, town and city government forms; the important features of American history and their significance and other such subjects as well did them to a broad understanding of the American form of government and its application, with a view to making them worthy citizens when they are admitted to that honor. There is no other such class as the one to be formed next Monday evening in eastern Connecticut. It will have a splendid instructor in Lewis F. Batley, head of the night school, and should attract a large attendance.

The selectmen have announced the appointment of Joseph Plessis as personal or poll tax collector and he is now ready to receive the personal tax of $3 from the taxable men and women of Putnam. Heretofore the selectment have always appointed the property tax collector, who for recent years has been Ernest C. Morse, to collect the personal or poll tax, but this year at the request of Mr. Morse they appointed somebody else to collect the personal tax.

Since the women have had to pay a personal tax, for just a year now, the machinery of collecting it has considerably more than doubled because while there have been only about 1200 men on the poll tax list in years past there are nearly 3000 women. This is due to the fact that numerous men are exempt on account of service in the fire department, in the world war, etc., whereas there are practically no women who are exempt for any reason. Having separate collectors is the custom which has been followed in several other towns and cities in the state, particularly since the women have had to pay a personal tax, as it has been found very confusing for one tax collector to have three books and three sets of receipts.

In an attempt to avoid this confusion last year Mr. Morse collected the personal tax about this time of the year and the property tax later but the inconvenience to both himself and the public was thus only partially overcome. For this reason it is expected that it will be much more satisfactory to the public to know that their dealings with Mr. Morse will be confined to property taxes and their dealings with Mr. Plessis to personal taxes.

The collection of personal taxes will be largely completed before the 1st of April, whereas the property tax will not be payable until after that date.

Keen interest was manifested Thursday in what the wreckers were doing in clearing the debris from where the Donahue block stood. A sizeable force of workers attacked the job, which likely will require from ten days to two weeks of uninterrupted labor. Other material salvaged will be disposed of as seems most advisable.

Paul Fanning, eldest son of the late Attorney Joseph T. Fanning of Norwich, has become a member of entomological force working out of this city in the state's fight against the gypsy moth pest. Mr. Fanning is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy and was a student at Holy Cross college, Worcester, when the United States entered the World war, when he joined the Junior Reserve. Following the war he entered the office of his father for the study of law. After the death of his father he spent nearly two years in the insurance business, being located in Westerly. In Norwich, Mr. Fanning has been quite active politically for so young a man. He is a member of White Cross council, K. of C., of Norwich, and vice president of St. Mary's Total Abstinence and Benevolent society of that city.

Business for the opening of the March term will be arranged when the superior court meets here this (Friday) morning. Matters on short calendar will be taken up and cases for at least a part of the March term assigned for trial.

This activity is a response to a reaction to all that has been said of late of the danger of chimney fires, as the result of a winter during which soft coal and other substitute fuels were used in homes with the result that there is a greater accumulation of soot than in normal years, and consequently a greater danger of chimney fires. A strange feature of the canvass for chimney cleaning work is the number of householders who are found to be indifferent to the danger. Although the sweeps are offering to clean chimneys at $1.50 each many rather would assume the risk of having a home burning down then pay this sum for insurance against such a happening.

THE FIASCO OF OUR WHOLE SYSTEM OF DISTRIBUTION

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"The reason the farmer's salary is low is that the farmer pays it, himself."

I cut that chunk of condensed literature from the paragrapher's column of a big city daily.

Sounds quite all right to some of you, doesn't it? Rather bright, eh? "Snappy," in fact? Shows that the paragrapher is a "real smart" fellow?

But—

How much truth, if any, has it? After all, that is the question of practical importance.

As it reads, it is a highly clever statement of the city-fed idea about farmers and farming. It assumes that the farmer gets a "salary," that he is his own paymaster, and coyly suggests that the insufficiency of said "salary" is due to the farmer's well-known smallness of soul and stinginess of purse.

It doesn't deny that he is underpaid, but shrewdly dodges that unpleasant fact by ascribing the under-payment to his own failure to pay more. This is a species of argument which appeals very strongly to people whose minds are already made up to accept the argument, whether or no.

Let's you and I look at that paragraph a bit.

In the first place, a good many real farmers, living on real farms and doing real farm work for real farm pay, will have to hunt that word "salary" up in the dictionary to find out what it means. Neither the word nor the thing is easily visible to the naked eye above the farm horizon.

As nearly as I can make it out, a "salary" is the stipend paid to railroad presidents and to John Martin Frelinghuysen, aged nineteen, who has "accepted a position" with the Great Central Condensed Milk company at $2.75 a week, to sweep out the store and dust the shelves. They get a salary.

Most farmers work for wages—when they work for anything more than board and lodging. There is a difference between wages and "salary," as John Martin Frelinghuysen, aforesaid, would promptly tell you if you asked him. It is regarded as more swell, much more swell to draw a salary than to collect wages. And there's nothing swell, or swelled, or swollen, about the emolument the average farmer secures. It would be as inapt to call his meagre receipts a salary as to call a sod-house on a western prairie a mansion. If he gets anything at all, he calls it wages, and is durned glad to get it under the name.

I really think we shall have to rule out that word salary, so far as Mr. Farmer is concerned. Doing so pulls at least one feather from the quoted paragraph.

Now, however, comes the assertion that, whatever it be that he gets as payment, the farmer pays it himself, to himself. If this be true, then said farmer is clearly the one to blame if the reward is stinted. But is it so?

Does the farmer pay himself? I always had the idea that he didn't, any more than other workers who labor for other people. That is just what the farmer does. He manures and plows and plants, and cultivates and harvests a crop and then takes it to market, where some buyer pays for it. That payment is the farmer's source of income, it is his wages. He has no other way of obtaining money as wages, whether for himself or somebody else. Money doesn't grow for him on bushes nor in potato hills. He has to produce something and then sell it before he can get his fingers on any sort of money in any form. And the persons to whom he sells are, therefore, his paymasters. They are the ones who pay him his wages—if he is successful enough to get anything over actual cost of production. He doesn't always do that. Sometimes he doesn't get enough money back for his year's work to pay the expenses of raising next year's crops, to say nothing about anything over for wages. But, if he is lucky and gets a few dollars over costs which he can apply to payment for his labor, as wages, then those few dollars are paid him by his customers. They take the money from their pockets. He doesn't by some financial hocus-pocus just transfer it from one pocket of his own overalls to another.

In other words, he is not his own paymaster, under any construction possible to plain English words.

As a concrete and practical illustration of just how he is paid, just how much he is paid, and just how much other people help themselves off what ought to be his wages, take the case of a recent North Dakota farmer who shipped his carload of potatoes to Chicago and [illegible] there in open market. That carload of potatoes promises to be a perfect [illegible] much discussion hereafter. It has already got into congress, and to make the subject of much more [illegible] luminating commentary in [illegible] western newspapers. Very likely [illegible] metropolitan dailies of Gotham may sometime get hold of it. So it will be well for you to know the facts, in readiness for what may develop along this line in the near future.

Well, this North Dakota farmer shipped his carload of potatoes to Chicago through a Minneapolis co-operative selling agency. The carload sold for $236. I don't happen to know how many bushels made a western carload, so we won't figure the bushel price. It doesn't matter anyway. The carload sold for $236, cash down. From the distributors, the middlemen, the newspapers, the toll-takers, the middlemen, took their various rake-offs. What these were is shown in the following table, which, I beg you to read, even if you don't usually find tabulations very exciting reading:

Agency service	$ 4.72
Inspection service	2.36
Freight	136.00
Option	23.60
Heater detention	3.00
Freight investigation	23.60
Shrinkage	27.25
Allowance, quality	21.20
Total	$244.78

That is what the gentlemen in Chicago and Minneapolis and along the road took for their share. The carload sold for $236, as we've already seen. Now if you put your [illegible] to work, and subtract $244.78 from $236, you'll find, if you have good luck and are reasonably clever with figures $1.36—One Dollar and Thirty Cents.

That's what the market paid the farmer for his carload of potatoes. That is the exact size of the check which went back to him on his North Dakota ranch.

That made up his wages for raising, harvesting and shipping a carload of potatoes—three or four hundred bushels, all the lowest reasonable estimate.

I am frank to admit that I don't know what some of these charges mean. It is understood that the North Dakota farmer doesn't neither. With the single exception of that mysterious "scale" however, every other one of the nine is higher, by itself alone, than the total which the farmer got for the carload of potatoes.

Just what is meant by this charge for "scale" we don't know, I am quite as much mystified by the charge for "option." Nor can I quite appreciate the necessity of two such charges as $4 and $23.60 for the mere inspection of a car of potatoes. And how about "heater detention?" What in heaven's name detained the heater, if the rest of the car wasn't exposed?

You'll not fail to notice that the charge for freight, $136.00 was considerably more than half the sum the whole carload sold for. Of course this means either that the price the potatoes brought was unfairly small or the rate for freight was extortionately high. It would be altogether too absurd to assume that the cost of hauling a carload of potatoes a few hundred miles ought, in any fairness, to amount to a half or even a quarter of the cost of raising those potatoes.

The figures thus far given are official, from way-bills and other bottom documents. It must not be forgotten, however, than they do not fully represent the final cost of these potatoes to the consumer who bought them to boil or bake. The $236 paid at Chicago was for the lot, the entire carload. It was bought by a broker who re-sold it to wholesalers, making a good profit for himself on the transaction. The wholesalers sold the potatoes in turn to retailers, taking another profit on the turnover. The retailers then passed them out to consumers, adding still a third profit for themselves. We have no means of knowing exactly what these profits were, but, allowing that the broker and the wholesalers each made ten per cent on the original cost, and the retailer twenty per cent, their three profits would add $102 to the carload price, making the cost of the potatoes to the final consumer $460. This is, at any rate, a moderate estimate.

We thus arrive at the astounding fact that, of the $460 which the final Consumer—bless his generous heart—paid for these potatoes, the North Dakota farmer who grew them received just exactly $1.36.

He didn't pay it to himself; the market paid it to him. Moreover, there didn't any of it go for wages or "salary" or profit or interest of any sort. As a matter of fact, it didn't pay the one-tenth of the Farm Bureau figure on the value of his labor. To say nothing of seed and fertilizer and labor, or oil for the tractor which drew the plows.

This particular case is doubtless beyond the average. But it is not an extreme case. There have been much worse ones. This farmer got back at least $1.36. He didn't have to supply the carload and also pay about $7 out for the privilege of supplying it, as California lettuce-raisers and Florida lettuce-raisers have had to within the year.

One western paper, commenting on this and similar cases says: "Isn't the farmer's real problem transportation?" The inexpert city commentator wants to know."

This comment shows modesty. The city commentator admits that he is "inexpert." That is something that most of his fellows show no disposition. Their sentiment, there is that of a teacher instructing a class of [illegible]lards, with no doubt of his omniscience and infallibility.

Certainly transportation is a grievous burden on the shoulders of farm producers—perhaps the most serious single one in many cases. But it isn't the only bugaboo in the woodpile. Not by a long shot. Our whole system of distribution is [illegible] to boot. It is bungle and an absurdity. The whole head is sick and the whole heart faint, and there is no health in it.

It's the most colossal fiasco and

Nor is that the worst of it. It threatens the disruption and destruction of things more important than an economic system, it does way in the speedily found to restore it.

Nobody loves a pessimist. But 'tis better ever to be a pessimist than to be a self-blinded [illegible] [illegible] ople, way into a [illegible]

NORWICH PEOPLE RESPOND TO POST OFFICE CALL FOR MAIL RECEPTACLES

Norwich householders have responded in quite a satisfactory way, according to Postmaster John P. Murphy, to the postmaster general's regulation issued Aug. 25, 1922, that homes should provide door slots or mail boxes into which carriers could put first and second class mail.

The postmaster general set March 1 as the time when all local postoffices should see that all houses should provide these conveniences for the receipt of mail, but there is nothing in the directions issued that cuts off delivery if the suggested requirement is not lived up to. It is not the purpose of the order to deprive anyone of the use of the mails and the carrier service in the cities, but rather to perfect an efficient system so that all may enjoy more expeditious service and carriers be relieved from a constant source of irritation.

The new order recognizes the mutual advantage to the carrier and the patron of having at the dwelling either a door slot or a mail box ready for the immediate receipt of the mail as the carrier arrives.

Carriers will be expected to make report of those houses on their routes where neither a door slot or a mail box has been provided.

In a recent letter on the subject from the department at Washington it is noted that the fact that this order is reasonable and mutually advantageous is evidenced by the fact that before it was made about 70 per cent. of the dwellings in the country under free delivery service had been thus equipped. Since the order was issued a very large majority of the remaining 30 per cent. have complied.

DROVE AUTO INTO HERD OF STEERS ON ROAD

William E. Parmelee of 133 Broad street, New London, a taxi driver, on the 20th of February at 7 p. m. was operating his car near Station 5 in Waterford and encountered a lot of steers that were being driven along the highway by Fred Goss, an employe of the Soltz company. It was represented that Parmelee hit a speed of 50 miles an hour so that the cattle could not get out of harm's way and one ox was run down and severely injured. Parmelee was in too much of a hurry to stop and ascertain what damage he had occasioned. He got away, but finally Wilfred E. Shea, of the state police, located at Centerbrook, found Parmelee and arraigned him Tuesday before Justice Morton at Waterford. He was charged with avoiding responsibility for the accident, operating a car without proper registry and failing to report an accident. Parmelee through counsel demurred to the complaint. He was fined $60 and costs for avoiding responsibility and the other charges were nolled.

Goss was charged with driving cattle along the highway after sundown without having a light within 200 feet of the cattle and was fined $10. The costs of the trial were remitted.

BATTLESHIP CONNECTICUT MAKES LAST CRUISE

The battleship Connecticut has made her last cruise. After a most unusual career of usefulness she has gone to Puget Sound to be placed out of commission and in all human probability she will not again be commissioned.

Only yesterday, as human events are recorded in history, the Connecticut was the flagship of the proudest fleet that ever put to sea flying the stars and stripes; as the finest and best of the imposing battleships which made the cruise around the world she played a stellar role in one of the most important events in the history of the American navy. Of the big sixteen which comprised that American armada she is the only one to survive, and now she is to rest in dead man's row at Puget Sound.

The "Conny" has more service as flagship to her credit than any American man-of-war. Moreover, she has seen more continuously active service than any vessel of her class, and probably more than any capital ship in the U. S. navy. Yet she never fired a shot at an enemy. This fact is not at all to her discredit; for in the sixteen years and over which have elapsed since she was first commissioner, she has been a potent factor in the country's defense. She "filled the eye" of many a subject of other countries on her world-encircling cruise, and with her sister ships on that memorable voyage instilled a wholesome respect for America in the minds of people who might, but for the spectacle of that fleet, have been disposed to pick a quarrel with us. Thousands of men who have served in the "Conny" will read of her passing with the regret that goes with the loss of a friend. She has served her country well, and her final decommissioning, due to the march of events, reflects no discredit upon her. If the present super-dreadnaughts do as well as the Connecticut has done, they will merit the same praise that is due the good old flagship.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn.

Thousands who have piles have not do the same for you.

Learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands of people, and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

THAMES LINE BOATS TO TRY TO REACH CITY

Freight boat service on the Thames river by the two steamboats of the Thames River Line will be resumed by Sunday, it is expected for the officials of the line now propose to have the Cape Cod attempt to battle her way up the river on Saturday, to be followed by the John W. Worth on Sunday. It is believed the ice has softened enough to give the boats a good chance of reaching this city from which they have been barred for two weeks by the ice.

The Cape Cod is at New London where the boat has had new copper sheathing put on her bows to repair the damage done in her last fight against the heavy ice when it took her seven hours to get here from New London.

While the river has been closed, the steamer Worth has been in New York on drydock having some repairs made.

Thursday there were several open spots in the ice in the harbor and it is believed the mild weather of the last day or two has softened it in the river so much that the boats can break their way here.

REPLACING BROKEN SPAN AT VERSAILLES BRIDGE

The Versailles bridge, of which one span broke and fell into the river last summer when a 10-ton truck boiler was being moved across it, will be back in public service again in about a week, as the employes of the Berlin Construction Co. are now at work riveting and planking the bridge.

They have been at work for about ten days putting up the iron work for the new span which is 121 feet long, which is half the length of the bridge. The old span, which did not collapse, will remain as before, although the Versailles and Occum people would have been well pleased if they could have had a complete new bridge.

The new span is longer, higher and broader than the old one which it replaced.

COAL BILL PASSED

Amendment Attached Authorizing an Additional Appropriation of $400,000—Provides Enlarged Powers of Federal Coal Commission to Conduct Inquiry Into Coal Industry and to Compel Attendance of Witnesses—Partial Agreement Reached on the $156,700,000 Deficiency Appropriation Bill—Congress Held Late Night Session in Effort to Save Minor Bills.

Washington, March 2.—The administration bill enlarging powers of the federal coal commission was passed today by the House 309 to 76. An amendment was attached under which an additional appropriation of $400,000 would be authorized.

Under provisions of the measure passed today, the commission would be given power to send questionnaires to the coal industry, and to compel the attendance of witnesses.

Federal judges would be eligible to membership on the commission under the bill which would enable Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, of Chicago who recently resigned his work with the commission when he was unable to qualify under existing law, to resume his duties.

The bill was attacked by a group led by Representative Bankhead, democrat, of Alabama, who said it would result in a "wanton waste" of money. The commission's preliminary report was under fire as having contained no information "not already available in government departments."

Chairman Winslow of the commerce committee, and Representatives Lea, democrat, California, and Graham, republican, Illinois, defended the work of the commission, declaring its work should be furthered in every way by congress.

The measure, which already had senate approval, was sent back to the senate for concurrence in house changes.

PARTIAL AGREEMENT ON DEFICIENCY BILL

Washington, March 2. — Partial agreement was reached today by senatorial house conferees on the $156,700,000 deficiency appropriation bill, which at the session Thursday was tentatively agreed upon by senate conferees, carrying $400,000 additional for the federal coal commission, which is to be submitted to the house today or soon. In reporting partially this bill today, the house conferees, authorized under the agreement reached by conferees on the authority of additional funds.

The bill as it now stands is practically the same as passed by the senate, except for the addition of the $400,000 item for the coal commission, and the elimination of the senate provision for the reorganization of the bureau of mines.

The house conferees refused to accept the senate provision for reorganization of the bureau of mines, which would have created a director and two assistant directors, at salaries of $10,000 each.

SWEET INSURANCE BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Washington, March 2.—The Sweet bill modifying the war risk insurance act in the interest of disabled veterans was passed today by the house. It now goes to the senate.

The bill would extend the time for obtaining a certificate of disability from the director of the Veterans' Bureau to March 1, 1924, in compensation cases, and would provide that such certificates should issue, where there was an official record of injury during service or at the time of separation from the service, would be considered as having acquired such disease while in the service. The present law limits the period to two years.

Veterans guilty of treason, mutiny, spying or any offense involving moral turpitude or wilful and persistent misconduct would not be deprived of insurance and compensation benefits, unless they had been found guilty by a court martial.

The confirmation of a successor to Charles B. Warren, retiring American ambassador to Tokio, may be sent to the senate by President Harding before the present session of congress comes to an end Sunday.

WITHDRAWS DEMAND FOR EXTRADITION OF STORY

Paris, March 2 (By the A. P.)—Samuel A. Story, of New York, arrested a week ago by request of the federal authorities in New York, charged with forgery, was released tonight, a few hours after the American embassy had received instructions to withdraw the demand for his extradition.

He reached his hotel in a worn-out state, saying that although he was eager to take the first boat for New York he would have to remain in bed for some days before he felt able to face the trip.

Although the state was one permitting 20 days' red tape, it was only a matter of hours between receipt of the Washington cable withdrawing the extradition of Story and his release. The papers in the case had to go to the Foreign office, the ministry of justice, the public prosecutor's office, the prefecture of police and finally to the prison.

Edwin F. Botham, 67, died at the home of his son, Irving W. Botham of Mansfield Depot Thursday. The deceased was born in Pomfret April 28, 1855, the son of Merrit Botham. He leaves seven sons, Irving W., Albert and Elmer of Mansfield Depot, Frank, Harry, and Elisha of Providence and Herbert of Norwich; and three daughters, Mrs. Mary Litchfield, of Hampton, Mrs. Ruth Lyons of Emporia, Kansas, and Mrs. Hall of Putnam.

Passenger train No. 1214, due at the local station at 9.30 a. m., arrived here one hour and fifty minutes late Friday forenoon. The delay caused disappointment to a number of passengers who expected to make connection at the local station with the Boston express. One of those disappointed was Lyndon Smith of Middletown, superior court stenographer, who was on his way to attend the session of superior court at Putnam. Mr. Smith called up the court chamber at Putnam and told Judge Allyn L. Brown of his predicament. Mr. Smith was told to return home as the session called for little business.

Residents of the village of North Windham became considerably excited Friday forenoon about 10 o'clock when Mrs. Wilbur G. Stevens discovered that the roof of her home was ablaze. Constable Samuel Stimpson noticed the fire at about the same time and he gave the alarm. Men from the Hartson and Harris shops hastened to the scene and formed a bucket brigade and the fire was extinguished after considerable damage had been done. It is claimed that the fire started from an overheated chimney.

James F. Casey of this city has brought civil action against Nelson D. Thereux of Norwich and the case will be heard before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean on March 17. Damages of $99 are claimed and the plaintiff is represented by a local attorney. [illegible]

The Columbia board of [illegible] completed its work and filed the abstract for the 1923 assessment with the town clerk. The total grand list, as it comes from the board of relief is $890,873. This is an increase of $184,569 over the 1921 assessment.

The grand list for 1921 was $706,304 and the tax of 18 mills which was laid on that list raised $10,595.46 which means that if the town expenses are no greater this year than last year, a 18 mill tax will be all that is necessary, as it will raise $25 more than the 18 mill tax did on the 1921 list. It is not likely that individual taxes will be greatly increased on account of the large increase in the valuation, although there may be a number which the work of the valuation disclosed were unequally low.

Broad Theatre

The Sin Flood, the new Goldwyn photoplay coming to the Broad theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, is a revelation of human [illegible]. In this powerful story, by the Swedish dramatist, Henning Berger, taken from his play "Syndafloden," a group of people are gathered together and brought face to face with what they believe to be certain death. In this dilemma, their characters are seen to undergo a spiritual transformation; the dross of their earthly conflicts falls away and the underlying good that is in all humanity brings conscious unashamed.

To carry this message to the world, Goldwyn has selected one of the strongest cases ever assembled. There are eleven main roles, and each demands the feeling, ability usually associated only with stars. In fact, it is truly an all star cast, both in name and in acting ability. Each player performs as though his or her part were the main role in the photoplay. And yet each portrays the relationship of one character with another in such a way that one forgets that one is looking at a picture in the feeling that life itself is being caught up into a single situation and exhibited before our gaze.

Helene Chadwick, whose recent performance in "Tarnished Reputations" has been widely praised, has the leading woman's role in "The Sin Flood."

Topics of the Day and a Pathe comedy will make up the remainder of the bill.

Today's bill consists of Tom Mix in "Do and Dare" Ruth Roland in "The Timber Queen"—All St. John's All West and the Pathe news. Continuous show today from 1.30 to 10.15.

SARAZEN AND HAGEN EXPECTED TO LEAD AMERICAN INVASION IN BRITISH GOLF

New York, March 2.—American professional golfers are planning another attack on the royal and ancient heights of Great Britain this year in the hope of duplicating the triumphs they have scored in the past two years.

Officials of the professional golfers' association today said that no attempt would be made to organize a team, such as was sent over in 1921 under the captaincy of Emmet French, of Youngstown, but that several of the most prominent "pros" stars are likely to make the trip as individuals.

Gene Sarazen, American open and professional titleholder and Walter Hagen, present British open king, are expected to lead the Yankee drive in the British open championships at Troon, Scotland, June 11 to 15. In addition, there is a possibility that Jim Barnes, former American champion, and John Black, the veteran who finished only a stroke behind Sarazen at Skokie last summer, may join the party.

Jock Hutchison, who captured the British title in 1921 after a play-off with Roger Wethered, English amateur star, has declared he will be unable to go because of an extended exhibition tour he has planned for the spring and early summer. Jock is now in the south giving exhibitions with Sarazen.

Sarazen has yet to iron out his arrangements with the Briarcliff Club, where on April 1, he is scheduled to take up his duties as professional. Club directors have been disinclined to grant the open champion a leave of absence so soon after he takes hold of his new post, but it is believed that an adjustment will be made to permit him to take a crack at the British title.

Barnes, who had just finished close to the top in his last two attempts to lift the British crown, is anxious to try once more while Black is eager to go because Troon was his home course before he emigrated to American links. The veteran, who has staged a remarkable come-back after being near death from injuries sustained in an automobile accident last year, has changed his club affiliations from Oakland, Calif., to Wichita, Kans., and may make arrangements to go abroad.

Hagen, who is free froom club affiliations, is a certain entry in defense of his title. His touring partner, Joe Kirkwood, the Australian fancy shortartist will accompany him.

SIKI LEADS MANAGER A MERRY CHASE

Paris, March 2.—Battling Siki, the Senegalese heavyweight, left today for Cherbourg on his way to Dublin where he is to meet Mike McTigue on March 17.

As the boat touches at Southampton before proceeding to Queenstown Sikis manager is desirous of keeping the name of the vessel secret to prevent the British authorities from removing Siki at the former port and compelling his return to France.

Early last November, when Siki was matched with Joe Beckett, the British home office refused to permit the contest in England on the ground that in bouts "between men of color and white men, the temperaments of the contestants are not comparable, and moreover, all sorts of passions are aroused.")

Siki's departure for Cherbourg was not without difficulties, as some persons, wishing to prevent him going, had imbued him with the idea that, once in Ireland, he could never get back to France, and that British authorities were sure going to catch him.

His manager's first attempt to get him on his way failed at the last moment yesterday morning, whereupon he was taken from the station to a hotel. During the night he escaped but was found at home and taken back to the hotel with his wife. He again fled, at about two o'clock this the morning, but was again corraled and a guard placed at his door.

A strong corps of caretakers accompanied the fighter to Cherbourg. His manager, M. Drouilhet, will follow tomorrow.

JAPANESE PLAYERS AGAIN CHALLENGE FOR DAVIS CUP

New York, March 2.—Japanese tennis players again have entered the Davis cup lists. Their formal challenge, the sixth so far for the 1923 international team competition, was received today by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Cable dispatches at the same time carried the announcement that Australia also had decided to challenge for the trophy, but official advice from the antipodes had not yet reached the U. S. L. T. A.

Japan will play in the American zone. No definite word was received concerning the personnel of the Nipponese team, but it was understood that it will be composed of Ichiya Kumagae, ZenZo Shimizu, Seiichiro Kashio and Fukuto, a new tennis star, who is the present Japanese champion.

The first three players are well known in this country, where they have played frequently in the past few years. Kumagae and Shimizu, carrying Japan's colors for the first time in Davis cup play in 1921, swept through the international field to play the United States in the challenge round, losing five straight but hard-fought matches with the American stars, Tilden Johnston, Williams and Washburn.

Last season, Japan defaulted to Italy in the first round because of the inability of its team to go to England, where the matches were scheduled.

Fukuto, in the opinion of his teammates, is the most promising player developed in Japan in several years. He won the singles title last October from a field included of the Nipponese stars with the exception of Kumagae.

GENARO RECEIVES OFFER TO MEET JIMMY WILDE

New York, March 2.—(By the Associated Press)—Offers to meet Jimmy Wilde, of England, world's champion flyweight boxer, were under consideration tonight by Frankie Genaro, of New York, who won the American title last night from Pancho Villa, of the Philippine Islands, at Madison Square Garden.

After refusing an offer from an unnamed English promoter to meet Wilde for the world's title in a London ring Genaro received overtures from two American impresarios, Tex Rickard, who staged last night's match, suggested holding a Wilde-Genaro bout at the new Yankee Stadium and Tom O'Rourke, of the Republic Athletic Club, proferred the Polo grounds.

Genaro said he did not care to go to Europe at this time and that he will be as active in this country, now that he has the American title, as when he was seeking it. He will meet Frankie Williams in Harrisburg, Pa., next Tuesday night, and is anxious to meet all contenders for his crown.

The operators of a string of vaudeville houses today offered him a ten week's exhibition tour which he said he would decline if he is able to arrange some real bouts.

BRAVES AND RED SOX OFF FOR SOUTHERN CAMP

Boston, March 2.—The Boston clubs in the major leagues finished even last year—both in last place—and started even today for the south to prepare to improve their positions during the coming year.

When the vanguard of the Braves set out for St. Petersburg, Fla., in charge of manager Fred Mitchell, it was with a godspeed from Christy Mathewson, new part-owner and president of the club, and a prediction by "big six" that his boys—"the best lot that ever finished last"—would be in the first division, or thereabouts this year. Matty will not take up actively negotiations with Stuffy McInnis, released by the Cleveland Americans, to play first base for the Braves.

Frank Chance, who succeeded to the management of the Red Sox during the winter, headed the Red Sox battery men on the trip to Hot Springs, Ark. He said he had high hopes for the young players obtained in between-season deals and added that they would be worked hard to show what was in them at the Ozark resort, although training sessions will be limited to one a day.

"BABE" RUTH TAKES UP BATTLE WITH THE "FLU"

Hot Springs, Ark., March 2.—"Babe" Ruth, here for preliminary training in preparation for another campaign for home run honors, took a recess from his mountain climbing and golf today to battle the "flu" which had developed over night and sent his temperature at one time to 104.

Tonight, his physician reported him back to normal, free of fever most of the day and with every indication that he would be in shape to leave Monday with others of the Yankee squad here to join the team in New Orleans.

Ruth had suffered for several days with a cold, but undertook to "wear it off." During the night a chill and high temperature developed. It was learned today, with distinctive influenza symptoms.

GILBERT WINS ON MIAMI GOLF COURSE

Miami, Fla., March 2.—Horatio Gilbert of Grand Rapids, Mich., former Michigan state amateur golf champion, defeated J. C. Wars, of Haverhill, Mass., and Miami, 2 up and 1 to play in the final round of the tournament for the Carl G. Fisher trophies here today. The match was 18 holes by agreement.

In the second flight, C. B. Tilton, of Tilton, N. H., defeated W. Atkins, of Cincinnati, 2 to 1. A dispute for the third flight championship has been referred to the tournament committee, both F. J. Marionk, of Stamford, Conn., and H. G. Rogers, of New York, claim it by default, due to a failure to agree upon a playing hour.

Monte Carlo, March 2.—(By the Associated Press)—Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, the American woman tennis champion, broke even with defeat today and practically passed out of the picture in the Monte Carlo tournament.

Paired with Miss Howett, a youthful English player who gave a very good account of herself—Mrs. Mallory met her old rivals, Suzanne Lenglen and Miss Elisabeta Ryan, the California girl, and the Franco-American pair quickly smothered the American champion and her young partner in the women's doubles, 6-2, 6-1.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Mallory had been eliminated from the singles competition by Mrs. Satterthwaite, England, 6-3, 6-1. That the victory of the English woman was an easy one is shown by the fact that Mrs. Mallory took only three games of the fifteen played.

The interest of the day centered in the meeting of Lenglen and Mrs. Mallory, as although the match was in doubles, it was expected to afford a chance of comparing the respective forms of the world champion and the premier American woman player, between whom there always had been much rivalry. All the tennis experts today seemed agreed that Mrs. Mallory must improve fifty per cent. over her present form if she is to get a chance to meet Lenglen in the final of the singles at Mentone next week.

Lacks The Punch

Today the American player's old "punch" seemed gone; her famous forehand drive, which formerly she shot across the court with tremendous strength, either landed in the net or, clearing the net, went outside the court. Her backhand stroke—always her weak spot—was absolutely useless, and Mrs. Satterthwaite, during the morning singles, as well as Mlle. Lenglen in the afternoon, kept the ball always far to Mrs. Mallory's left, with the result that she either netted or hit far to the right of the court.

But most significant of all in the defeats of Mrs. Mallory today was the listless way in which she played this afternoon. That old "never-say-die" spirit, which so many times has carried her through a victory after losing a set and when she was within a point of losing the nex set and match, was lacking. This fact, more than anything else, led the experts to declare that there seemed a possibility the present year might see the passing of another champion.

Lenglen Directs Play at Mallory

Mlle. Lenglen, on the contrary, played with the utmost confidence, directing four-fifths of her shots at Mrs. Mallory in an evident effort to make the doubles as much of a singles competition as possible. Mrs. Mallory got the worst of the exchanges every time. According to the experts Mrs. Mallory on her present form would be lucky if she succeeded in winning a game in a singles match with Lenglen.

The French champion was the first to enter the courts, which were surrounded by the greatest throng of spectators that ever watched a tennis match here. Bowing to the Duke of Connaught who was sitting in the prince of Monaco's box, Suzanne stood around a little while and then edged over toward the press stand.

"They say I am a prima donna and always want to make a prima donna entrances," Suzanne remarked, adding "You'd hear much criticism if I were to keep the others waiting in chilly air like this."

Miss Ryan and Mrs. Mallory came on in turn, and it was little Miss Howett who made the prima donna entrance. She plainly was suffering from stagefright. Lenglen and Mallory bowed frigidly to each other across the net, and when the ubiquitous photographers and moving picture men "demanded" that the four players should stand for a picture it was noticed that Mlle Lenglen and Mrs. Mallory stood at the ends, with Miss Ryan and Miss Howett between them.

Suzanne at Her Best

Suzanne served the first winning love game. Then she and her partner broke through Mrs. Mallory's service, and monotonously the games went on. Suzanne and Miss Ryan throughout six love games until the eleventh was recalled, when Miss Ryan erved three double faults and Mrs. Mallory and Miss Howett won their only game.

Suzanne stood close to the net, covering it as with an umbrella. Her smashes and kills were deadly; her placements absolutely flawless. Miss Ryan and her chop cross-court stroke worked beautifully, and the experts were of the opinion that it was doubtful if any pair of women players in the world would have stood a ghost of a chance against their game today.

Mrs. Mallory fought much harder against Mrs. Satterthwaite in the singles in the morning. She started off by serving a double fault and losing her service in a deuce game; but she broke through Mrs. Satterthwaite's service. With the games one-all, she showed a dash of her old-time speed, but thn Mrs. Satterthwaite commenced feednig her shots to Mallory's left, winning four straight games.

Mrs. Mallory rallied and took the seventh game on good hard driving, but Mrs. Satterthwaite, who had been playing on the Riviera all winter and has reched the best form she ever displayed, was not to be denied and won the eighth game and set.

Mrs. Mallory, with grim determined mien, began the second by winning the service in a love game. Her friends, who had seen her pull so many matches out of the fire, took renewed heart; but it was only a flash. Mrs. Satterthwaite went through six straight games without losing a single one. Mrs. Mallory tried to stem the tide of defeat by bringing into play all her court strategy and her driving with great length and speed, but she was lacking in accuracy.

The American champion found little solace in her victory in the mixed doubles, which came late in the day, when, paired with Wallis Meyers she defeated Miss Fowler and Mr. Lycett of England, 6-4, 6-4.

Mrs. Mallory is frank in that she has not changed her plans. She still intends to play in the Mentone and Nice tournaments, respectively March 5 and 12. She has been insisting all along that she is not here on winning tournaments on the Riviera; that she attaches no importance whatever to them, and that she is playing merely for the fun of it.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Looking at the North Pole

Well, as soon as the little bird in the cage stopped singing, "We're glad to see you, Mr. Bear," Mrs. Polar Bear went over to him and said:

"I didn't mean to be cross when you came home again. That little bird said just what my heart wanted to say, only, I just somehow couldn't put it into words."

And now, I hope you remember the last story and what it was all about, for if you don't you will wonder where Little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky are. Well, in case you have forgotten and are worried, I'll tell you right away. They were in the Polar Bear's little brick house up at the North Pole.

Well, the next thing that Mrs. Polar Bear did was to make tea and bring out some cake and after that was over, the two little rabbits said goodbye and started off again in their sledmobile and pretty soon they saw the North Pole.

It stood up straight on top of an icy little hill, so the two little rabbits hopped out of the Sledmobile and looked at it very closely, for at first they could hardly believe their eyes, for will you believe it, if I tell you so, that North Pole was a great big stick of peppermint candy standing on top of a frosted cake.

"Goodness, gracious, meebus!" said Uncle Lucky. "Am I dreaming?" and he pinched himself so hard that he almost cried, and just then a great penguin said:

"Don't you touch that candy pole. You'd better be moving away. The walrus and his cousin, the seal, Will sop that you obey."

"Don't worry yourself," said Uncle Lucky, "my little nephew and myself won't hurt your North Pole; we're just looking at it," and the old gentleman rabbit took off his old wedding stovepipe hat and bowed to the penguin and then he started up the sledmobile and pretty soon he and Little Jack Rabbit were far away from there and by and by they saw a little reindeer so Little Jack Rabbit called to him:

"Can you tell us the way back to the Old Bramble Patch, Rail Fence Corner, U. S. A.?"

"Of course, I can," answered the little reindeer, "wasn't I there last Xmas with Santa Claus?"

"You don't say so," said Uncle Lucky, "how very interesting. Did you stop at my house, the little White house in Rabbitville on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street?"

"I don't believe we did," said the little reindeer. "Somebody toir us there were no children there."

"That's so," said Uncle Lucky sadly, "all I have is Little Miss Mousie, who keeps house for me," and in the next story you shall hear what the tle reindeer, "Somebody told us there had wiped his left eye with his blue silk polkadot handkerchief.

HARDING'S TWO YEARS.

The review of the two years of the Hardin campaign by Charles D. Hilles, a former national republican committee chairman, as given in another column is worth reading.

The two years which will be completed Sunday next have been unusual years in many respects. President Harding has faced big problems. He has tackled them with courage and determination. That he has not accomplished all that he has planned, at least has not been his fault. Without the assistance of a Congress which, he demonstrated that by proper tact, light, and all the time for the best interests of the country and that he has not been deserted in time so by those who should have given him their support. But who have persisted in hindering rather than helping.

Properly has Mr. Hilles directed attention to the excellence of the appointments to the United States supreme court, the increase in the number of federal court judges for the expediting of the business which had been clogged such courts, for the firm stand in behalf of retrenchment that has accomplished material results, for his thoroughly American foreign policy and the establishment of a federal budget system.

In keeping with that highly commendable spirit has been the sentimental Washington conference, the proposed stand against the beers and [illegible] with the enactment of a tariff law under which the country is doing a greater business than ever had previously known times that otherwise, the period of uncertainty, a period disposed heavy against the year just past and there is no discounting of the refunding of the British debt, or the epidemic of the agricultural depression, previous to the opening of the administration. Wherever has the administration attempted to bring about better relations not only with the Latin-American republics, but between both.

The review by Mr. Hilles brings to mind many of the accomplishments in a busy two years that might be overlooked in the consideration of matters of so much more recent date than marked by some of them.

It is impossible to disagree with the view that "as a result of these two years of wise and economical administration, every day, in every way the country is getting better and better."

LETTER BOXES OR SLOTS.

It must, of course, have been gratifying to the letter carriers that so many have complied with the request of the postoffice department that all houses be equipped with slots in the doors or mail boxes for the reception of first and second class matter. It is going to mean that they will be able to do their work much more efficiently and that the receivers of mail will be far more certain of getting it. Left on the doorstep, porch, windowsill or tucked into the side of or under the door affords no protection in keeping with the value of mail matter.

For a great many there has been no need of requesting the provision of boxes or cutting slots in the doors. They have recognized the importance of such provisions and long since acted. There is carelessness enough in the directing and mailing of first and second class matter without insisting upon its continuance at the point of delivery. When we come to stop and think of it there is no good reason why every house should not have its box or slot, any more, than there is for the rural carriers to leave their mail matter on some stone wall or at the foot of a tree and trust to luck that winds or other agencies will not disturb it.

The postoffice department is not ready to say that those who do not provide the letter box or slot will have no mail delivered to them, but with the advisability of such action being recognized by such a large number the wisdom of a 100 per cent. compliance, must be seen.

Demands for increased efficiency in the postal service are not new. The compliance with this request may not eliminate all the troubles, delays and handicaps, but it is one more instance where the public has an opportunity to help, and at the same time protect itself.

FIGHTING DOPE AT THE SOURCE.

There is satisfaction to be gained from the fact that the senate found time in which to act upon the resolution calling upon the president to enter into negotiations with other countries concerning the restriction of narcotic sales and production. Even more satisfaction comes from the fact that the motion was favorable. Just how it was possible for the upper house of congress or act otherwise on the bill was difficult to see in view of the importance of putting a curb with full control

ICE IS DISAPPEARING BEFORE WARM WEATHER

The warm weather of the past two days has done much to break up and carry away the ice an snow that has covered the city in a heavy blanket for the past few months. Street became veritable rivers and several people complained that water was leaking into their cellars. With a few more days of like temperature much of the snow and ice on the street will disappear and travel for pedestrians and vehicle operators will be better.

Although there was considerable ice in the river it has not broken up fast enough the past two days and the weather predicted by many has not yet arrived, and as far as most people are concerned it need never hit the city.

Vacancy

The vacancy caused by the death of Charles A. Gallup on the board of directors of the Thames National bank has been filled by the election of Frederick A. Brown, president of the Uncas Manufacturing company.

The subject of the noon talk served Friday evening by Rev. Clyde M. Grant of Trumbull memorial church was "Vacancy." Mr. Grant pointed out the vacancy in the world caused by the death of Christ and the vacancy in the life of the individual caused by sin. He showed how Christ could fill the vacancy in the world and in the life of the individual.

GAVE ALL HE COULD FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF

Robert Dillon, a world war veteran, died of tuberculosis in Denver, Colorado, turned his thoughts, tempered by suffering and enlightened by his knowledge of conditions as they can exist in a war-torn country, to that most pitiful group of war victims—the orphaned children of the Near East.

There was not much he could do for them, however compassionate his heart might feel for he had not much to give. Neither was there much time to do that little because he had not long to live. But he did all that he could, all that he pitifully could.

Near East Relief has received from Robert Dillon, in the last hours of his life, two checks, one for $47.50, his insurance money, and one for $700, compensation for total disability. By this gift from the boy he is little remembered for more than two years.

REV. DR. DANFORTH BEGINS NOON LUNCHEON TALKS

The series of noon luncheon talks at the Young Men's Christian association for the Fridays of March opened auspiciously today when the parlors of the association were filled with business and professional men who greatly enjoyed the noon hour. Promptly at 12 o'clock a buffet lunch was served and a half hour of social intercourse was enjoyed, and promptly at 12:30 the noon service was opened. James L. Case, vice president of the association, in the absence from the city of President James C. Macpherson, presided. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. H. Graham of Trinity Methodist church, after which two hymns were sung; these were followed by a vocal solo by Lemuel Fielding entitled I Shall Know Him. Hugh Kinder presided at the piano. Secretary Ives read the following letter from Dr. C. E. Jefferson, who recently conducted the series of meetings under the auspices: "My dear Mr. Hill:—Norwich is on my map and I am interested in everything which that city does. I shall be with you in spirit in all your Friday meetings, praying often that God may pour out His spirit on you all more wonderfully. Sincerely yours, Charles E. Jefferson."

Dr. J. E. Danforth of New London, who is to deliver the talks of the series, addressed the meeting on the topic, Let There Be Light. He spoke of the times when the light of creation came to the world, that the light came before the human eye was made, and God made the human eye to see the light. He said that the race had been trying to follow the light through the years, that to educate one's self was to follow the light, that the difference in the abilities of men was not so much from natural endowment as by training, or studying to develop the talents within us; the main thing for us to do is to see to it that we improve to the utmost the possibilities God has put in us. Let there be light. It is interesting to note that light shows up the good things and the bad things as well. Light shows us our faults, but it also helps us to overcome them. If it only showed us the bad things about us and left us there it would be sad indeed, but light completes the job, in enabling us to correct the faults. Mrs. Danforth might tell me of my failings, and she does so, but she immediately tells me how she thinks I can correct them, and so she is a real helpmeet to me. We are not the children of the evening, but of the morning, for we are like the child, ever looking toward the eternal light, toward the Master of us all, even Jesus Christ, the Lord. During this Lenten season it is a beautiful thing to think of the light, the light of faith, of hope, of power, and of the resurrection, and let us ever follow the light of God wherever it leads us.

Dr. Danforth's talk made a deep impression as indicated by the remarks at the close of the meeting. Next Friday the topic of the talk will be "working tools" and it is safe to say that a large audience will be present again. These meetings last exactly one hour, closing promptly at 1 o'clock.

The management desires to know about how many intend to come next week in order to provide the proper amount of food.

Mayor Extends Welcome.

Commander Price was toastmaster, introducing Mayor Waters, who expressed the city's welcome to the department officers to whom he said he felt well pleased to offer the freedom of the city. He commended the Grand Army as the bulwark and best teacher of patriotism, together with allied organizations, that the nation has had in the years since the Civil war. They have always stood for the best things and the right, he said, and he hoped their influence and their work would extend for a long time in the future as it had in the past.

Adjutant General Smith, who was a resident of Norwich and a member Sedgwick post from 1868 to 1876, spoke briefly when called upon and urged the men to keep up their interest and their work, although their ranks are dwindling with the passing years.

Tribute to G. A. R.

Rev. Mr. Foster of the Universalist Church of the Good Shepherd then made the chief address of the afternoon, pleasing the veterans and their guests as he said he was particularly well pleased at this opportunity to pay deserved tribute to the men for whom he had gained a profound respect through his wide reading of the events of the Civil war. Among the military leaders was one who has stood foremost in acknowledged eminence, Gen. John Sedgwick, a man of the steady reliable type rather than the flashy and sensational.

Rev. Mr. Foster declared that it would be a matter of pride for the men and women of Connecticut to honor the memory of General Sedgwick through the coming years, and he went on to give an interesting descrip-

Legislative Notes

In the Senate yesterday Friday morning Senator John L. Bremer, Republican, Brooklyn, Windham county, introduced a bill to be a trustee of a certain parcel of property owned by the [illegible] Congregational church, Danielson, Conn. This bill was introduced by Senator Bremer who explained that the property was to remain in the possession of the society as long as it was used for church purposes. Friday's proceedings was more or less formality incidental to keeping the charter of trustees intact as an incident to the plans for building a community house on the church property during the present year.

Speaking on Senator Bremer's bill Senator Talcott of Hartford said that he was in favor of the proposal that the state make an appropriation for building an improved highway from Brooklyn Center to Pomfret. He [illegible] over the matter with the governor on the proposal as the speed, travel and budget committee of the legislature. However, the proposal will come up again in all probability at the next session of the legislature. The proposed improvement would [illegible] for the sake of it is doubtful if it will become more so as the ever increasing congestion of traffic on existing state highways will force the building of additional routes. The matter is dead for the next two years as the unfavorable report of the committee was accepted by the Senate.

A [illegible] law was effective Friday in further treating Windham county roads. Water ran in streams through every thoroughfare in the borough. A four to six-inch coating of snow and ice covering the majority of the streets of the borough softened under the [illegible] rays of the sun. The state highways the traveled sections were rendered [illegible] and some places, especially to the south were as clear and dry as during the summer months. Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich presided Friday morning at a session of the superior court for disposition of matters on short calendar and assignment of cases for the March term. Only one case was assigned—Leon H. Frink vs. George O'Neil, this for Thursday of next week.

A judgment for $1,128 in favor of Miss Gertrude Winton of Pomfret was ordered entered in the case of Gertrude Winton vs. Stanley Kelley. Attorney Charles M. Sarle, counsel for the plaintiff, was sworn as a witness and set forth for the court that the claim against Mr. Kelley was for rent of a building owned by the plaintiff in Pomfret, where Mr. Kelley had maintained a boys' school, which venture did not prove successful, and for use of the furniture and other equipment of the building. Mr. Sarle explained that the amount named in the judgment was one agreed upon in this office between the plaintiff and defendant and was materially less than the original claim. Mr. Sarle produced letters in which Mr. Kelley acknowledged the debt as an honest obligation and one which he had no desire to evade, and expressing a willingness that a judgment being taken in court in the interest of the greater peace of mind of the plaintiff. An extract from one letter indicated that Mr. Kelley would try to pay during the present month. The judgment included interest on the account from last September. Mr. Kelley is now in New York.

In the case of Arthur C. Billington vs. Harry E. Green an agreement was arrived at between counsel in the case under which attorneys for Mr. Green will have an opportunity to examine books of the plaintiff touching on any matters relative thereto in dispute between the parties, which the suit grows. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant owes him a considerable sum of money and the defense is that the money has been paid.

Judge Brown allowed a divorce in the uncontested case of Mary Hrynaik vs. Adolph Hrynaik. This case was heard at the one-day session in February, but the court desired further evidence, which was furnished through the single witness presented in the case at Friday's session.

Jurors for the March term of court were drawn as follows: Putnam, Daniel G. Arnold, Frank D. Thayer, F. X. Lacier; Windham, Robert M. Bath, Albert L. French; Ashford, P. J. McGuade; Brooklyn, Leroy E. Pearl; Canterbury, Malcolm Witherby; Chaplin, Merritt Welch; Hampton, H. J. Kelley; Hampton, J. P. Esterbrook; Killingly, Nathan A. Shorr, William J. Gray; Plainfield, F. W. Daggett, Fred R. Littlefield, Samuel B. Lewis; Pomfret, A. L. Rhodes, Harry Cutler; Scotland, Ralph Durfee; Sterling, John E. Griffiths; Thompson, Fred E. Willett, Edmond S. Backus; Woodstock, Arthur Sullard, A. W. Goss.

Another new business block—a three story structure—is promised for this city as the result of the purchase by Wolf and Kaminsky of what is known as the Johnson property on Main street, opposite the Paloquin block and adjoining the site of the new Wolf and Kaminsky building. Louis Wolf said Friday morning that the partnership in which he is associated with Mr. Kaminsky had acquired from the Johnson and St. Onge interests a lot with a frontage of 21 1-2 feet on Main street and extending back 133 feet to Livery street. There is a dwelling on the property but this will not be disturbed in carrying out the proposed building operations.

Tentative plans for the new block call for a brick structure with two stores on the street level, offices on the second floor and a lodge assembly hall on the upper floor.

During the coming week large elm trees that stand on the property just inside the sidewalk line will be taken down and other trees on the site removed to clear the space to be excavated for the cellar of the building.

It is estimated that the new building will cost from $50,000 to $70,000 to construct. Wolf and Kaminsky have been so successful with the building they completed last year that they have become interested in putting up an additional structure.

The proposed building will occupy space now given over to a spacious lawn. The location is one of the best now available in the city and in a quarter that is rapidly developing as a newer part of the city's business section.

Putnam's apportionment of the $8,000 Windham county tax recently authorized by the county organization in the legislature to raise funds that the county needs imperatively will be $3,258.17, the second largest amount assessed against any of the 15 towns of the county. This money will be raised this year and will figure prominently in the making up of the town's budget and the tax rate at the coming annual financial meeting.

The apportionment of the county tax among the 15 towns is as follows: Ashford, $619.32; Brooklyn, $1,801.95; Canterbury, $841.10; Chaplin, $503.52; Eastford, $441.40; Hampton, $481.13; Killingly, $7,198.28; Plainfield, $5,154.46; Pomfret, $1,847.82; Putnam, $3,258.17; Scotland, $373.75; Sterling, $1,042.39; Thompson, $3,196.71; Windham, $16,430.78; Woodstock, $1,478.87; total, $50,000.

Spirited bidding was going on Friday, as has been the case for the past few days, for the Nazaire Peloquin properties, including the Peloquin or Victory theatre block on Main street, the White Front building on Pomfret street and other dwelling house property, some of which adjoins the Victory theatre building. There were persistent rumors Friday that a deal for the property had been closed, but this subsequently was denied. However, an announcement of the sale may be looked for any day. A high bid of $32,500 for the properties was said to have been made Friday. The property in question was owned by Nazaire Peloquin, who died suddenly during the past year. He was one of the well-known business men and real estate owners of the city. David Ostiguy of Worcester, a brother-in-law of Charles Feder, is reported as having an option on the property.

March topics to be discussed by the Men's class during March and those who will be in charge of the meetings are as follows: March 4, Local Prohibition Enforcement, Attorney Howard C. Bradford; March 11, Building the Rural Community, County Agent Frank L. Davis; March 18, Military Service, John Moss; March 25, The Y. M. C. A. and the Church, John H. Corbett.

Automobiles, troubled by hard traveling conditions for the past three months, are now beset by a new difficulty. The warmer weather and thaw has caused the accumulation of mud on many streets to reach thoroughfares upon which it is impossible to maintain a pace of more than 15 miles an hour. At the last town meeting a sum was appropriated for the purchase of calcium chloride, to be used in dust-laying, and it was expected that the material would be available for use on the streets before this time, but it has not arrived as yet.

WANTON BRIGGS, 101, DIES AFTER TWO DAYS' ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, March 3.—Wanton Briggs, Danielson's oldest resident, died about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon at his home on the West Side. He was in his 102nd year, and was one of the oldest residents of Connecticut. Mr. Briggs succumbed after only two days' illness in bed. He developed a cold a few days ago. This was not considered as serious in his case, but it proved fatal to one of Mr. Briggs' unusually advanced age.

Mr. Briggs was born in the town of Coventry, R. I., near Grand's Shallow, on November 11, 1821, a son of Wanton and Mary Tyl Briggs. His mother came from the vicinity of Groton, this state.

He was one of the great host that went to California in the gold rush of 1849, making the trip around Cape Horn. When he left behind his father was apparently a powerful man with prospect of many years of life before him, but when Mr. Briggs arrived at San Francisco he found a letter awaiting him that contained news of his father's death. Mr. Briggs' mother lived, however, until his return from California, 15 years later.

Like the great majority of the 49'ers Mr. Briggs engaged in gold mining for time, but with varying success. Eventually he turned to what seemed his natural bent, acquiring land and engaging in the raising of large crops of wheat, barley and hops.

He then set toward the close of the fifties and located in Napa, [illegible] county, in 1860, he married to Miss Julia A. Douglas, who, at the age of 78, survives her husband, with a son, J. Herbert Briggs, and a daughter, Miss Alice M. Briggs, all of Danielson.

Mr. Briggs remained in Napa until 1890 and was successfully engaged in fruit gardening, selling his products throughout the villages of the Sacramento Valley. In that year he came with his family to Danielson, where his brother, George Briggs, was then resident. The family lived for a time on Broad street prior to Mr. Briggs' purchasing land of William Lowe and erecting a home for himself on the West Side, where he has since made his home, maintaining his interest in vegetable growing up to a comparatively few years ago.

In many ways Mr. Briggs was a very remarkable man. As late as last October he voted in the town election and again in November participated in the state election, probably being the oldest citizen of Connecticut to cast the ballot at that time. Up to very recently he retained practically full possession of his faculties and had an exceedingly clear memory for one of such advanced age.

He was one of a family of 13 children, several of whom became well known in manufacturing circles in eastern Connecticut. Eben and Ira Briggs, who operated mills at Voluntown, were his brothers, and another brother was Laclus Briggs, who for years operated a thread mill at Ghent, this state.

PUTNAM

Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich presided Friday morning at a session of the superior court for disposition of matters on short calendar and assignment of cases for the March term. Only one case was assigned—Leon H. Frink vs. George O'Neil, this for Thursday of next week.

A judgment for $1,128 in favor of Miss Gertrude Winton of Pomfret was ordered entered in the case of Gertrude Winton vs. Stanley Kelley. Attorney Charles M. Sarle, counsel for the plaintiff, was sworn as a witness and set forth for the court that the claim against Mr. Kelley was for rent of a building owned by the plaintiff in Pomfret, where Mr. Kelley had maintained a boys' school, which venture did not prove successful, and for use of the furniture and other equipment of the building. Mr. Sarle explained that the amount named in the judgment was one agreed upon in this office between the plaintiff and defendant and was materially less than the original claim. Mr. Sarle produced letters in which Mr. Kelley acknowledged the debt as an honest obligation and one which he had no desire to evade, and expressing a willingness that a judgment being taken in court in the interest of the greater peace of mind of the plaintiff. An extract from one letter indicated that Mr. Kelley would try to pay during the present month. The judgment included interest on the account from last September. Mr. Kelley is now in New York.

In the case of Arthur C. Billington vs. Harry E. Green an agreement was arrived at between counsel in the case

Scattered With Mud

Several Norwich men who aided a local physician get his automobile out of a rut on Broadway Thursday were somewhat the worse for wear by the time the automobile sped away and the doctor waved his thanks. The rear wheels churning in the mud and water deserved the ceilings and clothes of the workers and it took them some time to get themselves back in presentable appearance.

The Old Scene.

When I hear the bees a humming
As they fly on busy wing,
I like to chat my experience
Of almost everything.
An' somehow, when I think awhile,
An' thoughts are on the pound,
They nearer come together
An' center 'round the heart.
Where all the cares an' fears of life
Ev'ry day live an' have and smile,
In the days, the good old days
That ha'nt me all the while.

An' we us'ter sing the old songs,
An' Pa the bass would take,
An' Ma would promptly start the air
Without a hitch or break.
An' now I seem to plainly hear
Her voice the high notes rise,
An' I know that now she's singin'
Her songs in Paradise;
While Sister Lou would counter sing
In voice so soft an' low,
That when I think, my heart most bursts,
The thinkin' hurts me so.

An' Pa would lay his head rite back
An' shut his eyes up tite,
An' put his foot upon the floor
An' strike the meter time rite,
An' I a little tow-head boy
Would hold his dear hard hands,
An' look up in his good old face
But couldn't understand,
When he sang the Sunday meetin' hymns
The look he'd always wear,
But now I think he wore the songs
With meebee of a prayer.

Ah, "Hinds" "Marlow" "Warwick,"
I hear your strains arise,
Until the glorious chorus
Hits fair to reach the skies.
An' "Hendon," "Hebron," "Folsom,"
Are taken in their turn,
An' dismal "China" finds its place,
An' "Sherwood" and "Malvern."
Then "Corinthian" notes are sung,
An' "Duke Street" an "Dundee,"
With "Duckingham" and "Ortan"
An glorious "Majesty."

An' how old "Amsterdam" would go,
An' all the parts unite,
An' "Mary to the Saviour's tomb"
Would follow every night.
An' then perhaps "St. Martin's" next
Or "Olmutz" rise so grand.
An' then would roll "On Jordan's Stormy Banks I Stand."
O, Pa an' Ma, an' all the rest,
I seem to hear the tone
Of all your voices in my heart
While pinin' here alone.

Rearing Our Children.

If baby discovers the bottle of rye
That father has got on his hip,
And, making a wailful and pitcous cry,
He dimply begs for a sip,
Don't dash up the leggings that cover
His infant cautious, thus sternly chastened,
With make him a drunkard some day.

If sister swoops down on the quarter that drops
From grandmother's purse to the floor,
And rths to invest it in peppermint drops
And chocolate creams at the store
Postpone your correction to some later time
And let her emotions run wild;
By rudely suppressing her instinct for crime
You may make a thief of the child.

Don't be at all shocked if your seven-year-old son Responds you to lead him the cheers,
Because he believes it would be lots of fun
To cut off the pussy cat's ears.
Suppress this desire that dwells in his heart
For brutal and red-blooded deeds,
And you surely will give him the original start,
Which is all a good murderer needs.

These facts we have learned from a person named Friend,
Who says in a ponderous book
That primal emotions too roughly destroyed,
Will make their possessor a crook.
The spirit that punishment seeks to repress
Will burst from its bondage some day,
So let it ran rampant, but nevertheless,
We want rear our children that way!

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: It has been a long time, I am sorry to say, since I sent a letter to the Corner page. But now I have started this time I hope I will keep the good work up. My husband is always glad that I have Saturday's Bulletin, for he enjoys very much reading all the nice letters on The Corner page. I have been confined to the house quite a little since the Holidays, at first I cut my hand very badly with a tin plate while cutting very sharply into my bandage. I had my hand done up for three or four weeks, it would feel much to-day, and was afraid I always will carry a scar from it. The largest quantity of germs I have encountered. Who has not also to bet my right hand to shake hands for some five years to come, and then I had a very bad attack of blood poisoning. I was confined to the bed for three weeks, and was very ill. I had a doctor to see me every day, and he said he had never seen a case that was so bad and yet the hand was not broken. I was very glad to get out of bed, and I was very thin. I was very glad to get out of bed, and I was very thin. I was very glad to get out of bed, and I was very thin

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Norwich men were taking active part in Washington affairs in 1872, suffered in one of the greatest fire week was filled with interesting happenings, some of which, taken from the Bulletin of that year, are reflected:

Monday, February 24, 1873—Traffic on practically all railroads north of this city has been delayed or stopped entirely due to the heavy fall of snow Saturday and Sunday. The storm was the worst in five years, and railroad men state that in towns further north the fall amounted to about 2 feet. The wind caused the snow to drift into the trenches and cause suspension of the trains. Delays of from 6 to 12 hours were common north of Norwich. Only the Norwich & Worcester seem trouble was entirely between Worcester and Webster. Snow packed into eastward cuts several feet deep and drifts were sometimes as high as a telegraph pole. On the Northern road the blockade was even more effectual. Nothing ran further north than Willimantic Saturday. A passenger was finally forced through and the afternoon train of Friday night arrived in this city Sunday night at 8.30 o'clock.

The steamer City of Norwich tried to make Central Wharf Saturday but boating had to the ice near the wharf. After working all day the boat was finally moved free of the ice and went down stream to await better travelling conditions.

The Rev. T. Walden of this city has received a call to the pulpit of St. Paul's Episcopal church in Boston. While not engaged Rev. Mr. Walden has been working on a book of prayer for Sunday schools.

A local man was held up last evening just above the railway shops in Greeneville. He managed to catch a glimpse of the highwayman off his guard, however, and knocked him down with a blow with his staff. There have been several holdups in that section of the city in recent weeks.

Tuesday, February 25.—A committee of citizens called on Admiral Lanman yesterday, with the request that he would permit them to provide for the Soldier's Memorial volume, a fine steel engraving of himself, to appear with other pictures of officers in Norwich. Admiral Lanman has been over forty years in the service of his country and is the ranking officer from all this town who held commissions during the war. The Hon. Henry Bill has taken the matter in charge and is to secure the engraving.

The hearts of oyster dealers and saloon keepers were gladdened yesterday when it was learned that a schooner loaded with oysters for this city had arrived at Bridgeport from Camden. Oysters are a favorite article in the city [illegible] which sank last Friday [illegible] Chesapeake what is still missing, the sudden onset of cold weather has made it impossible to do anything in the line of raising her.

Five to eight degrees below prevailed in this city yesterday and people called it the most disagreeable day of the winter.

Wednesday, February 26, 1873—The Arion Germania headed by one of John Steiner's bar keepers, held a joint [illegible] evening in Franklin Hall [illegible] was attended by a select party [illegible] one of the most enjoyable occasions.

A gas of 2 1-2 mills on the dollar has been ordered by the West Chelsea Water District.

According to Washington news, in the house yesterday (1870) the New London navy yard appropriation of $6000 was carried. Our delegation fought like tigers to make it $50,000, but lost it by only three votes. The re-nomination of Mr. Starkweather is received here with gratification, as he is a popular chairman of the local committee in the District of Columbia.

The talk of the town just at present is the proposed raises to go into effect in offices in Washington. The president is to get $50,000 instead of $25,000, the cabinet officers and justices of the supreme court $10,000, and the members of congress a lift of $5000 with mileage of $1500 with actual travelling expenses. The debate here is split, but many are out to see the act beaten even if some party sinks with it.

Thursday, February 27, 1873 A number of Knights of Pythias from Wauregan Lodge went to Jewett City Tuesday night to assist in the installation of a new lodge of the order to be known as Undaunted Lodge No. 24. The grand officers were present, and delegations also attended from Putnam, New London and Willimantic.

There is about an inch and half of snow on the benches in the harbor, the water being broken and the ice at the wharves about an inch thick. Men say that no such a lot is added to the length of a summers day.

There is considerable agitation on the part of the women of Canterbury to establish a public library in the city. They say that the men will start one, believing that the women working in the city would rather patronize a coffee house than be forced, as they now are, to adopt a plan for meeting where liquor is kept sold.

An ornamental roof is being laid on the new court house. It will be an ideal place to sit on during some of those hot summer nights.

Portable stoves for sleighs are now taking the place of the old fashioned hot brick.

Senator Buckingham is working hard on his bill to give all officers who served during the war the highest ranking they held while in the service, upon retirement.

Friday, February 28, 1873—Large numbers of ducks are seen daily in the river but they are not being bothered much as Norwich people generally do not relish sitting for several hours on a cold stone awaiting the arrival of the birds.

Mr. Darwin's theory on the descent of species has confirmatory evidence in Myrtle, for that place boasts of a dog that has a habit of drinking lager.

Several vessels for this port are detained at Comstock's wharf because of the ice that now blocks the entrance to the harbor.

During a religious revival in a nearby town, one man was asked by the evangelist if he was prepared to die. The man said that he preferred staying alive, as he never did take to strangers.

Rev. and Mrs. W. V. Morrison, of the Central M. E. church were pleasantly surprised last evening when nearly 100 friends called at various hours bringing with them baskets containing mysterious articles. A delightful banquet was served and the occupants of the baskets were delighted at the reception tendered them by their friends.

Saturday, March 1, 1873. Two barges loaded with coal for this city and New London, sunk last evening near Duck Island. They were two of a string of six barges loaded with coal. Both sunk within 50 feet of each other, evidently having struck a submerged ledge.

The water in the city reservoir is down three feet and this fact would cause considerable alarm were it not for the nearness of the spring thaw.

Preston which has done nothing of merit since 1815 has put a bid for recognition on the strength of a baby weighing 14 pounds in the original package.

The canvassers of Sedgwick Post, G. A. R. are evidently meeting a ready response of the people. With less than a week of taking the total must have gone over the $50 mark.

Mr. Hayden the Christ church tenor, sings with the Mendelssohn Quintette club in Boston, tonight, and with Lang the pianist next Tuesday.

Union Square is now the site of the best architecture in the city, the Court house, the Otis Library and the Broadway church fronting on it, with an endless vista of pig-pen and tenement houses stretching away from it.

been progressive, clubs have been formed, charity work adopted, and lines broadened in every way.

Our members are not confined to New London county, or even the state of Connecticut, but extend to the Pacific Coast, and only our good editor can tell the number of our members at this present time.

Many have passed on to their reward and have left lasting memories of beautiful characters which have been uplifting. They being dead, yet speaketh.".

I was pleased to see the poem, "Be Kind to Thy Father," in print a few weeks ago. We were taught to sing it in the little district school in 1872. I had never seen it in print since, but it came very fresh to my memory. We also sang the multiplication table, the chorus began 5 times 5 are 25, which was a very easy method of memorizing. I have been interested in the letters reminiscence of school days and as we glanced back to the memory string, and grace Hoop and the games of childhood we can realize how little it takes to make a child happy.

I agree with Dorothy in saying we have had a beautiful winter, some zero weather, but very little high wind, the snow so beautiful and clean every where, and we anticipate very little mud when it is gone. The youngsters and also grownups have enjoyed the coasting and their merry laugh has rang out night after night on the evening air.

Sister Ellen Jane wished a report on her cake recipe. It was fine, and has the genuine raised cake flavor.

My sympathy to all the sisters who have been called to part with loved ones.

STILL MANY OLD WRITERS TO BE HEARD FROM.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: My, what a lovely interesting page we have had these last two weeks! Guess some of the old writers are waking up but there are still a number that haven't writted for a long time.

Agatha: Guess you must belong to Club No. 1, while I belong to Club No. 2. Hope to see you at the anniversary meeting at the Buckingham, March 5th. What say you? I will certainly enquire for you. Hope you won't forget the book if you do come. Am going to try to make one of the cheese box tables soon. They sound real fine for use on the porch this summer.

Gracious: Perhaps we will some time.

Am not able to write more just now, as I have a bad case of nerves.

Hoping to be able to attend the anniversary meeting and that all will have a good time.

Yours for a better and best Corner.

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

HELPING ALONG THE GOOD WORK.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The good work seems to be going on. Another full page last week, and to show my appreciation I will add a few lines so soon again. I have broken my stay at home by calling on my cousin, "Sweet Williams." I enjoyed my visit very much, only the time was too short and flew too fast to suit me.

Calla Lily: I thank you. I do intend, if nothing happens, to be at the next gathering.

Biddy: I am sorry to hear you have been sick. I trust you are better now.

Old Fashioned Mother: How are you? Hope you will be at the next gathering.

Best wishes to all.

Miss A. McClure Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"I was troubled with pimples on my face. They were hard and red and scaled over, and itched and burned so that I could not sleep at night. When I scratched them they would bleed, and were very painful. My face was disfigured. The trouble lasted about two years. I tried different remedies without any benefit. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and now I am completely healed." (Signed) Miss Alice McClure, The Hunting Lodge, R. F. D. 3, Richland, Mo.

SOUTHERN COTTON MILLS THREATEN NEW ENGLAND

John W. Alling, one of New Haven's leading citizens and a business man whose observations always demand attention, sounds a sharp warning against a statutory limitation of 48 hours of work a week in New England cotton mills, in a letter from Columbia, S. C.

Mr. Alling, who has for years been president of The Security Insurance Co., and director in the Southern New England Telephone Co., the Merchants National bank, the United Illuminating company and the Connecticut Railway and Lighting company, is at present touring the south and in his inquiries into the milling situation in Dixie finds the cotton mills of such magnitude and prosperity that any lessening of activity in the New England mills would mean their eventual extinction.

For some time there has been considerable interest in the question whether the textile cotton mill industry which has been so highly developed in northeast Connecticut, Rhode Island, eastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire can long be maintained in view of the serious competition of southern cotton mills.

Only recently several big mills announced that they were considering changing their location from New England to the southland. Mr. Alling's letter which is extremely timely and particularly interesting, follows:

Organized labor seems determined to procure a statutory limitation of 48 hours work in a week in New England cotton mills.

There is considerable interest in the question whether the textile cotton mill industry, which has been so highly developed in northeast Connecticut, Rhode Island, eastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire, can long be maintained in view of the competition of southern cotton mills. This today is my experience in New [illegible] owned them for one or two generations.

As illustrating the strength of the southern competition, I send you a clipping from the Columbia, S. C. State of January 28, 1923. This clipping shows the quotations of southern cotton mill stocks furnished by A. M. Law & Co., of Spartanburg, S. C. There are some 92 of them. That does not mean 92 mills, because some of the quotations are for preferred stock—19 number.

You will note the remarkably high market values of these stocks, showing that the mills are in a prosperous condition.

Of this list of 92, 9 the prices range from 40, the lowest, to 625, the highest. Fourteen are at 200 or better and 24 are at 150 or better.

This list concerns only stocks bought and sold in the south, east of the Mississippi river, representing mills owned by southern capital. I note some prominent southern mills, reputed to be owned and managed by northern interests, whose stocks are not quoted in this list.

I do not suppose there is anything novel in the conditions shown by this clipping. My attention has, however, been attracted more particularly by some facts pertaining to the Winnsboro Mills. These mills are located about 35 miles north of Columbia, and are operated under the management of Lockwood, Greene & Co., whose literature, well known in these regions, discloses that they are the operating engineers of several cotton mills in the south and perhaps elsewhere, the market quotations of whose stocks do not appear in this list.

Running Double 10-Hour Shifts.

I have just had occasion to learn that Winnsboro Mills employ 900 operatives and are running day and night, with two shifts of 10 hours each, shutting down Saturdays at noon.

The mills are now and up to date in every particular. The [illegible] up-to-date school house, two churches, hospital ward, etc.

There is a story to the effect that one of the workers gave as his reason for leaving, that everything about the mill was "too damned efficient"—that he wanted more freedom and less subordination to shop rules.

The workers in these mills, at in all southern mills, are from native stock, having as the ratios of origin the mountainous districts of the south where the fashion has been to raise large families, and where there is no Madam Sanger to teach birth control. There is very little of the foreign element among these workers. It will be very difficult to unionize them.

So far as the Winnsboro Mills are concerned, they got their raw long staple cotton from Oklahoma. They manufacture the coarse, working [illegible] by the United States Rubber Co. in making auto tires.

These mills have no advantage over New England mills of being located near their raw materials, nor in having a nearby place for the disposition of their manufactured product. It goes without saying that no New England cotton mill, under present conditions, can compete with the southern cotton mill on any such basis as revealed in the Winnsboro Mills.

The two shifts of 10 hours each show 105 hours of work per week for the mills and 55 hours per week for the worker. My interpretation is that these mills are not experimental. They represent a situation dangerous to the supremacy of the New England cotton mills, operating under their present conditions. The Winnsboro Mills are under a Boston management.

The Columbia newspapers are stating that northern textile owners (giving names), are changing their location from New England to the south.

It seems to me strange that the legislatures of any of the New England states I have mentioned, could for a moment entertain the proposition of establishing a 48-hour week for their cotton mills.

"AND THE WOMAN."

The Lord God painted the sunset and hung it against the sky,
The Lord God tore up the grass-ribbed marsh, and hung them mountain high.

And I have rumbled the grass with a lark to curl in his window pane,
And I have blended the breeze with bird-smell against the rain.

The Lord God measured the great green sea, and counted its heart in hours,
He sent His fevered fire from Heaven to bring Him a chant of the flowers;

And I have made a rainbow thing for a quill on the worn old bed,
Alas! I have driven a happy thing where nettle weeds are said.

God made the world with lightnings played below, the purple dome;
And under a low roof I have made the Miracle of Home!

—Mary Carmack McDougal, in New York Herald.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

A parish church was being beautified with a stained-glass window. The old sexton was watching the work. The rector, seeing him thus intently, remarked:

"Well, John, and what is your opinion of the window?"

"Weel," was the reply, "in ma opeenion they micht hae been content wi' the glass as God made it."—Los Angeles Times.

We note that a Chicago man murdered his wife because she was too extravagant.

We hold this is going altogether too far. Not for a minute would we indorse or countenance or approve such drastic methods, but we see no objection in every married man reading the item aloud to his wife as a warning.—Detroit Free Press.

Mrs. Crabbmore—Why are you home so late.

Mr. Crabbmore—I played a hand of poker at the club, dearest.

Mrs. C.—A hand! You've been gone more than six hours.

C.—Well, dear, it took me that long to get a hand—American Legion.

"Why are you inviting so many people for Christmas, old chap?"

"It's this new 'animal heat' idea, you figure, if we get the house full enough, we'll be warm once this winter!"—Exchange.

"Oh, goodness!" cried Miss Sweetie, turning to gaze, despairingly at the polling booth she had just left. "I just know my vote is going to be thrown out."

"What makes you think that?" asked her friend.

"Why, I voted for George for road supervisor, and forgot and put a whole string of X's after his name."—American Legion Weekly.

An attractive line of experiments is carried out by floating bicycle balls in mercury and bringing a strong magnet near them. They arrange themselves symmetrically under the influence of the stresses and assume very curious positions, varying with their number and the intensity of magnetism. It is a variation of an old experiment known as Mayer's needles, in which needles are floated in water by bits of cork and are subjected at the same time to the influence of a magnet.—Washington Star.

An instrument, by the use of which the effect power of lenses may be ascertained, has been designed so that, although it will give accurate results, it is comparatively low-priced. The mechanism, described in Popular Mechanics Magazine, consists of an upright, bracketed support carrying at one end a sliding telescope lens system and a seat for the lens to be examined. Projecting from the other end of the bracket is a triangular bar marked with a dioptric scale, upon which is mounted a sliding carrier, fitted with an illuminated target and a rotating scale dial. The target is mounted inside a rotating dial, which is graduated so that the focus of the lens being examined may be easily read.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Friday's Stock Market

New York, March 2.—Today's stock market displayed remarkable absorptive power, industrial averages again towering to the highest level since the spring of 1920 despite large and unprecedented profit taking. Pool operations continued to furnish the impetus for the movement but there were indications of an enlarged public demand, attracted by the rising tendency of commodity prices, rumors of extra and increased dividends and the higher earnings reported by companies in virtually all branches of trade and industry.

Interest of the financial community also was centered on the cotton market, spot cotton reaching $0.75 cents a pound and the old crop months getting above 30.50 cents, all at new high prices since 1920.

Revival of interest in the steel shares featured the stock market, Bethlehem B leading that group by touching 79 7-8, for a net gain of more than 3 points. U. S. Steel common, which sold ex-dividend this week, also was heavily bought, duplicating the year's high of 104 3-4 and closing slightly below that figure for a net gain of 1 1-8 points. Gains of 1 to 2 1-8 points

In preparation for the speaking contest to be held at the Riverside grammar school the various rooms are trying out several speakers. Friday afternoon, Miss Alice Brown's room offered six speakers, three of whom were to be selected. Miss Sarah Burrall, Miss Ida Foster and Mrs. E. H. Hilson were asked to be the judges. The upper grades met in Assembly hall where a programme was given. There were two songs by the children, Butterfly and Faith to Win. The girls sang Bird of the Azure Wing. Fred Lefevre played two violin solos. The boys of the seventh grade performed a wand exercise and the same grade gave an exhibition of hurdling. The speakers were Emily Mis who recited, Will and Won't; Mary Tencsar, In the Midst of Them; Delina Lafavre, One, Two, Three; Loretta Alley, The First Party; Annie Williams, Independence Bell, and Arleen Stammand, The Courtin'. The judges decided that Loretta Alley stood first; Annie Williams, second, and Delina Lafavre received honorable mention. The heavy fall of rain of the past few days caused a freshet in the Quinebaug river which overflowed its banks in the meadows between the Jewett City bridge and the Preston line. Each day many local residents journey to Norwich to consult Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue George H. Charbonneau, regarding their tax returns. Many as usual, delay until the time limit expires. In the past the government has discovered all negligant tax payers in this locality, and they were called upon to pay a fine in addition to the tax due.

TRAINING CRUISE FOR NAVAL RESERVE TRAINING

The dates for the 16-day training cruise for members of the U. S. Naval Reserve Force have been set by the commandant of the Third Naval District which includes Connecticut and New York. The first cruise will be July 14th to 29th inclusive, second cruise August 4th to 19th inclusive and if necessary there will be a third cruise from August 25th to September 9th inclusive. This is good news to the members for it is voluntary duty and means full pay with no expense of any kind for those who go. It is a cruise well worth while, offering an excellent diversion and vacation. The cruise last year took in the following ports where the men were given plenty of shore liberty: Block Island, Newport, R. I., Vineyard Haven, Mass., Woods Hole, Mass., Nantucket, Mass., New London, Conn., and Greenport, L. I. The year previous the cruise extended to the northeastern part of Maine.

The commandant of the district has also again authorized new enrollments to be made until further notice, stating that all those who enroll before a certain date can take the cruise. If there is a total of 50 members or more in the New London and Norwich division by June 1st, it is expected that the combined units will be able to make the cruise together and thus have a ship manned entirely by local men. This is worth working for, as it means a harmonious organization instead of a crew made up from many small units that has not worked together before. Eagle boats are available for the cruises, these vessels offering very comfortable quarters for 60 men. They are oil burning type 200 feet in length, mounting three 4-inch guns and equipped in time of war with Y-guns and depth bombs. They are also fully equipped wireless telephone sets of the highest standards. Incidentally this affords excellent radio concerts and entertainments during the trip.

Arrangements are being made with the paymaster at the submarine base whereby the local men who have recently enrolled can get their full uniform allowance. All men are entitled to draw free of charge a complete uniform and outfit necessary for a 1-year enrollment.

Those desiring further particulars about the Naval Reserve Force may obtain same by addressing E. S. Hunter, 701 Ocean avenue, New London, Conn., or C. M. Bailey, Yantic, tel. 31-3.

BAKERY TRUCK UPSET AT FOOT OF QUAKER HILL

The Ford delivery truck of the American-European Bakery company of New London was badly smashed Friday morning at 10.30 o'clock when it overturned at Quaker Hill. The driver of the truck had stopped at the store of Louis Ginsburg at the foot of the hill where he delivered some pastry and then started up the hill. When more than half way up, the rear end of the truck suddenly gave out. The driver losing control could simply hold the wheel straight in hopes of reaching the foot of the hill in safety. Near the foot of the grade the wheels suddenly crooked sharply overturning the truck. The driver was caught in the cab of the truck but managed to get out through a window, receiving only a slight cut on the arm.

The truck sustained a broken wheel, broken windshield, and damaged fenders and body. Doughnuts, cake, bread and cream puffs were scattered about the road and the youngsters who came along enjoyed a feast on the contents that had broken loose from their prison.

The car was removed later in the day and taken to a garage for repairs.

FOR SUPERIOR COURT ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

Joseph Ostrepkevitch of Hartford was given a hearing here Thursday in the police court before Judge H. H. Petis on an embezzlement charge. Probable cause was found and he was bound over to the superior court, giving bonds for his appearance.

Ostrepkevitch, who has been in partnership with a Norwich man named Chaminski, is accused of embezzlement of $700, alleged to have been given him by John Bigosh of Thamesville for transmission to the latter's children in Poland. Bigosh has formerly paid the firm over $400 for tickets on which his children were to come to this country. The tickets were received but not the $300. According to Bigosh he paid the $300 to Chaminski who says he gave it to Ostrepkevitch. A receipt for the money was shown, signed by Chaminski. The Hartford partner says he remembers nothing about receiving the money from Chaminski.

Attorney Josiah Greenstein was counsel for the accused man.

ECHOES FROM THE LOCAL ROOMS

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

Sebequanash council No. 11, met at 58 Broadway on Wednesday evening with a good attendance. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by sister Maria L. Sutton ably assisted by Pocahontas sister Della Bailey. Plans were formulated for many pleasant social affairs during the next few months. Those who are fortunate enough to receive a copy of news from headquarters find it a bright snappy little paper, showing what other degrees and tribes are doing in different reservations throughout the state of Connecticut, also other states.

FORESTERS.

The regular meeting of Court City of Norwich, No. 9, was held Tuesday evening with Chief Ranger Henry A. Congdon in the chair. The degree team worked the degree on a class of six candidates. The work was carried on in a high degree order which reflects credit on the efforts which the men have made to make a first class team possible in this part of the state. There are in waiting at the present time about 15 candidates, and this number will be increased with the nine applications which were read at the meeting. The next degree will be put on at the last meeting in March. Among the matters which are interesting the members of the local court is the meeting of March 13, which will be known as Past Chief Rangers Night, at which all the old time officers will conduct the business of the evening. The court will be visited on that occasion by both supreme and grand court officers. The amusement committee is arranging for a smoker to follow the meeting, and a large gathering is expected as the last time was pronounced an almost unbeatable affair.

On Saturday, Feb. 17, the quarterly meeting of the grand court of Connecticut was held in the Hotel Garde, in New Haven. The different reports showed that all over the state the members are alive and the membership of the order is increasing. The convention committee reported that practically all arrangements are completed for the convention to be held in Torrington, in the early part of May. They announced that all of the courts are to elect their delegates during the month of March. A communication was read from the Grand Court of New Jersey inviting the officers of the Grand Court of Connecticut to attend their quarterly meeting on February 24. It was accepted and six of the officers made a trip to Jersey City. Besides the members of both grand courts there were present several of the supreme officers as well as the greater number of the deputies. In an effort to put the membership drive over the top the New Jersey foresters are going to make every effort possible, from now on until the first of June, to win the trophies that are being offered in the contest between Massachusetts, New Jersey and Connecticut, and have the grand court officers of both of these states go the New Jersey and present them. The Connecticut delegation, on starting for home, voted the New Jersey Foresters "royal good fellows." Grand Junior Beadle Henry A. Congdon of this city attended both of these meetings, and was successful in securing seating for the grand court officers at speakers' table Past Chief Rangers night.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

Success has met the efforts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in bringing about the amendment in the army appropriation bill, which has for its purpose the amending of section 20 of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation act of 1924, so that retired enlisted men of the army, navy, marine corps and coast guard may be permitted to hold an office under civil service appointment of $2,500 or more per annum. The veterans of foreign wars is the only organization that had been interested in taking care of these retired enlisted men, and the bill was originally introduced in the house of representatives by congressman Kearns and known as HR 13434, while a concurrent bill was introduced in the senate by senator Wadsworth known as S 4315.

This provision will ease the minds of men who have served their country in time of need during wars and completed their enlistment of thirty years service and who are still serving the government.

The provision will also be made retroactive so as to prevent any reduction in back salary accrued.

The District of Columbia department of the veterans of Foreign Wars are out in full accord to combat the red propaganda existing in all parts of the country and are beginning to concentrate their efforts in Washington.

The overseas man appreciate that in recent years there has been manifestations of a sinister and malicious influence and propaganda which seems to be fostered and encouraged by thousands of dollars being spirited into this country from soviet Russia to keep their agents busy in spreading this propaganda with the sole purpose of undermining the government of the United States and the ideals for which this nation has always stood. Every member in the six posts in the district has pledged his support to the department commander, Brigadier-General Anton Stephan, to form themselves into one large committee for the purpose of combatting the malignant influence and activities and to report to the department head any activities of radicals, communists, anarchists or reds that come to their attention. A number of these cases have been disposed of through the efforts of the V. F. W. by the United States department of justice.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars in the Nation's capital intend to carry on their slogan of "one flag, one country, one language."

STANDARD OIL [illegible] VIOLATING [illegible]

Senate Committee Reports the Companies Are Violating the 1911 Dissolution Decree of the Supreme Court, Exercising Control of the Oil in Such a Manner as to "Fix Prices"—Finds That the Oil Industry as Well as the Public Are Completely at the Mercy of the Standard Oil Interests—Committee Makes Eight Recommendations to Cure the Evils Found During Three Months' Inquiry.

Washington, March 4.—Complete control and domination of the oil industry by the Standard companies in violation of the 1911 dissolution decree of the supreme court was charged by the La Follette oil investigating committee in its report presented to the senate after a three months' inquiry into conditions and prices in the oil business.

The standard companies were declared in the report to exercise this control in such a manner as to fix "the price which the producer of crude oil receives at the well, the price which the refiner receives for his gasoline and kerosene as well as the retail price paid by the consumer."

The report declared the committee through its inquiry had found that this control was exercised "through methods 'more subtle,' than those used by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey and its subsidiaries prior to the dissolution decree and with the result that 'in some respects the industry as a whole as well has the public, are more completely at the mercy of the Standard Oil interests,' than before the supreme court forced the splitting up the New Jersey company.

The methods of control, as set forth in the report include division of marketing territory between the various standard companies on almost the same basis as before the dissolution, ownership of the principal pipe lines, interlocking stock ownership fixing the prices in the producing fields, excessive and discriminatory freight rates, and ownership of the basic patents for cracking, or gasoline manufacturing processes.

"If the great oil companies are permitted to manipulate prices for the next few years as they have been doing since 1916," the report asserted, "the evils with the evils in the future will be even by the committee, "the people of this country must be prepared, before long to pay at least one dollar a gallon for gasoline."

Eight recommendations to cure the evils found were embodied in the report. These recommendations were set forth as follows:

Establishment of a uniform system of bookkeeping by all oil companies doing an interstate business, which will show at any time in detail the costs and profits of the business so that the reasonableness of the prices charged for any petroleum product can be ascertained on a cost basis.

Inauguration of a compulsory system of reports to a government bureau monthly showing the operations of each oil company engaged in interstate commerce, and particularly to quantities of crude oil and its products in storage and transportation, so as to show the exact condition of the industry.

The making of pipe lines, "real common carriers," through divorcement of their ownership from the oil transported and compulsion of impartial service, and the establishment of delivery stations wherever a reasonable demand exists.

Revision of freight rates on petroleum products "as will permit mid-continent refineries to once more find a market for their products through Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and the New England states."

Prohibition or regulation of the exportation of Petroleum and its products for which there is pressing demand in the United States.

Institution of grand jury proceedings under federal or state laws wherever price manipulation is attempted.

Investigation of any "implied" or expressed agreement or contract to fix prices arbitrarily or to restrain trade and if facts warrant, citation of parties to the agreement for contempt of the supreme court dissolution decree.

Inquiry by the department of justice into all claims for basic patents on pressure still processes used in the production of gasoline.

The report declared further, "the suggestions here made certain remedies, does not imply that other and more drastic ones may not later be found necessary."

The investigation was in charge of a sub-committee of the senate manufactures committee, headed by Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, and comprised of Senator McNary, Oregon, and Brookhart, Iowa, republicans, and Smith, South Carolina, and Jones, New Mexico, democrats. Most of the testimony, however, was received at committee sessions attended only by Senators La Follette and Brookhart, and the committee attorney, Gilbert E. Roe, of New York, a former law partner of Senator La Follette.

PRESIDENT SIGNED THE ALIEN PROPERTY BILL

Washington, March 4.—Coincident with the signing by President Harding of the administration bill for the return of all alien property trusts of $10,000 and under, alien property custodian, Thomas W. Miller, issued a statement today explaining how under the terms American claims against Germany will be projected.

As finally enacted, the bill releases from the custody of Colonel Miller, 93 per cent. of the individual properties seized during the war.

SAYS REPORT IS UNFAIR TO THE OIL INDUSTRY

Washington, March 4.—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, said in a statement issued tonight that in his opinion the report of the La Follette oil investigating committee was unfair to his company and to the oil industry generally.

The Standard of Indiana, Mr. Stewart declared, not only exercises no monopoly, but has no understanding or arrangements of any character with any of the other Standard interests. He also asserted that the investigation had been so [illegible] to injure the [illegible] company in the eyes of the public.

MILITARY AVIATOR KILLED IN BROOKLYN

New York, March 4.—Lieutenant Stanley Smith, army air service, was killed, and Major Follet Bradley probably was fatally injured when a crippled giant bomber in which they had just left Mitchel field for Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill., was forced down in Brooklyn today.

Four student mechanics, private, who also were in the biplane, escaped with only slight injuries, owing to the pilotal manoeuvres in which Major Bradley piloted the big bomber to earth from a height of 5,000 feet.

The two officers, both of whom were stationed at Chanut field were pinned under a wing of the machine, which, brought to earth on its wheels, overturned when it struck a hillock. Lieutenant Smith, suffering internal injuries, a fractured skull and several broken bones, died in a hospital several hours later. Major Bradley was reported to be in a serious condition tonight.

Were returning today with four other student mechanics to be placed in the school when, as their plane approached Brooklyn, one of its two 450 horsepower engines stalled and one of the propellers blogged.

The controlling rod was broken.

Major Bradley headed the plane for a marshy stretch and by skilful maneuvering brought it down from a height of 5,000 feet to an apparently safe landing. But one wing crashed into a hillock and the big bomber bounced into the air and overturned, burying the officers beneath. The mechanics were thrown clear of the plane when it first struck the ground.

Mme. Walska and the Harvester magnate's first wife, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, shared society honors tonight at the opera, Mme. Seizure of Liquor at Grove [illegible]

Chester, Conn., March 4.—Liquor believed to have been landed from a schooner at Grove Beach near here, was seized today by state police while en route to New Haven in a motor truck. Three men on the truck were arrested while a fourth said later he escaped. The seized liquor consisted of 300 cases of whiskey valued at $12,000.

The men arrested on the truck were Fred Schwartz, the driver, Harry Zeltzman and James Lynch, all of whom gave New Haven addresses. Schwartz was released in $500 bond while the other two were discharged. He will be given a hearing here tomorrow. The men said they had been transporting liquor under orders. They told police that they had landed it at a barn at Grove Beach.

The state police later obtained a search warrant and raided the home of Harold Burton of Grove Beach where, they declared, they found four cases of whiskey of the same brand found in the truck. Burton was arrested and will be given a hearing in Westbrook tomorrow.

The police declared that they watched the movements of a schooner off here yesterday in the belief that it was a rum-runner. Today it had disappeared.

BIG REFINERIES CAUSED SUGAR PRICES TO SOAR

Washington March 4.—Proponents of the resolution for a senate investigation of recent increases in the price of sugar maintained their efforts to obtain action until the last minute of the session today.

The last word of debate taken by the senate reporter was an assertion of Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina, that there was "still time to show the country the reason for their latest increase in the cost of living."

Chairman Calder was ready with a favorite report from the committee on audit and control, but found no opponent for presenting it before the final bang of the gavel.

Much of today's two hour session was consumed by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, in reading an extended analysis of the sugar situation from the viewpoint of the American producer. The "big refiners" and not the tariff were responsible for recent price movements, according to Mr. Smoot. Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, called attention to that the increase was substantially in the same amount as the tariff on sugar, adding that "every necessity on which a tariff was placed had shown like increase in cost to the consumer."

Unanimous consent to receive the report on the Muscle Shoals bid locked by Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, who declared Secretary Hoover had sufficient funds to carry out an investigation and was understood to have decided upon such an inquiry. Senator Curtis insisted on the "regular order."

Cologne, March 4.—(By The A. P.)—General Degoutte, the French commander, has notified the reichsbank that he will not return any portion of the 12,000,000,000 marks recently seized by the French at Cologne. VERA CRUZ THREATENED BY A WATER FAMINE

Mexico City, March 4.—The government's recent order requiring the nationalization of all tank steamers or other vessels transporting petroleum, has caused a serious situation for Vera Cruz, the city now being threatened with a water famine because of a shortage in the fuel supply for the water pumping stations.

Vera Cruz advices received here say the Aguila and Pierce Oil companies have withdrawn numerous tankers from their services and that a general feel and transportation stoppage is imminent. It is understood the government has modified its order, granting the companies ninety days in which to comply with it.

OPPOSED TO THEOLOGICAL VIEWS OF REV. FOSDICK

New York, March 4.—Declaring that the theological views of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, are at variance with "doctrinal statements of the Westminster Confession of faith," the Presbyten-New York Presbyterian church today requested the presbytery of New York to take steps in administering the obligations to Dr. Fosdick "to terminate his contract with his church."

The action followed a recent sermon by Dr. Fosdick, "shall the Fundamentalists win?" in which he is said to have theological views that did not correspond with church [illegible]

[illegible] Chinese Are Arming Themselves in Fear of Further Robberies and Violence.

Reno, March 4.—(By The A. P.)—Reno experienced the wildest night since the beginning of the occupation and in the early Sunday morning hours food stores were looted and others broken into by armed mobs, said to be composed of the unemployed.

One of the largest cabarets, the Trocadero, was held up last night while the entertainment was at its height, and several hundred patrons were robbed of all their cash. This robbery was carried out by fifteen or twenty men, whom the Germans declared were communists who had taken advantage of the opportunity afforded by the expulsion of the security police, which force has not yet been adequately replaced by municipal police.

The city is virtually without police protection at the present time, and many of the citizens, in fear of further robberies or violence by bands in the streets, are arming themselves as best they can for their own protection.

Early this morning a German workman was shot and killed by a French sentry, and another German was wounded while in the railroad yards near the main passenger station in the center of the city. The French assert that the sentry ordered the German to halt and when they did not reply he shot to kill, in compliance with his orders. They charge the Germans with attempting sabotage, but the German authorities maintain that the men did not realize they were encroaching on ground under military control. This station was occupied by the French yesterday, and all the rolling stock in the Essen yards was confiscated.

Marks to the amount of one billion, from the Berlin reichsbank which were being transported to banks in Duisburg were seized yesterday by the Belgians. This money will be applied to payment of the cost of the Rhineland army of occupation on which account Germany is in arrears.

WORLD WOOL PRODUCTION FELL OFF TRIFLE IN 1922

Washington, March 4.—World wool production, still a little under the depression left by the after-the-war surplus in stocks and by decreased European consuming power, fell off a trifle during 1922 from the levels it attained in 1921, according to estimates made public today by the commerce department, and is still further behind the average production of pre-war years, in its total.

The department's summary indicates an actual wool production of 3,270,725,000 pounds for 1922, as compared with 3,354,188,000 pounds in 1921, and an average of 3,545,666,000 pounds in the pre-war years between 1909 and 1913.

The figures for several of the principal wool producing countries, the department explained, are tentative, owing to lack of official reports. In Argentina where the 1922 production estimated by the department was 231,453,000 pounds, it was explained that floods and drouth had left the exact situation obscure. Only one or two countries showed increased production in '22, British South Africa, one of them, having an estimated output of 187,000,000 pounds compared with 157,761,000 pounds in the pre-war years and 191,700,000 pounds in 1921.

The production in this country in 1922 was 361,935,000 pounds, against pounds annual average in pre-war 278,064,000 in 1921, and 314,110,000 years.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF FINANCIAL MARKETS

New York, March 4.—Chief interest of the financial community this week was divided between the sharp upturn in the prices of industrial stocks, carrying the averages to the highest level since the spring of 1920, and sales of spot and old crop cotton above 30 and 1-2 cents a pound, also the highest prices recorded in three years. Bond prices and foreign exchange rates showed only nominal fluctuations.

While the impetus for the advance in stock prices was furnished by operations of pool and professional traders, it was founded on the rising tendency of commodity prices, the market already having witnessed 17 cent copper, 5 1-2 cent raw and 6 cent refined sugar, and substantially higher prices for zinc, lead, steel and iron products, textiles and a large number of other commodities.

Further indications of trade and business improvement also are furnished by a continuation of record car loadings, a large increase in bank clearings, operations of steel mills at 90 per cent. of capacity, resumption of dividends by the Anaconda Copper Company, doubling of the Utah Copper dividend and a marked decrease in business failures, which amounted to approximately 25 per cent. in the first two months of the year below the corresponding months last year.

LAW TO LIBERALIZE THE VETERANS' BUREAU ACT

Washington, March 4.—President Harding today signed the sweeping bill for the liberalization of the Veterans' Bureau Act.

Later a statement was issued by Captain C. H. Cook national commander of the disabled veterans protested against the "emasculated" form in which the measure was finally enacted.

"In extending the period of assumption to tracibility to service in tubercular and mental cases from two to three years" the statement said, "Congress brought many an unfortunate veteran within the benefits of the hospitalization and compensation laws. But the sweet bill, bereft of the protests of the disabled American veterans, was so emasculated that it was really worse emasculated that it was really

1,200 BALES OF COTTON AFLOAT IN NORTH RIVER

New York, March 4.—Thirteen hundred bales of cotton, bobbing like huge floating corks, went floating seaward today when a heavily laden barge sank in the North river.

Small boats sent out to salvage the cargo had retrieved 400 bales by nightfall. The work was continued after darkness, harbor police joining in the operations.

Some of the cotton had floated as far as the Statue of Liberty. The cargo was being taken, when the barge sank, to a [illegible]

[illegible] 67TH CONGRESS SINE DIE AT NOON SUNDAY

Had Been in Session a Greater Portion of Its Existence Than Any Other Congress in the History of the Country—"Better Butter" Measure Was the Last Bill to Become Law—President Harding Signed the Farm Credits Bill and 98 Other Measures—Senate Failed to Confirm the Nomination of James G. McNary to be Comptroller of the Currency.

Washington, March 4. The sixty-seventh congress, which had spent a greater portion of its two-year span of life in actual session than any other in the history of the country adjourned at noon today.

During the last few hours of the session President Harding, spending part of the time at the capitol, signed the farm credits bill and 98 other measures.

No legislation was vetoed.

Vice-President Colidge's gavel fell sharply at noon, after an almost colorless morning senate session of two hours, and the house adjourned at 12.00 p. m. After a concert by a section of the marine band and a chorus of popular songs by members and spectators.

Tonight the get-away of departing members, many of whom today answered their last roll call, was in full swing with prospective suspension at the capitol until next December brings in the 68th congress. Crowds witnessed the closing scenes, the adjournment and presence of president Harding, cabinet officers, diplomats and other high officials bringing out hundreds who packed the senate and house galleries.

The president reached the capitol at 11:25 o'clock and was kept busy signing the final avalanche of bills. Before going to the capitol, he signed the farm credits and 49 other bills turned out during the early morning sessions today. In the presidential suite of the senate chamber before the noon limit expired, 65 more bills received executive approval.

The last bill to become law was the "better butter," measure, changing butter fat standards. The important measure placed on the statute books at the last moment was the one providing for return of enemy alien owners of all seized property worth $10,000 or less.

Little was accomplished by either senate or house in the last two-hour sessions this morning. Members were hollow-eyed and worn from the long night session which lasted in the house until 5.25 a. m. and in the senate until after 1:30 a. m.

Reassembling at 10 o'clock, the senate heard "swan songs," by Senators Frelinghuysen, republican, New Jersey, and Sutherland, republican, West Virginia, a tribute to senator Williams, democrat, Mississippi, by his colleague senator Harrison, of Mississippi and tried vainly to pass a few more bills. A 15-minute filibuster by Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina, shortened the proceedings before the vice-president's gavel fell in the midst of the senator's speech against an omnibus pension bill pressed by Senator Bursum, republican, New Mexico.

The final hours in the house were more colorful. The marine orchestra, playing in the "well" vied for favor with a hastily organized quartet, of members whose rendition of old favorites soon drew into a mighty chorus, the entire house and most of the spectators who overflowed the galleries onto the floor.

The quartet and orchestra soon established a working agreement, with representative Winnifred Mason Huck of Illinois, joining the musicians as a violinist, playing a borrowed instrument.

Representative-elect Perry A. Democrat who is to succeed C. Bascom Slemp, from the ninth Virginia district was introduced in the role of soloist by Representative Snyder, republican, New York. He sang "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," and waved the crowd into the chorus.

Representative Clarke, of New York, was the choir master but was displaced temporarily by Representative Barkley, of Kentucky, who led the singers into "My Old Kentucky Home."

"Dixie," had its usual place on the marine orchestra program and as its stirring strains filled the chamber, cheers went up from floor and galleries with the piercing "Rebel Yell" rising above the din. The southern cohorts were led by Representative Ward of North Carolina, from a hastily selected place on the top of a table in the center of the democratic side.

Farewell eulogies occupied much of the time of the hour and a half the house was in session. Representatives Fordney, of Michigan, Campbell, of Kansas, Kitchin, of North Carolina, Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Huck all were given ovations, but "Uncle Joe" Cannon received the greatest tribute."

Before the close of the session the democrat were placed in charge of the house while a resolution was adopted by unanimous vote, thanking Speaker Gillett for the "able, impartial and dignified manner," in which he had presided for the past two years.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR MYSTERIOUS "GUNWOMAN"

New York, March 4.—Investigation into the murder of Frederick Schneider, took a new turn today when police began a search for a mysterious "gunwoman" whom they believe may have been hired by jealous business rivals to kill the Bronx contractor.

While not abandoning the theory that Schneider had been slain through jealousy, the new angle to the murder mystery gained ground with detectives when it was learned that the contractor had planned a $1,000,000 loan with which to build a number of apartments on property he owner in the Bronx. His great success in putting over large real estate projects angered certain rivals who conspired to "get him," police believe and a woman was selected for the job.

Meanwhile, the alibi of Mrs. Anna Buzzi, with whom Schneider lived for seven years, gained further force. Her attorneys plan to demand a reduction in her bail tomorrow. If refused, they will apply again for a habeas corpus writ to obtain her freedom, it was said.

Police, with District Attorney Glennon of the Bronx, today visited the scene of the murder and spent nearly an hour going over the ground. They declined, however, to comment on what clues they had developed from their visit.

MORE THAN 500 MOTORISTS ARRESTED IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, March 4.—More than five hundred arrests had been made by the police tonight in the campaign started yesterday to rid the city of reckless and speeding motorists. The campaign was started as a result of the accident early Friday in which three persons were struck and killed by an automobile alleged to have been driven by Henry G. 88 FIREMEN OVERCOME BY SMOKE IN NEW YORK

New York, March 4.—Fifty firemen were overcome by smoke and several injured tonight while fighting a fire that wrecked a three-story building at Broadway and Fourteenth street. One fireman is in the hospital in a critical condition.

Five hundred persons were attending a motion picture show on the second floor when the blaze was discovered in the basement. Lights turned on, and while an organist played jazzy tunes, the manager requested the audience to leave. No panic ensued when they were told of the fire.

Dozens of people in an adjoining cafeteria fled to the street when smoke filled the room but the fire was confined to the building. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

MAN WAS SHOT DURING RIOT IN LAWRENCE, MASS.

Lawrence, Mass., March 4.—A riot during which one man was shot, broke out at a meeting here tonight to raise funds to carry on the legal battle of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted at Dedham of first degree murder on July 14, 1921, for the killing of a paymaster and a guard in South Braintree in April, 1920.

Sabastiano Tortara, of this city, who was struck in the back by a bullet when a number of shots were fired, and many of the two hundred persons present engaged in a free-for-all fight. Tortara's wound was not regarded as serious. The trouble started after a number of persons voiced protest at an alleged attack on the government in a speech by Antonio Presi, of New York.

No arrests were made. Police who were summoned to the hall said they found a quantity of radical literature, which they confiscated. Information will be laid before the federal authorities, in view of utterances ascribed to Presi, the police said.

TORNADO DAMAGED TOBACCO CROP $200,000

St. Joseph Mo., March 4.—Injury to 10 persons and property damage of about $200,000 resulted from yesterday's tornado here according to a check made tonight. Few of the injured were seriously hurt. Buildings were torn and twisted, telephone poles broken and trees uprooted in a district occupied by hundreds of people. Tonight most of the streets had been cleared of debris and telephone service was normal.

The storm originated in Kansas across the river below the St. Joseph and Grand Island bridge. It swept across the bridge east by northeast, cutting a path across Sixth street, just north of the Union station, to tenth and Olive streets. From there it went directly east to Fifteenth and Olive streets. Then it veered again northeastward, striking at Eighteenth and Messanie streets and sweeping directly northeast to Twenty-second and Charles street.

BOSTON TAXI DRIVER REWARDED FOR HONESTY

Boston, March 4.—Dashing through the South Station, William J. Brothers, a taxi driver, sought out Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weston, of Greenville, N. Y., today and breathlessly handed over a wallet containing $5,005 in cash and securities worth several thousand dollars which Weston had dropped in the taxicab on his way to the station. A gift of $100 from Weston and an enthusiastic kiss from Mrs. Weston were his rewards.

"I want to commend a mighty honest taxi driver," said Weston, who called up police headquarters to tell of the episode.

Some of the men whose names appeared on the list complained that the city never plough and threw the snow back to the gutters during the winter so that before the sewer drains were free to melt. Not high. This caused the gutters to freeze and when the thaw came the sidewalks were flooded with water.

Among the disgruntled residents of this city, who had previously cleared off their sidewalks, but who were doing their bit Saturday by opening up the frozen gutters, were Judge George H. Hinman of the superior court, Judge Frank H. Kerr, Judge O. T. Robinson and Rev. John Pearce of the Methodist church.

The board of selectmen, Russell A. Armstrong, Frank M. THE H. C.

[illegible] New Haven died at the Mansfield [illegible] Saturday morning and hospital Saturday morning. The body was taken in charge by Gillman Brothers and Sherwood Thursday night sent to the late home in New Haven.

At a meeting of the Willimantic Mercantile Branch of the Business Men's association held at the chambers of commerce room it was voted to close the stores of the city on the afternoon of Good Friday. Favorable comment was passed in regard to the adoption of the daylight saving plan in Hartford, providing that the plan conforms with that of neighboring cities.

Twenty-eight members of Hebron & Gilead lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Lebanon met Saturday afternoon at the Oyster House of Elias Burgess on Thread Mill square, Lake. The party motored to Norwich where they attended a theatre performance. They were headed by Town Clerk Karl F. Bishop.

Frank Hurley, a transient, who gave his residence as Nangatuck, was before the local police court Saturday morning charged with intoxication, to which he pleaded guilty. Mulvey up about four o'clock Saturday morning on Windham road. Judge Frost imposed a fine of $10 and costs, totalling $18.15. The accused was without funds and was taken to Brooklyn jail.

Painters in the employ of the Lathrop & Crane company, Saturday morning completed the work of reconstructing the walls and ceiling of the three corridors of the town building. The woodwork has also been oiled and varnished and the corridors now present a very pleasing appearance.

Fred W. Gleed, of 288 South St., owns 7 brown pullets which have quite a reputation for egg laying abilities. The question now before the house is which one of the seven birds was so thoughtless as to give an extra egg the other day when Mr. Clark found eight eggs in the nest.

The Plainfield town authorities have launched a campaign for shocking up men and beggars who have failed to pay their poll tax for last year. Tax Collector Henry Hazenbush found that a large number of them had not settled and he was ordered by the board of selectmen to collect the money. Warrants were given to State Policemen Marsden and Kelsey of the Stafford Springs barracks to be served. Saturday forenoon, thirteen delinquents appeared before Justice of the Peace George H. Anderson, at the Court House. Records of the Clerk of Courts, George Millard, showed that of that number, three promptly paid, stating that they were exempt, two world war veterans and one man with a birth certificate, which showed that he was over 45 years old. The remaining ten included seven women and three men, eight of whom are attached at the Mansfield State Hospital and Training school at Mansfield Depot. A summary of their explanations is that they had overlooked or forgotten to pay the required $2. Judge Andrews expressed himself as wishing to be lenient and mulled the cases on the payment of the costs and the payment of two dollars. The costs were $15.82.

It was understood that ten more delinquents would be brought before court this (Monday) morning or Tuesday.

ENGLISH [illegible]

WINS S[illegible]

Monte Carlo, March 4.—(By the Associated Press)—Miss Kathleen Mc-Kane of England, today won the women's singles in the Monte Carlo tournament, defeating Miss Elizabeth Ryan, formerly of California, in the final match, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2.

In the women's doubles final Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Ryan defeated Mrs. Lambert-Chambers and Miss MacKane 6-1, 6-4.

In this match Mlle. Lenglen's boast that she and Miss Ryan never had lost a set since they began playing together three years ago was shattered. The France-American pair was defeated in one set and altogether barely managed ultimately to overcome the English women and take the final.

Miss Ryan acording to the experts, has been playing too much tennis. Today she proved the weak spot in her combination. The Lenglen-Ryan pair looked the loser when Mrs. Lambert-Chambers and Miss MacKane were leading, 4-2 in the last set; but Suzanne won her service and broke through Miss MacKane's and was all over the court to win the last game on Miss Ryan's service. "We'll be picking you up with a spoon one of these days, Elizabeth," said Mlle. Lenglen as she and Miss Ryan walked off the courts. "You are playing too much tennis," the French champion added, and there seemed no doubt that Miss Ryan had gone "stale" and was in need of a rest.

The final of the men's singles will be played tomorrow between F. Gordon Lowe and Leighton Crawford. The mixed doubles have only reached the semi-finals, but no one seems to take any more interest in the matches here. Everyone is moving on to Mentone, where tennis fireworks are expected to begin tomorrow.

TENNIS WORLD CONCENTRATES THE LENGLEN-MALLORY MATCH THIS WEEK

Mentone, France, March 4.—(By the Associated Press)—A fourth meeting between Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French champion, and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, the American title holder, in tennis singles competition is considered practically assured during the Mentone tournament, which begins tomorrow.

The draw was kind to the Riviera tennis enthusiasts who have been looking forward to a match between the women champions with an eagerness that has only been increased by their disappointment at the failure of the rivals to get together at Monte Carlo. Both Lenglen and Mallory were in the upper half of the draw, and both drew byes in the first round.

Seemingly only a miracle can prevent Mrs. Mallory from reaching the quarter finals, where she will meet Mlle. Lenglen. The American player in the first match in the second round has to defeat the winner of the Miss Cahle-Mrs. Bostock first round match, and in the third round she must win from the victor of the Miss Wolfenden-Mrs. Ellison match, which will qualify her then to face the redoubtable Suzanne, who is expected to win handily in her second and third round matches.

To any of the four players Mrs. Mallory ordinarily could give fifteen and a win, and, even taking Bostock's Carlo form into account, the experts are of the opinion she should have no trouble in disposing of the two she must meet to reach a match with Lenglen.

The American champion is entered in all three events here, but has She is paired with Baron De Morpurgo, instead of Wallis Myers, in the mixed doubles, and with Miss Bialy, instead of Miss Howett, in the women's doubles.

Mlle. Lenglen is paired with Miss Elizabeth Ryan in the doubles. She is not entered for the mixed doubles, changed her Monte Carlo partners.

ACTIVE TRAINING STARTS TODAY FOR RED SOX

Hot Springs, Ark., March 4.—Frank Chance, "peerless leader" of the old Chicago Cubs and now at the helm of the Boston Americans, arrived today with a string of players and announced that active training would start tomorrow.

Chance has been quoted as opposing golf for baseball players, but modified his opinion today after observing a few of the New York Yankees in the process of "following through."

"Does look as it would be all right as an adjunct" he said, "but, of course, the baseball training is the essential thing."

Chance accepted invitations from friends for a "try out" on the links later in the week.

BROUGHT PYSCHIC MESSAGE FROM PASTOR ELIMA

A white dove which she said circled three times around the room at the Spiritual Academy Sunday evening, revealed in spirit to the psychic, Rev. Millicent Wilson, of Malden, Mass., and declared by her to be the symbol of the returned thought of one who would like to be there in spirit, bringing a message of love and hope from the absent pastor of the Academy, Rev. A. P. Elima, who is now in the west.

Rev. Wilson read the 23rd Psalm at the opening of the service and then delivered an impressive address upon "Heaven" before she proceeded to give psychic messages.

About a score of these were given, each being recognized by some one in the audience as the psychic described in considerable detail facial and physical characteristics of the message bringer with whom she was in communication. In one case she said that the given name was that of a person who had passed out of life only recently as it still had the shadows of earth around it, and in another a woman in the audience was told that she possessed great medium powers for healing as her birth date in January wrought her under the same birth signs as Jesus. Another woman whose birthday was in September was told that she was very psychic and could write under spirit power. The recipient of this message admitted that she had once started to do spirit writing but had given it up. She was advised to take it up again.

In another of the spirit communications which the psychic gave she said that Persian, and Egyptian, a Hindoo and an Indian chief by the name of Black Hawk, all appeared, accompanied by a little Indian maid, while a woman who said her birthday was Feb. 23 was told it was no wonder Washington told the spiritual visitor 1864 she was a psychic for George Washington of this late war and many others that had come.

Just as she was concluding her messages, the psychic said she wished her audience could see the flowers with which the room was filled, as revealed to her. With them she saw the Golden Gate and calla lilies which showed that somebody in the room was going to California. A warmer welcome acknowledged this was her intention and was advised to go by all means as it would mean everything to her.

THAMES RIVER LINE RESUMES RIVER SERVICE

Steamer Cross Cut of the Thames River Line reached this city Saturday about 12:30, having made the passage from New London without encountering much difficulty from the ice. Sunday the boat resumed the regular freight service of the line to New York which will be maintained until her companion boat, the John W. Voorth.

On the way up the river Saturday, the water was found clear of ice between New London and Montville but from Montville up there was much ice although it was soft and easily broken, as the steamer plowed through it.

Convert to Vaccination.

Senator Harison J. Gibbs of this city at a hearing before the Legislative committee on public health and safety last week at the capitol in Hartford made the statement that up to a few months ago he had been opposed to compulsory vaccination, but that after reading the literature covering both sides of the question he had been convinced that vaccination was a necessary measure for the protection of the public health.

His statement was made during a hearing on bills before the committee which would make it optional for persons to seek vaccination.

DANIELSON

Saturday was a great Dollar day in Danielson. The business of the average merchant was far ahead of the receipts on any similar event since the first general bargain giving event of this kind in Danielson in August, 1912. Sales for enthusiasm both Dollar days of 1922, and Sunday morning several business men said they had made new high records of sales for such events.

Only the fact that snow-choked country roads kept many from the rural districts over-taxed town prevented making new high records for all Dollar days. Though the business men put themselves out to get things for Dollar day specials and were at considerable expense for advertising and extra clerk hire and other incidentals, they were delighted Sunday at the results achieved, and had materially reserved from their stock in confidence in Dollar day sales as based on their experience with them during 1922, when the country was just emerging from a period of depression and money was more tightly held than is the rule at present. Danielson's next Dollar day, in the late summer, is certain to see an unusual buying event, because the business men were so successful with the one conducted on Saturday.

Chief John McFarland of the police department sounds a timely warning in his advice to the public to be careful about venturing on the frozen surfaces of rivers in Danielson, or on other bodies of water, after the four days of thawing weather that ended Sunday evening. It is true that ice has during the winter reached a thickness of about 30 inches, but this unusual accumulation of ice disappears rapidly during such weather as has recently been experienced and there is real danger of drownings at the present time if adults do not keep off short cuts across the ice and if children are not warned to cross rivers on bridges. In the past numbers of children have lost their lives venturing upon the frozen surfaces of rivers during March and a warning at this time may be considered as contributing against the possible repetition of such disasters this particular year.

Not only residents of the town of Killingly but those who live in surrounding towns are going to be interested in what the committee on public health of the legislature reports on the bill to permit bathing in Alexander's lake. It is of more than passing interest that Putnam's representatives and Pomfret's representatives appeared in favor of the measure, while those of Killingly, in which Alexander's lake is located, did not figure in the hearing.

This matter of bathing in Alexander's lake has stirred up considerable discussion, more, perhaps, than any local measure introduced at the present session of the legislature. There doesn't appear to be any question that the public at large is in favor of having such a privilege granted. Approximately 1,000 people signed petitions in favor of allowing bathing. Few of these live in Goodyear, the residents of which village drink the water from the lake. One thousand more signatures could be obtained, possibly many more, through an intensive canvass of Dayville and surrounding towns, including the names of many who ordinarily do not get excessively excited over the bathing question, winter or summer.

On the other hand, the hearing developed the fact that the Goodyear company, though not specifically represented, is opposed to opening the lake to bathing, for public health reasons, and that this same view is taken by the state board of health, which is unalterably opposed to allowing indiscriminate bathing in a body of water that is used for drinking purposes by a village of several hundred people.

While the proponents of the measure are looking with confidence for a favorable report from the public health committee on the measure, those opposed are just as confident that the measure will be unfavorably reported.

Here is a particular proposition that numbers of persons of more or less importance in Killingly have fought shy of since its introduction. It has been noted that the hearing in favor of the measure was directed by a Putnam attorney, while an attorney from this town appeared in opposition.

The Alexander's lake bathing proposal is one that is not likely to end even with an unfavorable report by the committee and acceptance of that report by the legislature. It will bob up again—because so many want it.

Taking this view of the case, it is strange that not a word has been said up to this time about alternative proposals. People familiar with the lake have suggested that it would be comparatively a simple matter to protect the health of the Goodyear people who drink the water, and at the same time meet the demand for bathing privileges by building a dam or dike across the lake near Loon Island. The water, east and west of the island, is shallow and such an undertaking would be a comparatively simple and inexpensive operation. This arrangement would leave the southerly section of the lake uncontaminated by bathers and leave more than ample sections of the lake for bathing. It would cost some money but the investment would be more than offset by the prospective collection of from 25 to 50 cents from all who might want to rent bathing suits and bathhouses—and no great stretch of the imagination is required to see 1,000 people using the waters of the lake for a bath on a pleasant week end afternoon. And the money, of course, would go to those controlling the bathing privileges. At 50 cents each, 1,000 bathers on any week end afternoon would bring in $500 and even at 25 cents the revenue would be $250, and with a proposition like that in sight it does appear to many that want bathing and yet want Goodyear's public health protected that building of a dam or dike would be well worth while as an investment, if all obstacles to such a proposition could be overcome.

The Williamsville Water company, now owned by the Goodyear interests, has had water rights in the lake for 30 years, and it is not the reason that these rights can be brushed aside without consideration. These rights must be considered, whatever the general wish of the public as to bathing privileges. A slight on the entire issue is that the public is disinclined in this case as it is with many other situations of a restrictive nature with which it is contending because of the restrictive legislation of the past few years—all this legislation tending to dissatisfaction and unrest.

Homeward Bound.

A moonbeam is his rudder—
White lilies form his boat,
For Pierrots sailing homeward—
The breezes all are fair.

The stream is softly swaying—
It rocks the fragile bark.
A moonbeam is his rudder—
White lilies form his boat.

In Bergamo, his homeland,
Will Pierrot soon be seen
Green gleaming in the distance
The pale horizon grows.
A moonbeam is his rudder.

White Magic.

How silently—how silently
The spinners in the night
Have plied swift fingers at their lace!

The moon is misty white,
And every darkling bough is hung
With finest traceries.
The spinners love to work their charm
Upon the sombre trees.

Each sober chimney wears tonight
A bonnet frilled and fine—
I hope the spinners won't forget
A lacy cap for mine!
My lilac bushes, white as May,
Are wreathed in mystic blooms—
A gleaming silvered filigree
From off the spinners' looms.

And there, before my neighbor's door,
Some miracle! For see—
Now shines a wishing-rug, just where
A door-mat used to be!
Far down the street and up the hill
There winds and winds away
A trail that shimmers bright with hoar—
It was not there today!

A carpet, from the silver earth
Up to the silver moon!
Oh, spinners in the lovely night,
Where does it go—at noon?
Your blossoms and your tapestries,
Your laces fine and gay,
Lose all their magic at the dawn,
They are just snow—by day.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES.

Robin Redbreast is here and that means that spring is not far away. Robin made his appearance several days ago, according to reports that have reached Uncle Jed from several towns around Norwich. Within a short time now Robin's song will be heard everywhere.

Have you ever noticed that Robin is different from other birds, in that he hops towards us while the other birds fly away when we get near them? Of course Robin will fly away, too, when we get very near him, but he does not seem to be a bit afraid of us.

Robin wants to be friends with everyone who likes birds. He even wants to be friendly with people who do not like birds. Wild animals and birds have learned through thousands of years of experience to fear man and keep away from him so that he cannot harm them. Their fear of man is so great that they even hide their nests.

Many birds that have trusted man have become very scarce. They have been killed off in great numbers or have been made captives and put in cages. In spite of the fate of his feathered brethren Mr. Robin does not fear man. He hops around us when we walk through the garden and sometimes he will hop right up almost to our feet. Once in a while, if we are very still, he will perch upon us, and sometimes he flies right into our houses through the open window.

Boys and girls should never harm Mr. Robin. They should never throw stones at him or shoot him, and they should never steal Mrs. Robin's eggs. They should always try to help the brave little fellow to find food, especially in the cold, dreary early spring days, when snow and ice still cover the ground.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

A Good Time.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the time our Christian Endeavor society went to visit another society away from our home town. We went by trolley and came back by trolley also. We had our own meeting first. Several of the girls took part in the meeting. When our meeting was closed the other society chose their officers and then they had a surprise for us.

A large white sheet in the corner demanded our attention for a little while. The children stood behind this curtain and then the lights were turned off. Their motions showed on the white sheet and by their shadows we could see what they were doing and we had to guess but it was very easy. The girls then sang songs and then refreshments were served. And by that time the car had come and we had to leave them. We had a very fine time and we hope that they will visit us some time also.

Our Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you before and I am going to try again.

Last year some people from New York moved in near us.

They stayed for about a year and went back to New York. These people had a dog. It was half collie and half shepherd. When they went away they did not want to take her with them so they gave her to me.

We have had her a long time now. She will go with me to look at my traps. I have got two rabbits and a skunk but I am going to set more traps.

She will shake hands with you. All that you have to say is, "Give me your paw," and she will hold it up.

She will ride with my father in the wagon and ride on my sled.

About two months ago she was coming across the road and a car was coming down the hill and it hit her and knocked her into the brook. We called for the veterinary and he came over and said that she was not hurt much and that she would live.

She could not walk very good but now she can walk as good as she ever could. She will draw my father on the sled, but not up hill.

We gave her some bones one night after we got home from school and she went and buried them in the snow. In the middle of the night some strange dogs came here and were walking around the house and she barked and woke us all up, but the dogs did not get her bones.

She sleeps most of the time this cold weather. She is behind the stove now. Her name is Lassie.

The Unlucky Snowball

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would like to write to the Wide Awake Circle and tell about the unlucky snowball. One day as we were out snowballing in the school yard I got hit in the eye. It didn't hurt very much. I went in to school and the teacher put some hot water on it. We have running hot water in our school, electric lights and steam heat. Not many schools have a school house like that.

Some Experiences in the Water

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer while down at our cottage by the Drawbridge, we lost the anchor of our boat. As we had anchored the boat near the shore, we knew the anchor was quite near. We searched and searched until we were discouraged. As I had my bathing suit on I was was going to take one last dip underwater. I sat down slowly, when all at once I jumped up and gave a cry, there was something hooked under me. And what do you suppose it was, I had sat on one of the points of the anchor.

Another one of my several experiences was as follows: We would sometimes run out on a small landing, and from there onto our motor boat. The best fun was to run along the boat and dive off at the back. The motor boat was a small ways from the landing, and we had to pull it in by a rope. Then, we would jump on quickly, as the boat went back to its old position. Once while repeating this act I pulled the boat in and had my hands on the bow when it went back a little quicker than usual, and my feet remained on the landing. I stretched longer, longer, longer, until at last my full length being reached I fell into the water with a splash. I think I grew several inches in that short time.

The Sleigh Tipped Over

Dear Uncle Jed: I think I will write and tell you about my sleigh ride. It was up toward Pomfret and they were just breaking out the roads. We thought we could get through and we tried it. We were right in a big snowdrift when all of a sudden the sleigh tipped over.

First of all my mother went out and then my sister and me last of all. When we tried to get up our hands went right through the snow crust.

About the Chamois

Dear Uncle Jed:—In our school we are learning about the chamois. The chamois can jump from rock to rock. They have cushions on their feet so they won't hurt themselves. Chamois skins cost a great deal for a little piece. They use the chamois skins for polishing.

Goes to Poquetanuck School

Dear Uncle Jed: How are you? I hope you are well this winter. We have had a lot of snow this winter. I am going to tell you about my school. We have reading, spelling and other things to do. I would like you to come up to my school and see them of it. I go to Poquetanuck school. Mrs. Anderson is my teacher this year. I like my teacher. She is good to me.

A Good Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: One day Nellie, a girl of 8 years, found a large dog in the road, hungry and fain. Nellie was a kind girl and took the dog home. Her parents didn't like the dog which was his name. She asked her mistress and she laughed him many tricks.

A little while after owned me by my father and mother. They would rather fight in ambush than in the open. If a person was cruel to them they would never forget it and were always on the lookout for revenge. They would not forget if a person was kind to them. The Indians word could always be depended upon.

They believed in spirits, and that there were spirits in the hills, mountains, valleys and even the moon and stars.

Kitty Hid Under Chair

Dear Uncle Jed: I am glad to write a letter to you. I have a little kitty and her name is Grave. She is very pretty and she runs upstairs and jumps on the bed. I like her.

One day I went upstairs for my sister's shoes and she ran up, too, and hid under the chair. I ran down stairs and told my mother that she was upstairs, and my mother told me to take her down. I went up and looked for her but couldn't find her. But finally I found her.

THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

Danny Fox was in a dreadful fix. Yes, indeed, this old robber hardly knew what to do. Every time he started out from his den in the rocky hillside, somebody would call over the wireless:

"Danny Fox is going hunting!"

After that warning, of course, everybody locked his front door and bolted his back door and pulled down the window shades.

It happened after a while that Danny Fox never went out in the daytime at all—he just waited until supper was over and Mrs. Moon was up in the sky before he stepped out of his den.

"My dear," he said one dark, gloomy night to Mrs. Fox, "maybe I can bring home a chicken—it's dark enough to hide me!"

So off he started with a big empty bag over his shoulder. By and by, as he crept through the shady forest, he saw a little twinkling light.

"Now, who's that, I wonder?" he asked himself in a whisper; but, of course, as he did not know, he got no answer.

"I must be careful," he thought. "It might be the Policeman Dog's lantern."

So the old robber hid behind a tree and waited. By and by, after a while, with never a smile, who should come along but a little firefly. My, how her little lantern flickered and flared in the wind.

"Oh, ho!" said Danny Fox, "who's afraid? I'm glad it's not the Policeman Dog!"

The little firefly kept on her way, for she, of course, hadn't heard Danny Fox thinking, you know, and after her little light had disappeared in the darkness the old robber came out from his hiding place.

Then off he started again—for the Henhouse.

By and by he reached the Old Barnyard. But just as he crept around the Big Red Barn, Old Bingen, the Farmer's Dog, saw him.

"Bow, wow!" he went, tugging at the chain which kept him home nights in his little bungalow. "Bow, wow!"

"Keep quiet, can't you?" whined Danny Fox.

"Be quiet!" snarled Old Bingen. "I'll call the Farmer."

Just then who should hop by in the moonlight but Little Jack Rabbit. Dear me, I hope that Wicked Fox won't catch him before next Saturday, dear boys and girls.

SATURDAY'S MARKET.

New York, March 3.—Railroad shares were bid up vigorously in today's brief but active session of the stock market while heavy profit taking sales were being made on the industrial group. The bullish demonstration in rails, which had been keeping behind the market, was in belated response to the substantial improvement in earnings shown by the January earnings report over those of the same month last year.

New high records were established by New York Central at 99 1-2, Atchison at 105 1-2, Baltimore & Ohio at 55 1-2, Northern Pacific preferred at 79 3-8 and St. Paul preferred at 1 3-4, the net gains ranging from actual fractions to nearly 3 points. At the end of the session, the average price of 20 leading railroad stocks was at the highest figure since April, 1920.

Steels, which were strong yesterday, slipped back today but not until after new peak prices had been established by U. S. Steel common at 108 1-8, Bethlehem B at 71 7-8 and Republic at 61 3-8. Operations of steel mills are now reported to be at about 90 per cent. of capacity with several mills closing their books until a substantial reduction has been made in present unfilled orders.

The U. S. Steel corporation's monthly tonnage statement next Saturday is not expected to show much change, because of the large volume of business turned down by the company.

Baldwin and Studebaker offered good resistance to selling pressure, yielding only fractionally on the day, but California Petroleum, which had recorded an extreme rise of 17 points during the week, dropped 1 3-4 to 94 3-4 while Pan American Oil and American Can, each slipped back more than a point. Good buying support was forthcoming in the copper issues, which showed only nominal changes on the day.

There were a few strong spots in the specialty list, notably American Metals, United Railway Investment common and preferred, Adams Express, Owens Bottle and Postum Cereal, all up 1 1-4 to nearly 4 points. United Drug was conspicuously weak.

Foreign exchanges were firmer with business more active. Demand Sterling sold around $4.70 1-4 and French francs were again quoted above 10 cents.

The weekly clearing house statement showed decreases of $23,476,900 in loans, disconuns and investments; $3,451,000 in cash in our vaults and $11,121,000 in net demand deposits. Reserve of member banks in the federal reserve bank was increased by $16,554,000 and time deposits jumped $21,087,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $527,070,000, making a deficit in reserve of $235,860 as against a deficit of $17,627,850 the week before.

ABANDONING HOPE OF CRUSHING BOLSHEVISM

Paris, March 4.—(By The A. P.)—While Europe waits for the Angora government to speak the word which will push the pendulum toward peace, or war in the Near East, there came today from a representative Russian source, a statement which shows a significant shifting in the attitude of the non-bolshevik elements towards the Russian regime and the definite abandonment of hope of crushing bolshevism from without.

This statement is to the effect that when the Moscow government shall have inaugurated reforms, like recognition of the right of private property and a general extension of civil and political rights, all Russians throughout the world will work together for the reconstruction of their country, without awaiting the abolition of the soviet regime.

The above facts were outlined in a statement given The Associated Press today by Basile Maklakoff, a distinguished constitutional democrat who was appointed by Alexander Kerensky as ambassador to France during the Kerensky regime, and who has been loyally representing the interests of Russia in Jaris throughout the years of Russian communism.

"PEACEMAKER" STABBED TO DEATH IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, March 4.—Matteo Palumbo, 40 years old, a storekeeper of this city, was stabbed to death today in a furious fight with another man when he attempted to act as "peacemaker" in a quarrel.

A short time after the fight, police arrested Anthony Canelli, also of this city, in a doctor's office here where he had gone to have knife wounds about his head and neck dressed. On his identification as Palumbo's slayer by an eye witness to the fight, police arrested Canelli and placed him under heavy guard at the Bridgeport hospital where his condition was reported as serious.

Mrs. Lucy Giannizio, in whose home the fight occurred, was also taken to the Bridgeport hospital where several cuts she received when she attempted to separate the men, were dressed. Three hours after she was admitted to the hospital she gave birth to a boy. Her condition was reported as "favorable."

A third man, who also attempted to separate the struggling men, was severely beaten and cut. He was Fabrizio Casso and was taken into custody as a material witness.

Police have been unable to discover the source of the original quarrel which resulted in the slaying although it was reported that a minor dispute over a boy was the direct cause. Efforts to trace the hidden reason were being made tonight.

According to the story told by Joseph, 16 years, old son of Mrs. Carmizzio, Canelli, Palumbo and his mother spent the afternoon quarrelling over some affair of which he knew nothing. He said that he had come and asked for dinner, whereupon Canelli had threatened to strike him. Mrs. Chaniolo and Palumbo intervened with the result that Canelli, he said, drew a knife and rushed at them. Palumbo also drew a knife and the two men struggled while Mrs. Canzanio attempted to separate them.

Meanwhile the boy said, Canelli picked up a large knife and stabbed Palumbo. He rushed from the store but was stopped for a moment by Casso who had heard calls for help. Canelli knocked Casso down, inflicting a knife wound on his hand. He then ran to a nearby doctor with a crowd at his heels and was later arrested.

Police were unable to question either Canelli or Mrs. Canzanio because of their condition. Mrs. Canzanio is separated from her husband.

R. I. RED PULLET LAYS TWO EGGS A DAY

Rhode Island Red pullet No. 221, owned by Charles H. Lane of Southboro, Mass., is the first bird in the present laying contest at Storrs to come through with two eggs in one day. Hens seldom perform this double duty. Perhaps not oftener than one for each twenty to thirty thousand eggs they lay. When poultrymen first began to use artificial lights it was supposed that laying two eggs a day would occur with greater frequency. It was thought that pullets laying early in the morning would probably lay again when they were gotten up at 9 or 10 o'clock at night for their extra meal, but this doesn't seem to be the case. The fact is that on these rare occasions it is not at all improbable for the hen to lay two eggs in a period of four or five minutes or less.

In the 17th week of the contest Rocks and Reds tied for first place. A pen of White Rocks entered by Davidson Brothers from Upton, Mass., and a pen of Reds owned by Fred H. Sampson of Springfield, Mass., each laid 53 eggs. Two pens of Barred Rocks owned by Roswaydin Farm at Darien, Conn., and Jasper E. Gustill at Berwick, Me., and Fernside Farm's pen of Reds from Foxboro, Mass., all tied for second place with 52 eggs each. Harold F. Barber's pen of White Rocks from Dover, Mass., was third best pen for the week with 49 eggs. White Leghorns bred by Rapp's Leghorn Farm at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., were in fourth place with a record of 48 eggs. The total production for all pens was 2,312 eggs, or a yield of nearly 41 per hen. This is a little gain over last week's production and slightly better than the average for this period but did not quite come up to the management's expectations. Breeders and farmers of the various pens, however, are encouraged by the fact that during the last week there occurred the largest single day's production for the year, 518 eggs from the 1,400 birds in the contest.

LESSONS FOR MAN'S LIFE FROM OCEAN LINER

The Sunday afternoon meeting at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. was interesting and profitable to the audience of men and older boys. Swahn's orchestra opened the hour with several fine selections and accompanied the singing of popular hymns, after which the scripture was read from the first Psalm and prayer was offered. Two full reels of moving pictures were shown and proved interesting and instructive. The first was a picture of an ocean trip on the giant liner, the Olympic, and the daily life aboard was shown and the arrival on the other side. The second reel was a scientific study of the human eye, and this proved very instructive, showing in minute detail the makeup of this wonderful human organ, and its great value.

Between the reels, a brief talk was given by Secretary Hill, who said in part:

"Whenever I see a great ocean liner I think what a narrow margin there is between a watery grave and safety, and yet is it not remarkable how few serious accidents there are at sea? The great liner must be very substantially built; the workmen must be faithful and their work that no flaw is allowed, that the boat may be able to stand the tremendous strain of the most tempestuous seas. As we have seen in the pictures, these huge floating palaces have the finest appointments and all the accommodations of a fine hotel, but these things are not sufficient to guarantee safety in ocean travel. There are many more vital and fundamental things that this great troupe pays; first, there must be a compass in order that the man who guides the vessel in her course may be able to keep her in her course; then there must be an experienced pilot, one who has through the years made a study of ocean travel and the rules of navigation, and third, every vessel needs an anchor for use in certain times of danger. With these three requisites the great ships safely cross and recross the tempest-tossed waters.

"And so it is with the human life, as it travels over the sea of life. It must be, as it were, well built, that is; it must have a sure foundation; no less than the Rock of Ages, and it, too, must have at least three vital things like the ocean liner. First, we must have the compass to show us the way, and that compass is the great book of God, the Bible. We should consult it more often than most of us do, for in it we find the admonition, the blessed promises, and its wealth of comfort. Second, we must have an experienced pilot; one who knows the way through the treacherous sea of life, and one who is able and willing to guide us safely through to the haven of rest. That pilot is no less a personage than Jesus Christ, and he always leads us safely if we will but let him do so. Then we also need an anchor, which may be called our hope, which is as an anchor for the soul," With this trio of safeguards we can travel over life's sea in safety, with the confidence that we will one day be transported from this uncertain world to that city which hath foundations, whose Builder and Maker is God."

The moving picture machine was operated by Emmett J. Fritz.

OPPOSES COMMISSIONER ACTING AS PHYSICIAN

Dr. George P. Chaney, as chairman of a committee appointed at a recent meeting of the New London Medical society, will head a delegation of New London doctors at a hearing to be held in the capital Tuesday afternoon concerning a bill which will prevent a compensation commissioner from giving professional medical or surgical attendance in any case where the compensation act is involved.

The discussion at a recent meeting discussed the matter of Dr. James J. Donahue, of this city, compensation commissioner of this district, and agreed almost unanimously that, in their opinion, it is unethical and improper for a compensation commissioner who happens to be a physician or a surgeon to attend patients who may come under the law come under the compensation act. Compensation is based to some extent on the cost of medical attendance and in such a case a compensation commissioner would pass upon his own personal bill for service.

SAYS DOWN AND OUTS ABOUND IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles is the greatest place he has ever seen for people down and strapped, writes Herbert W. Hayes of this city, who is on a western trip.

His letter to The Bulletin follows:

The weather here is 84 degrees in the shade. Beautiful summer weather. Feb. 18 we went down to Long Beach and thousands were in bathing. It was 78 in the shade at the beach. I went today out to a place they call Santa Fe where they are boring some oil wells. There are a lot of boomers here. It's a rush place to get work. I guess there were more hold-ups here than in any place I ever was in. I can relate two of the stories about people being burned. You can go down town any day and see people from the east down and out. One couple and wife and two children from New York city were stranded, slept out in the park and they left here today with a Mexican, beating it out of the city together. It's a terrible place for anyone without funds. I went all through the slums, just to find out. All one has to do is to sit in Pershing Square Park and you will hear story after story related to men of people coming here and getting down and out. It's hard to get work. If one tells you it's easy let him come here and see. I was talking to a fellow today who told us that at the hotel he was in (of course it was a cheap place) he let a fellow take his razor to shave with and the shaver took all the contents out of his bag and skipped. Another one stole a man's overcoat while he was in the toilet. Believe me, we Los Angeles for mine. There are a lot of people loafing here. There are so many coming into the city that they can't take care of the crowd. I have watched myself in the parks for many going up to people and begging.

I was told this in San Diego, but I wouldn't believe it, but I certainly do now as I have seen it. It's got New York and Chicago beat to a finish.

Friday we took a trip over to a town they call Alhambra, where they are trying to sell lots with orange trees on the grounds. If a man is a sucker he buys. This town is full of all such booms. I visited San Gabriel's Mission, one of the oldest ones built in 1771. We went by Busch's sunken gardens and saw Little Red Riding Hood's home in the gardens—1,400 acres are in the gardens. Busch was the rich brewer. We went through millionaire's row. Saw William McAdoo's palace. Wrigley, the chewing gum man's beautiful new home, went out to Catalina Islands and up to Lincoln Park, through the Selig zoo. We saw where the Chicago Nationals expect to train next month on Catalina Islands.

Feb. 26 we left Los Angeles at 8 on the Coast Line express, Southern Pacific. We saw some of the prettiest scenery we have seen on our trip. We passed Ventura where the oil mills are out in the surf 100 feet. We passed through Santa Maria valley, which was grand. We had two engines take us up through Tehachapi loop, we went through one tunnel six miles long and we went up and right around under where we went up, it was so crooked. We reached San Francisco at 10.30, right on time. We got a good room at the Winchester hotel on Third street, near Market, at very reasonable rates. They were much safer here than in Los Angeles. They use the police much better and we got rooms changed and they all were more accommodating than anywhere I have been yet. The climate here is awfully raw and not as nice as Los Angeles, but the people here are more civilized and not after the almighty dollar like Los Angeles. I never saw people go eager for the dollar as at Los Angeles. There are certainly an awful gang of boosters and robbers there.

I was down to the beaches today. It was very cool and we went up to Golden Gate Park, a good park, 25 miles long. The streets here are very wide, three car tracks on them, 4-seat [illegible] everywhere. We went over to [illegible] on the ferry and the sidewalks here are awfully wide. It is very warmer here. I would much rather be here than Los Angeles. But it's so cool and damp. The people here are much more homelike. We have been everywhere and up to date, with side trips and all, have covered 6,000 miles. One would hardly believe it. I leave here today for Denver, Colorado, to check back that going by the Southern Pacific via Denver Rio Grande up through the Rocky mountains.

BUSINESS THIS WEEK FOR GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Matters to come before the general assembly this week include the following:

On Wednesday at 2 p. m. the meeting of the legislative and representatives of New London county will be held in the senate chamber. The county commissioners will appear before the committee on finance, [illegible] the county commissioners will be present on Friday to act concerning toilets in railroad stations.

On Tuesday, Thursday and Friday the committee on roads, rivers and bridges will hold hearings in the hall of the house to accommodate the large number that are expected to be present on those days for important hearings. A full list of these matters may be seen at the Bulletin office.

THE UNPARDONABLE SIN LENTEN SERMON SUBJECT

To shut the eyes and the ears to God's truth, to refuse to hear the message of his Son is the unpardonable sin that brings eternal condemnation declared Rev. John X. Fyfe, S. J., of Holy Cross college Sunday night in the third of his Lenten sermons at St. Patrick's church before a congregation that filled the body of the church.

Preaching from the text "Jesus was casting out a devil and it was dumb; and when he had cast out the devil, the dumb man spoke and the crowd wondered," Father Fyfe spoke in part as follows:

This was only one of the many occasions on which the Lord cast out devils. Sometimes before the exorcism the victim was dumb and blind; sometimes so uncontrollably that, even when bound by chains, he broke his fetters in pieces; sometimes the demon, before their departure from the body of their victims, revealed their knowledge of the divine character of Christ; sometimes they departed quietly; but always after the exorcism the victim was restored to the use of all his faculties.

The simple people from the country marvelled at the power of Christ and were different to give Him full credit for the performance of a divine work. But the Scribes and the Pharisees from Jerusalem were not satisfied with the simple explanation of the multitude. They, not of course real scholars, but pseudo-scholars, were otherwise to explain off on the Beelzebub theory. Jesus, in reproof, therefore in the same parable, "Every sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven men, but the blasphemy of the Spirit shall not be forgiven." The Scribes and the Pharisees, by ascribing to Satan works which were evidently of God, were deliberately shutting the eyes to the light of truth. This is the unpardonable sin. It was this sin that led them to the act of deicide. It was this sin that carried with it their exclusion from the kingdom which Christ established, an exclusion which damned not only themselves but their descendants unto this day.

We are surprised in reading the scriptures to find our Lord, who is ordinarily so gentle, utter such terrible denunciations of the Scribes and the Pharisees. He who declared to the woman taken in adultery "Neither do I condemn thee. Go and now sin no more;" who could pray for His executioners in the words, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do;" this gentle Preacher and Miracle Worker, this Founder of a new faith, the Son of God, yet so abominable had will that His mercy no provision for its absolution so long as a man persists in his evil will. In fact, reason itself seems against the revealed judgment the offender give many days of a change of heart. And a change of heart it must be, for the refusal to see the light is due to an evil disposition. This evil disposition is not the peculiarity of men who lived two thousand years ago. We find it daily in the sinful unbelievers who refuse to recognize Christ as the Son of God and the author of the Catholic religion, blinded by the deceptions of the world, the flesh and the devil. Many there are who, [illegible] and his lips to utter it. He requires a sort of exorcism, it is true, but it must be self-exorcism. He must expel his own bad will.

The musical part of the service was given with fine effect by the full choir in rendering Mercadante's mass in which the solos were by Fred Pfenk, L. Farrell, George Roberts, Frank D. Aubrey and Daniel J. Gleason. The First Word in the Seven Last Words of Christ (De Beil) for baritone solo and chorus was given by Frank D. Murdy, who was in excellent voice for the solo work, and was given admirable support by the choir.

OPPOSING 9 HOUR LIMIT FOR WOMEN MILL WORKERS

L. M. Carpenter, agent for the Borland Cotton Co. of Jewett City, and president of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, was among the representatives of manufacturing interests who appeared at a hearing before the committee on labor Friday afternoon in opposition to a bill to limit the hours of women employed in factories to nine hours a day and 54 hours a week. The bill was advocated by a number of such organizations as the Consumers' League, the League of Women Voters, the Hartford Council of Social Service, W. C. T. U., and others. Mr. Carpenter was supported by a large group of manufacturers. He said the entire textile industry in the eastern part of the state would be seriously hampered if such a bill became enacted.

JURY HAS [illegible]

Estimates Place the Number of Klansmen on the Jury as High as Six—Attorney General Coco Will Today Ask For Thirty to Fifty Indictments Ranging From Assault and Battery to Murder—Judge Odom Instructed the Members of the Jury That They Are to Deal With Men, Not With Organizations.

Bastrop, La., March 5 (By the A. P.).—The Morehouse parish grand jury was drawn today. State Attorney General A. V. Coco expects to appear tomorrow and submit evidence obtained at the open hearings here in January into kidnappings, beatings and other activities of masked bands which the state charges were composed of members of the Ku Klux Klan. He will ask from thirty to fifty indictments ranging from assault and battery to murder, the last in connection with the kidnapping and slaying of Walt Daniel and T. F. Richard of Mer Rouge last Aug. 24.

From the panel of twenty summoned for jury duty, District Judge Odom selected J. C. Evans of Okridge, a farmer, as foreman. Estimates of the number of klansmen on the jury run as high as six, but this feature did not seem to be regarded as of importance.

Nothing concerning its inquiry is expected from the jury until it makes its final report to the court, which will be ready, it is believed, within a week or ten days.

Judge Odom delivered his charge to the jury in two parts, the first an extemporaneous address along routine lines and the other a lengthy written charge devoted entirely to the hooded operations and observance of the law.

Captain J. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse parish Ku Klux Klan, who figured prominently in the testimony of witnesses at the open hearing, and who was among the spectators in court today, declared it "a very good charge."

Judge Odom supplemented the prepared charge with a few extemporaneous remarks and concluded:

"There is only one law, and that is the written law. If you should find that anybody has violated the law, punish him."

The judge in referring directly to the Ku Klux Klan in his charge said:

"The violation of the law to which I have called your special attention has been laid at the door of the Ku Klux Klan. Whether that organization is responsible for these outrages or not is a matter which does not concern you in the slightest. You are not here to unmask klansmen or to disrupt the Ku Klux Klan as an organization. You are to present and indict criminals without regard to their affiliations.

"Before the law, all men, whether they be members of the Ku Klux Klan, the Masonic fraternity, the Knights of Columbus, the B'nai B'rith or the Methodist church, stand precisely upon the same plane—they are all equal. You are to deal with men, not with organizations, societies or fraternities.

"If in your deliberations you become convinced that a certain citizen has violated the law, it would never occur to you that you should then inquire whether he was of the Christian or Hebrew faith, or whether he was a Mason or a Woodman of the World, and it goes of course without the suggestion to you, you would feel justified. Why, then, should you be concerned over the question of whether these crimes were committed through the klan as an organization or by klansmen as individuals?

"I make these suggestions, gentlemen, in the hope that I may impress upon you the fact that it is your sworn duty to help enforce the laws of the state, regardless of sentiment, and regardless of the affiliations or creed of the individual who violates them."

The judge then arraigned groups of men who take the law into their own hands.

"As concerns us," he said, "if we have reached that state or condition of society where men may organize into bands or groups and condemn, and punish citizens when and as they see fit, without regard to the laws of the land and the established rules of judicial procedure, then, gentlemen, the day of our doom is upon us. We have seen the end of civilized, organized society. The laws of civilized government must be enforced, otherwise civilization could not survive."

BACKFIRE "SET GANG" OF LIQUOR ABLAZE

Atlantic City, N. J., March 5.—Crowds ashore witnessed a thrilling chase conducted by coast guards in pursuit of a converted fishing smack loaded down with a cargo of blazing liquor.

Backfire from the motor of the vessel ablaze about five miles off the inlet. Manned by the exploding bottles in the 850 cases of Bahama Scotch aboard, four rum-runners continued their effort to escape and extinguish the flames for fully a half hour by getting in close to Brigantine Beach and then dodging in and out among the shoals.

Finally the chase and fire became too warm and they moped the craft into a handbar, leaping overboard as the guards approached and opened fire from mounted guns. They made their escape into the marsh lands.

The entire cargo was destroyed and the vessel badly damaged.

SHIP'S CREW HAD BEEN ADRIFT ON ICE FLOES

St. John's, N. F., March 5.—Adrift on ice floes and facing momentary death, the crew of the three-masted British schooner A. E. Bartaux, from Perth Amboy, N. J., were rescued by the Norwegian steamer Hauk, off the Newfoundland coast yesterday, after their vessel had foundered, a radio message received here today said.

The story of the rescue was relayed by the steamer Silvia, due here tonight from Halifax, which said she spoke to the Norwegian steamer today and learned of the loss of the schooner in the heavy ice, and the perilous plight of the sailors on the drifting floes. The Hauk, 15 days from Sydney to St. John's, coal laden, took the men from adrift ice after the crew's desperate signals attracted the attention of the Norwegian vessel.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR SEIZURE OF LIQUOR

Philadelphia, March 5.—Liquors said to be valued at more than half a million dollars were seized today by enforcement agents in a raid on the brewery of John Frederich, William Frederich, a son of the proprietor, and John Sachs, a foreman in the plant, were arrested. They were alleged to have been pouring whiskey from barrels into bottles and placing counterfeit labels and revenue stamps on the bottles when the agents arrived.

SOLDIERS BONUS BILL PASSED IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, Ind., March 5.—A soldiers bonus bill was passed by the Indiana senate this afternoon 27 to 19. As it already had been passed by the house, it now goes to the governor.

The measure provides for a bonus of $10 for each month of service for veterans of the World war and of the Spanish-American war. The minimum which a veteran may receive is $20 and the maximum $500.

HEAVY VOTE AT DEM. PRIMARY IN DANBURY

Danbury, March 5.—James E. Cuff, former postmaster here, was nominated for mayor at the democratic primary held tonight, defeating D. Frank Stevens by almost 400 votes. It was the largest democratic primary ever held here, 2,300 votes being cast.

Employments of every trades and soldiers to move coal from the railroad embargo in Massachusetts to the consuming points within that state so as to relieve the present shortage was suggested to Secretary Weeks by Representative Dallinger, Massachusetts.

116 CASES OF SEIZED LIQUORS ARE MISSING

Philadelphia, March 5.—Eighty-one cases of 116 cases of whiskey in the stock confiscated by prohibition agents when they raided the warehouse of I. L. Lipschutz several weeks ago, was reported today after an inventory by United States Marshal Mathews. The stock had been ordered transferred to the marshal's custody by the federal district court.

According to the report, John T. Doyle, state prohibition director, when ordered to turn the liquors over to the marshal, tendered an inventory of the amount supposed to have been in the warehouse. The marshal's deputies declared they had found the number of cases and bottles corresponded but that 116 cases were empty. No empty cases or bottles were listed on Director Doyle's report. Marshal Mathews declined to receive the empty cases.

TEN DAYS IN WORKHOUSE FOR SPEEDERS IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, March 5.—Speeders found guilty of driving faster than thirty miles an hour in Cleveland beginning tomorrow will have the alternative of serving minimum sentences of ten days in the workhouse or forfeiting the right to use their cars for thirty days to six months, Municipal Judge Samuel H. Silbert announced late today.

Declaring that merely sending speeders to jail had not broken up the speed menace and that some new device had to be used, Judge Silbert asked the Cleveland safety council to prepare a list of garages and warehouses for use as "pounds." There were fifteen deaths from traffic accidents so far this year, as compared with ten in the same period last year, it was pointed out.

DE HAVILAND ARMY PLANES READY FOR INSPECTION

Montgomery, Ala., March 5.—Repairs are almost completed and a final inspection tomorrow noon will find the six De Haviland army planes ready to continue on their journey to the West Indies, after a stopover here since Sunday afternoon.

A change in the route of flight has been decided upon since the arrival of the aviators in Montgomery and the planes will go from here to Jacksonville, Fla., instead of Arcadia, Fla., as was announced when the trip started at San Antonio last Friday, it was said here today.

PATROLMAN GAVE POOR IMITATION OF DANCE

New York, March 5.—Patrolman Ulysses Boetig lost his case today when he rose solemnly in Magistrate Bytttenberg's court and shook his 200 pounds of burly through the measures of a "dance" he alleged he had caught two performers doing at the Columbia theatre last night, in violation of the Sunday laws thereafter made and provided.

The court promptly ruled that what Patrolman Boetig had showed him wasn't a dance, and accepted the explanation of the performers' lawyer that they had been merely "disstepping" their way off the stage at the time.

MANY CONGRESSMEN SAIL FOR THE PANAMA CANAL

New York, March 5.—A score of congressmen, many accompanied by their wives and children, sailed on the Cristobal today, for the Panama Canal, with a call at Port Au Prince, Hayti. The party will be gone until March 26, making a round trip on the steamship, with six days in the canal zone in which to see the sights.

[illegible] Have Full Tax Rate [illegible] Whole Fo[illegible] Stand in New York Challenged By Wife.

[illegible] March 5.—Wife [illegible] agent scouring [illegible] and Soviet [illegible] cleaning out their [illegible] of celluloid ribbon [illegible] Lenin, pen-styled "spider" [illegible] pen signed to his death today, while attempting to scale the side of the Hotel Martinique.

Women fainted and disorder ensued. Police reserves had to be called before the body could be removed and traffic re-started.

Among those who crowded Greeley square, watching the performer at his stunt was his wife, with whom he had just lunched.

The square was packed when Young appeared, clinging to points of vantage on the 23rd story elevated station. There were dozens of cameramen. Windows of every skyscraper in the vicinity were filled with men and women, laughing and talking excitedly as Young began his climb. The police estimated the crowd at 20,000.

Young wore a white shirt, dark trousers and white shoes, which marked in outline his figure against the dark wall. On his back hung a sign reading "Safety last"—for Young was an incorporator of the "Safety Last" society, formed last week by human flies, parachute jumpers and "kids" of adventurous liking. Those organization caused them to be listed by insurance companies as "bad risks."

The "spider" began his ascent at the south end of the hotel. He climbed up a surface that seemed from the street absolutely sheer, but which here and there had small indentations in which the performer was able to cling with fingers or toes.

Young apparently knew he was to meet death. People in windows past which he climbed said later that they heard him muttering to himself:

"I can't make it. I can't make it! But he kept on.

When he reached the tenth floor his foot slipped. Down he plunged.

Falling close to the wall, he crashed in to the balcony. His body was deflected out into the street. Below there was a canopy for safety.

Young crashed onto a small island of pavement surrounded by iron railings. He landed instantly, dead.

Young, who was 25 years old, had lived in this city, had engaged in stunts for several years. His card proclaimed him "America's unique and original steeplejack" and announced that work was guaranteed "on flagstaffs, church steeples, water tanks and impossible places to reach." He had performed many times for the Red Cross and many times had scaled Broadway buildings. He leaves a widow and a son eight years old.

The climb which Young bore on his body was taken to indicate that his [illegible] was [illegible] advertising [illegible] "Safety Last society," whose [illegible] tion to seek a representative to [illegible] here today with incorporation papers was abandoned last week.

In his pocket, however, was found a contract with a motion picture concern and from another source it was reported that a new picture soon to be put on the screen would feature a human-fly stunt. The contract set forth that "in consideration of $1 and other considerations to him, his heirs and personal representatives," he released the motion picture concern from any claim should he meet mishap in his climb today.

The fact that a large battery of movie camera recorded the beginning and end of Young's adventure raised a question as to the probable course of some producers who might, desire to release new films. At the office of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, it was stated that office could not attempt to censor the action of any theatre managers nor could there be any prohibition from showing the details of the affair. It was said that strong reliance was placed on the good taste of producers and managers, precluding any possibility of scenes of a morbid nature being shown anywhere.

WILLARD E. WOOD HAS PLEADED NOT GUILTY

Boston, March 5. — Willard E. Wood, of this city, who was arrested today charged with having used the mails to defraud, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes and was released on his own recognizance until tomorrow when $1,000 bail will be required until his hearing.

Federal officers said that Wood misused the mails by sending false statements regarding the royal American training corps for the purpose of appropriating for his own use any money he received.

They said that Wood described the corps as organized to promote loyalty and americanism among its members, to train boys and grown men in military tactics and that the system was authorized by the war department. It was recalled that Wood was arrested during the war on a charge of wearing the uniform of an army officer without proper authority.

Wood's arrest was the result of a letter which is said to have been written Lowell Pyngton, wealthy society woman of this city, who was one of the benefactors of the corps.

TWO FIFTY-GALLON STILLS SEIZED IN EAST HAVEN

New Haven, March 5.—Two fifty-gallon stills, one in operation, and 27 gallons of liquor were seized in East Haven today by federal officers who raided a barn owned by Alfonso Tuccio, who was arrested. The officers also arrested Anthony Casco, driver of an automobile which escaped while the raid was in progress, declaring that containers for liquor were found in the car. Both men will be given a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Bernard E. Lynch tomorrow.

MACKENZIE TO QUIT AS PROHIBITION DIRECTOR

Waterbury, March 5.—It became known here today that Harry M. Mackenzie, federal prohibition director for Connecticut, is to quit the service. It was stated in official circles that the resignation has already been forwarded to Commissioner Haynes.

Major Charles A. Templeton, who is mentioned for appointment as state prohibition commissioner, could not be reached for comment today.

CHARGE CONSPIRACY TO VIOLATE THE "DRY" LAWS

New York, March 5.—Indictments charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws through the illegal sale of thousands of gallons of liquors were returned by the federal grand jury today against Isadore Rappaport, president; H. Kahn, treasurer, and Max Kahn, secretary of the Pharmaceutical Supply Company, Inc.

The indictment charged that from December, 1921, until May, 1923, the defendants who held a permit to furnish liquor to druggists, drew about 11,700 gallons of liquor from warehouses and disposed of at least 11,000 gallons of it to bootleggers.

In an effort to deceive prohibition and internal revenue officials, the indictment stated, the company submitted 113 fraudulent and forged receipts indicating that the liquor had been disposed of to druggists in the proper way.

Some of the liquor obtained by the supply company, it was stated, was drawn on bona fide permits, from the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse company stocks.

VOLSTEAD GIVEN WATCH AS A TOKEN OF ESTEEM

Washington, March 5.—Andrew J. Volstead, retiring chairman of the house judiciary committee, today met with his colleagues for the last time around the table on which the prohibition enforcement act was drafted, and received a gold watch as a token of esteem.

Representative Dyer, republican, Missouri, presided. He told Mr. Volstead that although the membership had not been unanimous on all of committee, there was no division in the opinion that he had proved to be an earnest and able member of congress. Representative Dominick, democrat, South Carolina, thanked Mr. Volstead for his fairness as a presiding officer.

Accepting the gift, the author of the dry law, who was defeated for re-election, declared he had no personal ambition to return to congress. He said he was sorry the prohibition act had overshadowed so far as publicity was concerned, other equally important work of the committee.

"There have been other measures for which we should receive equal credit—or blame?" he added, with a smile.

AMERICAN COAL IS TO BE SHIPPED TO GERMANY

Norfolk, Va., March 5.—Shipment of American coal to Germany, said to be a result of the French seizure of the Ruhr mines, will begin from Hampton Roads in cargo lots, this week.

Two vessels, the British Vetura De Larrinzgan and Norwegian Hallgrim, both in port here after loading cargoes of coal at the Newport News terminals will leave for German ports. A third vessel is understood to be chartered for the same purpose.

SALUDES MURDER CASE MAY REACH JURY TODAY

New York, March 5.—The defense in the trial of Mrs. Gaetana Saludes, Dyckman, woman charged with the slaying of Genaro Mancellitero, broker, in his office last October, completed its case today after presenting evidence to show that Mrs. Saludes was goaded into her act by the broker's attempts to swindle her out of her property.

The summing up will be made tomorrow forenoon and it is expected the case will go to the jury in the afternoon.

[illegible] Denies a Bogus Appointment as Comptroller of the Currency—Remarks Statements Given Out by Senator Couzens as Completely False—Never Had Borrowed Money From the First National Bank of El Paso Without Security—Facts Had Been Submitted in the Senate Committee.

Washington, March 5.—James G. McNary of New Mexico, whose nomination for comptroller of the currency failed of ratification, was offered a recess appointment today by President Harding, but replied that he could not accept.

Afterward it was announced that D. R. Crissinger, the present comptroller, would remain in office for the present, despite the fact that he had been nominated and confirmed as governor of the federal reserve board.

Reasons for Mr. McNary's refusal to take a recess appointment was expressed by White House officials, who said that for a long time the president had sought a southern man for comptroller and that the selection finally had been made without any solicitation on the part of Mr. McNary.

Announcement of the latest step taken in the row over the comptrollership was made after a conference between the president, Mr. McNary and Mr. Crissinger. A letter from Mr. McNary later was made public at the White House.

"I fail to express my great appreciation of the high honor you have again conferred upon me by reappointing me with a recess appointment for the office of comptroller of the currency," he wrote.

"I am most grateful to you for your continued confidence and friendship and for your unfailing support during the contest to prevent my confirmation.

"No one knows as well as you that I did not seek the office. To take this office means for only severing all present banking connections, but debars me from renewing them for two years after leaving office. Also acceptance of the office means very considerable financial sacrifice to the as well as the comfort and happiness of my family.

"After careful consideration I have been unable to convince myself I should take up the control of the office without the full authority of confirmation which was denied me by unfair tactics.

"I have decided that you will permit me to decline the recess appointment with my most sincere appreciation and gratitude."

Tonight Mr. McNary issued this statement:

"The tender of the recess appointment by the president speaks for itself and I have stated in my letter to him my reasons for declining it.

"Heretofore I have refrained from making any public statement as to the controversy that has gone on over my confirmation as comptroller of the currency, and I dislike to have to do so now, but feel that it has been made necessary by the statement given to the press by Senator Couzens.

"The statement given out by Senator Couzens is so completely false that, in justice to myself and my friends and the senate committee that recommended my confirmation, it must be replied to. It is in direct conflict with the records from which Senator Couzens pretends to quote and with the facts submitted to the committee on which it made its report recommending my confirmation.

"First, for instance, the statement that I had borrowed from $5,000 to $17,000 from the First National bank of El Paso without security is utterly false, as shown by the records of the bank and by the facts submitted to the senate committee.

"Second, the statement that sixty-two times during a period of six months the bank was in a position of having a suit instituted for the forfeiture of its charter, is false in every particular.

"Third, the statement that the bank and I had speculated in sugar is false, neither ever having speculated in sugar to the extent of a dollar.

"The statement that a loan was made by any officer of the bank after the board of directors had declined to approve, is wholly false.

"These are but specimens of the entire falsity of the statement. One more must be mentioned.

"Senator Couzens says, 'Mr. McNary has told me that he contributed $20,000 to the national republican campaign fund.'

"Senator Couzens knew, when he made that statement that I had made no such statement to him and in the only two conversations I ever had with him in my life, the subject of campaign contributions was not even mentioned."

RETIRING MEMBERS OF CONGRESS CLEAN HOUSE

Washington, March 5.—A negro janitor, with mop and bucket was the solitary occupant of the house galleries today as page boys organized a mock legislative body to pass numerous bill and resolutions which failed in the crowding days of the 67th congress.

After that ceremony the doors of the house and senate chambers were closed, to remain so until December, unless President Harding should call congress into extraordinary session.

The principal activities at the capitol today consisted of efforts of retiring members to clear their offices and get home as quickly as possible. Great piles of junk littered the corridors, keeping the clean-up squad on the jump. Copies of bills and reports, no longer wanted, were taken away by the cartful.

There also was a scurrying for more desirable office space by members who will be in the next congress. Under existing custom, new comers must take what is left after the "veterans" chose the more desirable rooms.

SENATOR GLASS TO PRESS THE CHONKHITE INQUIRY

Washington, March 5.—If the war department fails to act in the case of Major General Cronkhite, retired, Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, according to plans outlined today by him, will introduce a resolution when congress reconvenes for a George Washington by the senate military committee.

A like resolution of investigation was drafted last week by Senator Glass, but he was informed that it would meet with objection and he withheld it, convinced that the short time before adjournment made adoption impossible. The senator said he prepared his resolution when informed that the war department did not regard evidence of alleged tampering with official files bearing on the death at Camp Lewis in 1918 of Major A. F. Cronkhite, the general's son, as sufficient to warrant action by a board of inquiry.

"There should be a thorough investigation," said Mr. Glass, today. "If the war department does not act during the recess I shall press my resolution as soon as the senate reconvenes."

GERMANY IS NEGOTIATING WITH ITALY FOR NITRATES

Berlin, March 5.—Germany has already begun direct negotiations with Italy regarding deliveries of nitrates on the reparation account, according to official announcement. A statement to this effect has been sent to the reparations commission in reply to an invitation that Germany enter into conference relative to such deliveries by Germany, Belgium and Italy.

The reply declares that because of the Ruhr occupation the German government is not in a position to make deliveries to France and Belgium, and, therefore could not send representatives to the contemplated conference, which was fixed for today.

ABOUT 14,000 EXHIBITORS AT THE LEIPSIC FAIR

Leipsic, March 5.—Heavy price reductions on standard commodities formed the chief feature of the second week of Leipsic's spring fair. The attendance showed a still better progress, exceed from thirty to fifty per cent, while foreign buyers from 40 to 50 per cent.

Villa, the Filipino boxer, lost his title to Frankie Genaro at Madison Square Garden last week.

O'Rourke said he had signed Villa in preference to Genaro because a majority of the newspapers had given Villa the decision. As matters now stand, the reverse would be true, he said.

Villa will receive 37 1-2 per cent of the gate receipts and Kilkenny 12 1-2 per cent, O'Rourke said. No guarantees have been made to the boxers.

MAYFLOWER TO HAVE AUXILIARY ENGINE

Gloucester, Mass, March 5.—The Mayflower, smartest schooner of the American fisheries under sail, having fought her vessel to match speed with her in 17 years of international fishermen's racing is to be cut down and equipped with a motor. Sporting considerations have been cast aside by the Boston syndicate that owns her, and they have written off a loss of $12,000 incurred in the five year effort to have the Mayflower recognized as a fisherman eligible to compete for the Halifax Herald championship cup. The ship built in the schooner from the design of Starling Burgess, which caused her to be declared more nearly racht than fisherman, will never be tested as planned, although she may be raced in her revised form with the engine sealed.

The decision of the Mayflower Associates, Inc, which owns the fisherman, to have her converted into an auxiliary vessel, became known today when the schooner was towed here under bare poles to have a 100 horsepower engine installed, and to have her lofty masts and slender spars cut down to take a reduced sail area.

Under the new conditions, the Mayflower's owners expect she will stock enough fish, and be able to run to market and back in all weather fast enough to make her high-liner of the Boston-Gloucester fleets. The difficulty with the crew will be obviated with an engine aboard, they say.

PIRATES ADVANCE GUARD LEAVES FOR SOUTH

Pittsburgh, March 5.—The advance forces of the Pittsburg National league baseball club, made up of batterymen, left here tonight, to begin the spring training at Hot Springs, Ark. They were led by Manager Bill McKechnie, who was optimistic when asked about the prospects of the Pirates in 1922. "Barring accidents and real bad luck, the situation looks good," said the pilot.

McKechnie said he was pleased to learn a friend of Walter Schmidt, veteran catcher, had been advised that Schmidt, "may report" at Hot Springs with the other players next week. He said he knew nothing officially about it. When Schmidt reported late year the Pirates were at the bottom of the league. In a few weeks, Pittsburg advanced to a leading position. He has not signed a 1922 contract.

Manager McKechnie said he would discard the old practice program this season, calling on the players for only one session a day.

DON'T HAVE TO SHOOT TO CHASTISE, SAYS KID

New York, March 5.—Kid Cotton, a negro pugilist noted several years ago as a fistic sharpshooter, today was held in $1,000 bail pending examination on a charge of carrying a pistol.

The kid, whose real name is Sylvester, and who has been employed for several years as a stevedore, was arrested last night while winning an impromptu fistic encounter with a dusky brother who called him a "sissy." The kid had just got warmed up and sent his opponent to the gutter for a short count, when a patrolman appeared.

The patrolman said he found a pistol

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Mentholatum

First cold may turn into "Flu." Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Mentholatum on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are mainly congestion. Mentholatum, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the many-old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

TEAMS BUNCHED AT END OF 23rd HOUR

New York, March 5.—The twenty-second hour of the 24th international six day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden was reached at 10 o'clock tonight with all fifteen teams strolling away on even terms. The Fitzsimmons-Spencer pair having broke up the lap, lost last night. Drobach, who is teamed with Chivot, was in the lead.

The teams had traversed 433 miles and six laps, far behind the record set in 1914 at 483 miles and six laps by Lawrence and Magin. The regular night sprints were featured by terrific riding followed a "jam" started by Manley, whose partner, Magin, helped set the pace during his relief.

BIG LEAGUERS HAVE LAY OFF FROM PRACTICE

Hot Springs, Ark., March 5.—Rain which fell all day kept the big league baseball players indoors today and halted the spring training golf and mountain climbing.

Frank Chance, manager of the Boston Red Sox, with secretary Graver, inspected the playing grounds and got better acquainted with the squad of recruits who have arrived.

Babe Ruth left here to-night again on a return visit to his home which put him in bad last week. He suddenly recovered and will depart for New Orleans with Shawkey and Hunt Wednesday. The other Yankee players left for New Orleans this morning.

ALL SEATS SOLD FOR MENTONE TENNIS TOURNEY

Mentone, France, March 5.—(By the Associated Press)—All the reserved seats for the fifth day of the Mentone tennis tournament were sold today when play began in the opening round. Owing to the absence of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory who drew bye, many of the seats were not occupied during the day's play.

No upset took place in the matches contested this morning and this afternoon all the favorites winning. Mlle. Lenglen and Mrs. Mallory will play in the singles tomorrow in the second round. Both are expected to easily win their matches and meet one another in the quarter finals Thursday.

SIKI AND WIFE ARRIVE IN DUBLIN FOR BOUT

Dublin, March 5.—(By the Associated Press)—"Battling" Siki, his wife and his sparring partners arrived in Dublin tonight from Queenstown. The Senegalese fighter was cordially received by the crowds at the station. He immediately drove to Howth where he will train for his bout on St. Patrick's day with Mike McTigue. McTigue is putting in the finishing touches to his training at Lucan.

On alternate days the fighters will give public performances in a Dublin theater. Both men are said to be in good condition for the coming bout, in which there is great interest.

LOCAL BOY HAS BROKEN MANY TRACK RECORDS

Peter Markey, local boy, who has broken many motorcycle records in Florida and France, has returned to this city for a brief stay. Markey has been racing in Florida recently and hung up a number of records among which was the beach record at Miami, and the seven-lap track record there. In France he shattered the board track mark and last year set a new Canadian record for one hour's steady riding.

WALKER OUTCLASSES GILL BY LARGE MARGIN

Philadelphia, March 5.—Mickey Walker, holder of the welterweight title, completely outclassed Johnny Gill, of York, Pa., in an eight round no-decision, bout tonight. In the third round the champion knocked Gill down twice with lefts and rights to the jaw and throughout the remainder of the fight continued to batter him around the ring. Gill frequently resorted to clinching to save himself. Walker weighed 144 1-2 and Gill 153.

Baltic Basketball

The Baltic Bantams have three games slated for this week. WORLD'S TENNIS TITLE NOT TO BE DECIDED AT WIMBLEDON

London, March 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The Lawn Tennis Association today unanimously decided to abandon the practice of awarding the worthless title to the winner of the Wimbledon tournament. It also voted to hand over to the international rules board the right to make and amend the laws of the game.

These decisions are designed to remove the last obstacle to America's entry into the international federation.

In outmaneuvering their foes, the English tennis rulers took steps to prevent other countries from doing it. In a resolution which is being placed before the national tennis governing bodies, providing that the world title for grass, covered and hard courts shall not be removed save by consent of the international federation, the meeting voted to insert the word "unanimous" before the word "consent."

Some of the speakers voiced a warning that after clearing all troubles with America this eleventh hour intervention might prove a most objectionable to America, and the resolution was so amended that the British delegation to the international meeting, to be held in [illegible] will be empowered to grant consent by a majority vote.

Speakers favoring unanimous consent to revise the title declared that terms of England alone did not want this title to exist she could prevent it. Felix Horner, a former member of the council of the tennis association, was in opposition: "Let us give it up without reservation. We have never been my mind, been frank, friendly and fair to America in this matter."

Shouts of "no!" revealed that his opinion was not shared by some of the others present.

APPLEBY EASILY WINS MATCH WITH RENNER

New York, March 5.—Edgar T. Appleby, of New York, the defending champion, easily defeated Emil A. Renner, of Youngstown, 300 to 181, tonight in the first match of the final round for the national class A amateur 18.2 balk-line billiard championship. It was Appleby's first appearance in the tournament and the only final round contest of the day.

In the first of the two preliminary round matches, deferred from last week, Francis S. Appleby, century title holder and brother of the national champion, defeated Edward W. Gardner, of Mountclair, N. J., 300 to 235. It gained Appleby a place in the finals and eliminated Gardner from the tournament.

John A. Clinton, Jr., of Pittsburg, gained one of the other two places in the finals by defeating T. Henry Clarkson, of New York, 300 to 83, by a brilliant display of billiards in the most one-sided game of the day.

The fifth finalist is P. M. Collins, of Chicago who drew the bye today.

KINGSELLA WILL MEET COVEY FOR SQUASH TITLE

New York, March 5.—Walter A. Kingsella, of New York, professional court tennis champion of the United States, announced tonight that he again would meet George S. Covey, of England, world's champion, in a title match in London May 1, 9, and 12. He received acceptance of his challenge today. The first to win seven sets will take the title; four sets will be played each day.

In his first assault on Covey's title last May at that person's club, Kingsella lost seven sets to three. He was not in his best physical condition then but now feels he is approaching his best game and expects to be in excellent condition when he sails March 7, in time to be acclimated.

The contestants will divide the gate receipts; two-thirds to the winner, in addition to a side bet of $500 placed each. Kingsella will play a number of exhibition matches in various parts of England before the championship match.

THE SIXTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

The fact that the sixty-seventh congress broke the record for the length of time it was in session did not prevent the country from feeling glad that its work is at an end and that it will be free from its leaders for a period of many months. There has been a rush of legislation crammed for consideration, including many of the greatest importance, which this congress has the responsibility of passing upon. The unfinished business of previous congresses increased these jobs, and there have been those who seemed to think all such records should be made and passed in one session.

For a congress that had such an unpromising beginning it has accomplished much to commend. Even the very fact that it was in session so long shows that it was not content to throw all such records to one side, thereby adding to the work and passing out pet measures.

The congress that had such an unpromising beginning is that which has accomplished much to commend. Even the very fact that it was in session so long shows that it was not content to throw all such records to one side, thereby adding to the work and passing out pet measures.

Likewise it was the first congress that has enforced upon the citizens, at home and abroad, a realization of conditions and demonstrated how much better off we all would be if all kinds of combinations of power, especially power representing public trusts, dealt with a situation with the intelligence to discover instead of the ignorance necessary to a selfish attempt to take short cuts and get by.

The congress has come down to the record of work it accomplished with credit, if not content to deal with large financial problems including the much needed refunding of the foreign debt (a pet thought for Britain) and statesmanship of the highest order, though, considering the circumstances and the results achieved it is to be considered.

After all the comments, however, which it has been deemed to offer, praise and decry. There have been those who complained more than a little at the inactivity of a Republican administration at a Republican congress, but the fact remains that the Republicans will be remembered.

What the next congress will bring forth no one knows, with the voters and the indignant shepherds of the sick just about divided as to which is the sick.

MOTOR TRUCK TRAFFIC.

To the idea of building system highways for the purpose of accommodating the increasing truck traffic there has been much objection. It has been urged that such systems of transportation which they have been developed to the point where the existing highways are overcrowded by them should remain in their state of their own, built and operated by themselves quite the same as the railroads have done.

That all do not think so is indicated by the view of H. G. Church, engineer of the port of New York, who holds that the short haul feature has been taken care of by the motor truck—it does a degree that there is a demand for regulations on the highways and to merge "motor truck highways, built with enough to accommodate several lines of motor-life vehicles, lighted for day and night service, equipped with telephone service for emergency calls for drivers in trouble; both sides erected heavy traffic centers according with the truck lines, and the truck lines continue in principle as railway traffic is controlled by the trunk line transportation system."

That should be an interesting plan to put many millions of dollars from the taxed but the building of costly roads to accommodate the auto-truck traffic, of encouraging the line of transportation to the detriment of the other.

That the truck holds its power is the point where there is need of much greater regulation is evidenced by the effort being made in Kansas legislature to put such regulation, and while many motor truck owners oppose admit it that there were laws they have other to demand upon them would enforce the sensible regulations. It is thought (in Britain) that standardization will do this kind of traffic, though, considering the various types of trucks and vehicles it is to be considered.

Aside from the economics, however, which it has been hoped to obtain speed and decay. There have been those who complained more than a little at the inactivity of a Republican administration at a Republican congress, but the fact remains that the Republicans will be remembered.

What the next congress will bring forth no one knows, with the voters and the indignant shepherds of the sick just about divided as to which is the sick.

TOWN TAX OF 28 MILLS.
WOMAN CLERK ACTS

In the adjourned annual town meeting Monday night the tax assessor's present voted a 28-mill tax on all the items as last year. The business of the meeting was completed in two sessions.

The meeting made history for the town as for the first time on record a woman was elected and kept the minutes, Miss Mary G. Ward, assistant town clerk, serving in this capacity as Town Clerk Charles E. Maldoon was unable to attend because of illness. As Miss Ward stepped to the desk at the opening of the meeting she was greeted with a burst of applause.

When Town Counsel P. H. Petty called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock Chet Preston was elected to preside. The others were First Selectman C. M. Bailey, Miss Ward, the assistant town clerk, Tax Collector Harold T. Robinson, Registrars Tyler D. Guy and Geraldine J. Downes, Webster D. Copp, John W. Cunningham and two newspaper men.

Town Counsel Petty addressed the gathering as "lady and gentlemen," proceeding to explain that there was another matter of business besides levying the tax. He said that at the annual town meeting in October a resolution was passed to issue school bonds, of w ich the amount could not then be determined and it was necessary to rescind that vote now in order to pass a resolution on the amount of bonds.

On motion of Mr. Guy this previous vote was re. inded and Mr. Guy also offered another resolution, which was read by the clerk for the issue of $250,000 in school bonds to take care of the erection of the Elizabeth street school, purchase of land on Stanton avenue and debts of the school districts. The bonds are to be dated March 15, 1932, and $10,000 is to b paid off each year from 1934 to 1953, with $11,000 each year from 1940 to 1942. The interest rate is 4 1-4 per cent.

The issue of bonds was voted.

On motion of Mr. Downes the meeting voted the resolution for the 28 mill tax, of which 1-2 mill is for the sinking fund and the balance for general town expenses.

This concluded the business and the meeting adjourned.

In an attendance contest for the Sundays of March between the Men's Forum of the First English church of New London and the City Bible Class of the Central Baptist church, the Norwich men started in the lead Sunday. Last Sunday the Norwich class had 113 men present which was 341 per cent attendance. The New London Forum had 59 attendance, which was 337 per cent attendance.

Entertained Sanatorium Patients.

The Hebrew Ladies' Auxiliary entertained the patients of the tuberculosis sanatorium Monday evening and the affair proved an enjoyable one for the patients and entertainers alike. QUARTETTE FIRES PROGRAM
BEFORE MUSIC ASSOCIATION

The March meeting of the Norwich Music association was held in Slater hall Monday evening, March 5th. The program for the evening was presented by a mixed quartet consisting of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, Miss Hazel Bassett, Dr. D. H. Taylor and Charles H. Caswell, who have sung together in Willimantic for several years. It was the comment at the close of the evening that the program given had been one of the most delightful of the season.

The unusual blending of the four voices made for a quartet of a quality unlooked for save in the larger cities and effected a most pleasing ensemble.

The program opened with a song cycle entitled Wind Flowers by Arthur Somerville, with words by Christina Rossetti, R. L. Stevenson, Sidney Dobell and Shelley. The cycle was made up mainly of numbers for the quartet, with solos for tenor, contralto and a single duet for soprano and contralto.

Opportunity was afforded in the second half of the program for each member to be heard in solo numbers as well as Dr. Taylor and Mr. Caswell in duet which was delightfully done.

This part of the program included: The Fields of Ballyclare, Florence T. Maley, Sweet o' the Year Mary Turner Salter, Mrs. Buckingham; On the Shore, Neidlinger, The Living God, Geoffrey O'Hara, C. H. Caswell: In This Solemn Hour, from La Forza Del Destino, G. Verdi, Messrs. Taylor and Caswell: Into the Dawn to Be, T. Wilkinson Stevenson, In My Garden, Samuel Liddle, Miss Hanfield: In the Steppe, A. Gratchaninow, Lift Thine Eyes, Frederick K. Logan, Dr. Taylor; Prayer of Thanksgiving, Old Netherlands, quartet.

Each number on the program was cordially and enthusiastically received. Mrs. Caswell at the piano added much to the completeness of the evening's pleasure.

The next meeting has been postponed to Monday, April 16, at which the nominating committee, Mrs. Charles Tyler Ward, Miss Marion G. Beebe and Mrs. Channing M. Huntington, will report.

VOTERS TURN DOWN NEW HIGHWAY PLAN
(Special to The Bulletin.)

Mystic, March 5.—At a special town meeting at the town hall in Pequonnoc Monday evening the voters turned down the proposition of laying a new highway over Baptist Hill into Mystic. The present highway has been a source of many accidents owing to two dangerous curves and one bad hill and the proposed road would eliminate all these. C. C. Custello spoke in favor of the proposed road and Attorney Benjamin H. Hewitt spoke in opposition.

The chief argument against the project was the large expense that it would entail and the amount of property damage by laying the new highway. The vote on the question was 121 against and 61 in favor of the proposition.

PUTNAM

A trainload of automobiles for the local railroad yards Monday morning marked the beginning of what promises to be a busy season for the railroad this year. Like another train load that was hauled through this city during the past month, these cars all were of the same and were destined for the New England agent with his headquarters in Boston. There were three automobiles in each flat car of the train, and of the machines on each car being set with one resting upon a steel frame, the other end of the machine on the floor of the car. Each machine was covered with a tarpaulin. The long string of flat cars stretched away through the yards and were watched with interest by many who were about at the noon hour. This trainload of cars was said to represent well over $150,000. They were of a well known make and were shipped from Detroit.

A special city meeting with Mayor Victor Chamberlain presiding and with City Clerk Thomas E. Ryan acting as clerk, passed the city budget Monday morning, the figures in each case being as recommended by the common council. City Treasurer Charles H. Brown requested that the meeting increase the general expense item from $4,000 to $10,000, in order that enough money be made available to meet expense that will be occurred during the present fiscal year in various departments of the city, but the meeting, attended by a few more than a dozen voters, declined to do this.

At the rate of progress that has been maintained since the job was under taken it would appear that the debris at the Dunham block, destroyed by fire less than two weeks ago, will have been entirely cleaned up by the end of the present week.

During Monday the clearing up process was rushed along and many truck loads of charred wood and many dump carts filled with ashes and other waste from the fire were removed. Those who had stores or offices in the building were represented among those engaged in the salvage work and satisfaction of material was being kept in order that nothing of value might be thrown away. A surprising amount of material has been recovered up to the present and kept for use in the future.

Elizabeth Keegan, 75, wife of John Keegan is dead at her home in the town of Thompson, where she had been a resident for years. Mrs. Keegan was a sister of the late Mayor Edward Murphy of this city. She was a native of Ireland, but practically all of her life had been spent in this country.

At a session of the city court Monday morning Judge Mahlon H. Geissler sentenced Charles Gerard of North Grosvenordale to serve 10 days in the county jail and to pay the costs of prosecution on an intoxication charge. Gerard's case was what the attorney declared was an inside case—this in view of the fact that Gerard claimed to have obtained liquor before coming to this city, brought it along inside of him.

Michael Smith, a Killingly man, who was to have faced a charge of having been intoxicated, did not appear, so the bond of $35 he had posted to obtain his released was ordered forfeited.

Because the period is not yet at hand when coal fires can be dispensed with in many homes in Putnam, the fuel shortage continues to be a matter of concern for a great many. However, the mild weather that prevailed the latter part of the past week and through Sunday allowed of heating homes with a lesser amount of fuel than has been required at any time during the winter. The change in the perfect sky has helped clear up a great quantity of snow and ice, though much remains. The snow is said to be quite deep in the woods as yet.

Boards of residents of this city are numbered among those who signed petitions in favor of the bill that would allow bathing in Alexander's lake, the bill having been up for a hearing at the state capitol on Friday last. It is anticipated that the committee on public health may report on the bill this week and there is quite interest here in the chances that the measure may receive a number of Putnam people's votes at the lake, and thereby obtain this city's first bathing privileges.

Fire, if any, began in the basement of the Putnam Congregational church, the second fire here within a week, after the old wooden edifice on the corner of Church and Main streets had been destroyed by fire. The fire was discovered by Sexton Frank Bowen, who turned in the alarm. The fire department responded promptly, but the damage had been done before the arrival of the apparatus. The loss is estimated at $5,000, covered by insurance.

Miss Frances Bothwell, who has been spending a few days in New York on a business trip, returned home.

Because of the small amount of frost in the ground those who use country highways feel that they will not have as much difficulty on these roads this coming spring as usually is the case.

A regular monthly meeting of the Putnamian club is scheduled for this (Tuesday) evening.

Let's make those who fail to chip in when the collection plate is passing also the first to criticize the pastor.

In a deplorable condition, deeply rutted and flanked with high banks of snow and ice.

A number of members resident in this city will be in Danielson a week from Friday evening to attend the Danielson Rod and Gun club banquet at which Superintendent J. W. Titcomb of the state fish and game commission is to speak.

A special meeting of the common council is scheduled for this (Tuesday) evening to elect a successor to Eugene Dufault, democratic member from Ward 2. Mr. Dumas resigned recently because of the fact of his plans to leave Putnam. Mr. Dumas is going to St. Johnsbury, Vt., to take a position as an assistant foreman on state highway construction work.

State road surfaces in this territory are being damaged by heavy traffic as the snow and ice disappears and frost begins to leave the ground. In some sections the surfaces have broken through and ruts of some depth cut in. The condition is no worse, however, than is usually experienced in the late winter period.

The Chocker Girls in a lively musical comedy entertained the patrons of the Bradley theatre at Monday's shows.

Thursday and Friday will be session days in the superior court in this city this week. A case is assigned for trial Thursday and Friday will be for short calendar matters, including uncontested divorces.

Thompson people are interested in announcements of the coming marriage at the Old South church in Boston of the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elliott Proctor Joslin of that city to Henry Stuart Ortt of New York.

A Phoenixville weather prophet predicts that, as a whole, March will be a severe month and cold. This forecast is based on the fact that two eclipses, one of the sun and one of the moon, occur during March.

Wood choppers in the surrounding country will be busy right into the summer this year. Wood has been hauled out and sold practically as fast as cut this winter, so the choppers will continue at work building a supply of fuel for next fall, when the price of coal will remain high.

Hyde Smith, of Worcester was in town Monday on a business trip.

To Dainty People

Who don't want dingy film on teeth

This clean-your-teeth method millions now employ. It is used the world over—in some 30 countries—by people who want to fight film.

You see the results everywhere. Note clean, bright beauty shown in fascinating teeth. Now we urge you to learn, by a delightful test, how such teeth are acquired.

Film—the great enemy

Film is the modern great enemy that discolors, dims and destroys. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Food stains, discolors it. Then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why beautiful teeth are seldom clean and safe.

Film holds food substances which ferment and form acids. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That's why few escape tooth troubles.

Germs breed by millions in film. They, with acids, are the chief cause of pyorrhea, now so alarmingly common.

Old brushing methods left much film intact. By ordinary tooth pastes and ordinary methods you could not end it.

Many new methods have been advised to fight film. Some long-used methods are highly effective. But they are not for daily home use. Some are too harsh. Some are too weak. Some lack full safety.

Thus film has been the great tooth problem.

Avoid Powerful Gels

Pepsodent contains no harsh grit, no strong chemicals, no gums, no soaps, no gritty pumice. Its polishing material is the mildest ever discovered.

Also no harsh gels are used. Pepsodent is not a strong alkali, not a harsh peroxide, not a harsh acid.

Also no harsh gels are used. Pepsodent is not a strong alkali, not a harsh peroxide, not a harsh acid.

Two great discoveries

Also scientists proved these methods by many crucial tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was evolved, based on modern research. Those two great film combatants were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Dentists the world over, approve its daily use.

Constant guardians

Pepsodent also creates constant guardians. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Then it gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

Twill delight you

The Pepsodent results will amaze and delight you. This test may change the whole future history of your home.

WESTERLY

At the regular monthly meeting of the Westerly town council held Monday evening an unusual question arose as to the town solicitor's duties. John McCall came before the council and stated that he had been hurt some time ago while in the employ of the town. He was told at the time, or shortly after his accident, to go to the town solicitor and have the matter of compensation adjusted through him, he to take the case up with the insurance company who had the town's business. He did so and claims that the matter was adjusted and that the insurance company paid the town's attorney $175, who in turn gave McCall $40 and retained the rest. When the question was brought to the attorney's attention he said: "Supposing some school teacher was injured during the course of her day's work. Would I be obliged to adjust her claim, as solicitor of the town?" None of the council seemed to be exactly qualified to answer this query. Chairman Campbell proposed a committee of two to look into the claim and appointed Councilmen Smith and Fowler.

Arthur N. Nash appeared before the council and asked for a ruling on just what sort of fireworks could be used, if any, for the Fourth of July, and suggested that the council name a special date previous to the Fourth when the sale of fireworks might be commenced. He suggested June 25 as a proper time to commence the sale of fireworks, as this would allow about nine days in which to dispose of explosives to the youngsters. Mr. Nash said that the council ought to regulate the size of the explosives. He also thought it would be a good plan to co-operate with the officials in Pawcatuck in regard to the sale. A sewer assessment was made by the water commissioners. The interest rate for deferred payments was put at 6 per cent.

Judge John W. Sweeney of Providence was a week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Dean of Granite street.

Mrs. Charles J. Antler has returned home after a brief visit in New York city.

Senator John J. McManus of Providence spent the week end with relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sherman are visiting in New York city.

The funeral of Michael O'Brien was held Monday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception on High street. A solemn high mass was celebrated with Rev. Thomas Larkin as celebrant, Rev. Henry Breho, deacon, and Rev. Daniel Sullivan, sub-deacon. Burial took place at St. Michael's new cemetery.

The following members of the Westerly Cycle club were elected to office for the rest of the year 1923: President, George Leonard; vice president, Bernard J. Christie; secretary, Ernest Gully; treasurer, Frank L. Friend; pool captain, Joseph Law. Albert A. Palmiter and Frank D. Collins were elected on the board of directors.

The Westerly Music club met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Ahearn of Elm street.

STONINGTON

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Gilbert McClurg of Stonington addressed a meeting at city hall. Mrs. McClurg is regent general of the Colorado Cliff Dwelling association and she described the career of the Pueble Indian in the American southwest from the days of his supremacy in the centuries before Columbus to his present state of decline, before a large audience, says the New York Tribune of March 4th. Her lecture was illustrated with colored stereopticon views and included a program of Pueblo songs interpreted by Mrs. Henry M. Gardiner, wife of a Stonington young man. Henry M. Gardiner. Mrs. McClurg who has been active in the work of recovering relics of the earliest inhabitants of American region, and dwellings, said the Pueblo Indians lived in five and six story stone buildings when our Anglo-Saxon ancestors still were in the tree tops.

She traced the life of the Pueblo Indians from the age stone and bone, when he dwelt on the lowlands, peaceful and undisturbed, intelligent and industrious, until the Spanish brought the age of wool and silver and the Navajos and Apaches swept down upon the Pueblos and drove them to the cliffs. Mrs. McClurg showed pictures of cliff dwellings, housing treasures of earliest American history, which have been ravaged by relic hunters and blown up by persons searching ruthlessly for the hidden gold of Montezuma. She explained the work of restoration which the cliff dwellers association has accomplished.

Mrs. McClurg kept to the scientific side of her subject, saying that she was not familiar enough with Burnham bill to comment on it. In response to a query from the audience, however, she suggested writing to senators and representatives in congress urging support of modified legislation to take the place of the Burnham bill.

Miss Florence Brown, who is studying to become a trained nurse at the Jamestown hospital, at Jamestown, R. I., visited friends both here and in Westerly over the week end.

Ernest James of Temple street was operated upon Sunday for appendicitis at a private hospital in New London. He is reported as resting comfortably.

At the Travel club meeting this afternoon (Tuesday) Dr. C. E. Fisher will talk on The Bolshevik Menace and America's Responsibility in the World's Crisis.

Hon. Paul S. Chapman of Bridgeport, a member of the Connecticut general assembly of 1921 will speak at the Men's club at Community hall Friday evening, April 13. His topic will be Building and Loan Associations. This week on Friday evening J. G. Hammond of New London will address the meeting.

FIRST PRINCIPLE OF COURTESY IS CO-OPERATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Mystic, March 5.—Monday evening the employes of the Groton and Stonington Traction company listened to a most interesting talk by the superintendent Lester O'Brien. The employes have every confidence in their leader and their interest in their work is shown by the courtesy extended at all times to the public while the men are on duty. This is a training Supt. O'Brien has instilled in the men. His address in part as given Monday evening follows:

The success of this as well as any other business depends upon the hearty co-operation of its employes. You have probably often heard the expression "soulless corporation." Probably a corporation does not have a soul, but let us not forget that the ingredients that go to make up this corporation are you and I and surely we all have hearts and souls. You cannot have a corporation without human beings and surely all of them employed by this corporation have hearts and souls. The employe who shows consideration cultivates patience and sets a good example, will find that it pays from a monetary standpoint, as well as the satisfaction he has of knowing that he is doing the right thing. Courtesy begets courtesy. You know by sight almost all the wagons, truck and pleasure car drivers in this community, and you know that if you gave each driver courteous treatment today, these drivers will give you the same kind of treatment tomorrow.

We are working for almost all of the citizens of this community and we could not operate our cars if it were not for their patronage. It is their money that pays our wages, and consequently it behooves all of us to be always courteous, kind and attentive. You wouldn't want a Motorman to run by you or any member of your family. You wouldn't want any one to be disrespectful to your daughter, wife or mother. The very first principle of courtesy is co-operation. If you can not co-operate about some thing wrong. You are either dissatisfied or out of humor and under such conditions you would surely have a difficult time trying to be courteous toward others.

A man who can successfully co-operate is by no means a small man. He must be a big, broad-minded man-selfish man.

The meeting for the day men will be held Tuesday evening when Mr. O'Brien will address this section of men formed and conductors. Conductor Robert A. Chapman very generously supplied the records and musical programme at the Stanislaus orchestra, South Dodge, Members of Groton No. 109 Myrtle branch spent a pleasant evening listening to the auditor and to the music. Jokes were enjoyed by the men.

Every man who was able to attend was present at these gatherings held at different intervals during the year. They are looked upon primarily as social events, but are considered as beneficial to employes and officers.

Master Mechanic J. Maguire answered questions in regard to mechanical equipment. It was announced that ending Aug. 31, 1923 for the best accident record, prizes will be awarded as well as for the best record in safety as follows: First prize, $25 in gold; second prize, $15 in gold; third prize, $10 in gold; fourth prize $5 in gold. There is to be prize list for motormen and one for car conductors, making a total of $70. In addition to the prizes, a gold fob will be given each man to be worn on his watch for a period indicating courtesy record during the period. The men showed their appreciation by their hearty applause.

The death of Mrs. Matilda J. Stewart, wife of Samuel S. Stewart, occurred Friday at her home on Union avenue. She was the daughter of George and Mary (Hutchinson) Mabbett and a native of Westerly. She was a member of the Union Baptist church and leaves a husband, Samuel S. Stewart, one daughter, Sarah M., one son, Samuel S., Jr., and two brothers, Frank Mabbett, all of Westerly.

The funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. John Cuthbertson, pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal church officiated. Interment was in Elm Grove cemetery.

Funeral services for John F. Gray were held at his late home on the Noank road Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock and at 10 o'clock at St. Patrick's church, Mystic. Interment was in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Don't use the whip on tired nerves

— it means trouble

When the day's work is hard, you can't make it easier with stimulants.

Ask any doctor for the facts.

You can't over-draw energy without paying.

Coffee contains the nerve-stimulating drug, caffeine. When coffee is used to overcome fatigue, it means whipping the tired nerves into a run.

You may seem to get added strength—but there's a settlement coming for an over-drawn account.

Take care!

Rest is the cure for fatigue. Health is the equipment for hard tasks.

Rest and health are interfered with when nerves are over-stimulated.

You've seen plenty of proof. How many people do you know who say, "I have to go slow on coffee; it keeps me awake nights?"

How is it in your own case? Have you counted restless night hours after the evening cup of coffee?

Treat your health sensibly that you may meet your task capably.

Don't try to draw strength from over-driven nerves. That way lies weakness. Don't increase over-work by using stimulants. You are merely postponing and increasing the penalties.

Be fair to yourself!

For a hot, comforting beverage, drink Postum and let nerves have their natural rest.

There's charm without harm in Postum—a delightful, satisfying cereal beverage; rich, seal-brown in color, delicious in flavor and aroma, and containing nothing that can irritate nerves or disturb health. Postum is safe and enjoyable for every member of the family.

Thousands who formerly used coffee or tea, and began to pay the penalties of nerve-stimulation, now use Postum and praise its comforting goodness.

The road to health is a good road for anybody to follow.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

CHANGE IN ORGANIZATION TO CONTROL BOLL WEEVIL

St. Matthews, S. C., March 5.—The appointment of Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison as director of scientific research of the American Cotton Association, to conduct its national campaign for boll weevil control, has been revoked, J. S. Wannamaker, president, declared today, because of the Association's opposition "to the organization in which the Read Hall absolute power." The campaign, he added, will be continued with increased scope and experiments will be conducted in 5,000 demonstration farms.

Dr. Hutchison's appointment, Mr. Wannamaker said, was revoked "after careful investigation had convinced me that a monumental mistake had been made in selecting him for the position, and a belief that it was not too late to remedy the mistake." He added that the Association was opposed to any proposal by which any individual or interest would be enriched by "commercializing, monopolizing or exploiting any successful boll weevil remedy or any other human necessity."

RUM RUNNERS READY FOR THE SPRING RUSH

Richmond, N. Y., March 5.—The Rum Row is working feverishly to get its bargain counters ready for the expected spring rush.

Considerable activity in the fleet, especially three schooners, two steamers and the arrival of supply tugs from New York was observed today. The most imposing of the new settlers on the row is a two-mast tanker of approximately 1,000 gross tons, and the apparently is loaded to the gunwales. The other arrivals were schooners of the Bahama type.

One of the departing vessels was a palatial steam yacht, said to have formerly been the property of a New York millionaire. She now flies a foreign flag and is reported in the Bahamas trade. The yacht had been on the row for some weeks, and what was left of her cargo was transferred to one of the remaining sailing vessels this morning.

The weather still is unfavorable for schooners running to the shore and bottle-fanciers on the Jersey coast are waiting until the wind blows right. They declare there is no use running risks, that the rum will stay there until they go after it. Several Long Island boats put out to the fleet today, however.

The runners state the shore are getting rich and with the coming of winds they are growing fond of yachts. They resent being called "bootleggers." They see their trade as something to be looked up to. They'd rather be called rum fleet, and their men already have dubbed themselves the "Rum Marines, Highlands Company, No. 1."

SON CONTESTING WILL OF GEN. PATRICK EGAN

New York, March 5. — General Patrick Egan, former minister to Chile, who died in 1919, was mentally incompetent when he wrote his will, his son, Brendan, charged in a complaint containing the document, which was made public today with the announcement that it would go to trial in surrogate's court tomorrow.

The son charged that his father, while lacking mental competency, was influenced by his daughter, Kathleen Egan Travers, and her husband, Audley Travers, who was named executor. Mrs. Travers was bequeathed all her father's property.

New York, March 5.—Mrs. Hugo C. P. Schoellkopf, of Buffalo, who was robbed of $30,000 worth of jewels while attending a New Year's eve party at the apartment of Frank B. Carman, actor, again was questioned at length today by Assistant District Attorney Pecora, who said he planned to have her testify in the proceedings against Charles Hughes, chauffeur, who is charged with being an accessory after the crime.

The grand jury was not sitting today and Mrs. Schoellkopf could not appear before it as had been planned. She will appear before it however, some time this week, it was said.

Mrs. Buchanan pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing and was released under $5,000 bonds. Hearing of the case was set for March 12.

No Trouble to Keep Skin Free From Flaks

There is no need for any woman to countenance superfluous hairs, because with a paste made by mixing some powdered delatone with water it is easy to get rid of them. The paste is applied for 2 to 5 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This treatment will rid the skin of hair without leaving a blemish, but care should be taken to be sure you get real delatone.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, March 5.—With congress adjourned and the fear of hostile federal legislation removed for several months, speculators for the advance resumed their operations with fresh confidence and increased vigor in today's stock market, basing their campaign for higher prices on the federal reserve bank's optimistic survey of business and money conditions, rising commodity prices and steadily expanding earning as revealed in the latest series of sales and income reports.

Industrial averages again established new peak prices since the spring of 1920. Dividend-paying railroad shares indulged in a temporary display of strength early in the session but forfeited some or most of their gains in the heavy profit taking sales which took place late in the session.

Stewart-Warner Speedometer was the individual feature, jumping nearly 16 points to 121, as compared with this year's low of 78 3-4, some of the buying undoubtedly being based on reports that a substantial cash or stock dividend would be declared at the next meeting to be held April 3. Other motor accessories rose in sympathy, Stromberg Carburetor climbing 6 1-2 points and Bosch Magneto nearly 4. All of these companies are reported to be making large earnings.

Other automotive stocks also made good progress, Studebaker being in heavy demand at the close, touching 124 for a net gain of 3 3-4 points. Mack Truck touched 77 7/8, a new high, and Chandler, Moon and Hudson improved fractionally, Maxwell motors A touched 70, up 7 3-4 and White Motors closed 2 1-2 higher at 66 1-2.

California Petroleum, which had been reactionary after its recent remarkable rise, staged a quick comeback, jumping from 93 5-8, its low of the day, to 99, its high and closing price where it was 3 3-4 above Saturday's close. Producers and Refiners crossed 55 for a net gain of more than a point but the other oils showed little change on the day.

American Can was another individual strong spot, fluctuating between 101 3-4 and 106 and closing at 105 1-2, up 3 1-8 on the day. Some of the other strong spots in the industrial list were United Railways investment preferred, up 7 1-4, and American Linseed, Associated Oil, Central Leather preferred, Piggly Wiggly and Remington Typewriter, all up 2 1-2 to 6 1-2 points.

"Boo" preferred, up 4, "Nickel Plate" first preferred, Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis, up 1-2, and Delaware & Hudson, up 3 were the outstanding railroad stock. Establishment of a new high at 100 1-4 by New York Central was another feature.

Call money held steady at 5 per cent throughout the day. Time money continued firm with brokers willing to pay 5 1-4 per cent. for all maturities and loans arranged at that rate. Out-of-town institutions are the principal buyers of commercial paper, the ruling rate for prime names being 5 per cent.

Foreign exchanges eased slightly with trading quiet. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.70 and French francs around 6.10 cents. Weakness of Norwegian exchange, which dropped from 18.40 to 18.24 cents, was attributed to the payment of shipping claims.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 5.—Estimates by a leading authority that the amount of domestic wheat at present held on farms is smaller than had been generally supposed, did a good deal to bring about higher prices in the wheat market today. Closing quotations were firm at 7-8 to 2c net advance with May $1.18 3-4 to $1.18 7-8 and July $1.14 1-2 to 1.14 5-8. Corn gained 1-4 to 1 1-8 s 1 1-4; oats 1-4 to 7-8c, and provision 12 to 25c.

According to the latest figures, farm reserves of wheat amount to only 158,000,000 bushels, whereas most guesses had put the total at 180,000,000 to 190,000,000 bushels. The export responsible for the new estimate said there had been increased domestic consumption of 33,000,000 bushels as compared with last year. This export indicated also that serious winter killing of wheat had taken place, and that the 1923 crop is at a relatively low condition. Prior to the issuance of the report, bulls had an advantage owing to absence on any heavy selling, and this advantage was increased decidedly after the crop estimate was out.

Reports of beneficial rains and snow in the winter wheat belt failed to depress values except in a transient way at the start—breaking of the drought being regarded as incomplete, especially throughout the western part of Kansas.

Buying of May against sales of July and buying on the part of spreaders here who were selling at Winnipeg was a feature as the day drew to an end.

Corn and oats sympathized with the wheat advance, notwithstanding that the newest estimate of farm reserves of corn made the total larger than as a rule had been looked for, although 205,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Higher quotations on hogs tended to lift the provision market and so too did a liberal gain in export clearances of lard and ribs.

BOND MARKET

New York, March 5.—Bond prices failed to follow the rapid advance in stock quotations in today's market but instead moved irregularly without any definite trend.

In the foreign list the European issues were generally higher, Serbian 8's rising 2 points, Jurgen 6's 1 3-4, and Dutch East Indies 6's of 1962, 3-4. With the exception of Uruguayan 8's, which advanced a point, the Latin American issues were inclined to yield, Bolivian 8's and Mexican 4's and 5's closing fractionally lower. U. S. government bonds were again mixed, Liberty 4 1-2's and 3 1-2's gaining fourteen and six cents on $100 respectively, and the other active issues closing either unchanged or two cents lower.

Conflicting movements also took place in the railroad group, Seaboard Air Line, St. Paul, and the other so-called speculative issues, rule moving to higher ground, while such investment issues as Southern Pacific convertible 4's, Pennsylvania 6 1-2's, Norfolk & Western convertible 6's, and Southern Railway 6's, all new high records, were in demand.

NORWICH TOWN

Before a large and enthusiastic audience Friday evening, in the First Congregational chapel, Miss Hiela Lathrop of Upper Washington street, who is passing the winter in New London, gave an illustrated lecture on My Trip Through Normandy. Miss Lathrop who in company with a party of relatives and friends personally covered the trip referred to about ten years ago, related interestingly her experiences, also showed colored pictures of points of interest where she visited, among which were many handsome cathedrals.

The lecture which was by admission netted a very substantial sum. This will be used at a later date toward defraying the expense of installing a new gas apparatus for cooking in the chapel kitchen.

At the close of the lecture those present were served refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee, under the auspices of the Drop-in class, of which for a brief time before locating in New London, Miss Lathrop was a substitute teacher.

While in Norwich Town, Miss Lathrop was the guest at supper Friday evening, of Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey, at the Congregational personage.

Sunday morning at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, preached the third in a series of sermons on Sin. The topic was Sin, What Can Be Done With It?

At the close of the regular worship, Rev. Mr. Bailey officiated at the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, which was observed by a large number of communicants.

At the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 6.30, in the chapel, the leader was Miss Florence M. Bennett, from the Methodist C. E. society, who ably treated the topic—The Refuge Psalm. Ps 91 1-16.

Several from the First Congregational parish, are planning to attend the lecture at Park church Parish House, this (Tuesday) evening, at 8 o'clock, when Mrs. Richard M. Emrich late of Constantinople, with the Near East committee a lecture of rare power will speak in behalf of that work at an open meeting. The collection and pledges toward Norwich's share, will be taken after the lecture.

At the Sunday morning worship of the First Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich used as his text, Jeremiah 12-5. If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with hoses? If in the land of peace, wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of ordan?

Millard Manning was the leader at the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 6.45, which was followed by evening sermon by Rev. Mr. Aldrich who spoke from John 14.1. Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God; believe also in Me.

The Methodist prayer service is to be held this (Tuesday) evening.

Mrs. Henry Marquardt of Groton who returned recently from Florida was the guest over the week end of her brother-in-law and sister, Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey of Elm avenue. Mrs. Marquardt returned home Sunday evening, accompanied by her husband and their daughter, Miss Madeline Marquardt, also John MacArthur of New London, who motored to Norwich and were supper guests at the parsonage.

Much to the disappointment of all concerned the concert under the leadership of Dr. Charles H. Lamb, which was to have been given at the Backus hospital on Sunday afternoon, for Home Chapter of the King's Daughters, was obliged to be cancelled, because of two of the vocalists being indisposed with severe colds.

Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters will meet this (Tuesday) evening at the home of Miss Rose E. Durr, of Town street.

Mrs. Charles F. Geer of West Town street had as her guest on Thursday, her sister, Mrs. Frank Case of New London.

At the Sacred Heart the usual Lenten devotions consisting of Stations of the Cross and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, took place at 2.30 o'clock, Sunday afternoon. During Lent, the daily parish mass is being celebrated at 7.30 in the morning.

SANATORIA DOCTORS HELD MEETING IN SHELTON

Can harmless germs of trees and grasses be made harmful to mankind if they are forced to grow in darkness and dampness? That is the startling question raised at the meeting of the medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatoria held Monday at the Shelton state sanatorium.

Doctor Edward J. Lynch, superintendent, and his assistant, Doctor George L. Bunnell, reported research work done here during the past six months in this subject. They were especially concerned with the problem of making bacillus subtillis take on many of the characteristics of the tubercle bacillus. Their report of the work on this subject was heard with great interest by the assembled physicians, and the members of the State Tuberculosis Commission.

In another paper the Shelton physicians told of their efforts, so far successful to find in tuberculous pus a bacteriophage for the tubercle bacillus; that is, an ultra microscopic something that possesses the power to destroy and digest the tubercle bacilli.

OCEAN BEACH COTTAGE RENT SUIT SETTLED

The case of Dinah Schwartz of Norwich against Max Maislin and S. D. Tulin of Hartford for the collection of rent for a cottage at Ocean Beach was settled Monday morning. The case was to have been tried before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas in New London.

The plaintiff alleged that on June 3, 1921, she rented Sunset cottage in Dyke street to the defendants for a rental of $400 for the season. They paid $50 of the rent on taking possession on June 15. It is claimed that the defendants occupied the cottage two weeks and then abandoned it without paying the balance of the rental. Mrs. Schwartz rented the cottage from July 15 for the balance of the season for $200 but she suffered a loss of $150 under the contract with the defendants which was the amount of the suit.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week mild weather has struck in and much progress has been made on local building projects with a view to getting an early start this year in the construction line. Local contractors who started foundation work during the past few days find that there is comparatively frost in the ground and if the mild weather continues there will be little to prevent rapid progress on all building projects. During the past week no building permits have been granted by Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton, and no applications for a large amount of building have been filed.

The work on the new Palace theater on Rose Place is coming along rapidly. The foundation work has been practically completed and forms for the underpinning will be poured as soon as possible, in preparation for the structural steel work. It is expected that the steel will arrive some time this week and work will begin in earnest on the building. A. A. Spitz, of Providence, president of the corporation, has returned from Florida, and after inspecting the work expressed himself as much pleased with the progress made. The tapestries, seats and a number of the interior furnishings have been ordered and will be ready within a short time. The contracts for the lighting and heating and other small contracts will be let within a short time, as plans have been completed and estimates are being asked.

Another project which has made notable progress during the past week is the Pasnik block on West Main street. The contractors have been pouring the cement forms for the foundations and excavating for the cellar. Here little frost was found and little difficulty experienced in the preliminary work. The old Chelsea boat club building is being renovated and being remodeled, and the work has been progressing rapidly. The building is being reinforced and many new timbers put in to replace the old ones.

The work on remodeling the front of the store of Quinn and Desmond on Main street is well along. A new entrance is being put in with a new plate glass and new display windows.

Work still continues on the Disco block and the progress during the past week has been marked.

Other contracts on which good progress has been made include the remodeling of the Preston Bros. old store, the store of Frank Eccleston and the Boston store. It is expected that this work will be completed within the next few weeks making a very attractive change to the stores in this section of Main street.

In the outskirts of the town much building is being planned and work will start on several new buildings during the next few weeks.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 9 sales of real estate, exactly the same number as for the corresponding week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $17,000 and $7,750.

There were 2 sales of real estate in New London last week as compared to 4 sales for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $5,000 and $8,242.

New London

A local contractor has the contract for erecting a building at the corner of Broad st. and Connecticut ave., for Vincenzo Loiacono, from the plans of Architect Francis DeGange. It will be of brick and steel, one story high, with gravel roof, and will contain three stores, with plate glass windows. The dimensions will be 40 x 42 feet, and the cost about $8,000.

New London builders have the contract to build a cottage for Michael Schwartz, at Easterly place, Ocean Beach. It will be 24 x 24 feet, of wood, having five rooms, and the cost will be about $1,500.

A local firm started work on a frame bungalow which they will build for Augustine Minucci, at 98 School street, rooms and provided with all conveniences. The cost will be about $1,500.

Joseph A. St. Germain is making improvements to the residence of Mrs. Ida McMoran at 11 Brewer street, by adding a sun parlor.

Building Permits

Augustino Minucci, frame bungalow 98 School street. Cost $2,000.

Michael Schwartz, frame cottage, Easterly place. Cost $1,500.

Number of permits for the week, 2; estimated cost of buildings, $3,500.

Willimantic, Conn.

With the idea of building a synagogue on its newly acquired property on Bank street, funds are being raised by the Congregation Sons of Israel for a building to cost about $25,000. The building committee is composed of Samuel Eisenberg, chairman; Abraham Butleman, Ben Eisenberg, Wolfe Rosen and Jacob Hellar.

Rockville Conn

The committee in charge of the construction of the graded school in the west district will confer with the architect soon regarding the new building. Bids were received last month and all were found to exceed the appropriation. George P. Wendheisser is the chairman of the building committee.

FATAL ELECTRIC SHOCK FOR LINEMAN ON BRIDGE

While working on an electric pole on the Thames river highway bridge at 10.50 Monday, George Decker, 38 Eighth street, New London, came in contact with a live wire, was thrown to the ground and landed on his head fracturing his skull. He was taken to the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital and admitted in an unconscious and critical condition. Death resulted later.

Monday was Decker's birthday, it was learned, and he was 37 years of age. He came to New London from Pine Bush, N. Y., where his parents live. He has a brother, Jacob Decker, living in Mystic.

The accident is reported to have happened in plain sight of two fellow workmen, Charles W. Noyes of Poquonnoc and Charles Derry of Center Groton. They saw the lineman, who was endeavoring to connect up some new lines, suddenly plunge from the pole and land on the concrete bridge. They rushed to his side and found him unconscious.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE IS TO RAISE $350,000 FUND

A drive to raise $350,000 for additional endowment of the Connecticut College for Women will be launched March 28, it was announced in New London Monday night by President Benjamin T. Marshall. The sum must be raised by January 1, 1924 to qualify for a conditional gift of $150,000 from the general education board toward the college's proposed $2,000,000 endowment fund.

Under the plan for raising the money, President Marshall with the aid of the trustees will undertake to raise $250,000, while alumnae and under-graduates will attempt to raise the remaining $100,000. $20,000 has already been secured through the alumnae.

Much unsteadiness is due to a steady income.

Electric Lights.

The police committee reported that electric lights had been placed on Laurel Hill and at the foot of Eighth street; that investigation had disclosed that nothing could be done regarding the placing of lights at the Paper Mill pond in Taftsville, and that the petitioners be given leave to withdraw. As concerning lights on Silver and Copper streets, the committee took the same action, these streets not being accepted streets. The report was accepted.

The report of the placing of electric lights at the junction of Gear avenue and Summit street was accepted. Councilman O'Leary asked what had been done about the petition for a light in front of Cadillac hall, so-called, and Alderman Gebrath said the committee felt the light was not needed and gave permission for withdrawal of the petition. The report was accepted.

It was reported that the total length of the sewer laid was along 2,930 feet frontage, area affected 367,560 square feet, and the cost was $5,940.57. Assessments against property owners according to the tentative list totalled $4,984.05. The meeting was presided over by Mayor Waters and adjourned at 9 o'clock.

An offer made by former Mayor B. L. Armstrong of New London to give a 30 to 40 acre tract of land in that city to Henry Ford for the purpose of locating a Ford branch plant on it, has been declined by the Ford motor company.

THOUGHTS FOR THE WEEK.

Yes; I write verses now and then,
Sent home and blacked in my pen.
No editor tells of by young men
At fifteen above;
But the best quarter are my eyes,
Yes, see it by their form and size;
Is it sad time then to be wise?
Oh, that no answer.

Fairest thing ever sprang from Eve!
Which Time allows the short reprieve,
Just look at me! Would you believe
'Twas once a lover?
I cannot clear the five-bar gate;
But trying first its timber's state,
Climb airily up, take breath, and wait
To trundle over.

Through palisades I cannot swing
The interesting blooms of Beauty's spring,
I cannot buy the tender thing,
Eat, cry or jabber.
And am hopeless to entice
Those girls are only half-divine
Whose waists you wicked boys entwine
In giddy waltz.

I fear that arm above that shoulder;
I wish them wiser, graver, older,
Sedate, and no harm if colder,
And pulling less.
Ah! people were not half so wild
In temper (save when starchily mild,
Deep-blue Dick headed Tennyson smiled
The brave Queen Bess.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The house at Pieve di Cadore in which the great painter Titian was born, has been proclaimed a national monument by the government, as has the birthplace of the poet and dramatist, Count Vittorio Alfieri, at Asti.

Bees have pre-empted the top of the Henry Clay statue in the cemetery at Lexington, Ky. The statue was struck by lightning a few years ago and the head dislodged, and a new head was fashioned by a sculptor, and it is in it that the bees have their hive.

From the summit of the great pyramid there is a grand view southward, down a straggling, but imposing, line of pyramids rising dimly as far as one can see on the southern horizon. Each pyramid was a royal tomb, and for so each such tomb means that a king lived, ruled and died. The line is over sixty miles long, and the oldest pyramids represent the first great age of Egyptian civilization after the land was united under one king. We may call it the pyramid age, and it lasted from 2900 to 2500 B. C.—James H. Breasted, in "Ancient Times."

Europe has realized and utilized the beauty of shade trees to an extent undreamed of in the United States. While most of the streets, laid out in the middle ages, are too narrow to permit planting them, the beautiful boulevards may have two, four and sometimes six rows along the entire length. Country roads are invariably lined with arching shade trees which add greatly to comfort and scenery for the pedestrian or autoist. Looking across gardenlike fields one sees parallel rows of trees and knows that they mark another road, or possibly a canal. In a few places dense evergreens are used, so darkening the road as to make it necessary to use automobile lights even at noon on a bright day.

During Silk Exposition Week we are making a special showing of all the newest Silks for Spring and Summer wear.

East unites with West in new Silks. The oriental influence at its rarest and fairest prevails. The leading fabrics for Spring are Paisley Crepes, Novelty Stripe Prunella, Plain and Satin Cantons, Springtime Crepe, Paisley Eponge, Plain and Glace Taffeta, Satin Etoile, Foulard Crepes, Crepe-de-Chine, Silk Shantung, Sport Satin.

Sir Conan Doyle Tells Why He Believes in Fairies

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who has written many stories of mystery and detection, has now written a book to prove that fairies exist. He has published it in England, and it is soon to appear in this country. He has also written a letter to the London Daily Chronicle explaining why he believes in fairies. He says:

Fairies Are Real, Says Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who has written many stories of mystery and detection, has now written a book to prove that fairies exist. He has published it in England, and it is soon to appear in this country. He has also written a letter to the London Daily Chronicle explaining why he believes in fairies. He says:

"I have had a very curious experience in connection with the fairy photographs. I have had a letter from a man who says that he was a boy of 12 when he took the photographs, and that they were a fake. He says that he has a camera which will prove it. I have written to him to ask him to bring it to me, and I am waiting to hear from him. I am sure that he will not be able to do so, for I am convinced that the photographs are genuine. I have had them examined by experts, and they have declared that there is no trace of fraud about them. I am also convinced that the fairies are genuine, for I have had many letters from people who have seen them. I have had letters from people who have seen them in their own gardens, and I have had letters from people who have seen them in the woods and fields. I have had letters from people who have seen them in the mountains and in the valleys. I have had letters from people who have seen them in the air and on the ground. I have had letters from people who have seen them in the day and in the night. I have had letters from people who have seen them in the summer and in the winter. KALEIDOSCOPE

The house at Pieve di Cadore in which the great painter Titian was born, has been proclaimed a national monument by the government, as has the birthplace of the poet and dramatist, Count Vittorio Alfieri, at Asti.

Bees have pre-empted the top of the Henry Clay statue in the cemetery at Lexington, Ky. This statue was struck by lightning a few years ago and the head dislodged, and a new head was fashioned by a sculptor, and it is in it that the bees have their hive.

From the summit of the great pyramid there is a grand view southward, down a straggling, but imposing, line of pyramids rising dimly as far as one can see on the southern horizon. Each pyramid was a royal tomb, and for us each such tomb means that a king lived, ruled and died. The line is over sixty miles long, and the oldest pyramids represent the first great age of Egyptian civilization after the land was united under one king. We may call it the pyramid age, and it lasted from 3000 to 2500 B. C.—James H. Breasted, in "Ancient Times."

Europe has realised and utilized the beauty of shade trees to an extent undreamed of in the United States. While most of the streets, laid out in the middle ages, are too narrow to permit planting them, the beautiful boulevards may have two, four and sometimes six rows along the entire length. Country roads are invariably lined with arching shade trees which add greatly to comfort and scenery for the pedestrian or autoist. Looking across gardenlike fields one sees parallel rows of trees and knows that they mark another road, possibly a canal. In a few placed dense evergreens are used, so darkening the road as to make it necessary to use automobile lights even at noon on a bright day.

GERMANY NOT NEGOTIATING WITH OCCUPYING POWERS

Chancellor Cuno in Speech Before the Reichstag Declared That All Rumors to That Effect Were Without Authoritative Basis—Asserted That Germany Could Not Take the Initiative So Long as the Invading Powers Continued Their Hostile Occupation of German Territory—Chancellor Praised the Passive Resistance With Which the German Populace Has Opposed the Invaders.

Berlin, March 6.—(By the A. P.)—Chancellor Cuno's keenly-awaited speech before the reichstag today was devoid of new and significant utterances in connection with the Ruhr situation beyond the statement that Germany had not, directly or indirectly, suggested the inauguration of negotiations with the occupying powers that all rumor sto this effect were without authoritative basis.

Germany, said the chancellor, could not negotiate "in view of the situation created in the Rhineland and Ruhr through the Franco-Belgian transgressions."

He intimated that so long as the invading powers continued their armed violation of German sovereignty, and maintained, and even extended, their hostile occupation of German territory, which was immune by virtue of the Versailles treaty, the German government could not be expected to assume the initiative in respect of any action looking to settlement of the present conflict.

The chancellor's speech took the form of a lengthy protest in which he recapitulated in detail the situation growing out of the occupation of the Ruhr from the first day, and the more recent invasion of points in Baden.

He was frequently interrupted by expressions of indignation as he recited the number of arrests, convictions, evictions and deportations of German officials who refused to carry out the orders of the occupational authorities.

The Franco-Belgian expedition into the Ruhr, he said, had thus far resolved itself into a dismal economic failure, the gains from which suggested a doubtful offset to the alleged German delinquencies in the payment of reparations.

The French actions in the Ruhr he termed viciously inimical to the world's economic welfare in general and to the promotion of European reconstruction in particular.

Herr Cuno lauded the passive resistance with which the German populace in the Ruhr and elsewhere had opposed the invaders, and asserted that this resistance obviously was the only weapon at Germany's disposal. After nine weeks of stubborn, unarmed opposition, fraught with all kinds of privations, the German nation today was an unfaltering unit in its determination to hold out against the heavy physical odds, he said.

This morning, before the reichstag convened, the chancellor called in the parliamentary leaders and outlined the contents of his speech, informing them that it would contain no sensational announcement or revelations, as the government had none to make; therefore he would confine his statement to a sweeping protest of the French and Belgian procedure.

In the course of his speech the chancellor described the French decree imposing the death penalty in cases where rail transport was seriously endangered by the action or abstention of railway officials as "an act of terrorism again the German railwaymen, compelling them by brutal penalties to be false to their oath to German sovereignty."

The peace that had been imposed upon Germany, and to fulfill which Germany had literally impoverished herself, had been trodden under foot by France without one of the numerous signatories of the treaty moving a finger, he said.

"Yet," he added, "the French action is as much directed against the peace instrument devised by the powers as it is against Germany. No wonder the minds of the German people are keyed to almist intolerable tension. If terrible danger is not to arise we must again point out the wrong which has been done and warn the world without delay. For this reason I abandoned my journey to Munich."

Referring to the occupation of Mannheim, Karlsruhe and Darmstadt, he said that, had such action occurred elsewhere among civilized nations, the world would have seethed with indignation, but since Germany was the sufferer it was considered as merely a small extension of the Ruhr action, and unworthy of particular notice.

Herr Cuno complained that the interalliied Rhine and high commission had "placed itself at the service of French violence, issuing decrees without bothering itself about legal grounds."

FRANCE DETERMINED TO WEAR OUT THE GERMANS

Paris March 6.—(By the A. P.)—The decision of the minister of war to keep the class of 1921 under the colors until the end of May, together with the project for six months volunteers, is interpreted in some quarters as another indication of the government's determination to wear out the Germans, and also a sign that the government is convinced that the Germans will make every effort to continue their resistance.

While it is officially intimated that there is no reason for any alarming interpretation of these military precautions, it was announced after this morning's sitting of the cabinet that there were strong pronouncements on two other points.

It is a matter of simple precaution, it was explained, to hold trained troops until new troops are trained. Suggestions of foreign mediation were discounted several days ago by the statement that under no condition would mediation or proposals be entertained, except direct official propposals from Germany concerning her willingness to pay reparations. It is declared that the French government's present information would not lead to the belief that the Germans have any such intention now, or if they had, there is no reason to expect they would announce it in the face of hostile public opinion in Germany.

It was officially reiterated today that the French have no imperialistic intention, such as annexing the Ruhr. It was pointed out that the Germans have money for carrying on Ruhr resistance and buying coal in England and raw materials in other countries, but none for reparations. It was admitted that difficulties had arisen for the French and Belgians owing to the attitude of the workmen, who were willing to mine coal but not load it on the cars. For this reason the coal hauled out of the Ruhr during February, it is estimated, approximated only 50,000 tons.

ARGUMENTS FINISHED IN SALUDES MURDER TRIAL

New York, March 6.—Emotionless and with half-closed eyes, Mrs. Paulette Saludes, Frenchwoman on trial for the murder of Oscar Martelliere, broker, heard the final arguments of both defense and prosecution attorneys, which occupied the entire session day.

Martelliere was pictured as a cold blooded viper, by the defense in seeking to justify the shooting.

The defense alluded to Mrs. Saludes as half-crased from her wrongs and pointed out her frequent attempts to commit suicide in an effort to show she was irrational immediately before and after the broker was shot and killed in his own office.

Assistant District Attorney Brotners referred to Mrs. Saludes as a "jealous woman" and declared that "love turned to hate" was the motive for the killing. He belittled the defense plea of temporary insanity and stressed the remarkable aim of Mrs. Saludes who sent five bullets from an automatic into Martelliere's body.

"If this defendant was a man," the prosecutor said, "I could sit down confident you would convict, but the real defense in this case is 'I am a woman.'"

Court was adjourned after the arguments until tomorrow morning when Judge Koenig will charge the jury. The case is expected to be given to the jury by noon.

RESCUED SAILORS PARTLY FROZEN AND EXHAUSTED

St. John's N. F., March 6.—The crew of the British schooner A. B. Bartsaux, rescued from an ice floe three days after their vessel was crushed by the pack were brought here today, partly frozen and exhausted, by the Norwegian steamer Hauk which picked them up ten days ago and had been fighting the floes since to get the shipwrecked men to shore.

Captain Henry James, with both legs frozen and in danger of amputation, said he and his six men quit their ship on February 20, after she had become surrounded by ice. They had left New York on February 6 with anthracite coal for this port. On the morning of the 20th the floes folded in on the little schooner, while the crew tried to force her through lanes that opened from time to time. Then a huge mass, cake piled on cake to a height that made it look like a berg, cut through the vessel's bow.

INCREASE IN PRICE OF AUTOMOBILES PROBABLE

New York, March 6.—If the present trend in material and labor costs continues automobile prices probably will show some increases in the near future, Alvin Macauley, president of the ackard Motor Car Company, declared in a statement issued today. While the upward trend of steel, iron, aluminum, copper, leather, rubber and other materials points to an increase in the cost of producing automobiles, the important factor, Mr. Macauley said, is the fact that deliveries, particularly in steel, can only be obtained by the payment of a premium. Mr. Macauley said the extent of the increase could not be forecast and that manufacturers will delay it as long as possible.

"GOD OF VENGEANCE" OBSCENE AND IMMORAL

New York, March 6.—When Mary Garden passed through New York the last time, she told interviewers that in her opinion "God of Vengeance" was the most moral play now showing on the Broadway boards.

Fourteen persons connected with its production were indicted by a general sessions grand jury today for having part in the production of a "obscene and immoral play."

The names of those indicted were withheld until they could be served with copies of the indictment. They will be arraigned before Judge Crain tomorrow.

Evans, imperial wizard of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, today issued a signed statement declaring Edward Young Clarke, no longer had any official connection with the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. EXTENSIVE ICE FIELDS DANGEROUS TO NAVIGATION

Boston, March 6.—Warning of extensive ice fields described as dangerous to navigation, was contained in a radio message received here late today from the steamer Sinasta in mid-Atlantic. The master of the Sinasta gave the position of the ice fields as "the southwest limit of north latitude 42.23 and west longitude 50.10, extending easterly to 45.50 and as far north as can be seen."

"Advise all ships to keep south of the 42nd parallel," the message said.

New York, March 6.—Mrs. Myra Cleveland Hill Sims, who was accused of having used the name of Secretary Hoover in an effort to promote the World Radio Corporation, was convicted of grand larceny late today by a general sessions jury which heard complaints of investors in World Radio stock.

The jury was out but 45 minutes.

Mrs. Emily Thompson, a beauty parlor employe, the principal witness against Mrs. Sims, testified that she had given her $500 to invest in stock of the World Radio Corporation on her representation that Secretary Hoover was to become president of the corporation, a special act of congress having been passed to enable him to accept the post. She also testified that she had been given to understand by Mrs. Sims that she was the wife of a nephew of Rear Admiral Sims, a relative of the late President Grover Cleveland, and also a relative of former Governor David B. Hill of New York.

Mrs. Sims was remanded to the Tombs by Special Sessions Judge Talley for sentence on March 13.

NEW YORK PREPARES FOR A SEVERE SNOW STORM

New York, March 6.—The entire mechanical equipment of this city's street cleaning department, as well as a force of 13,000 men were called on to stem the advance of a severe snow storm which swept over New York today.

Snow began falling soon after 9 a. m. and continued without interruption [illegible] a high wind added to the discomfort of New Yorkers who a few days ago were reveling in hopes of an early spring.

At the office of the state fuel administration, thankfulness was expressed that the recent balmy weather had given coal merchants and carriers an opportunity to replenish stocks. It was said that the present storm would not precipitate a new crisis. There is more coal at the various piers than the city facilities can unload.

As further indication that the coal crisis was past, fuel administration officials said that one large coal company had received cancellations of orders for 225 carloads within the past few days.

FORMER KAISER HAS TROUBLE WITH WIFE

Doorn, Holland, March 6 (By the A. P.)—The relations between former Emperor William and his wife, Princess Hermine, are strained, according to information obtained from a member of the one-time emperor's entourage. This fact supposedly is the cause for the imminent departure of Hermine and her children for Silesia. The state of the health of the princess and the raw climate of Holland, however, are being assigned as reasons for her intention to leave Doorn.

While rumors are freely current in Doorn that Hermine again is to become a mother, no confirmation is obtainable from the former emperor's suite.

Recent reports concerning Princess Hermine were to the effect that she shortly would visit the island of Corfu, where former Emperor William has a castle.

SLEEPING SICKNESS IS PREVALENT IN NEW YORK

New York, March 6. — Sleeping sickness, following influenza attacks, has become prevalent in New York city and particularly in Brooklyn, more than three times as many persons dying from it since January 1 than during the same period last year, according to the department of health. Since the first of the year 97 people have died from encephalitis lethargica, the technical name of the disease, and of that number 36 were in Brooklyn. Last year during the same period 26 deaths occurred.

The Ruhr Question Debated in Commons

Bonar Law Asserted That Intervention at the Present Time Would be Regarded as Hostile to France.

London, March 6 (By the A. P.)—The debate in the house of commons tonight on affairs in the Ruhr reflected the strong growing feeling which has been observed of late in the liberal and labor press deprecating the government's attitude of benevolent neutrality and insisting that England take a definite stand, not necessarily withdrawing her troops from the Rhine, but informing France plainly in a formal note that England disapproves of the French policy and demands that the French government explicitly define its intentions towards Germany.

J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the laborites, moved a resolution that, with a view of securing peace, England should invite the French and Belgian chambers to appoint representative committees to meet a similar committee of the house of commons to exchange views on the occupation of the Ruhr and the problems of security and reparations.

Mr. MacDonald supported the resolution in a speech characterized by moderation, which elicited from Mr. Bonar Law expressions of full agreement with many of his statements, but the prime minister maintained his previous position that the time was not ripe for intervention, that such a move would be regarded as hostile to France and that the government was not prepared to assume that responsibility. He appealed to the labor leader not to press the matter to a division, and the resolution was talked out.

Mr. MacDonald's plan provoked little enthusiasm in the house generally. Lord Robert Cecil, H. A. L. Fisher and Mr. Bonar Law all agreed that it had little to recommend it, though many of the speakers voiced full sympathy with the laborite's general references to the French action.

Mr. MacDonald declared that France was rewriting the treaty of Versailles without consulting her allies, and events were happening which were only too likely to lead to a new war.

Lord Robert Cecil agreed that the government should make it quite clear to the other governments where it stood and what its policy was. H. A. L. Fisher contended that it was an international problem and that every effort should be made to get the United States in.

The prime minister, in winding up the debate, declared that France had gained nothing by her Ruhr adventure; but on the contrary had sustained a heavy loss and it was impossible to prophesy the outcome. He admitted that the government had nothing definite to propose to the house, and said that perhaps the absence of a policy was bad, but to have a policy which could not succeed and which in itself was bad would be even worse.

There were only two courses, the prime minister continued—to accept the Ruhr advance with the greatest amount of friendly feeling possible, or to break faith and make the two countries practically hostile.

To himself it seemed inevitable that to break the entente would mean the possibility of enforcing England's will on France by war. At this moment France would deeply resent any attempt at mediation. The government had dissociated itself from the French action, but did not desire to quarrel with France if it could possibly be avoided. The government's policy would not change with each debate on the situation. He did not believe for a moment that any French statesman seriously contemplated forming an European bloc against England.

He concluded by asking what sort of reception Mr. MacDonald thought his proposal would meet in the French and Belgian chambers.

SEVERE SENTENCE FOR "KING OF BOOTLEGGERS"

Bridgeport, March 6.—Edward Dirigibus of this city, was called "king of the bootleggers in Connecticut" by State's Attorney Homer S. Cummings in presenting a case against him in the superior court here this afternoon. Mr. Cummings declared that fear of murder had made it difficult for his office to secure evidence from persons who had knowledge of bootleg operations in the state. He also said that liquor law violations had grown to such proportions that they were "undermining the morale of the bar."

Dirigibus was sentenced to from one to two years in prison and was fined $2,000 after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of illegally transporting liquor.

The increase of 169 over those in need of repair on February 1 was attributed to bad weather conditions. From February 1 to February 15 the railroads repaired 17,485 locomotives, a number surpassed only three times since July 1, 1922, when the shopmen's strike began.

TO RE-ENACT MURDER OF SCHNEIDER RE-ENACTED

New York, March 6. — Failing to identify a fur coat seized today at the apartment of Mrs. Anna Bussi held in $25,000 bail as a material witness in the murder of Frederick Schneider, Bronx contractor, "Nick" Fullmer, Bronx farmer, only eye witness to the flight of a young woman believed to be responsible for the death will view the re-enactment of the crime, as police believe it occurred, tomorrow.

Fullmer was 200 yards from the machine, in which Schenider's body was found, and attracted by the two pistol shots, saw the woman fleeing from the car. The distance was too great, he said, to identify her.

Every detail will be carried out with exactness, District Attorney Glennon said tonight.

Two employes of Schneider recounted to the prosecution details of a quarrel between the contractor and Mrs. Bussi on the day of the murder, but gave no new information.

Investigators tonight were working on a new lead given them by a woman who telephoned the district attorney for an appointment and who was closeted with him for some time. The officials, however, refused to reveal the substance of the information.

LEGISLATIVE HEARINGS OF STATE-WIDE INTEREST

Military Affairs Committee to Recommend That the [illegible] State Police Force be Doubled in Size—Little Interest Displayed in Automobile Bills—Before the Education Committee the Vote Was Unanimous Against Placing in the Hands of the Governor the Power of Appointing the Secretary of the State Board of Education.

Hartford, March 6.—It will be the policy of Connecticut for the next two years to have a railroad commission to advise the governor as to Connecticut's attitude towards the plan of railroad consolidation proposed by the interstate commerce commission under a bill reported to the general assembly today. Its adoption is expected forthwith, as Governor Templeton favors such a commission, to continue the work now being done by a somewhat similar body.

The committee on railroads apparently will not submit a five cent trolley fare bill, nor will it favor legislation against the one-man trolley car, because on some bills of this nature there were unfavorable reports today. The committee holds the opinion that a "presentation of facts and conditions relief is possible under the regulatory power of the public utilities commission. There are other bills to be reported, but Senator McGrath, who led the fight for a nickel fare, abolition of one-man trolley cars in Waterbury and election of utility commissioners by popular vote, does not expect the committee to side with him on the remaining measures. He spoke in the senate on the 5 cent bill and reiterated his assertions that the Connecticut company "had lost the confidence of the people," which he again declared could be regained by a lower fare.

The hearing before the committee on roads, bridges and rivers this afternoon on automobile bills, to change the present laws, was another illustration of the lack of general interest in hearings this session. The representatives' hall was used, but there were less than two score persons present.

Of several bills called there was actual appearance of a proponent on only one. This was on a proposal of the Connecticut Automobile Dealers' association to have operators convicted of drunkenness while driving fined $25, and for permanent revocation of license for second offense. Counsel for the association argued for the proposal as tending to deal more severely with offenders, but Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel pointed out that the present law is actually more severe on first offenders and can be drastically applied for a second offense if the court desires.

Another bill proved to be the exact wording of the present law, and two bills were duplicates. These latter would provide that cars of non-residents might stay in the state thirty days instead of fifteen.

Mr. Stoeckel did not sponsor any of the bills, stating that amendments to present laws which he had in mind will be held back until all bills are heard, that he may benefit by suggestions for or opinion as to need of changes.

The military affairs committee has agreed, it is understood, to a recommendation that the present state police force be doubled in size along the lines of the recommendations of the state police commission. A bill of this kind will displace bills providing for reorganization.

The chief hearing before the education committee was that on the of Senator Brooks which places in the hands of the governor the power of appointing the secretary of the state board of education and provides for the appointment of a man who shall have been a resident of the state for at least six years. Representatives of city boards of education as well as educators from various institutions throughout the state appeared to oppose the bill.

In presenting the argument for his bill, Senator Brooks disclaimed any intention of aiming it at the present commissioner of education, A. B. Meredith of Hartford. He said, however, that had he known Mr. Meredith at the time he drew up the bill he might have changed the wording of it slightly.

"I am opposed to state or federalized control of anything that can be handled locally," he said, in explaining that through his bill he hoped to decentralize power over educational matters. He declared that the state board should have only supervisory powers and should not be in a position to spend money for educational programs without consideration for the wishes of taxpayers.

He also said that the present state board laws were in so muddled a condition that the state board had prosecuted cases which were in the nature of legal issues. He cited the cases of two men in Harwinton arrested for failing to send their children to school after the local school had refused them admittance because they had not been vaccinated, and declared that it was an unwarranted action on the part of the board.

In concluding, he appealed to the committee to make whatever changes it deemed npecessary in his bill to effect a revision of education laws in the state.

In opposition to the bill, Dean Frederick Jones of Yale, chairman of the state board, said that the bill would make of the position of secretary of the board a "political football" which would destroy the "continuity of policy" which he declared was essential for the welfare of education.

He also objected to the committee to draft a bill which would create a commission to look into the educational laws of the state, many of which, he said, were a grave problem to the state board itself. He declared, however, that the Brooks bill would simply take the position of secretary of the board out of the hands of [illegible] and place it in the hands of "politicians."

Charles S. Ames, member of the board, bitterly opposed the bill, declaring that it was aimed at but one man. He said that he had never seen a bill introduced in the general assembly "so fraught with danger and of such sinister nature to a loyal citizen of the state."

Representatives of the Connecticut League of Women Voters and the Connecticut Federation of Women Teachers also opposed the bill, maintaining that it would be unfair [illegible] to the present commissioner and to the children of the state.

At the conclusion of the hearing Senator Bakewell, chairman of the committee, asked for a rising vote. Practically all present voted against the bill, while no one favored it.

The committee then took up two bills concerning teachers' retirement funds which would raise the present minimum pension of $300 a year to $600, and would also increase the teachers' assessment for the fund to $150. Representatives of teachers' associations spoke in behalf of the bills, declaring that the present minimum was not adequate.

In answer to questions by Senator Bakewell concerning the cost of the change to the state, it was stated that it would mean an increase of $90,000 biennially and would also mean the creation of a reserve fund of $200,000 to care for the increase of the pensions of those now receiving less than the minimum provided for in the bill.

STATUS OF THE "LITTLE RED SCHOOLHOUSE BILL"

Hartford, March 6.—The so-called "little red schoolhouse bill," divested of provisions that were construed as encouraging the closing of one-room schoolhouses, will be returned to the senate tomorrow by the legislative committee on education. As it would commit the state to a policy of paying to towns a proportion of their expenses for transporting pupils to elementary schools, thus involving a state appropriation of $135,000 for the next two fiscal years, further reference of the bill to the appropriations committee will be recommended.

Five important changes have been made in the substitute bill which is to be reported tomorrow by Chairman Bakewell of the education committee. Briefly, they are:

1. That it proposes to fix the percentage of state aid to towns for pupils' transportation in exactly the same basis as state aid is expended to towns for teachers' salaries.

2. That it eliminates a clause which would restrict state aid for transportation to towns which have discontinued an elementary school within the past five years, or which closed such a school subsequent to the passage of the bill.

3. That it makes it unnecessary for a town to discontinue a school in order to secure this state aid, provided the transportation provided for pupils is "reasonable and necessary."

4. That it provides for an annual grant based upon all expenditures for transportation of elementary school pupils during each year after July 15, 1924.

5. That it eliminates a requirement that towns must secure the approval of the state board of education of the transportation means provided, in advance of the school year for which the aid is requested.

SUFFERING AND DEATHS FROM LACK OF COAL

Boston, March 6.—An enormous increase in pneumonia, much suffering and some deaths have been caused in Massachusetts this winter by lack of coal and because of the poor quality of the fuel sold in this state, Dr. Eugene R. Kelley, commissioner of public health declared at a legislative hearing today. He was urging favorable action by a committee on Governor Cox's proposal to confiscate coal unfit for consumption and to prosecute dealers who sell such coal.

Jacob Bitzer, an investigator for the attorney general, showed a bag said as 25 pounds of coal and he said contained only slate. The bag was sold for 32 cents—at the rate of $29.60 a ton. B. Preston Clark, acting emergency fuel administrator said that 9 per cent. of all the coal received in the state was found to be bad, and that "poor coal is just as conducive to disease and death as tainted food."

W. A. Clark, of Northampton, president of the New England Coal Dealers' association, attacked the constitutionality of the proposal. He thought a pending bill to license dealers would serve the purpose. It was his opinion, he said, that the coal shortage was purely psychological, adding that there was plenty of soft coal, which people refused to burn.

INCREASE IN COMMODITY PRICES IN GENERAL

New York, March 6.—Although recent advances in metals, textiles and other commodities have been offset to some degree by declines in livestock, coal, coke, hides and leather there was a general advance in commodity prices of 1.5 per cent. During February, Bradstreets announced today. The index number as of March 1, was $13.9325, an advance of 20 per cent. over March 1, 1922 and of 31 per cent. over the low point of June 1, 1920, the high peak of commodity prices, compared with August 1, 1914, the advance was just 40 per cent.

In a rear collision Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock on Union street opposite the First Baptist church, Fred Roy, 19, of Bank street was slightly injured in a peculiar manner. He was riding on the seat of a wagon belonging to the Polish Bakery Union, which was being driven east just as Fred Roy drove a car from the opposite direction at a speed of about ten miles an hour. The Bakery wagon had just left Main street and passed into Union street and was half way into the center of the road. Fred Roy was forced to swing his machine almost to a dead stop. The machine boy fell from the seat of the bakery wagon directly in front of Fred's car. He was struck by the fender but fell between the wheels but was not run over. Mr. Roy picked up the boy and rushed him to the hospital where he was attended by Dr. J. A. Girouard who found that aside from some bruises on one arm he was uninjured. L. Yeomans acted in that capacity. It was voted to levy an eighteen mill tax compared with 20 mills last year. The grand list of the town showed a decrease of $179 from the figure of 1921. The tax rate was reduced, it was stated by some of those present at the meeting, as the school expenses for the year were cut down due to the fact that the town only has to pay the tuition fee for fifteen pupils at Windham High School instead of twenty-five as was the case last year. The matter of building a new road between Andover Center and Hebron with state aid during the coming summer was discussed but no action was taken.

JEWETT CITY

The residents of the fish and game protective officials in the Griswold section has been rewarded lately with the conviction of more than the usual number of law violators. A few weeks ago three cases were reported here of promiscuous shooting which was taking place nights down in the vicinity of Kittowa mountain. Investigation has pretty well established the fact that "jack" hunting and shooting of deer has been going on to considerable extent off in the big wooded districts in this section. In jack shooting the hunter wears a small lamp, with powerful reflector, on the front of his cap. In the dark woods at night the deer see the beam of light from the lamp and the hunter is then able to approach quite closely with his rifle. Should he be mistaken for a deer by the gun hunter or his companion when he approaches into the field of the reflected light, to shoot at any such hunting is illegal at any time.

...ake Schneider, of San Francisco, threatened to withdraw his challenge for a title match with world's champion Willie Ritchie for the 150-pound limit championship, today when she disagreed with Miss Anita Ulline, of Chicago, by a margin of 4 and 3. The champion gave her opponent many opportunities to win holes in the first nine, but the Chicago girl failed to take advantage.

At the eighth hole Miss Collett drove a beautiful ball and then proceeded to put her second shot into a trap. Miss Ulline was not in trouble, but the best she could do was a six which was only good for a halve. At the tenth hole Miss Collett was 1 up. She took back one of these holes coming in. On the short 16th she sank a twenty foot putt which ended the match.

Mrs. Caleb Fox, of Huntingdon Valley, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Merion Cricket and Mrs. Alex Smith of Shawnee-on-Delaware are the other semi-finalists. Mrs. Smith defeated Miss Marjorie Lake, daughter of former governor Lake of Connecticut, by 5 and 4, to gain her position in the semi-final.

Miss Priscilla Maxwell, of Hartford, had to play four extra holes before she came home a victim from Mrs. H. M. Rockwell, of Englewood, in the second flight.

Huston, part owner of the Yankees, were ready tonight to leave Hot Springs in the opening lead join the regulars in the South training at New Orleans. McNally, who is suffering from the same ailment as Ruth of the "flu," is also on his feet again and ready to go into action under warm southern skies. Both of the little pitty players and the big slugger expect to get into uniform soon after their arrival at the Crescent city.

It began to rain in torrents late today and Frank Chance, manager of the Boston Red Sox, his first opportunity to get his prospects into their playing clothes. Wet grounds prevented diamond practice and exercise took the form of a mountain hike.

Chance has issued orders for all his men to be on the field in uniform early tomorrow. The new leader will have his hands busy with the unusual percentage of recruits, only twelve of the 43 athletes ordered to report here being members of the last Sox. It is said.

WEISSMULLER SHATTERS ANOTHER WORLD'S RECORD

New Haven, March 6.—Johnny Weissmuller, of the Illinois Athletic club, world's champion swimmer, today broke by 11 seconds the world's record for the 440-yard swim in a 75 foot pool. Weissmuller, swimming against time with two official representatives by the A. A. U. holding the watches, made the distance in 4 minutes, 47 seconds, beating his own record of 5 minutes, 8 seconds.

The record was made in the Carnegie pool of Yale university during an intramural swimming meet held here. Weissmuller had come from Chi-

...to swim in the Yale pool in his attempt at establishing the record.

The record was made at the Milwaukee Athletic association pool, June 10, last September, when he broke the world's record of 5 minutes, 11 seconds held by Arne Borg, of Sweden.

This is the 45th world's record that Weissmuller has broken.

COMMISSION NOT TO PRESS CHARGES AGAINST GREB

New York, March 6.—The New York State Athletic commission will take no action at present on charges that Harry Greb, former American light heavyweight champion, gave $5,000 to New York sporting writers to boom a bout between him and Jack Dempsey, heavyweight titleholder. It was announced tonight by William Muldoon, chairman of the Commission.

"I personally place no foundation in the report," Mr. Muldoon declared, "and believe it is a matter for those interested to thresh out. It was brought informally to the attention of the commission today but I see no necessity for action at present."

The New York World, however, announced tonight it would sift to the bottom the charges, which grew out of an article published in the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, quoting Greb as saying he gave money to local writers under protest. The results of its investigation, the World said, would be laid before Muldoon.

The World today, in answer to telegraphic queries, published a denial from Greb that he had made the statement. Together with a statement from Charles A. Doyle, writer of the article, insisted that he had printed exactly what the pugilist told him.

DEMPSEY OFFERED $100,000 TO MEET GIBBONS

Cleveland, March 6.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, has been offered a guarantee of $100,000 or the privilege of $7.1-2 per cent. of the gate receipts to meet Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul in a twelve round bout July 4 or on Labor day, it was learned here tonight. The bout probably would be held at Maple Heights race track, about 15 miles southeast of here.

U. S. GOLF BODY NOT TO CHANGE ITS DECISION

New York, March 6.—The United States Golf association today announced officially that it would not alter its decision to adhere to the present system of holding the open championship, in preference to east and west sectional qualifying tournaments, as suggested by the professional golfer's association, despite several recent protests from P. G. A. officials.

Claims that the present method is productively of unwieldy fields and lost time have been considered by the U. S. G. A., it was said, but not found sufficient to warrant any change in the title event, which this year is scheduled for July 9 to 13 at the Inwood, Long Island, Country Club.

From the viewpoint of the U. S. G. A., it was declared, a better chance of saving time exists under the present system than would result with two qualifying sections, while in addition, the open championship, as now conducted, serves as an annual "get-together" for the professional stars from all parts of the country.

EUGENE CRIQUI TO STAGE CHARITY BOUT SOON

Paris, March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Eugene Criqui, featherweight boxing champion of Europe, will withdraw on a benefit match to raise funds for the installations required by French scientists in hospitals, two months after he returns from the United States where he is to box Johnny Kilbane for the world's featherweight title. The announcement was made today by Robert Eudeline, Criqui's manager.

Eudeline said Criqui would agree that the entire receipts of the benefit bout should go to science, and that he hoped a match would be arranged.

If a fight between Criqui and some other featherweight is arranged it will take the place of the proposed bout between Georges Carpentier and "Battling" Siki, which was abandoned because each of the fighters demanded a share of the gate receipts.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Well, I'm going to tell you right away the two little rabbits got back to Rabbitville, U. S. A. last night at thirteen o'clock, just as the town clock struck the hour. And goodness me, but they were glad to be at home once more, let me tell you for they hadn't forgotten what a time they'd had getting down from the North Pole.

"Goodness, gracious meakness!" exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit, after he had put his two hind feet in a pair of old carpet slippers and lighted his pipe. "I never want to go to the North Pole again," and he put on his spectacles and picked up the Bunnytown "Telegram" and what do you suppose he saw on the front page? Well, you'd never guess, so why did I ask you I'd like to know. Well, this is what dear Uncle Lucky saw just the same:

"Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot, president of the Rabbitville Bank and the Welsh Rabbit club has just returned from a trip to the North Pole. Little Jack Rabbit of the Old Bramble Patch, Rail Fence Corner went with him. We are glad to say that their safe return makes all Rabbitville happy."

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed the old gentleman rabbit and he laughed so hard that his spectacles fell off his nose and his gold watch bumped out of his waistcoat pocket. "Look at this, Little Jack Rabbit," and he handed the paper to his bunny nephew. And just then, the little cricket began to sing:

"We didn't know what we would do,
When you were far away.
The three grasshoppers never danced
But wept the livelong day.

And never once a chirp I gave,
But kept inside my hole,
While you and Little Jack Rabbit went
To find the cold North Pole."

"Well that's very nice of you," said the old gentleman rabbit and then the three little grasshoppers who lived in the kitchen woodbox all winter, hopped into the room and bowed to Uncle Lucky.

For everybody was fond of that dear old gentleman rabbit, let me tell you for he was always doing good. Why, then, day before he and Little Jack Rabbit started for the North Pole, so Bobbie Redvest told me, he gave a lettuce dollar bill to the old apple woman who kept a stand on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Bean street. And the reason he gave it to her was because cruel Mr. North Wind had frozen seven of her apples and nobody wanted to buy them after that.

Just then, the Yellow Dog Tramp knocked on the window, so Uncle Lucky went to the porch to see what was the matter for the Yellow Dog Tramp was doing the chores this winter for the old gentleman rabbit, you remember. And in the next story, you shall hear what happened.

THE WORLD COURT.

Much surprise would have been occasioned had it developed that President Harding intended to have nothing more to do with his recommendation concerning the joining of the international court of justice by this country. He did not call for a snap judgment and even enough unfavorable action was taken upon the Robinson resolution dealing with the recommendation he holds, to the belief that it does not represent the attitude of the country and will continue his support of it in the next congress.

The president has been criticised for not going ahead and taking such action as he might concerning the adherence of the United States to the protocol creating the court and then asking for the consent of the senate. To have taken that action might have been within his rights but it would have been doing the same thing that President Wilson did and deserving that he would accept that or nothing, instead of seeking the advice and consent of the senate without appearing to crowd something down its throat. The method he followed is one calculated to make progress under the most favorable conditions.

It isn't believed that the country regards the matter of joining the international court as dead because of the action taken in the senate. There had been full recognition of the fact that difficulties [illegible] will continue to occur between nations and there is a [illegible] than they should be [illegible] accord with facts rather [illegible] force. Talk is permitted [illegible] of a court to deal [illegible] these things when necessary.

The president [illegible] may say frankly that it is unreasonable to the idea that the [illegible] people who have so long been opposed to this ideal, should reflect [illegible] sentiment now to such a progressive [illegible] is reprehended by this [illegible] Nothing could be further [illegible] purposes of the administration [illegible] program that our country [illegible] its control over [illegible] fundamental rights and destiny [illegible] we may be sure that [illegible] will always arise among [illegible] people, and not an excuse [illegible] have been set up to determine [illegible] between individuals, [illegible] proper that provision should be made for a fair adjudication of these differences between nations and peoples which may properly be submitted to such determination."

PHILADELPHIA'S LAXITY.

Philadelphia has been aroused by a long list of automobile accidents, culminating in the killing of three by one motorist who had figured in a previous case, and realizes that there has been too much laxity in the matter of enforcement of reasonable and proper law for the town. It has featured the reclamation by the hoisting up of thousands of auto drivers, finding that many of them had no licenses or failed to carry them and that there were large numbers who were paying no attention to a speed limit. Some in fact didn't know there was such a thing. The result has been that in the past few days the courts of that city have been crowded with automobile cases.

This situation, as well as the many automobile accidents, plainly indicates that the Quaker city had not been giving the protection to the users of the highways and the pedestrians that it should. They have been made to take unreasonable chances because of the failure to see that the laws intended for the protection of the people have been enforced. Laxity of that kind has given encouragement to disregard for the law until conditions got so bad it was impossible to neglect them any longer.

It is unfortunate that there has to be such sacrifices of life before the proper degree of attention is given to deplorable conditions. Whether the present attention to automobile traffic conditions is a temporary flurry remains to be seen.

The Packard driver isn't going to curb his activities unless he is required. It is his disposition to take chances. He likes it, he likes to display what he considers his cleverness and he likes to tell about it. The habit is contagious and it doesn't take long to [illegible] a whole school of imitators and it is natural to figure that if others can do it there is no reason why all cannot do so.

Philadelphia has apparently awakened to its menace, but the corrective methods that are now being applied will amount to nothing unless they become permanent.

THE POSTAL SERVICE HEAD.

Postmaster General Harry S. New has not announced in so many words that his choice is to be "Doubt, Not Words" but that is about what it amounts to if we are to judge by his statement on taking office.

He pays a deserved compliment to his predecessors when he said that he didn't believe many changes would be necessary because of the practical manner in which they [illegible]

DESERVED COMMENDATION.

What is the duty of a man, in case he happens to be a taxicab driver, if he finds that one of his patrons has left a large sum of money and valuables in his machine? We are inclined to think that you will declare that he ought to return it, if such a thing is possible, by making the necessary effort to get it to the owner as quickly as possible.

That is just what a taxi driver in Boston did this week when he found that a bag containing $5,000 in money and an unknown amount of securities had dropped to the bottom of the machine. And remained there undetected as a man and his wife hurried into the station.

The driver wasn't any longer in deciding what to do than other persons would have been. He had no time to lose but dashed through the crowd until he found the couple he had carried and returned the bag and valuables before the couple and realized they were lost. The act brought him a $100 reward from the man and a kiss from the woman, but more than that it gave him some highly valuable advertising concerning his honesty for the man who had recovered his money took occasion to tell the matter to the police and to commend the conduct of this driver.

Possibly it was making a considerable fuss over a small thing, but in these times when the number of those who appear to be striving to display other than an honest disposition is so great it deserves to get notice. Hundreds as in words have been condemned the delay wrong there is just as good reason for commending him for having done right and to lay emphasis upon it.

STARTING THE FILIBUSTER.

When Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania announces that there is a growing movement among a very considerable number of members of the leading the Role of filibustering in the upper house of congress, it is to be sincerely hoped that that statement is sufficient to bring about the restriction that has long been needed.

The domination of filibustering cannot be too strong. It is an obstruction policy pure and simple. It is intended to prevent action and it accomplishes its purpose without any question, regardless of the injustice that it does and regardless of the inconvenience with the other business that is certain to be interrupted.

Filibusters are not the report of any one party alone. Both have indulged in them to the same end. It is a practice that has repeatedly called for and received condemnation but it has not been possible to prod the senate to the point of checking it. Senator Pepper has visited his mind in regard to it in the senate and it is impossible that he should not know how others feel in regard to it. Whatever may be the attitude of the members of that body it is certain that whatever successful steps can be taken to end such a practice as is now permitted by the rule will be heartily welcomed by the people.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The political marvel of the 68th Congress will be Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood, who after two years in retirement, is returning to the house as the representative of his old district, the Ninth Ohio. At long ago as 1913 Gen. Sherwood had the distinction of being the oldest member of the house of representatives. Now, at the age of 83, he is believed to be the oldest man ever elected to congress since the establishment of the federal government. In the new congress he will have the additional distinction of being the only Union Civil War veteran in the house. Enlisting as a private from Ohio, he served with distinction throughout the war and at its close was mustered out as a brigadier-general of volunteers. He began his political career in 1859 as secretary of state of Ohio and after entering the house of congress just a half century ago, [illegible]

Wives of Famous Men

Hannah Hoes, Wife of Martin Van Buren.

When Martin Van Buren, eighth president of the United States, was only twenty-nine years old but already a rising politician, he married Hannah Hoes, a young woman who had been his classmate in the little town of Kinderhook, N. Y., where he was born. They were the same age and had known each other since childhood.

Although her husband attained the highest honor that can be bestowed in America, and she became the first lady of the land, Hannah Van Buren cared very little for social or public affairs. Her Dutch ancestry probably accounted for her extraordinary interest in domestic matters. She was greatly loved by the poor, among whom she never ceased to work even after duties of state claimed her. Simplicity and sweetness were the keynotes of her nature.

While not a great beauty as some of the preceding mistresses of the White House and not as brilliantly educated nor as sparklingly witty as some others, Mrs. Van Buren won for herself an unchallenged place in the esteem and affection of the people over whom her husband presided.

Far from ignorant, she was yet simple and unassuming in her tastes and habits. Her pleasures were modest, her manner was retiring. She was very helpful to the president, who consulted her not infrequently upon important matters, and who has been quoted repeatedly as saying that he never could have reached his high estate without the loving and efficient help of Hannah.

Unhappily, they had but a brief span of life together. Mrs. Van Buren died after they had been married only twelve years. Perhaps she can be best characterized by her neighbor who, when she learned that she had only a few more days to live she said that she wanted a funeral conducted with the utmost simplicity, so that the money could be saved and used in helping the needy. Even then she knew she was dying for thoughts were with the beloved poor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

[illegible] Voters Law.

Mr. Editor: The [illegible] absent voters' law has now been adopted in one form or another in thirty-six states. Most of the remaining twelve, of which Pennsylvania is the only [illegible] are morally bound to follow the majority in time.

In a few states it has been necessary to amend the constitution to provide for the law. In California this proposal was defeated by eight votes four times by the vote, in 1914 it was defeated by 146,000, but won last November by 11,000.

If a sound absent voting law had any [illegible] with undesirable voters, there would be justification for withholding the privilege. But on the contrary it offers to only the highest class of voters, namely, university students, legislators, army and navy men, commercial travelers, railroad trainmen, theatrical folk, etc.—those which no sound community can afford to bar.

Its operation has been singularly free of fraud, except in a few localities where it was the victim of official connivance. The Indiana law being the latest resulted in some abuses in that state, but its remodeling is now before the assembly. On the whole it has been everywhere successful. Can any progressive state continue to deny its absent citizens the privilege?

CHILD TRAINING

Cultivate Adaptability in Children.
By Edith Lethridge Hart.

A characteristic too often overlooked or at least unemphasized in the training of children is that of adaptability. How does your child respond to adverse conditions or new contacts? When you take him visiting does he make a fuss because he can't sleep in his own bed or eat with his own spoon or ride in the front seat of the car as he does at home? If he responds unfavorably to new conditions, then his training in conforming to circumstances has been neglected.

A child that cannot comply with the routine of the home in which he is a guest can upset plans and create friction until the pleasure of the visit is spoiled for mother and hostess, and to prepare him so that this unpleasantness may be avoided cannot be done in the space of three days that precede a visit.

To be sure, a child should have his own things and should be held to a system of conduct at home—else how can he form easy habits of regularity; but for a moment can this theory be discounted. And it is very well to see that small children should be left as home as much as possible and not subjected to a change of living conditions [illegible] every Mother knows that there are exceptions to this rule. We can not all have nurse girls and housekeepers, and we cannot always stay at home, or while we live training the children in good habits let us not give them the idea that these habits are not adjustable.

Well, how shall we do it? The fundamental point in adjustability is self-confidence. In fact, when you think of a [illegible] unconfidence is about always to solve the problem of adaptation in social and business life.

One little mother helped her children by having a feast day at home. On this day the whole family pretended they were visiting some place that they like, instead of having his high chair, sat on two books and a cushion at his own table. His mother had to eat with a big knife and fork and drink from a "grownup glass" and there wasn't any milk, as they drank water and were very polite about it.

You get the idea? The family are lifted out of the rut—hoisted up as it were—to peer over the hitherto[illegible] fence to see what is in the neighbor's yard. And the change of scene is important rather than surprising.

In social life one meets [illegible] and the most popular is the person[illegible] mously known as a good mixer. The qualifications for which are simply adaptability to circumstances and the [illegible] for the interests and ideas of others. So the sooner and the more thoroughly our children untrammel these traits, the easier will everyday living be for them and their associates, but only by the natural patient guidance of the mother can these requirements be attained.

A Little Talk on Thrift

More Home Owners

Last year approximately $4,000,000,000 was spent in the United States on home construction. It is not possible to state how much of this represented new home-ownership, but it is safe to say that this phase of practical thrift work represented an investment running into the millions.

In 1920 there were 21,000,000 families in the United States, 11,000,000 of which owned their own homes. Since that time there has been a large increase throughout the country in permits issued for the construction of one-family houses.

Slowly, perhaps, but none surely we are becoming a nation of home-owners, and no development in our national life could be so significant of right thinking and right acting upon the part of the people.

There is every indication at this time that a tremendous amount of home building will continue during the year. Very large gains in building permits are being reported in communities where the percentage of home ownership is already large.

Now is a good time for those who are not home-owners to begin thinking about this matter. There are organizations or institutions in almost every community that will co-operate with those who desire to become the possessor of homes of their own, and in a broad way, it can be stated that any wage earner in the country who honestly desires to join the ranks of the home-owners, can secure position, encouragement

It is of course not possible or perhaps advisable in every case. In the congestion of our large cities it may not prove a good thrift. But, generally speaking, it is universally advisable and when a man becomes the owner of his own home he has laid the cornerstone of a happy and successful family life. He has the best tangible evidence of the value of having his thrift habits continue even after the home has been paid for. His children grow up in an atmosphere of prudent habits. They become potential home builders and home owners. The worst of their habits have been blasted, even as multiplying by blessedness in this generation and in generations to come.

Let us have more and more home owners in America.—Atlantic Monthly.

HOW TO FORGET TROUBLES

TROUBLES knock up your appetite, Miss Jack Dempsey knocks down his opponents.

Troubles cool blows hold in the head and stomach—and they hurt the stomach more than they do the head!

Troubles give the stomach bad qualities, mess up the liver—and then follow constipation and biliousness.

The way to get rid of troubles is by invigorating digestion, setting the liver and bowels and then the entire system. The best way to do this—has been for the past 30 years—is to take Beecham's Pills.

Then you will find to good that "troubles" become nearly problems to be solved readily by the clear, keen brain of health.

SAY JEALOUSY OF NEW LONDON DOCTORS IS BACK OF THIS B

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, March 6.—That the jealousy of New London physicians is back of house bill 725, an act concerning the qualifications of compensation commissioners, was asserted at the hearing on the bill given today before the judiciary committee.

The bill provides, (1) that no compensation commissioner who is a licensed physician or surgeon, shall engage in the practice of his profession or perform any medical service or surgery of any kind for hire in any case where the patient under treatment comes within or under the provision of the act known as the workmen's compensation act.

2. No compensation commissioner, who is a licensed physician or surgeon shall be under retainer to any insurance company for any service whatsoever; and he shall not, during his term of office, act in the capacity of physician or surgeon to any person requiring such attention and who may be a litigant coming within the provisions of the workmen's compensation act.

Atty. J. J. Donohue of Norwich, compensation commissioner for the second district, is the only physician-commissioner, it has been generally understood that the bill is aimed at him. In all the arguments made for and against the bill before the committee, there was no criticism of his acts as a commissioner, but advocates of the bill, as well as its opponents, spoke in commendation of his qualifications for the position.

George C. Morgan of New London appeared in support of the bill representing the New London Medical society. He read the minutes of the society meeting held to discuss the subject.

At this meeting, he said, Doctors Douglas and Henkel were of the opinion that it was not proper that a compensation commissioner should practice for a fee in compensation cases. It is a violation of sound professional ethics. The office of compensation commissioner in this state is a judicial office. The rules of court forbid that any judge should preside in any case in which he is interested.

The affidavit of Michael Murphy was read, who deposed that he was employed by the New London Ship and Engine company and that he became ruptured and the engine company advised and insisted that I go to Dr. James J. Donohue for treatment.

Questions as why a compensation commissioner might not properly treat a case, when the matter of compensation would be considered by another commissioner, Mr. Morgan replied that the salary paid the commissioner should be sufficient to keep him from that class of practice.

This proposed bill is not aimed at Doctor Donohue personally, for, said Mr. Morgan, he had often appeared before Doctor Donohue in compensation cases and had always been treated in a fair and courteous manner. He considered Dr. Donohue above any improper or ulterior motive in this case. He considered him above any such action.

Dr. Woodruff of New London, said that he was not acquainted with Dr. Donohue, but he was of the opinion that no physician should have anything to do with compensation cases.

Doctor Cheney of New London was of the opinion that he could do better in settlement of cases with the insurance companies if it were not for Doctor Donohue.

He had had his fees cut down by Doctor Donohue. In answer to the chairman Mr. Morgan said that he considered the decisions of Dr. Donohue had been eminently fair, not excelled by any of the other commissioners.

Opposing the Bill.

Commissioner George E. Chandler spoke in opposition to the bill. He said that he had not been requested to appear in this case. He suggested that the committee rewrite the bill so that it would read, "That Doctor James J. Donohue be prohibited from practicing his profession."

If he has been abusing his office, it is strange that during a period of ten years, his wrong doing has just been discovered. It is significant that the complaint comes entirely from New London. No one else in the Second Congressional District has complained. No one from Norwich, Putnam, Middletown or Willimantic has appeared or asked to be heard.

Norwich Medical Resolution.

The resolutions adopted by the Norwich Medical Association on Feb. 19, was read as follows:

Resolved, That the Norwich Medical Association go on record as opposed to House Bill No. 725, which was introduced by Representative Payne of New London by request.

We believe we are thoroughly conversant with the situation which prompted this measure, and feel that any legislation of this description is uncalled for and thoroughly taken care of by the statutes as they stand at the present time.

Sec. 2 of the proposed act, or House Bill No. 725, brings out very clearly the spirit and attitude influencing this sort of legislation, and we wish to say that the intimation contained in this section relates to something which has never been known to exist in medical history in the state of Connecticut.

Personal thrusts of this kind are undignified, and unbecoming the members of the medical profession, and we regret that any medical men, because of some personal disappointments which may have come to him at the hands of the compensation commissioners, should stoop to such a petty procedure as this.

We look upon this sort of legislation as vicious and of a character which can do no good to those proposing such a measure and little harm to anybody else.

If an act of this character could be passed, no court or tribunal of justice in the state of Connecticut would be safe from the attack of some disappointed litigant.

We further consider it unnecessary in every aspect and a class of legislation which, if given the slightest countenance, would be a great misfortune to the state of Connecticut.

After this matter is given the careful consideration which it deserved, we trust those who will have it in their power to determine and finally pass upon will realize the misfortune that would result to the state of Connecticut if efforts of this kind were successful, and that they will also see the necessity of rejecting a bill which amounts to personal legislation.

(Signed.)
NORWICH MEDICAL ASSOCIATION
By R. R. Agnew, M. D.,
President.
And Lester E. Walker, M. D.,
Secretary.

At this meeting there were 25 physicians present, said Mr. Chandler. At the New London meeting there were nine present; five voted for the resolution, one against and three refused to vote. It looked as if the doctors in New London had formed a sort of union. They had fixed prices which were beyond those charged in other cities.

In Massachusetts the state pays a physician $11,000 a year to furnish advice to the compensation commissioners. Doctor Donohue, said Mr. Chandler, is furnishing his advice to the Connecticut commissioners for nothing. A paid attorney has appeared for this bill. Not a business man has appeared. There is no complaint from the manufacturers.

H. H. Gallup, who has been in the belt manufacturing business in Norwich for forty-nine years and has also been under the compensation law since it went into effect said he considered Doctor Donohue eminently fair and conscientious in all of his official acts.

Senator Hermon J. Gibbs, of Norwich said that he was a member of an organization of Railroad men which hda more than 200 members in New London. Every one of these men endorse Doctor Donohue.

He asked Attorney Munyon how many members there were in the New London association and he was unable to answer but said there were nine present at the meeting.

Dr. Cheney said there were twenty-five members in the New London association. Senator Gibbs thought nine men out of twenty-five was a rather small representation. He was of the opinion that the opposition was entirely caused by jealousy.

Doctors Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich state hospital, and R. R. Agnew, president of the Norwich Medical association, gave strong endorsement to the acts of Dr. Donohue.

Robert McNeely, business manager of the Norwich Building Trades, said that many times in case of accidents of a serious nature Dr. Donohue on account of his superior skill and knowledge, has been quickly sought. It was a sad affair that a man should be attacked for performing an act which oftentimes was an act of mercy and might save a life.

Adelard Morin, manager of the Plaut-Cadden Company, spoke in endorsement of Dr. Donohue. Others attending the hearing and opposing the bill were Senator William G. Park of the Shoestring district, Dr. John W. Callahan, Dr. William T. Driscoll, Superintendent F. Leon Hutchins of the Backus hospital, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve and Michael J. Coscoran.

For More Compensation.

Representative Adenolfi of New Haven appeared in support of the bill introduced by him that would increase the compensation from fifty to sixty-six and two-thirds per cent of the average weekly wage and increase the time in which compensation shall be paid from six years to ten years. The bill was opposed by Ralph O. Wells, representing the Connecticut Manufacturers association. He argued that in those states in which the amount named is paid, the amount allowed for medical attendance is much smaller. In Connecticut unlimited medical service is allowed and the average amount paid for that service has averaged forty per cent of the cost to the manufacturers.

The town meeting to lay a town tax was held Monday evening in the town hall with a large attendance. Town Clerk A. P. Cote called the meeting to order and on the asking of nominations for chairman, John C. Donovan was chosen and A. P. Cote chosen clerk. On motion of Representative Joseph W. Wellington and seconded by Howard Buennell a 13-mill tax was levied to be paid in two installments, 6 mills on April 1 and 7 mills Nov. 1, this method of paying the taxes is agreeable to the majority of the taxpayers. It has been done before and has proved satisfactory. This 13-mill tax was levied to cover only the ordinary expenses of the town for the year—the town's part of the state road that is being built to the Franklin town line and the construction of the town's part of the Versailles bridge which went down last fall and is being built under the supervision of the state highway department will have to be looked after later on when the town's share of the costs is determined. Selectmen Jodoin, Senator Park and Representative Wellington spoke on the matter of the Versailles bridge and state highway and on the bill introduced in the senate for the reimbursement of moneys to towns which have been building state roads.

DO YOU KNOW WHY
THE GEAR-SHIFT IS DIFFERENT?

The design of Dodge Brothers gear-shift takes into consideration the natural inclinations of the driver.

To start, you throw the lever forward. To reverse, you pull the lever backward. And when the car is running in high gear—which is about ninety per cent of the time—the lever is in a forward position, out of the way, where it does not interfere with passengers, robes, or luggage.

Moreover, the transmission, developed and patented by Dodge Brothers, is so designed that the countershaft—used in intermediate speeds and in reverse—is disconnected when the car is in high. There are no gears in mesh. Power is transmitted directly from clutch to rear axle.

This exclusive feature prevents the loss of power through friction, reduces gear-box noises and eliminates a vast amount of wear.

That is why the gear-shift of Dodge Brothers Motor Car is different.

Market Was Irregular

New York, March 6.—Switching of speculative interest from one group to another combined with profit taking and short selling in a number of the recently popular industrial issues imparted a decidedly irregular trend of prices in today's stock market. The violent fluctations in a number of individual shares were construed as suggestive of the last phase of a "bull" market, but opinions of expert observers are still widely divided as to when the rising tendency of prices which has gone on with occasional interruptions for the last two yearss, will end.

Several of the usual leaders were inclined to be sluggish, United States Steel closing 1-8 lower at 107-7-8. Reports that the steel corporation was contemplating an early increase of 11 per cent. in the wages of day laborers were officially denied. Othe steels also were inclined to be reactionary, but the losses were held to fractions.

Equipments showed the most consistent strength. Baldwin touched 141 1-2 and closed at 139 7-8, up 1 3-4, buying based on speculative expectation that $10,000,000 new business would be taken on monthly for some time to come. Pressed Steel Car was the individual feature in that group, touching 73, a new top, and closing at 71 1-2, up 5 on the day. American Locomotive approached within a very small fraction of 121 and closed 1 5-8 higher at 120.

The pyrotechnics of the sesion were again furnished by the motor accessory issues, Stewart-Warner speedometer, the individual star, falling from 121 to 113 and then rallying to 117 1-2, off 3 1-2 on the day. Stromberg Carburetor converted in early gain of 2 points into a net loss of 3 1-2. Bosch Magneto offered better resistance, touching 60, a new top, and closing at 57 1-2, up 4 1-4 on the day.

Rails were again reactionary with trading comparitively dull despite unusually good January earnings and the optimistic prediction of chairman Kruttschnitt of the Southern Pacific, who expressed the opinion that net earnings of his road each month this year would exceed those of every corresponding month last year.

Oils were again heavily traded in, General Asphalt common and preferred leading the advance with net gains of 5 1-4 and 3 1-2 points respectively, each at new high levels.

California petroleum again crosses par, closing 1-2 higher at 99 1-2. Central leather was in heavy demand just before the close, touching 60, a new top and 2 1-4 points above last night's close. Some of the other individual strong spots were Atlantic Refining, Porto Rican tobacco, Nash motors, Iron products, and Endicott Johnson, up 3 1-2 to 6 points. Kresge jumped 22 points on a small turnover.

Call money again held at 5 per cent. throughout the day. Time money continues active, with brokers paying 5 1-4 per cent. for all dates. Commercial paper is moderately active with the prime names commanding 4 per cent.

Foreign exchanges eased slightly with little business transacted. Demand sterling sold under $4.70 and French francs under 6.10 cents. South American exchanges were irregular, hile showing a strong tone.

Bond Market

New York, March 6.—Bond prices displayed a reactionary tone in today's dull and generally uninteresting session. While investment interests are holding off their purchases in apparent expectation of higher money rates with a consequent reduction in quoted values, present holdings show little disposition to sell at current prices.

Except for a break of 2 1-2 points in Jurgen 6s, prices of foreign securities continued to move within narrow and irregular limits. United States government bonds showed some irregularity in the early dealings, but strengthened perceptibly. Liberty 3-1-2s dropped twelve cents on $100 but all the other active issues showed net gains of two to fourteen cents.

As a rule, speculative railroad mortgages were inclined to strengthen while the investment issues lost ground but there were numerous exceptions in each group. Losses of one to 1 1-4 points were registered by Atchison General 4s, Stamped Chesapeaks & Ohio convertible 5s, St. Paul refunding 4 1-2s, Norfolk & Western convertible 6s, and Southern Railway 5s.

Weakness of the copper company liens was the outstanding development in the industrial division, Cerro de Pasco 8s dropped two points and Chile 8s an 7s, fractionally. Colorado industrial 5s were conspicuously strong gaining 1 1-2 points.

Total sales (par value) were $9,645,-000.

Public offering was made today of a $5,000;000 issue of American Power & Light Company gold debenture bonds, due March 1, 2016, at 95 1-2 to yield over 6.25 per cent., and a $5,000,-000 issue of the Public Service Company of northern Illinois first lien and refunding mortgage 5 1-2 per cent. gold bonds, due June 1, 1953, at 94 1-4 to yield about 5 7-8 per cent.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, March 6.—Reports of general rain and snow in the drought area of the southwest had a bearish effect on the wheat market today. Prices closed weak at quarter to 5-8 cent decline with May 1.18 1-4 to 1.18 3-8, and July 1.14 1-8 to 1.14 1-4. Corn lost 3-4 a 1 1-8 and oats 3-8 a 1-2 to 3-4 a 7-8. In provisions, the outcome varied from a setback of 5c to a rise of 2 1-2 a 5c.

Weather developments were the reverse of what had been expected by the bulls in the wheat market. News of moisture over much of western Kansas was in particular considered important, as that section has for a lonog time been the most persistent dry spot on the map. During the early dealings, however, speculative buying of wheat on the part of traders who simultaneonsly were selling corn gave a temporary upturn to wheat values, but when this buying of wheat was at an end the wheat market showed weakness throughout the remainder of the day.

Selling of May wheat here against purchases at Winnipeg exercised a depressing influence at times, being directly at variance with the tactics of spreaders yesterday when the wheat market here was scoring an advance. On the other hand, some usually well informed authorities said they were convinced that domestic farm reserves of all grain were low, especially wheat. Nevertheless, aside from wet weather bulls were under an evident handicap because of unresponsiveness which Liverpool quotations showed to yesterday's advance on this side of the Atlantic.

Corn and oats were weakened by selling based more or less on the fact that stocks of corn in Chicago are doouble the average for the last fifteen years.

Despite a decline in hog values, provisions showed firmness owing chiefly to an advance in lard prices at Liverpool.

The vegetable markets were inclined to be a little firmer today. Barrelled apples as well as cabbages, parsnips, oranges and potatoes took on a firmer tone. The dressed poultry market remains almost precisely the same as last quoted although the supplies on the market are increasing. Live poultry markets are lower due to heavier receipts. The egg market opened up this week with an unsettled irregular tone on western eggs showing an increase in price on these eggs. The shortage of western eggs on the market here has helped to a certain extent to steady the prices on native eggs. Dressed meats under heavier receipts are inclined toward lower prices today.

MONTVILLE

Cochegan camp, No. 9366, Modern Woodmen of America, met at the lodge rooms of Palmer Memorial hall on the evening of Feb. 26 to make final preparations for the visitation of State Deputy J. R. Hughes, District Deputy C. E. Gilmour and notables from many parts of the state, when they will present the state banner to this camp, who have won it the past year, on March 12. All members of the order are expected to be present, when they will hear much of the great work which has been accomplished in the past year, and how Cochegan camp has grown from a camp of less than 100 members to a camp of 200 members. The past year has also marked the growth of the Modern Woodmen all through the country; 121,648 new members were adopted, a total far greater than the entire membership of many organizations. The Modern Woodmen also have a surplus of over $30,000,000 and a membership of 1,100,-000. At the meeting on March 12 there will be a class of 12 candidates adopted. The committee in charge have procured some high class talent who will give the members one hour of entertainment. Invitations have been sent to all camps in New London county. After the meeting a clam showder will be served.

A nursery will be opened in the chapel of the Union Baptist church on Sunday morning where any mother wishing to attend the morning service may leave her baby during the hour of service and it will be cared for by two ladies of the church and returned to her at the close of the service. Next Sunday morning the nursery will be in charge of Mrs. Harriet Furber and Mrs. Charles Allen.

A meeting was called by Supervisor Moody and teachers at Palmer Memorial school on the evening of March 1 to consider a parent-teacher association. Supervisor Connoley of Niantic and Moody of Montville spoke of the possibilities of such a society in this district. Mrs. W. W. Lyman was appointed temporary chairman and Robert Paton temporary clerk of the meeting. Also a committee consisting of Mrs. Gavitt, Mrs. Everett Chapman and Mrs. N. C. Allen was appointed to consider by-laws and report at the next meeting. There were about 20 present, and the domestic department of Palmer Memorial school served cake and coffee at the close of the meeting.

The Ladies' Aid of the Montville Union Baptist church will be entertained at the home of Mrs. F. J. Hope on Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Hope and Mrs. Harriet Furber.

Cornelius Fitzgerald of Hartford spent Sunday with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Finn and son Robert of Noank, Mr. and Mrs. William McMahon of Thamesville and children, Mrs. Dennis Finn of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Miss Marguret Congdon of Norwich were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Walsh of Pequot on Sunday.

Miss Nellie Brouillard spent Sunday with friends in New London.

Arthur Wylie was a visitor in Mystic on Sunday.

The Rockland Glade Pinochle club met at the home of Fred Chapel Friday evening. Refreshments were served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Mark Furber, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craig, Mr. Butler, Harry Watt, Mrs. Myra Watt, Justine Chapel Lloyd Chapel, Mrs. Pearl Chapel, Fred Chapel and Mr. Van Wert.

Lester Dart of Oakdale is ill with grip.

Mortimer Knott of New London was a business caller in town on Monday.

Francis Skiffington of Pequot has obtained employment in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Ruell, who has been spending the winter here, has returned to New York.

Another disturbance was over the far northwest Tuesday night and moving southeastward.

The temperature was somewhat lower Tuesday in the Middle Atlantic, North Atlantic and Gulf States, North Dakota and the Canadian northwest and it changed but little in other parts of the country.

The storm central over the upper Ohio valley Tuesday night will continue to move east-northeastward and snow will continue in the North Atlantic States, western New York and the extreme upper Ohio valley, and snow or rain in portions of the Middle Atlantic States Wednesday. TAFTVILLE

The Artisans met Monday evening in their rooms in St. Louis hall. Routine business was transacted.

Mrs. Rosanna Pepin has been confined to her home on Norwich avenue by illness.

Ladies' auxiliary, A. O. H., met Tuesday evening in their rooms in Parish hall, President Mrs. William Malone presiding.

Miss Ruth Campbell of Norwich avenue spent the week end in New York.

Miss Yvonne Greenwood is spending some time in Woonsocket, R. I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Maennerchor club was held Tuesday evening at the clubhouse, with a large attendance.

Paul Pepin of Pawtucket, R. I., has been a recent guest of his mother, mother, Mrs. Rosanna Pepin, and of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Lake of Norwich avenue.

Mrs. Victoria Jaques Plante of Norwich avenue, is spending today (Wednesday) in Boston, Mass., on a business trip. She is accompanied by Miss Marie Pratte of Hunter's avenue.

William Stephan has resigned his position in the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company, and will leave town this week for New York, where he has engaged passage on a steamer sailing for Hamburg. Upon arrival there he will entrain for his old home in Czecho-Slovakia, where he will spend some time with relatives.

The members of the Ponemah Wheel club met Tuesday evening in their rooms on Norwich avenue. President John B. Benoit was in the chair.

All approaches to the village are in bad shape, owing to the recent spring weather. The road leading over Blisswille bridge is at present giving automobiles a great deal of trouble as it is a sea of mud in spots. A heavily loaded truck sank to the axles Monday, but got out under its own power, although it took 45 minutes to make the hill. Another bad stretch is at Round Hill on the road, where there is another grade covered with mud. The Newent road is the best route leading east. It has been noticed that a large patch of road has given way on Norwich avenue near the ledge between Providence street and South B street. This has always been considered one of the best highways in this vicinity, and it is the first time that it has given way under weather conditions.

Mrs. Frank B. Ricketson has returned from a few weeks stay in the south.

Ferdinand Burelle of Hunter's avenue has resigned his position with the Ponemah company.

David Lambert is ill at his home on South A street, with an attack of the grippe.

Miss Mary Kusy, who was injured several days ago, is able to return to her work.

Miss Helen Campbell of Norwich avenue is recovering from a severe case of the grippe.

Mrs. Lillian Seidel of Rochester, N. Y., has been a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parsons of South B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Emilien Paquette of Waterbury, Conn., are announcing the birth of twin daughters. Mr. Paquette was before his marriage, a resident of this village and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Paquette of South B street.

Mrs. Charles Parson and Mrs. Fred Wilson of South B street have left town for Jacksonville, Florida.

Auto Damaged at Armory.

A new Lincoln car that was being taken into the armory Tuesday afternoon for the automobile show slipped off the runway, crashing down on the stone steps so that it was badly damaged.

BOARD GIVES INVITATIONS TO JOIN ADVISORY COUNCIL ON HIGH SCHOOL

The town school board of Norwich has held a number of special meetings on the Academy-high-school matter, since this subject was formally referred to it at a recent town meeting, and as a result of continued activity much satisfactory progress appears to have been made.

Pursuant to the plan adopted by the board to get advice and counsel from widely divergent sources, the following letter of invitation was formulated at one of its last meetings:

My dear Sir: The problem relating to high-school facilities in the town of Norwich has been quite naturally eliciting the most earnest consideration of the town school board to whom the matter was referred at a recent town meeting. It has seemed not only desirable but quite essential, however, that the board should have the counsel of a few citizens possessed of qualifications rendering them valuable for assistance to the community in this very important matter.

In furtherance of this plan it is a pleasure to the writer to follow the instructions of the board, in inviting you to become a member of this advisory council and to urge your acceptance of the invitation. We fully realize the self-sacrifice this will entail but trust that you will feel that this vital issue entirely warrants it. Every phase of the situation possible to consider will be digested and put into form for proper submission before a joint session of the advisory council and the town school board is called. It is probable that one or two joint sessions will be necessary and we should expect that these might be held some time between the 12th and 24th of the present month.

Asking your serious consideration of our invitation, and trusting that your reply will indicate that you will join in our deliberations, I am,

Very truly yours,
W. F. LESTER,
Chairman Town School Board.

At the direction of the board this letter has been sent to the following: Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, Wallace S. Allis, Barsillai P. Bishop, Judge Allyn L. Brown, Arthur M. Brown, Charles R. Butts, Frederic W. Cary, James L. Case, Dr. James J. Donohue, Grosvenor Ely, Henry H. Gallup, Rev. William A. Keefe, John M. Lee, Herbert M. Leroy, Timothy C. Murphy, Shepard B. Palmer, Robert W. Perkins, Frank B. Ricketson, Rev. Joseph H. Selden, all of Norwich. In addition Dr. A. B. Meredith, of Hartford, commissioner of education state of Connecticut.

Other letters of invitation will probably be sent shortly, though the school board states that the list of those invited to this council must obviously be limited, to the exclusion of many whose personal counsel is vital to it. Many suggestions have been made to members of the board, who court such advice and hope much more may be received. Careful notes thereof will be made for use at the proper time.

Responses are already being made to some of the earlier invitations extended, and it is the expectation of the school board that they will in the near future be able to announce the entire personal of the advisory council. To the present time all replies have been affirmative, indicating not only a broad interest on the part of the citizens in the high-school matter, but a willingness to be constructively helpful.

MILLION DOLLAR ENLARGEMENT OF EASTERN CONN. POWER

Enlargement of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. plant on the banks of the Thames river in Montville at an approximate cost of $1,100,000 was brought into public notice Monday at a hearing at Hartford before the public utilities commission on a petition from the company to buy control of two other companies in this section of the state. These are the Lyme Electric Power company and the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric Co. which now buy power from the Eastern Connecticut Power Co.

The commissioners reserved decision on the petition.

The doubling of the equipment of the company is necessary, said Robert W. Perkins, president of the company, in order to meet the increased demands for service. Without the proposed enlargement of facilities, the company would be unable, by next September, to provide proper service.

Its capacity has been reached and the proposal is to increase from a primary capacity of 10,000 kilowatts to 23,500 kilowatts. The improvements will be completed by mid-summer.

At the same time Mr. Perkins made known the fact that the company has decided to put on the market a $3,000,000 bond issue.

Charles B. Whittlesey of New London and Edward M. Day of Hartford appeared before the commission as counsel for the company with Mr. Perkins.

The proposed purchase contemplates the acquisition of all the stock of the Lyme company and 700 shares of a total of 1,000 shares of preferred and 900 shares of common stock of the Danielson plant.

All the stock is being purchased from the estate of Morton F. Plant, of which Mr. Perkins is receiver. The plant estate is also owned of considerable stock in the purchasing company, the Eastern Connecticut Co., and the acquisition is being made at the same price at which the Plant estate secured the stock. There is no profit for the estate in the negotiations it was pointed out by Mr. Whittlesey.

Mr. Perkins said that both companies will continue to operate as separate entities, and maintain their individual franchises as at present, although all the work will be carried on at the Norwich office, with the addition of a few employes, providing the plan is approved by the commission.

The price for the Danielson stock is $480,000, while $90,000 is the figure agreed upon for the Lyme transaction.

Mr. Perkins said that the acquisition of these two smaller companies by the Eastern Connecticut Co. would mean improved service for the towns concerned.

WATERFORD TOWN TAX LAID AT 21 MILLS

A tax levy which included 21 mills for general town expenses, two mills for sinking fund and three mills for new school construction, making a total of 2 mills was voted Monday evening by Waterford electors. The electors also voted to close the highway from a point west of the Ernest Barrett residence to a point east of the old Waterford town farm. The meeting was atended by about 50 voters, all of whom were men, and was called to order at 8.10 o'clock by First Selectman George A. Forsyth, who was elected moderator. Town Clerk Charles A. Gallup was clerk of the meeting.

EAST LYME VOTES FOR 17 MILL TOWN TAX

First Selectman Beckwith recommended to the meeting a levy of 17 mills as necessary to cover the town's budget of $58,000. The grand list total was $2,470,000. The tax was voted with practically no discussion.

MAGNETISM OF THE CROSS SHOP MEETING TOPIC

Rev. C. H. Ricketts delivered a most impressive address under Y. M. C. A. auspices at the plant of the Richmond Radiator Co. Tuesday noon. The topic was "The Magnetism of the Cross." The speaker said in part from the text, "And I if I be lifted up will draw all men unto Me."

From whatever angle you look at this text, the view will be both significant and suggestive. There is far too much in this subject to be dealt with properly within the limits of a single sermon; therefore I wish to call your attention to just a few of its outstanding points and they are as follows: The cross with its burden den uplifted from the earth has the magnetic power of drawing men unto itself.

It deals with that mysterious power which ye call magnetism. Just what magnetism is has never been discovered. To say merely that it is a power that attracts is no explanation, much less is it a definition. Magnetism sometimes works with electricity, sometimes in opposition, but it is not electricity. About all we know of its nature is that it produces certain results. And we are all familiar with those results.

The cross with its uplifted Christ has magnetic attraction.

A peculiar feature of magnetism is its polarity. The steamer's magnetic needle points toward the north, otherwise navigation would everywhere be unsafe, and in many places impossible. It helps the mariner to reach the desired haven.

The Magnetism of the Cross does precisely the same thing. It makes it possible for us to know where we are, and that is a great thing. If we get lost in the mazes of life, we are more likely to float on to the breakers than into the port of safety. Suppose the mighty Mauretania should have some fatal accident to chart and compass and steering gear. Would she be wrecked? Not necessarily so. If by night her captain could see the pole star that is a fixed point in the heavens or by day could be guided by the sun. But if sun and star were hidden, there would be nothing to guide him to Southampton or Liverpool. This uplifted light of the world is meant to guide men safely across the human sea.

Now Jesus was lifted up from the earth, and the magnetism of the Cross does just the same thing for us. It lifts us up from the very things we ought to get away from, i. e: our earthiness. There is nothing we need more than to lift up our eyes from the muck-rake to the stars: to turn away from all that is low, mean, sordid, coarse and vile. It is the call to look upward where everything is good, pure and holy. Humanity needs nothing more today than this urge to take the upward look.

The magnetism of the Cross appeals to a like quality in our own hears.

It is a scientific law not only that "like produces like" but that it seeks like. That is exactly what magnetism does: It seeks and finds magnetism in surrounding objects. The horseshoe magnet is made of steel and therefore has a strong affinity for steel. That is why the magnet draws metallic substances generally. But if you put a magnet near a ball of twine, a lump of putty, or an ear of corn, there will be no response because they contain no magnetism.

The Cross with its uplifted Christ stands for love, sacrifice, faith, hope, sympathy, pity and forgiveness, and it appeals to human hearts because it finds there exactly the same things. It appeals to us because the world over like seeks like. The Cross attracts us because it stands for those things we love most. The magnetism of the Cross is more or less affecting the lives of all men, "and I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto Me."

POETRY

THE MOVIE WE ALL WANT TO SEE

Come on, Director Springtime,
Produce your wonder-show!
We want to see a picture
Devoid of sleet and snow.
We're tired of arctic thrillers,
Of vampires clad in fur;
Bring on sweet Gentle Annie—
We want a film of her.

So star gets quite the welcome
Dear Gentle Annie does—
When she gets on "location"
The bees begin to buzz.
The birds out in the orchard,
With orchestrations rare,
Make "incidental music"
That glorifies the air.

We want a glad "projection"
Of Jonquil peeping through
To see if Neighbor Tulip
Is in the picture, too.
A mob scene staged by blue jays
Would be a joy to see.
Then thrill us with a pageant
Of blossoms on a tree.

So come, Director Springtime,
"Release" your wonder-show;
We want to see a picture
Devoid of sleet and snow.
Become it with a "close-up"
Of Boyhood—face a-beam—
Reflecting in the mirror
Of some Spring-happy stream.
—William Herschell, in Indianapolis News.

SUMMARY.

They are always looking for what they never find,
With eyes eager for sky they look ahead,
Mirroring for a moment the color of space.

They are always seeking a road to vividly wind
Out of the ways that have hurt their tread.
It is always before them like wind that brushes the face

I am always looking for what I do find,
Peering and crying into my heart to seek
The breath that is made of fire will shall fulfill.

I am always hungering for the unrefined
Taste of a word I have not learned to speak
My breath is wasted flame my lips are still.

We are always seeking, and when we do not find,
One by one, we see the symbol of things
In the sky's illusion of light, in the wind's rebuff,

One by one, in the refuge of the mind
We strive to give the understanding wings
Alit to make the brilliant flight of it enough.
—Hazel Hall, in New York Evening Post.

Harry V. Dougherty Says He Has Plans for Transportation of Between 2,000 and 3,000 [illegible] the West Virginia Coal Fields—Asserts That Assurance Has Been Given That No International Complications Will Arise—Secretary Hughes Denies That Such Assurance Has Been Given—At the French Embassy Nothing Is Known of Dougherty or His Plan.

New York, March 7.—Harry V. Dougherty, arriving on the Majestic today, announced that he had perfected plans to transport between 2,500 and 3,000 American negro miners to the Ruhr to work coal mines seized by the French government.

"At least 500 non-union miners from the West Virginia coal fields will be sent out on the Orduna, which sails March 15," said Mr. Dougherty. "They will be followed by other shipments as fast as the men can be collected.

Mr. Dougherty said Ambassador Jusserand of France already had taken the matter up with Secretary of State Hughes and had received assurances that no international complications would ensue.

Mr. Dougherty, with his brother, George Dougherty, a former deputy police commissioner, operate a detective agency here, which also specializes in providing emergency labor.

The negroes will receive $7 a day in addition to board and lodging, he said, and would receive compensation in event of injury.

Each laborer was given a lay-out by the French but failed to prove hardy enough to withstand the gas and hard work, Mr. Dougherty added.

DOUGHERTYS EXPERIENCED IN MINING AFFAIRS

Pottsville, Pa., March 7.—Both Harry V. and George Dougherty are experienced in mining affairs, having been reared in the anthracite fields of Schuylkill county. They are natives of Shamokin and for a number of years resided at Minersville.

HUGHES DENIES DOUGHERTY STATEMENT

Washington, March 7.—Secretary Hughes authorized a statement today that he never had heard of a plan to transport American negroes to Europe to work in coal mines in the Ruhr. He did this after being informed that Harry V. Dougherty had announced he intended to carry out such a project and Ambassador Jusserand of France had discussed the matter with Mr. Hughes and that negotiations would result.

It was stated that no such proposition, or any of a similar nature, had been discussed with Mr. Hughes by Ambassador Jusserand or any one else.

At the French embassy it was declared that nothing was known of the Dougherty plan or of Dougherty. A statement was authorized that any announcement by Dougherty that the proposal had been laid before secretary Hughes by the French ambassador was "pure fabrication."

150 YARDS OF TRACK TORN UP SOUTH OF ESSEN

Essen, March 7.—(By The A. P.)—The most serious case of railroad sabotage yet reported was discovered today south of Essen, where 150 yards of track of the main line between Essen and Duesseldorf had been torn up during Tuesday night.

Chancellor Cuno's speech in the reichstag has had a decided effect in stimulating the passive resistance among the hundreds of thousands of workmen in the Ruhr as well as the leaders of industry, according to German sources here.

The French, on the contrary, declare that the speech was disappointing to the population which had hoped to find in it a more definite declaration that might lead to negotiations with France.

German trade union leaders here are almost unanimous in the statement that the speech will make the factory workers and coal miners more determined than ever to maintain their resistance to occupation.

PROTESTS ATTACK MADE ON ITALIAN WORKMEN

Rome, March 7.—(By The A. P.)—Premier Mussolini today interrupted the Italian ambassador in Berlin and the Italian consul in Munich instructing them to enter strong protests against an attack, which has been made on seventeen Italian workmen in Bavaria.

It is reported that the workmen, accompanied by a priest, were passing through Germany on their way to Belgium and were forced to leave the train at Rosenheim, where a crowd manhandled them in the belief that they were bound for the Ruhr.

ADDITIONAL TERRITORY OCCUPIED BY FRENCH

Cologne, March 7.—(By the A. P.)—Additional territory east of Cologne was occupied today by the French troops in order to give the French complete control of all the customs posts on the right bank of the Rhine. By this move the British bridgehead at Cologne is now surrounded by French posts and outposts.

The customs posts at the Derringhausen railroad junction and in the town of Wipperfurth, southeast of Elberfeld, were occupied today by the French cavalry, and detachments of French troops were stationed at Gratath and Remscheid to guard the lines of communication extending from Remscheid and beyond the British area.

SAYS FRENCH INTEND TO OCCUPY FRANKFORT

Berlin, March 7.—(By The A. P.)—The Munich correspondent of the Lokalanzeigerblatt in a dispatch to his paper says he has learned from "a leading diplomat" that the French intend to demand immediate peril words and that the occupation of Munich and other points in south Germany is in order to insure their safety. Twenty Bolshevik agents have also been expelled from Munich, according to information received here today.

PREMIER POINCARE TO GO TO BRUSSELS NEXT WEEK

Paris, March 7.—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare probably will go to Brussels next week—to continue the exchange of views begun by M. Barthou with Premier Theunis and M. Delacroix regarding the occupation of the Ruhr. The date for the premier's departure has not yet been fixed, but it is likely to be March 13 or a little later.

GAMBLERS CAUSED THE RISE IN PRICE OF SUGAR

New York, March 7.—Arriving from France on the Majestic tonight, Claus Spreckles, chairman of the Federal Sugar Refining company, declared that the United States faces another serious sugar shortage, similar to the one that occurred when Herbert Hoover was food administrator, unless the department of commerce stops "insane statements" on the situation.

The recent rise in the price of sugar, Mr. Spreckles asserted, was "due to a gamblers' market, stampeded by the department of commerce."

"The American people have been mulcted out of millions of dollars," he said, "and the ultimate result will be the same as when Mr. Hoover was food administrator, when people believed there was a great shortage of sugar at that period. This present condition will eventually lead to the same disastrous results."

Mr. Spreckles declared that he had predicted the previous situation but that "nobody paid any attention to me." He said conditions were the same now as then.

RAILROADS UNABLE TO MEET SHIPPERS' DEMANDS

Washington, March 7.—Railroads on Feb. 15 were unable to furnish the cars, per the division of the American Railway Association were short 74,900 cars of having enough to fill shippers' demands. The shortage, 6,045 cars greater than a week previous, was said by officials to be unusual for this season of the year, and to be an index of the extraordinary heavy railroad traffic.

Railroads are striving to increase facilities to handle business, the reports indicated, orders for 97,933 new freight cars having been in the hands of manufacturers on Feb. 15. The carriers also had orders out for 1,915 new locomotives of various types.

OKLAHOMA WOULD LICENSE NEWSPAPER WORKERS

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 7.—Newspaper editors, reporters and all persons engaged in handling "copy" for publication would be required to pass an examination before a state board of newspaper examiners and pay $10 for a license, under a bill introduced in the upper house of the state legislature late today. The measure, according to its author, seeks to lower the libel average by raising the standard of personnel on Oklahoma newspapers.

Provision is made in the proposal for "cubs," who are defined as students. They would not be licensed and their editors would be responsible for their acts.

CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $1,000,000 FOR [illegible] IS LAUNCHED

[illegible] Jardine, receiver [illegible] the proceedings to determine whether or not he should be removed as guardian of Dorothy Gordon, whose property [illegible] said he supplanted by John D. Gardiner, of Baldwin, L. I., her uncle, as administrator of the $400,000 estate.

Schuettler said he charged the young woman $150 a week for a room that she has never occupied, and moved out of his home in Winchester. He treats the nine rooms house for $100 a year, he testified.

Jardine said his parents were named Ryan, and explained that he took the name of a family with whom he lived at one time. Although never adopted by them, he testified to incidents in the life of the Gordon family, referred to the death of Dorothy's father in an automobile accident, and said he was nominated as guardian by Dorothy, herself.

The guardian question about his acquaintance with a Mrs. Sue Jordan, who he said he met at Billerica 13 years ago. He admitted visits to the Jordan apartment on Commonwealth avenue, in the Brighton district, but said his visits were always on business. Counsel for Gardiner obtained an admission from Jardine that Dorothy Gordon was charged $74 for furniture in a Commonwealth avenue apartment, the location and ownership of which were not mentioned.

At the close of the day's proceedings Jardine was served in the corridor of the court house with papers in a suit brought by Mrs. Sue B. Jordan for $25,000 damages from Jardine for alienation of the affections of Jordan's wife, Mrs. Sue Jordan.

It developed in Jardine's testimony that Dorothy Gordon is recovering her reason, and has been allowed the use of a suite of rooms at the McLean Hospital for the Insane where she is confined, instead of being restricted to a single room.

WITNESS TESTIFIED SHE RECOGNIZED HOODED MEN

Bastrop, La., March 7 (By the A. P.)—Witnesses who appeared today before the Morehouse Parish grand jury were for the most part persons held up on the Bastropmer Rouge highway last August 24 by a masked band which kidnapped Walt Daniel and T. J. Richard. It was believed that the jury had begun its inquiry into the most serious act of the hooded men in the parish, the only instance of there victims of the lawless operations ever "talking" openly. The mutilated bodies of Daniel and Richard were found in Lake Lafourche four months later.

The principal witnessed today were J. A. Imbinet of West Monroe, L. L. Daniel, father of Walt and "Tot" Davenport.

Mrs. Imbinet at the open hearing here in January identified after much hesitation, that she had recognized E. N. (Newt) Gray as one of the hooded men who made captives Richard Daniel, J. L. Daniel, W. C. Andrews and Davenport. The five men were questioned concerning an alleged attempt to assassinate from ambush Dr. R. M. McKoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge. J. L. Daniel and Andrews were charged and with Davenport were released at Collinston, eight miles from here. Davenport was unharmed.

There has been no indication when the grand jury would complete its work but prior to its organization attaches of the attorney general's staff said they believed it would require a week or ten days.

PRESIDENT ENJOYING QUIET AND RECREATION

Daytona, Fla., March 7.—President Harding today found what he is seeking in Florida—quiet and recreation. The furry incident to the arrival at Ormond yesterday had passed and the President and Mrs. Harding with the members of their vacation party were permitted to obtain uninterrupted rest.

After a night spent aboard the houseboat Pioneer just south of Daytona, the chief executive, with his host, Edward McLean, Chairman Lasker of the shipping board, and former Director Dawes of the budget bureau, came ashore and motored to Bok Breeze, across the Halifax river from this city, for a game of golf.

The Pioneer, with Mrs. Harding and other member of the party aboard, proceeded down the river and anchored off New Smyrna. The president after a round of golf motored to New Smyrna, and went aboard about 1 o'clock. Almost the entire winter colony there was on hand at the dock to greet him and to catch a glimpse of Mrs. Harding, who appeared on deck shortly before the arrival of the president. An hour after the president had boarded the pioneer, the cruise down the river was resumed.

HEALTH OF NIKOLAI LENINE CONSIDERABLY IMPROVED

Moscow, March 7 (By the A. P.)—The health of Nikolai Lenine, the premier, is gradually improving, according to a statement made today at a meeting of the Moscow communist party by Leo Kameneff, acting premier.

"After last summer's illness," said Kameneff, "M. Lenine took up too rapidly his former work, which quickly put him out of trim. The doctors found Lenine suffering very seriously from overwork and strictly forbade him to occupy himself in any manner with state affairs."

"M. Lenine is surrounded by complete tranquility and his health gradually is improving. The last articles of Lenine's to the press show how strong and clear is his mind."

SEALING FLEET IS TO HAVE AIRPLANE SCOUT

St. Johns, N. F., March 7.—Reduced to eight vessels, the low mark in the history of the industry, the Newfoundland sealing fleet put out for the ice fields today in quest of the floating seal herds. New features this season in the annual hunt will be the taking of moving pictures of the sealing operations, and the use of an airplane as an official part of the fleet's activities. The plane will be used for "spotting" herds of seals found in the great barrier through good weather, and reconnoitering of the part of the skippers.

INTERESTED IN GIRL WITH HIGH TEMPERATURE

Escanaba, Mich., March 7.—Dr. Harry D. Defnet, in charge of the case of Miss Evelyn Lyons, Escanaba girl whose temperature of more than 114 degrees over a period of more than two weeks has attracted the attention of the medical profession, tonight gave her temperature as 114.2. The young woman's pulse was given as 120, blood pressure 122, respiration 36, appetite fair, mentality normal.

Many telegrams and letters are being received by Miss Lyons. She reads them with much interest and said today she would try to answer them after a while.

Dr. Defnet stated today that reports given out last night to newspapers that her temperature had reached 115, when the special thermometer was broken, were not authentic and were not given out by him.

The clinical thermometer used by him was broken, but that is not unusual, through rapid expansion, he said.

"The highest absolute record that may be taken as authentic was reached last night, when the temperature registered 115 by a special thermometer loaned me by the local weather bureau," the doctor said.

TURKEY'S REJECTION OF TREATY TAKEN CALMLY

Constantinople, March 7 (By the A. P.)—Turkey's rejection of the Lausanne peace treaty, which was not unexpected, has been received calmly in both foreign and native circles in Constantinople. The belief persists that it is still possible to reach a middle ground agreement toward peace.

The Angora government will now proceed to draft a reply to the allies, in which it will continue counter-proposals within the limitations established by the assembly's debates and Monday night's resolutions passed by the assembly, which demands strict adherence to the principles of the national pact on all matters affecting Turkey's absolute independence.

The situation apparently has settled down for an indefinite period of negotiations, unless trouble is precipitated from another direction by an unforeseen event, which is always considered possible in the present status of affairs.

SLAVES REWARDED BY SOUTH CAROLINA

Columbia, S. C., March 7.—Faithful negroes who stood by their masters during the Civil war today were voted pensions by the South Carolina legislature. The house this afternoon passed the Johnstone bill providing such pensions which already had passed the senate, by a vote of 87 to 34. The bill provides that slaves who served the state and their masters in the Confederate army during the war shall be granted pensions under virtually the same conditions as those now paid to Confederate veterans.

ATTEMPTED TO PASS COUNTERFEIT $5 BILLS

Torrington, March 7.—A man giving the name of Francesco Cordi, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was arraigned here today in the court of common pleas and after pleading to pass counterfeit bills, police said that they had watched him all day and had detected him passing to pass counterfeit $5 bills in three different stores. When arrested a roll of bills was found in his pocket and an additional charge of carrying concealed weapons was made.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING GANG HAS BEEN BROKEN UP

Detroit, Mich., March 7.—One of the largest liquor smuggling rings in the United States has been broken up, according to Earl J. Davis, United States district attorney, in the arrest of four men, alleged, to have utilized the yacht of a millionaire Bay city lumberman in conducting their operations.

The men under arrest are all of Detroit. Arraigned in federal court today, the four men stood mute and were held in bail of $10,000 each.

The round up of the men resulted, Mr. Davis declared, from the activities of William J. Sovereign, president of the Alladin company of Bay city, Mich. Mr. Sovereign, the district attorney declared, discovered that during his absence from home last summer, his yacht had been chartered by the men, representing themselves as lumbermen desiring to cruise the lakes.

Mr. Sovereign later learned his yacht had been taken to Toronto. Becoming suspicious he went to the Canadian city and discovered the vessel with 500 cases of whisky aboard, he said.

According to the statements of Mr. Davis at the arraignment of the men today, Mr. Sovereign located Captain Dorrington at Toronto, forced him aboard the craft and compelled him to pilot it back to Detroit, and thence to Bay City, where the incident was related to federal authorities. The arrest followed.

LILLIBRIDGE PROTESTED DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

Hartford, March 7.—Committees of the general assembly this afternoon were generally busy. The hall of the house of representatives had been given over to the milk regulations board for a hearing on the bottling of grade A raw milk on farms of producers, but when the farmers got into the seats they found themselves among ice cream makers who had answered a call to discuss an ice cream bill. There was debate as to possession but the ice cream men gave way and the milkmen spent the afternoon in discussing bottled milk.

The judiciary committee had a little fun at the expense of Representative Lillibridge, of Norwich, who advocated "putting teeth" into the present law which requires adherence to standard time. Mr. Lillibridge said the farmers did not want daylight saving time, and he said that in fact he did not know what "daylight saving time" was. Mr. Buckley asked him how the present standard time law could be enforced and Mr. Lillibridge answered "Just as all law is enforced."

Mr. Lillibridge thought the United States government ought to step in and make the state observe the law. Mr. Bell suggested that the government had 47 other states on its hands besides Connecticut, but if Mr. Lillibridge could suggest a way of making people keep to standard time he would help him out. Mr. Lillibridge wanted the committee to draw up a bill "to beat these daylight savers."

CONSIGNMENTS OF WILD ANIMALS REACH NEW YORK

New York, March 7.—Two consignments of wild animals reached port today, one on the Hamburg-American liner Bayern, which was nine days overdue, and the other on the Mount Clay of the same line, which left Hamburg seven days after the Bayern sailed.

The Bayern's consignment represented the largest collection of wild animals ever landed at New York in one day. Included were nine camels, four tigers, four polar bears and a six-teen-foot python. The polar bears were the only living things on the ship that apparently enjoyed the tempestuous passage. The 323 human passengers were glad to see the dock. Two leopards and 5,000 canaries came over on the Mount Clay, which also brought 240 passengers.

SHOT AND WOUNDED SLAYER OF SON-IN-LAW

Fort Worth, Tex., March 7.—John Beal Sneed, famous once as the chief figure in the Sneed-Boyce feud, shot and wounded R. B. Berry at Paducah, Texas, today. Berry, it is charged, recently killed Sneed's son-in-law, Wood Boyce.

The electric locomotive and the first two cars left the rails. After a delay of three hours the cars were pulled back on the rails.

Marine traffic was seriously disrupted, captains of incoming liners preferring to remain at Quarantine until the storm abated. Unusually heavy vehicular traffic was forced on the ferries plying between Brooklyn and Manhattan, drivers of heavy trucks awaiting the bridges, which were hard to negotiate in the heavy snow.

Yesterday's and today's snow fall brought the season's total to fifty-four and one-tenth inches. The winter of 1922-3 holds the record for snowfall, 16 inches.

LATEST STATEMENT BY WILLIAM H. ANDERSON

New York, March 7.—William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of New York, whose expenditure of $30,700 is under investigation by the district attorney's office, late today issued a statement in which he denied that any of the money went to newspapermen to betray their papers from dry.

Mr. Anderson's statement followed the action of Acting District Attorney Peters last Monday in quoting the dry crusader as saying public knowledge of confidential expenditures would have embarrassed men "whose personal sympathies were with us working for the papers and concerns that were against us."

In his latest statement Mr. Anderson said:

"There is nothing in my testimony to justify the slightest innuendo that any newspaperman was employed to or actually did betray or put anything over on way employer of his.

"What newspaperman in 1916 and 1918 in New York city did not work for a wet newspaper? Can it be seriously questioned that when men gave to newspapers the service they were paid for, that those newspapers also served their spoils and their consciences and the time for which they were not employed? Whoever seriously supposed that a special writer or newspapers is not free to do any other work that he sees fit to do?

"The fact that no newspaper in New York ever commended the Anti-Saloon league or me, for that matter since that date, ought to be fatally conclusive proof that nothing was ever [illegible]

"The [illegible] a sum of $24,700 would be laughably inadequate for the work [illegible] publicity that is done by main strength and awkwardness. The wonder is that the expenditure of so little money was successful in putting the Anti-Saloon league in the news and on the front page as it was because the very slenderness of New York newspapers, ever on guard against the clever efforts to work them, made it possible to employ the simplest methods conceivable, based on knowledge of public psychology respecting moral movements, which was an utterly unexplored field for New York newspapers.

"Obviously the success of this kind of a campaign, which involved leading the newspapers on to kick this movement uphill, depended upon the newspapers believing that they were having a lot of fun killing off something they did not like, and upon their not knowing at the time that we had feared this movement in such shape that in gratifying their feelings they were furnishing power in the form of free publicity worth anywhere from a quarter of a million to a million dollars a year."

PEACE PROPOSALS SIGNED BY CATHOLIC CLERGY

Cork, March 7 (By the A. P.)—Peace proposals signed by many of the Catholic clergy and addressed to the leader of the southern republicans, Commandant General Tom Barry, by Father Dungan of Cork, were issued here this evening. The immediate cessation of hostilities is sought by halting the activities and operations of the Irish republican army and the dumping of arms and munitions by the republicans under charge of the battalion commandants, who will be responsible that they shall not be used against the Free State government and forces.

After a general election is held, the arms and munitions are to be handed over to the elected government.

The proposals are signed by Archbishop Harty of Cashel, Canon Cohalan of Bandon, Canon Ryan of Fermoy, Father O'Leary of Cork, Frank Daly, chairman of the Cork harbor commissioners, Dr. O'Donovan and T. P. Dowdall of Cork.

General Barry has replied, undertaking to circulate the proposals for immediate consideration among the members of the executive of the Irish republican army. The signs has been received here joyfully and there is general hope that peace will be brought about.

On that occasion shipping was suspended, horse cars were stalled in huge drifts, schools were closed, business in general discontinued and wire communications paralyzed. Mails from New York were a week late and Boston milk supply cut off for days. "Kolefort" was made to move trains on New England railroads for ten days.

AGAIN ORDERS LIQUOR RETURNED TO OWNERS

Boston, March 7.—For the second time in as many days Judge Morton in federal court today ordered the return to the owners of a large quantity of liquor seized by prohibition enforcement agents.

Yesterday the judge ordered 1,000 gallons of fine wines, whiskies, champagnes and other liquors, stored at Keefers hotel in the South End a year ago, returned to the receivers for the hotel property, on the ground that the prohibition agents who made the liquor was seized had failed their only 250 gallons. Today the court ordered that a shipment of alcohol that originally consisted of 9,000 gallons, reduced at $240,000, seized aboard the bark Tiburon in Boston harbor more than a year and a half ago, be returned to the owner, Samuel A. Kinsel, of New York. The petition for return of the liquor alleged that John L. O'Connell, a prohibition agent, without a search warrant, entered the Tiburon, and broke open the hatches. Later he obtained a search warrant and seized the liquor. Judge Morton found that the seizure had been wrongfully and unlawfully made.

JOE RAY TURNS TABLES ON FINN BREAKING WORLD'S RECORD TO WIN

New York, March 7.—The boast of "Chesty" Joie Ray, Chicago taxi-driver, that he would square his account with Willie Ritola, the Nwe York "Flying Finn" was made good tonight at the annual indoor track and field games of the western Union Athletic Association.

The star of the Illinois Athletic club did much better than his boast and the vanquished ten-mile champion did nearly as good. Both broke the world's record for the event and Ray, setting the new one.

The new record is fourteen minutes, and fifty-four seconds. The previous record, not yet officially accepted was only two weeks old and was set by Ritola at 14:01 1-5. He shattered a mark that stood for eleven years, 15:00 4-5 set by George Bonhag.

The race tonight witnessed by a howling crowd that broke onto the track as the laps were reeled off, was a sensation from the flash of the starter's pistol. The pace was so sizzlingly hot that such a stepper as "R. H. Brown, of Cornell, intercollegiate two-mile champion, was a lap behind when the leaders touched two and one-half miles.

The Finn, following Ray's announced strategic plan, took the lead and set the pace. The trim Chicagoan, a head shorter than his opponent, kept one yard behind until the last lap. Then he shot into a sprint that amazed the crowd and left Ritola flat footed gasping as he called upon his reserve. Ray was about 50 yards ahead when he reached the tape.

There the shouting and unruly crowd grabbed him and rushed him off to his dressing room while bluecoats fought for order.

Princeton won the Metropolitan A. A. U. one-mile relay championship in 3:32. St. Auzlin, A. C., was second and the Newark A. C., third

The New York Athletic club won the Metropolitan 880-yard championship in 1:26 3-5. William Sullivan of the Paulist A. C. was second and Mike DeNacy of the Milrose A. A., third.

The 100-yard dash was won by Alfred Leconey of Lafayette in 10 4-5. J. V. Scnois of the N. Y. A. C., was second and James Burgess of the west side Y. M. C. A., New York, third.

RECORD ENTRY FOR THE KENTUCKY DERBY

Louisville, Ky., March 7.—(By the Associated Press)—A record number of 146 nominations for the forty-ninth annual running of the Kentucky derby at Churchills Downs, made up of 102 colts, 23 fillies and 21 geldings, was announced here tonight. The derby the oldest fixture of the American turf, will be contested by three year olds over a mile and a quarter May 19.

That the derby nominations this year would exceed the 109 named in 1926, previously the largest number since the stake became a late closing event, was the prediction of horsemen who pointed to lack of decisiveness in the racing last year of two year olds.

Should as many as 15 of the 146 named tonight survive the strenuous pre-derby tests and preparation and go to the post, the stake would be worth $61,125, with the nominating fees of $25 each, $500 each additional to start in the race, and $50,000 added to the Kentucky Jockey club. Of that amount the second horse would claim $6,000, third $3,000 and fourth 1,000 the remainder, as well as a gold service worth $7,500, would go to the winner.

The nominations announced tonight, horsemen said, comprise the crew of the 3 year old division. The Harry Payne Whitney family led the list with eleven—four by Mr. Whitney and seven by Mrs. Whitney.

E. R. Bradley, master of the Idle Hour Steek farm, with seven of his get named 3 year olds, is tied with Harry F. Sinclair for second honors. A. B. Coaden nominated five, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, four, and Willis Sharpe Kilmer, three, the same number as Montford Jones.

Other notable turfmen represented are August Belmont, Benjamin Block, Gallagher brothers, Jefferson Livingstone Walter J. Salmon, E. B. McLean, and J. K. L. Ross.

In the list are the get of such sires as Broomstick, Friar, Rock, Vulcain, Whisbroom, Ultimus, North Star III, Sweep, Sun Briar and John Finn, which recently was disposed of at 110,000.

CHICAGO TO PROHIBIT FUTURE WRESTLING BOUTS

Chicago, March 7.—A resolution prohibiting wrestling matches in Chicago was introduced in city council today when referred to the judiciary committee after several aldermen spoke in favor of the measure said to have been brought about by the recent action of a wrestling promoter in going over the head of the city athletic commission by securing an injunction restraining interference with a wrestling match after the commission had disqualified one of the participants.

The injunction has been used frequently recently to prevent police in-

GENARO IS SUSPENDED IN NEW YORK AND JERSEY

New York, March 7.—Frankie Genaro, who captured the American flyweight championship from Pancho Villa last week, has found none the smooth his path as a title holder.

The diminutive eastsider, following disappointment over the shot that Villa, instead of himself, had been selected for the world's flyweight title with Jimmy Wilde of England, learned today that he was again under suspension by both the New York and New Jersey state boxing boards.

According to Louis J. Messano, chairman of the New Jersey commission, Genaro's suspension, due to his failure to go through with a match with Villa in Newark last December, was lifted only temporarily for the title bout in Madison Square Garden. It was done at the request of the New York state athletic commission and on the condition that the boxer pay $3,000 to the American fair play foundation for losses it sustained trying to promote the Newark match. Genaro refunded this sum out of his share of the purse in the garden bout.

The suspension, however, which is recognized in this state under the terms of a working agreement between the two commissions, went automatically into effect after the title contest, Mr. Messano said, and will not be lifted until Genaro goes in New Jersey under conditions to be fixed by the state ring solons.

These conditions, Mr. Messano added, probably would be stipulated by the commission when it meets in Jersey City tomorrow.

IRELAND STARTS WEST FOR THE DAVIS CUP

New York, March 7.—Ireland has joined the Davis cup quest for the first time. A formal challenge from the Irish Lawn Tennis association was received today by the United States Lawn Tennis association, together with a request that its team be drawn for play in the European zone of competition.

Unusual interest is attached to Ireland's entry as it marks the first time in Davis cup history that the British Isles have been represented by more than one team and establishes the Irish Free state on the same competitive footing as the other British dominions, including Canada, India, Australia and South Africa. The British Lawn Tennis association already filed its 1923 challenge.

The communication from the Irish association states that "in consequence of the establishment of Ireland as a free state, the Irish Lawn Tennis association have by resolution constituted their body on independent lines similar to the dominions and decided to send an entry for the Davis cup."

No information has been received as to the possible personnel of Ireland's team but it is understood there are a number of promising young players available. Because of the fact that preliminary Davis cup rounds probably will be played in June, it will be necessary to select the team in advance of the Irish national championships, scheduled June 16 to 21.

The Irish challenge brings the total Davis cup entries to fourteen; equaling the record established last season. Several additional challenges are expected before the entries close on March 15.

MORE ATHLETES ARRIVE AT HOT SPRINGS

Hot Springs, Ark., March 7.—Babe Ruth's departure with Mike McNally and Colonel Huston for New Orleans, the arrival of William McKechnie, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates with a group of his players, and the first field work out by manager Frank Chance of the Boston Red Sox, featured the activities of the Hot Springs big league baseball training camps today.

Two uniformed workouts today gave Chance his first opportunity to view his youthful squad in dress rehearsal.

McKechnie athletes limbered up in playing field. The Pirates, who have arrived are for the most part prospects for the pitching staff. The Pittsburgh commander is confident of the strength of his machine and believes he will be a factor in the pennant race.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion (which is what a cold really is) and stimulates circulation.

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness. 30c and 60c, in jars and tubes.

HOPPE IN PERFECT CONDITION FOR HIS MATCH WITH SCHAEFER

New York, March 7.—(By the Associated Press)—Pronounced by three physicians and a psychologist to be in perfect condition, Willie Hoppe of New York is believed by billiard experts to be at the apex of the ability that has kept the world's championship crown at 18.2 balkline on his head, with one interruption, for nearly two decades.

Always retiring, Hoppe said today that he believed he never had been in better stroke and that he would retain the title against Jake Schaefer of San Francisco from whom he regained it in the international tournament here last November, when they meet in their challenge match at the Pennsylvania hotel next week.

Only by a complete reversal of his style of play did Hoppe win back his laurels last November, causes, undetermined the, reduced him to helplessness at line nursing, the most delicate and necessary part of billiardist's repertoire in accumulating high runs. He was unable to masse and was forced to shoot long caroms and cushion shots because he couldn't keep the ivories close together.

Several times during the tournament he had the spectators on as high a tension as he was. He kept aiming and maneuvering his cue, but he couldn't "let go." His victory was one of the most spectacular in the annals of the sport. It was suspected then that he had a shoulder disablement that bound the muscles, but that has since disproved.

"How is your shoulder now?" Hoppe was asked today. "Do you think it will trouble you again?"

Mr. Hoppe: "My shoulder. There was never any trouble with it."

"Then how about your—"

Mr. Hoppe: "My head? It's all right now. I've passed the mental hazard. That was my trouble. I found I had lost confidence but now I have it back again. I couldn't 'let go' then because I was afraid I would miss. Now I know I won't. Sort of a coue treatment, although it's my own."

The champion's weight is down to 155 and from stiff gymnasium workouts every day in addition to his practices on the green table the champion wouldn't be surprise himself if he broke the world's high run and high average records.

47 SCHOOLS IN STATE WERE CLOSED LAST YEAR

Forty-seven schools were closed in Connecticut during the last fiscal year, according to information obtained from the state board of education. Practically 4 of them were one-room schoolhouses of the type referred to in the present session of the legislature as "little red schoolhouses." Eleven such schools were reopened.

In all but one instance the children attending the closed schools were transported to schools in adjacent communities or towns. For such transportation of pupils, $311,992.96 was spent during the year. Reports from the different towns show that 9,019 pupils in the state were so transported during the year, 2,849 of them being from the schools which were closed in that period.

Schools were reopened in Ashford, Granby, Griswold, Lebanon (2), Madison and Middlefield, Hartford, Southbury and Stonington.

The amounts spent for the transportation of pupils in towns which closed schools during the year were reported by the state board of education as follows: Bethel, $395.50; Bloomfield, $3,770.73; Branford, $3,153.60; Bridgeport, $403; Clinton (2), $417; Easton, $2,748.50; Enfield, $767; Franklin, $317.20; Greenwich (3), $4,173.50; Griswold, $2,244.38; Haddam (4), $1,198.12; Hamden (2), $2,525.50; Hartford (outdoor), $2,540; Harwinton, $264.50; Killingly, $2,448.20; Madison (5), $1,740; Middletown, (4) $4,070; New Canaan (2), $300; Newington, $2,679.11; Newtown (6) $1,396.30; Plymouth, $3,125.81; Portland $3,166.28; Sherman, $160.75; Southbury, $531; Stamford, $6,745.69; Trumbull, $668.54. For the operation of school plants $3,104,974.14 was spent. The cost of fuel, light, water and power came to $1,120,466.61. Wages of janitors and engineers added $934,576.42. SETTLED TWO SUITS OVER EVICTION FROM PAVILION

Two cases of James Duff of Westerly against Silas Maxson and Chas. T. Maxson of Groton for damages of $15,000 each for eviction from a dancing pavilion at West Mystic, have been settled without trial. The cases were to have been tried before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury in the superior court in New London this week following the completion of the Chapman-Jakobik assault suit.

Duff claimed that on the evening of April 28, 1917, he attended a dance at the Willow Point casino at West Mystic, paying the usual admission and that he was unlawfully and without provocation violently assaulted and evicted from the pavilion. He sued to recover for personal injuries and for humiliation and disgrace which he suffered by reason of his ejectment.

Duff brought suit against Silas Maxson as proprietor of the casino and against Charles Maxson as his agent. The suits were tried before a jury in this city several months ago and the jury disagreed.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Getting Away From Dainty Fox And Wicked Wolf

The Yellow Dog Tramp had a broom
And a shovel in his paw,
And he said: "Do you want me to clean
Away the snow from your front door?
I'd like to earn a dollar or three
Till summer comes along,
When I will tramp in the Shady Woods,
And hear the wild Birds' sing."

"All right," said Uncle Lucky, "clean off the sidewalk too, and make a path around the kitchen door and out to the garage," and then the old gentleman rabbit looked at the thermometer and when he saw it was sixty below zero, he hopped inside the house as fast as he could for he was afraid he might freeze one of his long ears if he stayed out on the piazza without his old wedding stovepipe hat on his head.

And our Flop-Little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky.

Well, by and by, toward noon, the old gentleman rabbit got some lunch for little Jack Rabbit and himself and then he said:

"Let's go for a ride in the Sledmobile," and pretty soon, he and his little nephews were skimming over the snow as fast as their jolly old Sledmobile would go. And goodness me. It could go mighty fast, let me tell you, for I hope you haven't forgotten that it was Uncle Lucky's Luckymobile, only instead of wheels it had four little red sleds, one at each corner, for the winter time.

Well, these two little rabbits hadn't gone very far, when, all of a sudden, just like that, from behind a tree, out popped Danny Fox, and from behind another tree, out jumped Mr. Wicked Wolf, and if you can think of anything more dreadful than that, please tell me.

"Stop!" shouted Danny Fox.

"Halt!" shouted Mr. Wicked Wolf. But Uncle Lucky kept right on. Yes Sirebuss, he did.

"Why don't you stop!" shouted Danny Fox, and he ran after the Sledmobile and so did Mr. Wicked Wolf.

"Why, one of you tells me to halt and the other to stop and I don't know which to do," said Uncle Lucky and then he put on even more speed, but, Oh dear me! I just hate to tell it. All of a sudden, quicker than before, the Sledmobile ran into a log that was hidden in the snow and over it went and out flew Little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky. Wasn't that quite too dreadful? Just think of it. There they were, out in the snow with Mr. Wicked Wolf and Danny Fox close by, but just then, Charlie Chickadee sang out:

"See this hole in this hollow tree,
Down on the ground, just under me!
You'll be safe if you hop in quick,
But fasten the door shut with a stick."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

THE COMPENSATION COMMISSIONER BILL.

From the testimony that was produced before the judiciary committee of the general assembly Tuesday it would appear that the purpose back of that bill concerning the qualifications of the compensation commissioners was to have the legislature penalize a member of the compensation commission because he had the courage to stand up against exorbitant charges for medical or surgical attention. Had he supported the high priced charges for services it seems highly probable that nothing would ever have been heard of this effort to secure this legislation. He was cognizant of his duty and he was guided by it, and it isn't believed that any legislative committee or any legislature is going to listen to such an appeal as is made in the bill before it, unless some substantial reasons are presented for doing so.

When it was brought out that those who are backing this piece of proposed legislation had had their fees cut down by the compensation commissioner and that the appeal for such a change was supported from no other locality in the district or the state it was significant.

From such testimony as was presented it doesn't appear that the commissioner who would be affected by such legislation has been doing otherwise than giving the highest degree of service. Jealousies and opposition may spring up within a profession, and it is known that they do, but it is the merit to suggest that the legislature should be burdened with dealing with such affairs. Certainly the desire of some doctors to charge unjustified fees which cannot be approved by a compensation commissioner is not ground enough for the adoption of any such legislation. It is understood that the time of the busy judiciary committee has to be taken up with such proposals.

PROPER SUBSTITUTE FOR COAL

Without any question it is a well founded effort that is recommended when the proposition is put forth by the Associated Industries to conduct a thorough investigation of the matter of additional power for this and other industrial sections of the country.

It is well known what difficulties have been experienced in getting coal for all purposes at different times and it is an old story that this part of the country is well equipped with natural resources if they were only developed. Water power is going to waste in great volume every day because no attempt is made to harness it, and in many instances because there is an insufficiency to develop it until it can all be utilized within the state where it originates.

Most of the New England states are in a position to do far more than they have in the way of using this natural advantage. Some are making greater use of their rivers and streams than others but the problem appears to be slow in comparison with the need for cheaper power and independence from the coal barons.

Maine could, if it would put its resources to work and make it unnecessary to use nearly four million tons of coal each year. What the New England states could do in the way of bringing permanent relief to the power and coal troubles is enormous. It is inevitable that attention should be directed to Canada when such an inquiry is underway for in that country where little development of that kind has been made there is unlimited opportunities for developing and transmitting electricity to this entire section.

Plans to such an end have been under contemplation for a considerable time. The possibilities are many even though the St. Lawrence waterway scheme never goes through. New England would be a natural center for such quantities of electrical energy as Canada could produce and it will welcome the day when recognition of existing possibilities makes it less dependent upon the fuel that has to be hauled for such long distances and over which so much trouble develops periodically.

FILLED MILK LEGISLATION.

The filled milk bill which was passed during the closing days of the last congress is a move to prevent adulteration. Those who supported it take the position that milk should be milk and not something else that may look like it, that may or may not have as beneficial properties and that may be only partially what it is claimed to be.

Filled milk is a term that may not be familiar to others than those who are interested in the industry or concerned with the production of milk. It means however, the use of skimmed milk and cocoanut oil and a compound that imitates in color, consistency, taste and smell genuine milk. The idea might be good if made that as long as it serves the same purpose without detriment to the consumer as pure milk but it is not the purpose [illegible] and about other things not right so long as sheriff. It is what one did the honor of disappointing and offensive exhibitions.

The question is also, however, what one remembers and the comment upon them. It is proper that he should be guiding them before the organization that he is leading the public thing. The fact is that he should know what he is getting and that he is getting reports some of the other than milk and.

Filled milk may not be detrimental but unless it is properly designated it pretends to be something other than it is. It may serve the purpose intended but at the same time it borders on the fraud. It is entirely possible that it can stand on its merits for what it is but that is what is sought by those who deal in the real thing and those who believe the public should have the benefit of such protection.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS.

More than the usual amount of interest has been manifested in the elections which have been held within the past few days in England because of the character of the result. It would have been significant had the elections gone against the government but in these particular instances, three in almost as many days, the result was not only against the government but cabinet members were involved, and their defeat has required their resignation.

From that situation it might be quickly inferred that the government was riding to a quick fall, that the policies of Bonar Law were being repudiated by the people, that they were strongly opposed to the attitude being taken in regard to the Ruhr situation and other European matters.

While that inference might be the logical one from a distance it doesn't appear to cover the situation. The outcome of the elections developed from other reasons, if we are to judge by the explanations that are coming from aboard. Instead of the foreign policy being uppermost in the minds of the people it was the housing situation. That was due to the views of the government and because of the failure to deal effectively with it in the past year or two. Action in one form or another has been taken, houses have been built and plans made for the relief of the shortage and yet the workingmen have failed to get any benefits. They have apparently resented this situation and disapproved whatever plan the government has been following and it is upon this which they have been giving expression in turning down those who were members of the cabinet. The situation may well give the premier some real concern but it is a domestic rather than a foreign question on which they have been expressing themselves at the polls.

RECONDITIONING SHIPS.

When there is talk about reconditioning certain of the large liners in the control of the shipping board that they may compete more effectively in the transatlantic business it may mean the expenditure of some money, but that is what is constantly being done in connection with steamship lines that are successful. It is what must be done in view of the fact that others are striving for the business quite as strenuously.

What a transformation can be made in a ship is displayed by the reconditioning of the Leviathan. That vessel has been in existence about ten years. The part it might have played in the passenger carrying business across the Atlantic was rudely interrupted by the war. It was tied up for a long period at time except when not brought into use for the carrying of troops, and the alterations that made it into a troopship were costly, though not as costly as those which are now about completed. Getting the vessel back into condition for the use it was intended, after its long period of idleness and use for other purposes, has cost something like nine million dollars.

It will soon be able to take its place at the head of the American merchant marine and passenger lines. That such a large, commodious and speedy ship should prove a white elephant seems impossible. Yet it remains to be demonstrated whether it can attract the business that will make it a paying proposition. It is in the interest of service that it has been reconditioned and that is what is being urged in connection with other large liners.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It isn't quite safe to put the snow shovel away yet but it will grow rustier and rustier from now on.

The general assembly is taking the expected action on the freak and the unwise measures that have been introduced.

The man on the corner says: Those who are listening for the first peep frogs will soon be complaining because they make so much noise.

If Great Britain should only take charge of putting Ireland along our three-mile limit, it wouldn't take very long to pay off that debt it owes us.

Along about next August there will be those who will be wondering why any average could not be struck with the deal that was experienced in February.

If you ever get down to Washington you might look over that half million of rhododendrons Christmas cards and see how many you failed to direct correctly.

It is rather hard sometimes to hold your wrath and grin when an Auto douses you with muddy water but that is what some of the drivers seem to expect.

Reports of snow from three to six feet deep in northern New England are not causing any great excitement of speculation in that direction to get the benefit of an extended winter.

Of course I had no idea that they thought so much of me, because I am a naturally modest man, and I really was overcome when my name was proposed. Of course I shall endeavor to give them the best that is in me."

"Oh, you won't have to do a single thing!" the sweet young thing in jade assured him eagerly. "A vice president never does! They just have to have a lot of names on the stationery, those men or people would think they didn't amount to anything! Why, my brother worked for a company that had to have a larger plank put in their front office door just to hold the names of the president and vice presidents and treasurers and secretaries. He said the idea was to dazzle prospective buyers with the grandeur of the company, but nobody really amounted to anything except the man who got $15 a week and told all the rest what to do! The vice presidents never even came down—"

"That was the company which got sent to state's prison, wasn't it?" suavely inquired the young thing in the besmirched frock. "All the presidents and vice presidents had their pictures in the paper, and I must say

Adrienne de Noailles Wife of Lafayette

Marie Adrienne Francoise De Noailles, second daughter of the Duc d'Ayen, a beautiful, gracious, charming girl, was the wife of the equally gracious and charming Marquis de Lafayette, French hero of the American Revolution. The Noailles family was one of the wealthiest in France, and had great influence in the court of Louis XV. Adrienne, as she was called by her relatives and friends, was a true daughter of a noble house, and marriage with her was, according to historians, the most fortunate thing that ever happened to the brave young darling of fortune.

"This happened," writes George Morgan of the death of Louis XV, to be the string when Lafayette drew the best prize of life—Madame Lafayette."

Adrienne was a bride at fifteen. The engagement occurred amidst a storm of family trouble. The Duc d'Ayen insisted upon the marriage between the young Marquis and his little daughter. His wife, however, has strenuous objections, one of which was the unusual one that Lafayette had too much money. Finally she was won over, but stipulated that steps would be taken to complete the education of M. de Lafayette, and that the marriage should be postponed for two years.

Writing of the marriage arrangements, Adrienne says:

"I was scarcely twelve years old when M. de Lafayette was proposed as my husband, he himself being at that time but fourteen. His extreme youth and the isolated character of his position, for he had lost all his near relatives and was without any one in whom he had confidence to guide him, as well as his large fortune entirely free from restrictions, which my mother considered a source of great danger, led her after careful consideration to refuse him, in spite of the good reports of his character that we heard from all those who knew him. She persisted in her refusal for several months."

But once Adrienne's mother had given her consent, things progressed rapidly. The girl, from whom all the arrangements had been hidden, was allowed to meet her future husband, and contrary to tradition about arranged marriages, they fell in love with each other. They were married in 1774 and had four children.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Horace M. Towner, the selection of President Harding to succeed B. Mott Reily as governor of Porto Rico, has long been a conspicuous figure in Congress where he has sat in the lower house as representative of the eighth district of Iowa for the past twelve years. A native of Belvidere, Ill., he attended the University at Chicago and then took up the study of law. He was admitted to the bar in 1877 and began the practice of his profession in Creston, Iowa, which place he still calls his home town. In course of time he attained high standing in his chosen profession and in 1890 was chosen a judge of the Iowa district court, where he continued to serve for twenty years. He has been honored with the presidency of the Iowa State Bar Association and has been a lecturer on constitutional law in the State University of Iowa. During the last few years of his service in congress Mr. Towner had been chairman of the insular committee of the house.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Efforts For the Salvation Army Home.

Mr. Editor: I hope you will publish this letter to give the people of Norwich a summary of the impression which Tuesday night's supper, kindly given by the ladies of the Central Baptist church, has made upon the team captains and workers of the Salvation Army appeal to establish a home in Norwich. The charming ladies of the Central Baptist church contributed to the spiritual atmosphere of the evening. It was a revelation to behold the tense expression of sincerity of the team captains present, especially the ladies who are making such a valiant effort to raise the $15,000 for the Salvation Army home.

Adjutant J. Asher of Boston spoke with great confidence that the citizens of Norwich are heart and soul with this campaign and that they will not be contented until this home, so much needed in our city, is established.

Campaign Director Nicol also spoke with great enthusiasm, about the sincerity with which our people met this appeal. He expresses his opinion that many of the people in our city are waiting to be approached and ready to help this good cause. Mr. Nicol is a man of broad vision and he has been an inspiration to all the men and women who come in contact with him and are thrilled with his message of hope and helpfulness for those who by dint of misfortune might need the assistance of the Salvation Army. He has struck a chord in the heart of every worker for the Salvation Army home that vibrates with sincerity, enthusiasm and exalted feeling. It is particularly noticeable how the heads of the churches feel towards this movement. It was a great pleasure to hear Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, Rev. R. R. Graham and Rev. David A. Pitt who promised their very sincere and whole-hearted support to help the Salvation Army to establish a home in Norwich and I believe that they voiced the sentiment of all the churches in this city. It is possible for all to unite in this good cause. Jewish, Gentiles and all denominations as the Salvation Army is non-sectarian and is ever ready to help anybody who needs help.

The chairman, Mr. Clark, who has endeared himself to all his workers by his untiring efforts and sincerity urged all present for a renewed efforts and sincerity urged all present for a renewed effort and all responded with a promise to make good the slogan which ex-Mayor Murphy so warmly voiced that in his experience he never found Norwich to fail in a good cause.

And last and not the least, the ladies who are working in this campaign have proven the inspiration of the whole appeal to their civic consciousness and love for the community is stirred to such an ideal enthusiasm that the success of the appeal is assured. Enlisted as sincerely under the leadership of Adjutant Schwartz, who is showing the metal of what men are made, and having entered into fraternal ties with all the workers of this campaign, I wish them all success in this noble cause.

MAX HANOVER.

Stories That Recall Others

All Relatives Are Not Pronouns.

An English teacher comes forth with a story of one of her pupils and experiences with the English language.

The English class was perplexing itself over relative pronouns. The teacher was endeavoring to extract the secret of the definition of such a pronoun from the young hopefuls and failing in this, asked whether anyone in the class could use such a pronoun in a sentence.

The usual "little boy in a seat in the rear of the room" waved his hand excitedly. The teacher called on him. He rose and said:

"She is my aunt."

For the benefit of others who don't know, it is said that he believed the word "aunt" was a relative pronoun.

What Did Mother Do?

Marjorie is past two and takes a keen interest in many things. She was disturbed the other night by the wind rattling the window and called to her mother: "Oh, mother, put a nightgown on the wind so it will be still and go to sleep."

A Little Talk on Thrift

An Example of Thrift.

No matter how humble your position, how small your earnings or how restricted the circumstances in which you find yourself, there is always the possibility of bettering your condition through thrift. Progress may seem slow at first, but persistence and determination will win in the end.

There died recently in a New Jersey city a man whose life was an accomplishment of the value of thrift as a means of rising from poverty and obscurity. For many years he had been one of the foremost manufacturers of dies of that part. He had not only utilized his ability in the upbuilding of a great business, but he had become an art patron of note. Yet he began working at the age of ten in a Yorkshire cotton mill where he put in seventy-two hours a week at a weekly wage of thirty-two cents. By the time he was seventeen he had saved enough to pay his passage to America, and the Yorkshire firm where he had been employed made him a present of a five-pound note. His first job in this country brought him four dollars a week.

But he saved, worked hard and gradually advanced.

The story is not an unusual one, yet it illustrates thoroughly what can be accomplished through thrift.

It was the practices of these early days of his career when it was necessary to practice the most rigid economy—when his savings grew penny by penny—that brought about the success that came to him in his later years and enabled him to cherish and ennoble the lives of others.

When we pass at a beautiful structure we are apt to pay little attention to the foundation. Often when we gaze at a splendid Ivy we think too little of the early struggles and hardships without which we must have never really succeeded.

Bear in mind it is not the amount of money one saves that counts so much in the long run as the moral stamina and the indomitable will that are developed as a result of the processes of saving.—American Thrift Society.

Know Its Hidden Values

They Keep Essex Young

Time and hard service show the real difference in the way cars are built.

Essex values are not all on the outside. They extend to minute details. They include finest bearings, where commonly "bushings" are used. They include devices to prevent wear and to inexpensively take up wear. For weight carried, the Essex frame is the strongest built, save one. Experts, foreign and American, call its price the finest of its size.

With all these noted chassis qualities the Coach gives closed car utility, comfort and distinction, at little more than open car cost.

"65,730 Miles Without Repairs"

"In the 65,730 miles that I have driven my Essex, the cost of maintenance has been practically nil. Outside of lubrication I have given it no care. The gasoline consumption has averaged sixteen and twenty miles to the gallon."

"FLU" GERM DISCOVERED

Dr. Simon Flexner, Director of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, announces that germs of Influenza have been obtained through experiments on animals. This germ impairs the lung tissue so that it is no longer able to destroy the common bacteria of the mouth and throat that cause bronchitis and pneumonia.

Kill the germ with Sterling's Vapor-Rub, the healing, penetrating ointment salve that penetrates deep down into the passages, kills the germ that causes the cold, relieves congestion and acts as a restorative to irritated and inflamed mucous membranes.

Sterling's Vapor-Rub does its work quickly, quickly and without delay. It is also absolutely harmless and easy to apply. Simply rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime and place a little of this healing ointment in the nostrils to relieve any stuffed up condition. Then, just breathe your cold away. Be sure to get Sterling's Vapor-Rub from your druggist. A 25 cent box will do the trick. Look for the name "Sterling."

Mr. John T. Nichols was hostess at the meeting of the Woman's Club at Ellington, Monday afternoon at the parsonage. The subject was "Three Stars in Our Flag."

The large amount of influenza and grip this winter has materially increased the number of claims received and paid for by insurance companies for health insurance.

The popularity of the new Gardner, 6 main bearing, Four, was shown Wednesday night when 4 cars were sold. See the Gardner first and be convinced.—adv.

Dr. Robert J. Collins.

News of the death of Dr. Robert Jordan Collins which occurred at his home at 32 Mister avenue Wednesday morning at 9:45 o'clock, was received by his many friends in this city with deepest sorrow. He had been ill for about a week with appendicitis and pneumonia, and his friends waited patiently every day during his illness for news of his condition, hoping for the best, though they knew that chances for his recovery were slight.

Dr. Collins was born in Bristol, R. I., October 27, 1879, the son of Captain John Collins and Abby Gladding Collins. His father was born in Portland, Me., and his mother was a native of Bristol.

He received his early education in schools at Bristol and graduated from Bryant & Stratton's Business college in Providence. Later he entered the employ at Browne & Sharpe company, where he became an expert tool maker. As his father was a sea captain and had been in the revenue service, Dr. Collins often travelled on his ship and visited many foreign ports, gaining much information in this way.

Upon graduating from the Baltimore Medical college he entered the dental business in Bridgeport and Naugatuck and in 1913 located in Norwich at 168 Main street, occupying the suite in which the late George T. Boon conducted dental parlors. He continued in the dental business at that location until his death and prospered.

He was a charter member of the Elks of Wauregan and belonged to the chamber of commerce and was also a member of the Masons.

In this city on October 24, 1916 Dr. Collins was united in marriage by Rev. John H. Frederick to Miss Margaret L. Flynn, daughter of Michael and Margaret Lyons Flynn. She survives him with one brother, John Collins of Providence.

Dr. Collins was a master of his profession and his work always gave satisfaction. He was interested in mechanics and had a large radio set at his home, and delighted in entertaining his neighbors and friends by use of the radio. He was kindly and gentle in manner, a loving husband, and all who knew him have only words of praise to speak in his behalf.

After an illness of about six days of pneumonia Jeanette P. Stevenson, wife of Edwin P. Fowler, died Wednesday morning at 11:30 o'clock at her home, 14 Carter avenue. Mrs. Fowler was born November 15, 1850, the daughter of George F. Stevenson and Jeanette Phelps Stevenson, and had spent practically all her life in this city. Besides her husband she leaves three daughters, two sons and several grandchildren of Norwich.

TWO WIVES APPEARED TO CLAIM JOSEPH TORDO

Joseph Tordo of Springdale, the bakery truck driver, who had his skull fractured when his machine hit a pole on upper Washington street in the early morning of February 23 still remains in a semi-conscious condition at the Backus hospital and at times is delirious.

To add to his troubles it has been learned that since his injury two wives have appeared to claim him as their husband. Both happened to arrive at the hospital at the same time and are reported to have stood glaring at each other as they made application to be permitted to see the injured man.

The first wife has remained in the city, it is understood, and has called to see her husband at the hospital but the other one has departed. Tordo married his first wife several years ago, but deserted her, it is reported, and he married another without going through the formalities of a divorce.

Boat Train Late

The Norwich & Worcester boat train was 2 hours and 20 minutes late Wednesday night.

Soot Fell into Fireplace.

A large chunk of blazing soot that fell from the chimney into the fireplace at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Osgood, 124 Washington street, made a call for the firemen to the house at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon. Firemen from the Central station responded. The chimney is tiled lined and the fire had burned itself out without any real hazard, but Mr. Osgood was most appreciative for the inspection they made and the assurance that there was no danger.

An echo which repeats seventeen times is to be found between Bingen and Coblenz, on the banks of the river Nahe.

ROTARIANS WILL PLAN TO HELP CRIPPLED CHILDREN

What can be done to relieve the suffering of some of the crippled children of Norwich was shown by Dr. R. H. Agnew and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell at the weekly noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. The two doctors of the club were in charge of the programme of the meeting and had a little guessing contest among the other physicians of Norwich.

Dr. Agnew told of a number of cases of children where a little outside help would be of great assistance in providing necessary medical treatment for them. Dr. Agnew also told of one child that was already being helped by the Rotary club and that while the child would not be entirely cured he would be helped so that life would not be so hopeless to him in future years. Dr. Campbell also spoke of the urgent need of assisting these crippled children and graphically illustrated his point by bringing in a little fellow suffering from the effects of infantile paralysis. The youngster although smiling was a very touching sight with his little withered leg almost useless dangling at his side. It is the kind of case that the doctors urged be helped. While in all probability no complete cure could be effected the pitiful aftermath could be arrested and the child would grow no worse. If left alone the child would suffer curvature of the spine and always be in constant misery but with a little assistance now all these future sufferings could be prevented.

Dr. Agnew's and Dr. Campbell's remarks carried such conviction that the club started in to discuss ways and means of financing such a fund as would take care of these cases. It was suggested that the John S. Blackmar's Boys' fund might be used partly in this way. The matter was left in the hands of Dr. Agnew and Dr. Campbell to investigate and report at a later meeting.

At the business session Senator William G. Park presided and routine business was transacted. The club voted to hold the election of officers at the last meeting of the month and the nominations for directors were made with the result that the following were chosen: Frank P. Welch, William G. Park, Dr. Clarence A. Spear, George L. Ingalls, Charles J. Twist, Grosvenor Ely, Timothy C. Murphy, John J. O'Rourke, Charles R. Butts, Louis A. Wheeler, H. M. Lerou and Joseph W. Curtis.

Secretary Weymouth read a letter of congratulation from International President Raymond M. Havens on the remarkable attendance record of the club. Mr. Weymouth also announced that for the month of January the Norwich club ranked third in its division in the United States. The club went on record as approving the Sheppard-Towner maternity bill and recommended that the legislature take advantage of the bill.

The musical part of the programme included a selection by the doctors present and Bert Gager which was a decided success despite a slight lack of harmony. Lew Tong and Arthur Thompson rendered a very skillful duet and there was a pleasing quartette selection.

George W. Carroll who is at present in Florida remembered the club with a box of grapefruit which was served at the luncheon.

TALK ON AUTOSUGGESTION BEFORE PRIMARY COUNCIL

Stormy weather as usual for the March meeting of the Norwich primary council, but the forty members who were present on Tuesday evening were well repaid by the excellent paper and talk given by Dr. Emma Dunham on Coue and Autosuggestion. Not only did she explain the laws and the principals of this little understood subject but she demonstrated its value when used by parents and teachers in their contact with child life. At the close a rising vote of thanks was given to Dr. Dunham.

The date of the next meeting is a bit uncertain as there may be some change in the vacation period but due notice will be sent.

Spare Tires Stolen.

Upon coming out of the Broadway theatre Wednesday evening, Abner Schwartz found that two spare tires had been stolen off the rear of his automobile. He reported the theft to police headquarters. It is thought it is possible the tires may have been stolen before he parked his car at the theatre.

Companies Reports

When are the young ladies from Greeneville to Mohr Bros. Tea Room to get out pictures of their favorite secret, so the boys will have to keep guessing.

Captain Abner Schwartz received a wire from Captain Gerrish Hinz, reading: "World suspect your position today. Throws into high to count. Team number twelve, try and do it." And now the rivalry is keener than ever. And what is it, we may ask? Just to get new customers for the Ice Cream Soda fountain at the Colonial candy kitchen. Don't envy grafters, but help them.

Another interesting letter was received by Joseph Lauder Jr. as a result of the Joseph Lauder Jr. Co. advertising campaign. The letter stated that Lauder's car proved big enough to carry the whole family and the baggage of the writer. Besides this the car proved itself fine for hill climbing. Lauder's car is well known in Norwich and the above letter is but another proof of the fact that the Lauder car is a dependable car.

H. H. Vignot received a very appreciative letter from Colonel McIlvaire for the magnificent gift on the Brooklyn Outfitters' building, which he donated to the campaign. And the executive committee and Salvation Army locally also join in the praise, too.

Captain Charles F. Carpenter, the popular officer-in-charge of the local corps and Adjutant J. Slater, made a ride trip, under the jurisdiction of Captain George Finn, to Hanover, last night, which yielded $9.15. Congratulations, Hanover.

That was very nice of the employees of Joseph Hall & Sons, to send along a check for $48.50 and we thank you men. And the corporation sent their check at the same time, which of course, was gratefully received. Best of luck to you all.

The captain's flivver is now in the repair shop as a result of its strenuous labors during the past week, but as is usual with these cars expects to be on duty quite soon.

The "Chain" money is still rolling in and Mrs. Learned's pet scheme is winning out triumphantly.

Captain Crandall is bent on big things eh? Well, he's well in the running for first position, so keep at it Team XI.

That is going to be a great gathering at the Central Baptist church on Sunday evening, with the South Manchester Salvation Army orchestra well to the front. Look out for special announcements and come in crowds to return thanks for a successful drive.

Captain Russell Clapp is to make things hustle during the next two days and you should watch his team of men, when the captain reports are second to none. These are weighty men and bent on big returns.

That was mighty good of Thames Carpenters' Union, No. 187, to send along $50. The workers do support the Salvation Army and consider it a worthy cause to aid in this way. So others please imitate and put this proposition over now.

PROPOSING $65,000 FOR NEW COUNTY HOME BUILDING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 7. — A proposal to recommend an appropriation of $65,000 for a new building at the New London county home in Norwich was brought before the meeting of the county senators and representatives today. If the appropriation is made it would require a county tax of 3-4 mill. On behalf of the county commissioners Charles H. Smith of Noank said they did not care any longer to assume the responsibility for the fire hazard at the present county home. The county representatives decided to appoint the county home next Monday.

Senator E. E. Rogers of New London presided at the meeting.

The present county auditors, Nathaniel P. Noyes of Stonington and J. Warren Stark of Lyme were replaced today by C. Henry Reagy of Stonington, nominated by Representative Charles F. Champlin of Stonington; and Joseph W. Wellington of Sprague, nominated by Representative Albert Lillibridge of Norwich.

There was also a contest over the choice of a county member of the state board of agriculture. The previous incumbent, ex-Senator James Graham of Lisbon, who was renominated by Representative Lillibridge of Norwich, was defeated by a vote of 16-5 by J. Larwence Raymond of Lyme who was nominated by Representative Harry H. Reynolds of that town.

Representative Gurdon S. Allyn of Waterford moved the same appropriation of $5,000 for two years for the New London County Farm Bureau. Senator Rogers left the chair to speak in opposition to the appropriation. Senator Gibbs of Norwich taking the chair. Senator Rogers said that New London county spends more for this purpose than any other county in the state and before making so large an appropriation he thought the matter should be investigated. He said that New Haven and Tolland counties appropriate nothing; Fairfield county but $6,000, Windham county $2,000, Litchfield county $4,000 and Middlesex county $3,000. The matter was postponed for further investigation.

Representative Howard A. Edgecomb, who is secretary of the finance committee, which will hold an executive session tomorrow to reference to the bill for elimination of tolls, stated that he would like to report to that committee the complete endorsement of this bill by the senators and representatives from New London county. A vote was passed unanimously endorsing the elimination of tolls and Representative Edgecomb will so report.

Another county meeting will be held March 13th.

JOSEPH VS. TIFFANY AUTO SUIT ON TRIAL

Trial of the case of Richard W. Joseph of Lyme against John J. Tiffany of the same town, and a counter suit of Tiffany against Joseph, arising over an automobile collision, was started before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury in the superior court in New London Wednesday morning. Joseph claims that about 6 o'clock on the evening of July 23, 1921, he was driving his Ford automobile along the state highway leading from the village of Hamburg to Old Lyme, going in a southerly direction, when at a point about opposite the premises of William Cox, Tiffany, driving a Buick car in the opposite direction, crossed the road diagonally and struck the Ford

DESCRIBES AMERICANIZATION WORK, TO D. A. R. MEETING

Before an open meeting of Putnam Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community house, Miss Marguerite Bisbey of Hartford, field agent in charge of teacher training under the state Americanization department, gave an instructive and interesting talk upon the work of that department.

She sketched the beginning of the work about 1914 and its development since that time and expressed great regret that the last Norwich town meeting declined to vote an appropriation for a director to meet the amount that would have been advanced by the state. Having such a director would have more than doubled what could be done in evening school work, she said, and she spoke in highest terms of the work of one that she had seen Miss Congdon doing as teacher in the Norwich evening school.

Speaking of a bill that is before the legislature, she said that it proposes to change the name of this work to "department of adult education," which is really what it is and is a much more readily understood title than Americanization, which misunderstood and misinterpreted. The bill asks $24,000 more than was appropriated last year and this sum will enable many towns to have evening schools that did not have them last year. The state will give 50 per cent. of the expenses of such schools, the town paying the other 50 per cent. Thousands of the foreign born can be reached who cannot be reached now. Miss Bisbey asked the members to urge their representative in the legislature to give support to this bill.

She spoke particularly of the work that could be done for the foreign born women, those of the illiterate class, who find it impossible to learn to speak English and to learn American ways with the result that they are pitifully lacking touch with their husbands and children, both of whom have so much better opportunity to learn the English language and into the ways of the communities in which they live. The adult education work that could be done for these women would bridge the gap that now lies between the foreign-born mother and her American educated children.

The regent, Mrs. A. M. H. Vaughan, presided at the meeting, which was the regular March meeting of the chapter.

The meeting opened with singing America followed by the Lord's prayer and the salute to the flag, led by Miss Barbara F. Allen who has received an appointment from Mrs. George Maynard Minor, president general, as page at the continental congress to be held in Washington, D. C., April 16 to 21.

Reports were made and the chapter voted $5 to the Boy Scouts. It was reported by the committee that the Norwich contribution to the unbound anthology of the poets guild of New York, would be Edward Clarence Stedman's poem, The Island City.

After Miss Bisbey's address, the songs "I would that my love," and "Greetings" both by Mendelssohn, were delightfully rendered by Mrs. Wilbur Crowe and Mrs. Leonard Preston. Tea was served by Mrs. Charles S. Holbrook, chairman of hostesses, Mrs. Frank Hempstead, Mrs. Lewis Hutchins Miss Hattie Carter, Miss Ellen Avery, and Miss Ann Brown.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Despondent because of having been ill and through suffering "Teddy" Waterhouse, an aged resident of Attawaugan, attempted suicide on Wednesday afternoon by slashing his throat with a razor. His attempt to die was not successful, as he merely severed his windpipe. Dr. W. H. Judson was summoned and gave him attention, afterwards ordering that he be sent to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam, where he was taken in an ambulance. Mr. Waterhouse had sufficient strength to walk out to the ambulance when leaving for the hospital. It was not thought Wednesday evening that his self-inflicted injury will cause his death.

Through favorable action of the legislature the borough of Danielson is authorized to amend its charter so as to give the warden and court of burgesses control over all sidewalks and footpaths in the streets of the borough, but not of construction or repair of highways, instead of allowing this authority, as for many years, to remain vested in the town of Killingly, of which the borough is a part.

The amendment was desired and was authorized procured at the last annual borough meeting in order that the borough might proceed to improve its sidewalk facilities without having any of the burden of expense fall upon residents of Killingly who are not residents of the borough and would not be benefited by borough sidewalk improvements. In addition to sidewalk control the new amendment empowers the borough to pass ordinances requiring the building of sidewalks and proper care of the same, and regarding the removal of snow, ice, rubbish, ashheaps and other accumulations and obstructions; provided, that when the borough officials desire to establish any grades or curb lines for sidewalks in the borough, such grades and curb lines shall be established by agreement between the warden and court of burgesses and the selectmen of the town. And in case they cannot agree there is provision in the amendment for an appeal on such controverted points to a judge of the superior court to establish such lines.

Under the new amendment the warden and court of burgesses may order the owner of any land adjoining any sidewalk laid out by them, after the grade and curb lines have been established, to construct such sidewalk in such manner and of such material as they may deem proper. And if the owner fails to construct such sidewalk as ordered, within such reasonable time as the warden and burgesses shall name, the officials may then cause the sidewalk to be constructed and the cost thereof shall remain a lien upon such adjoining land and shall have priority over any other encumberance, except liens for taxes due the town or state and payment can be enforced in a civil action by the borough.

The amendment sets forth in detail the procedure to be followed in carrying such provisions as have been heretofore set out and interested parties are to be notified and given a hearing. It also provides how borough officials may proceed to clear sidewalks of snow and ice when property owners or lessees neglect to do so and the cost of such snow and ice removal and a fine of $15 may be assessed.

Another feature of the amendment is the powers that it gives the borough officials relative to passing ordinances as to loitering on streets and sidewalks.

While the new amendment to the borough charter confers rather sweeping powers upon the warden and court of burgesses the public need not apprehend drastic application of these powers. All that is sought is reasonable compliance with a desire for safe sidewalks in the borough and there will be no effort upon the part of borough officials to offend property owners by unwarranted aggression.

Danielson does need—and badly needs—improved sidewalks in many streets. It is not unlikely that some plan will be evolved for meeting this need without antagonizing property owners and with their co-operation. Not unlikely that the matter will be discussed at the annual borough meeting next month.

A movement was being inaugurated Wednesday to petition the state highway department to rebuild the trunk line highway from the borough line at Morin avenue, northward to Elmville. This particular section is one of the oldest stretches of macadam highway in this part of the county and was put more than a quarter of a century ago. It has been breaking down more or less under the heavy traffic of recent years and those who petition believe the time has come to rebuild it. The stretch in question is a little more than a mile in length and is one of the most used pieces of state highway in this part of the county, being a part of the New London-Worcester trunk line. It would make a wonderful stretch of roadway if rebuilt in cement.

Frederick Raymond Mitchell, 31, died Wednesday morning at a Norwich hospital where he had been a patient for about a year and a half.

Wednesday morning at St. Mary's church there was a solemn high mass of requiem at the funeral services for August Barsalou, father-in-law of Captain Remi Delage, Rev. Charles F. Padani, Rev. Arthur A. Rondeau, and Rev. Andrian Dykemans being the officers of the mass, attended by a large number of relatives and friends. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Barsalou died Sunday morning at the Day Kimball hospital, where he had been a medical patient from the preceding Tuesday. He was 63 years of age and a native of Canada. Bearers at his funeral were Orisse Touchette, Alphonse Boissalier, Alphonse Marion, Alfred Bohneville, Neers Jodoin and Amadee Barsalou.

Mr. Barsalou leaves five children—Mrs. Remi Delage, Mrs. Marie Authier, Eugene and Joseph, all of this city, and August, of New Haven.

His death is the fifth among the immediate relatives of Captain Delage within a period of 26 days. A howling northeast snowstorm that for a time threatened to develop into a blizzard brought reminiscences Wednesday morning of the famous storm that swept over this territory 11 years ago Monday and buried New England under banks and drifts of snow that have never been equalled in any March storm since that day—nor in any other winter storm in the little more than a third of a century that has since elapsed.

Old-timers who observed the trend of Wednesday morning's storm say it had something of the earmarks of the famous blizzard. Low temperature and a set in the earlier hours and driving snow as the storm progressed. It may be recorded, however, that no regrets were heard when Wednesday's storm began to ease off about 11 a.m. and was quickly followed by a burst of sunshine.

Trains and trolleys were hampered by Wednesday's sleet and snow, which amounted in all to no more than 4 1-2 inches, but packed down hard and made travel conditions much more arduous than heavier falls of the winter. The trolleys were thrown off schedule for a time, but the regular running time was promptly restored when the noon hour cars were moving normally again. The steam trains were late, but this is now taken as a matter of course, storm or sunshine prevailing.

Discussing the March blizzard of 1888 that Wednesday's storm recalled, old residents made mention Wednesday of the havoc it created—stopping all traffic and fairly burying the city with snow. Trains were stalled all along the line, many of them remaining blockaded from 48 to 72 hours.

No one under 40 years of age living in this territory ever saw such a snowstorm in southern New England as that particular March blizzard.

Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, has submitted the following report covering the month of February:

In accordance with your request at the last board meeting, I shall supplement this report by a special report on the re-establishment of the Kindergarten as a part of our public school system. This supplement will be in your hands in time for consideration at the next board meeting.

Physical Education—

Every teacher in the Putnam schools is now provided with "A Manual of Physical Education for Elementary Grades," published by the state board of education. A series of group teachers' meetings, one each week during the month of March, has been arranged in order to interpret this manual. This manual will form the basis of our work for the remainder of the school year. The recreation in our school program of 1 1-2 hours a week to be devoted to physical education to comply with the law necessitates a number of administrative problems not easily disposed of. I hope in the near future to present for your consideration a special report on physical education with recommendations. At this time I wish merely to quote two paragraphs from the Manual as prepared by the state board of education:

"In time most towns will wish to employ on full or part time special teachers of physical education.

"It is at once apparent that in the schools in which physical education has not been taught, that a lengthening of the school day is desirable if not imperative."

Meeting of the Department of the National Education Association—

My attendance last week at the meeting of the Department of Superintendents of the N. E. A. was highly profitable. Educators from all parts of the United States were present at this meeting. Most of the older and larger and the smaller towns in Connecticut were represented. Not the least of the benefits derived from the meeting was the exchange of views with school workers in widely different parts of the country. The platform speakers were men of national importance including Hon. Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, National Commander Alvin M. Owsley of the American Legion and Henry Turner Bailey, lecturer, author and art critic.

A major part of the discussion centered around the question of the increased cost of education. It is a matter of common observation that the cost of administering the schools has increased greatly over the pre-war cost. Whether this increase has been greater than corresponding increases in the costs of other departments of municipal and private life varies with the locality.

The school was never the only element in the education of boys and girls. Their life activities outside of school often means as much to them in the way of education as their life in school. The modern school has come famous blizzard. Low temperature and a to assume a larger and larger part in the education of youth by making use of a controlled way of many of these activities to which children were formerly exposed in haphazard way. This organizing of the programme of the school has been responsible for some of the increase in cost. It is the duty of those charged with the responsibility of administering public education, now as never before, to inform the public fairly as to the reasons for the increased cost of schools, to obtain for the schools such revenue as will enable them to carry out a progressive programme in line with 20th century standards of American democracy and education, and to prove to the people that their money is being spent as prudently and wisely as is humanly possible.

In such a gathering of 8,000 educators from all parts of this nation new enthusiasms are born and fainting enthusiasms revive for pushing forward the great work in which these men and women are engaged, that of educating American boys and girls.

Respectfully submitted,
RALPH C. JENKINS,
Superintendent of Schools.

Carpenters are making progress with the interior work on the First National bank building. Electricians also are engaged in wiring the structure for the new lighting arrangements.

State road snow quota went back on what seems an endless job this winter, when Wednesday's storm threatened to block them to traffic, something that has not happened despite the severity of the winter.

STOCK MARKET

New York, March 7.—Conflicting price movements, reflecting the play of opposing speculative forces, characterized today's stock market.

Heavy profit and short selling during the morning was founded, in part, on unconfirmed rumors that another increase in the local federal reserve rediscount rate was impending. The reaction was checked when it became known that representative bankers had stated that no further rise was likely at this time.

Speculators for the advance then stepped in and began bidding up individual shares, particularly in the equipment, rubber and oil groups. This campaign for higher prices was aided on the unusually favorable weekly steel and iron trade reviews, easier money rates and the increase in the Stromberg Carburetor dividend from 5 to 7 per cent. Profit taking set in again however, in the late dealings, making the close irregular. Speculative interest was divided between the stock and cotton markets, spot and May cotton selling around 31 3-4 cents at new high records since 1870.

Baldwin crossed 148 for a new high record and then dropped back to 141-7-8, up 1 7-8 on the day. American Locomotive got as high as 134 7-8, closing at 134, up 4. American Car closed 3 1-4 higher and Lima Locomotive 1. Gulf States steel was pushed up 1 3-4 but the other shares of that group made only a feeble response to any reports of further improvement in trade conditions.

Caddo touched 61 1-4, a new high and then dropped back to 60 5-8, up 1 7-8. General Asphalt established a new top at 54 but reacted 2 points before the close. California petroleum was in supply on reports that the production of one of its big wells had been substantially reduced, dropping Texas, Gulf, Pan-American and standard oil yielded fractionally. Rubber shares enjoyed a brief period of strength on reports that the British regulations had reached a working agreement with American manufacturers, but the gains were reduced to fractions at the close. Studebaker closed unchanged, but Mack truck first preferred, Maxwell motors A and B Hudson motors were up 1 to 3 1-2 points. Timken roller bearing jumped 4 points but the other accessory stocks showed small changes.

Trading in rails was again sluggish and reactionary.

Call money opened at 5 per cent. and then eased off to 4 1-2 where it closed. Time money loans were made in limited volume with brokers offering 5 1-4 per cent. for all dates and renewals arranged at that figure. The commercial paper arket was moderately active with no change in rates.

Foreign exchange was irregular with no nominal changes in the principal rates.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, March 7.—Wheat made the unique record today of closing steady at exactly the same prices that were current 24 hours before, May $1.18 1-4 to 1.18 3-4, July 1.14 1-8 to 1.14 1-4 and September 1.13 1-4. The unusual standstill in values resulted from the fact that a majority of traders were in a quandry as to what was likely to be shown by the government report tomorrow on farm reserves. Corn closed at 1-4 c. decline to a shade advance, oats 1-8c off to 1-4c gain, and provisions showing 5 to 12 c advance.

At the outset, the wheat market had a slight downward tendency owing in the main to lower quotations at Liverpool, which in turn were ascribed to increased offerings from Argentina. On the declines here, however, bit speculators took to the buying side, and were able to force a moderate advance with the help of a bullish private estimate as to farm reserves of wheat in Kansas. Then the advance tempted selling by commission houses, and the upturn was lost as the day drew to an end.

Falling off to the amount of 6,000,000 bushels in the estimated total of wheat held on farms in Kansas as compared with a year ago formed the gist of the unofficial report which gave the wheat market noticeable transient strength today.

Zero temperature in some parts of the southwest was also something of a bullish factor on the other hand, though, primary receipts were again of liberal volume, and there was a continued dearth of any important export demand.

Corn and oats virtually duplicated the action of wheat. At one stage indications of a good sized shipping business at Omaha gave the corn market here a moderate temporary bulge.

In the provision market, liberal shipments of lard and meats more than counterbalanced weakness of hog values.

Bond Market

New York, March 6.—Unconfirmed reports that the local federal reserve bank contemplated an increase in the rediscount rate were held responsible for the reactionary trend in today's dealings. The early approach of the time for income tax ayments probably was a contributing factor in the recession. The losses were orderly and confined generally to fractions while a few bonds showed gains for the day.

U. S. government bonds were irregular, the second, third and fourth 4 1-4s advancing ten to twelve cents on $100. Foreign securities, generally were slightly higher, Bordeaux 6s and Brazil 7s gaining a point each.

Railroad liens were mixed. Chicago Northwestern General 5s were up one point, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern 4s of 1931, 1 1-8, and Toledo St. Louis and Western 1 3-4. Losses in this group were fractional. Industrial mortgages also were irregular but the losses outnumbered the advances. Colorado Industrials dropped 1 1-4 points, and the Chile copper 7s one point. In the public utility group, Market Street Railway issued advanced slightly in sympathy with tw stocks: Interborough Rapid Transit 6s were down 1 1-4 and the 7s fractionally.

Total sales (par value) were $9,686,-00

JEWETT CITY

Old hunters and woodmen are seldom ready to admit they they have ever been scared very much. Old Cluey Watson, however, "seeing as how the time he got good and scared," in connection with the interesting lynx stories he has been telling, recalls the following: "It was up in Somerset county, the school house was situated near a thick hemlock growth that skirted the heavier timber that extended back for miles. It was the usual unpretending temple of science,' one generally sees in the country, or rather did see sixty years ago; since which time there has been marked improvement in educational architecture. The sills rested flatly on the bosom of mother earth, on one side we had dug a hole under the sill, just large enough to admit a nine-year-old. This hole was used in playing "bear," with that remorseless disrespect for jacket and pants common in such urchins. On the morning in question, a 'bear' had been chosen, and had just wriggled into his den; when, lo, he uttered a sudden yelp, and came out, contrary to all rules and established precedent, crying out, "Suthin under there." At first we believed it to be a veritable bear; but at length some of the older boys after cautious peeps under the sill, pronounced it a lynx. Lynx were not infrequently seen off in the great woods. Just then the mistress came, and, entering the house from the other side, rang her little bell. The summons was not to be disregarded; yet we were far too excited to go quietly to our seats. We all ran to her open-mouthed: O, Miss ——, there's a lynx under the school house, a great, big thing, big as the stove, bigger'n the stove. And, oh, we can hear him growl, and he like to eat up Billy Murch. Oh, he'll eat us all up.

Now, Miss —— was a city girl, who practically knew no difference between a lynx and a catamount. She did the correct thing, she just clapped one little hand to her side, and fainted. Fresh dismay among the juveniles, boo-hooing from all the abcedenarians. At last one practical little girl let a dipper of water fly plump in the mistress' very white face. That set her a gasping, and revived her, but demoralized her collar utterly, a fact every urchin of us observed with considerable awe. She sat up, dripping, with a faint little, Ah, where is it? We at once gave the subject mouth again, whereupon Miss —— clutched down her fairy ribboned hat, shied fearfully out at the door, and ran, followed by all the little girls, to a great, flat rock on the other side of the road. There they made a stand, and stood huddled together, the mistress in the center of the group. We boys ran off and gave the alarm.

Soon half a dozen youngsters of the neighborhood came running with dogs. First they sent under a large black and white dog called "Spot," a well known canine character thereabouts. Spot dived in with a bark. Then came such an outcry as made our eyes stick out. How they bumped up against the floor of the schoolroom, such yelps and worryings. 'Twas terribly exciting for us. Poor little Miss —— took fight with all the girls to the nearest house. Then out came Spot with a rush, a yelp, and chatter of teeth at his tail. A hound was next sent under, and after him a large and fierce brindled dog, with even less success. The same dog could not be got under twice.

Finally a board was taken up from the schoolroom floor and the animal was shot from above. But I recollect that during the remaining days of that term, the mistress would never enter the school house, nor yet approach very near, till some of us boys had looked under the sill and reported. Old Cluey, finally admitted that it wis he, that first went under.

The Campfire Girls held their first meeting at the home of Miss Leona Cyr Monday evening. After the meeting an evening of games and social chat gave enjoyment for all. Refreshments were served.

Oft timers in this section don't agree with the Cloud Digger, when he predicts a great flood, on the ground that there is two feet of ice on the big ponds and reservoirs hereabouts. The big floods and disastrous high water times here, for the last 50 years have never come when the ice was extra heavy.

At many homes Wednesday forenoon The Bulletin boys were greeted with smiles of sympathy. The paper didn't arrive until 8.30 and they were delivered in a howling snowstorm, which at that hour was at its height.

After the snow storm Wednesday the English starlings were seen all about the borough in big flocks again, in some cases as many as forty-three. With the ground partly bare, they had separated to considerable extent.

Orville LaFlamme Post American Legion are practicing for a minstrel show which bids fair to be the best ever. They are most ably assisted by members of the K. of C., who were contemplating putting on a show of their own. Instead of doing so, they laid aside their plans and offered to assist the Legion men. William Dugan, a K. of C. official, and not a Legion man, Herbert Thompson and Gilbert Miner, two Legion men, are in charge. Other young men outside both orders are also helping make the affair a success.

At the regular meeting of Ruth Rebekah lodge on Tuesday evening, a shower was given Mrs. Ruth Cregan Beaudry, the latest bride of the order. Most unexpectedly to her, a wash boiler appeared on the scene, and proved to be filled with all sorts of wedding gifts. Refreshments were served and a social time followed the meeting.

PETER McVAY CLAIMANT FOR BROTHER'S ESTATE

Peter McVay of this city, has gone to Taunton, Mass., to establish his claim to the estate of his brother, John E. McVay, who died in a Fall River hospital about ten days ago.

John McVay was a resident of this city more than 20 years ago. He had a pleasing voice and belonged to a male quartette which frequently appeared in entertainments. He went from here to Taunton where he conducted a pool room up to the time of his death, which followed an operation at the hospital.

His brother Peter, who has now gone to claim the estate, is believed to be the only surviving relative. Peter has been an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Togus, Maine, for some time. It is understood here that it is known that John McVay left a savings bank deposit of $1,200 and besides this had a safe deposit box at the bank in which it is believed he kept securities and jewelry of considerable value.

The arrival of Peter McVay in Taunton as a claimant for his brother's estate was a big surprise there as the public administrator who had been appointed had been informed that Peter had died fifteen years ago in the soldiers' home.

They left here on Feb. 11 and reached home again Tuesday night, coming around by way of Worcester.

LOCATES NAUGHTON AFTER QUARTER OF CENTURY

Alfred A. Boone of Exeter, Derry, well known among railroad men between Norwich and Worcester, the last man to go to the Klondike from this section in the gold rush of 1897, who was a government engineer in Panama 16 years after his return from the Arctic, and who met Joe Juneau, Jack London, Rex Beach and Tex Rickard in the wild days of the frozen north, has just succeeded in getting in touch with his old Klondike pal of a quarter of a century ago, Richard H. Cahill, a machinist of Northampton, Mass. Cahill went out in the party with Rogers over the Canadian Pacific railroad and got back to the States as Canadians always persist in getting this country, in October, 1899. He has had enough of adventure, and has settled down, as he says, to pass the evening of his life in peace. "Al" Rogers is 57 and in the best of health. He says he could stand the long trail again, but proposes to remain in this part of the country. He was born at Cobbs Ferry, but passed much of his railroad life in New London. He was firing on the old Norwich & Worcester several years, and had just been made an engineer when the call of the Klondike attracted him. He values a long letter lately received from his friend, Cahill, telling about the old days of hardship and privation. Yesterday newspapermen in New London and Norwich remember when "Al" Rogers returned from the Arctic circle upward of 18 years ago. His Norwich partner, Charles N. Brown, a trimmer for the old Norwich Electric Light company, did not return to these parts, and, as he has not been heard from in years, Rogers believes Brown died or was killed in the wild country to which both went 25 years ago.

LORD BALFOUR TAKES ISSUE WITH AMBASSADOR HARVEY

Dissents From the Ambassador's View That the Financial Arrangements Between the Partners in the Great War Are Isolated Undertakings—Stresses the Point That Great Britain Was Able to Finance All Purchases of War Material Without Borrowing From the United States or Anybody Else—Britain Only Desired That the United States Relieve Her of the Burden of Financing All the European Allies.

London, March 8.—(By the A. P.)—Speaking in the house of lords today, the Earl of Balfour, secretary for foreign affairs in the cabinet of former Premier Lloyd George, declared that his circular note to the allies on the subject of interallied debts did not deserve the strictures passed upon it by American Ambassador Harvey in his recent speech here.

"Silence on my part after such a statement by one holding the high post of ambassador would probably be misunderstood," Lord Balfour said in explanation of his reply.

Referring to the statement in his note that the British debt to America was incurred for other countries and not for Great Britain, he insisted upon truth of this statement, in substance if not in form, and proceeded to give facts and figures in substantiation of his claims.

In concluding his explanation, the former foreign secretary said that, from a strictly commercial viewpoint Ambassador Harvey's statements might be correct, but that "I for one take less of a commercial view of the deal."

Lord Balfour opened his remarks with an expression of the belief that considering the momentous changes which had occurred since his note was penned, it would have been preferable to allow the matter to rest, but he thought the house would agree that when a person in the high position of Ambassador Harvey publicly expressed the desire that the present British government should formally and explicitly remove misapprehension, silence on his part would lead to a misunderstanding.

Quoting the clause which Ambassador Harvey had objected, Lord Balfour said:

HEARING BY MOREHOUSE PARISH GRAND JURY

Bastrop, La., March 8.—(By the A. P.)—The Morehouse Parish grand jury continued its investigation of the kidnapping and slaying of Watt Daniel and E. F. Richard today with "Tot" Davenport, made captive with the two men near here last August 4, as the principal witness. Of the five men seized by the masked band, Davenport was the only one unharmed. He was questioned and permitted to return home, while J. L. Daniel, father of Watt and W. C. Andrews, were questioned and bogged before being released. The bodies of young Daniel and Richard were found in Lake La Fourche, four months later.

All of today's witnesses with the exception of J. W. Norworthy, were among the persons stopped on the Mer Rouge-Bastrop highway August 16. Norworthy testified at the open hearing here in January that he had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan, but that, not liking some of its methods, he had asked that his name be dropped from the roll.

He said he had only attended two meetings. He told of receiving instructions from Captain J. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse klan to assist in taking a white man and two negroes to the Arkansas state line after whipping them and to order them not to return to the parish.

At the hearing Norworthy identified a black hood as the "raiding" regalia of the klan, declaring it was worn at night, but had been used both day and night. The men who kidnapped Daniel and Richard, it was developed from other witnesses, wore black hoods.

Mrs. B. D. Carlisle, who was among those halted on the road and who had testified that she had recognized "Newt" Gray as one of the masked men, was among today's witnesses. At the hearing she said a strang woman approached her on the streets of Bastrop several days after the kidnaping and asked her if she recognized any of the masked men, not to say anything about it. She testified that the second man she recognized was known to her only as "Blacksmith" Smith.

THREE POLICEMEN KILLED; "DRY" OFFICER WOUNDED

Atlanta, Ga., March 8.—Three policemen were shot and killed and one prohibition officer wounded in Lulu and Blackshear, two South Georgia towns, late today, according to reports received here. Silas Martin and Jack Ryan, marshals at Lulu, were shot and killed by Robert Hope, a mail carrier, and L. C. Brooks was slain in a battle with R. I. Sharpe at Blackshead, prohibition officer J. A. Monroe being wounded.

Reports from Lulu said Hope had been placed under arrest by Martin and Ryan and was being taken to jail when the shooting commenced. Martin and Ryan were said to have been killed instantly. Hope surrendered to the sheriff.

Brooks was killed in a battle when he and the prohibition officer attempted to arrest Sharpe at his home near Blackshear, authorities said. The officers had a warrant charging Sharpe with violation of the prohibition law. Monroe was badly wounded. Sharpe, reports said, made his escape.

NEGRO EX-CONVICT TRIED TO SLAY WHOLE FAMILY

Spender, Tenn., March 8.—Armed with a shotgun and two pistols, Lewis Douglas, negro farm hand and ex-convict, who early today attempted to wipe out the family of Ernest N. Haston, Tennessee's secretary of state, was believed to be closely pressed by a posse of 500 armed citizens near Doyle, in White county, approximately 10 miles from this city, late tonight.

The wounded included Sam Haston, brother of the secretary of state; Mrs. George Haston, Sr., his mother; Mrs. S. D. Shapero, a sister; Tullus Trogdon, a boy living on the place.

All are expected to recover.

Mrs. Sam Haston at whose bedside the family was gathered, died during the shooting. She was at the point of death when the negro ran amuck and shot down each member of the family as he or she came to the door in answer to his hail.

Duly Astor Entertained.

London, March 8.—(By The A. P.)—Viscount and Lady Astor entertained King George and Queen Mary at a unique dinner tonight. A large proportion of the guests were labor members of the house of commons and their wives. There were also present Prime Minister Bonar Law, the Earl of Balfour, former Prime Minister Lloyd George, Ambassador Harvey and numerous high officials.

Bar Immoral Publications.

Milan, March 8.—The municipal authorities in obedience to the instructions of the government to prevent the circulation of immoral publications have sequestrated the works of Oscar Wilde, De Maupesant, Daudet, Prevost, and other foreign and Italian authors. A committee composed of Italian writers has protested, declaring that the seizure of such works was merely "a manoeuvre to throw ridicule on the legitimate attempt of the Fascisti to protect morality."

COAL RELIEF SCHOONER ASHORE ON BLISS ISLAND

Lubec, Maine, March 8.—The two-masted schooner Centennial, which was blown ashore on Bliss Island, N. B., in the heavy snow storm last night, while bringing coal to relieve the fuel shortage here, will be a total loss, according to her Lubec owners. Vessel and cargo were insured.

The crew after a night of exposure on the vessel, reached the lighthouse on the island exhausted. Their craft became unmanageable in the ice floes and in spite of their efforts was forced onto the rocks at Bliss Island.

Schools and stores here are without coal, and the former may close unless fuel is forthcoming.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS SEARCHED FOR TRAIN

Boston, March 8.—A passenger train for which officials of the Boston and Maine railroad searched throughout the day, was finally found. Due to arrive in Boston at 9.10 o'clock this morning, latest reports said that it would reach this city sometime tonight. The train is the "Provincial Express," from St. John, N. B., to Boston.

Reports received by the railroad company tonight from Portland said that the train, delayed by a blizzard in New Brunswick, had reached Vanceboro, Maine, at 8.20 o'clock this morning, 11 hours late. It was continuing its journey to Boston the reports said.

MRS. BUZZI HAS BEEN PAROLED IN $5,000 BAIL

New York, March 8.—Mrs. Anna Buzzi, a divorcee who lived for seven years with Frederick Schneider, wealthy Bronx contractor, today was paroled in $5,000 bail in custody of her lawyer, after she had been held for ten days as a material witness in the murder of her lover.

Police reserves were needed to handle the crowd which pressed into Bronx county court when Mrs. Buzzi was led into the room from her cell. She smiled down the first time since her detention, when Judge Gibbs said: "Now you may stay up."

Earlier in the day, District Attorney Glennon, admitting frankly that he was puzzled by the case and had no evidence against Mrs. Buzzi to present to the grand jury, consented to reduction of bail from $15,000.

Mrs. Buzzi, on leaving the court consented to giving a newspaper interview tomorrow. Her only statement tonight was:

"I am absolutely innocent of this crime. I am sorry that I cannot give the reporters an interview, but that is an account of my condition and the surprise at my release. I will spend every dollar I can get to aid the authorities in running down the slayer of Frederick Schneider and I will also aid them personally."

EFFORT TO PREVENT THE EXTINCTION OF FLAMINGOES

New York, March 8.—In the hope of preventing the threatened extinction of brilliant colored flamingoes, T. Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, will leave tomorrow for the island of Andros, in the Bahamas.

On this tiny isle is the last rookery of this once common bird in or near North America. Twenty years ago there were 12,000 birds in the colony, but this number has been decimated by the native negroes, who kill them for food.

Sir Harry Cordeau, governor of the island, has tried without success to stop the killing of the flamingoes in the shallow lagoons of his domain. Mr. Pearson will propose the posting of wardens near the rookery to halt the slaughter.

Godard.

The librarian and others appeared before the committee today to request an appropriation of $3,000 to make the papers safe and available for use.

Mr. Godard urged that the legislature adopt resolutions thanking the Massachusetts Historical society for its courtesy in returning the papers, without solicitation, as they are of great historical value.

TO CONTINUE RELIEF FOR THE CHILDREN OF RUSSIA

New York, March 8.—Work of the American relief administration will be continued among the children of Russia until after the next harvest, but it is doubtful whether it will be continued further than that, Secretary Hoover, who is head of the A. R. A., announced today after a meeting of the executive committee.

This decision, Mr. Hoover said, was based on a report from Colonel William N. Haskell, head of the A. R. A. field forces, who declared conditions in Russia were "immeasurably better now than last fall."

$4,500 A YEAR AS GUARDIAN OF DOROTHY GORDON

Cambridge, Mass., March 8.—William F. Jardine, whose fitness to continue as guardian of Dorothy Gordon, insane heiress, is being challenged by John D. Gardiner of Baldwin, L. I., her uncle, admitted under examination in the probate court today that he gave orders in 1917 that Gardiner should not be allowed to see his niece. Those orders have never been revoked, he admitted further. He said he could not remember giving such orders during her present commitment.

Jardine declared he had not attempted to influence the young woman against her relatives, but said he had dissuaded her from marrying a young Massachusetts Institute of Technology student.

Miss Gordon asked him in January, 1921, to wind up her affairs, counsel for Gardiner developed. Jardine admitted he had taken no steps to this end, except to refer her to an attorney, but after the time when she was recommitted to the McLean hospital for the insane in March, 1921.

Jardine, asked by guardian to accept a year, counsel brought out. He had never earned more than $2,000 a year until he obtained control of Miss Gordon's estate, he said. The hearing was adjourned today until next Monday.

LIBERTY LOAN "DRIVER" BARRED FROM COUNTRY

New York, March 8.—Constantine Oberuchieff, former Russian general, who was active in the United States during the World war in behalf of Liberty loan drives, has lost his right to re-enter this country, although he had taken out first papers to become an American citizen, a special board of inquiry decided today.

He must return to Russia with his wife, who was refused permission to enter because the Russian immigrant quota for March had been exhausted before her arrival, unless an appeal to Secretary of Labor Davis is upheld. The two are being held at Ellis Island pending word from Washington.

Oberuchieff spent almost a year searching through Russia for his wife. When informed on their arrival here Tuesday that she could not land, he elected to go to Ellis Island with her, although at that time he was told he would not be barred.

The board of inquiry decided today, however, that he was liable to become a public charge and decreed that he had lost his claim to become an American citizen.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR 40 BELGIAN COMMUNISTS

Brussels, March 8 (By the A. P.).—Warrants were issued today for forty Belgian communists who, according to the public prosecutor, have been engaged in a plot to foment strikes and promote agitation against the occupation of the Ruhr. A number of arrests were made.

According to the prosecutor, documents seized at the homes of the suspects proved that the movement was directed from Berlin and that the Belgian communist party had been in constant communication with the German organization, to which it furnished detailed information regarding the Belgian military movements.

The communists arrested under today's warrants will be prosecuted on charges of plotting against the safety of the state.

Miss Morehouse was injured in Wallingford in June, 1921, when an automobile driven by her brother, Walter F. Morehouse, ran into a tree. Poincare Replies to German Pretensions

That the Allies Could Only Demand Additional Cash as Penalty for the Non-Delivery of Lumber and Coal.

Paris, March 8.—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare, replying tonight to a memorandum distributed to the diplomatic corps by Germany on February 15, tonight issued a statement in which he says it is absurd for the Germans to pretend that the allies could only demand additional cash as penalty for the non-delivery of lumber and coal, since Germany at the same time was declaring to the reparations commission that she could pay no cash at all.

As to the German contention that, in any case, the allies were not warranted in occupying more German territory, M. Poincare recalls that the protocol of Spa in which is recorded the agreement regarding coal deliveries, contained a provision that if the quantities provided for were not delivered within the dates mentioned the allies could proceed to the occupation of a new part of German territory, either in the Ruhr or elsewhere. Mr. Poincare observes that the Germans did not protest against this provision.

To the German contention that the word "respective" in article XVIII of the treaty of Versailles does not mean that any one of the allies has the right to act independently in the application of penalties, M. Poincare says the Germans already have profited from an interpretation of that clause. He refers to the case of Great Britain's separate action in renouncing rights under Article XVIII insofar as they concerned property of German nationals seized.

The premier defends the expulsion of German functionaries in occupied territory on the ground of resistance to measures provided for the the treaty of Versailles, and in answer to the contention that the towns of Offenburg and Appenweier, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, was unjustified recalls that the Versailles treaty obliged Germany to facilitate the maintenance of international passenger trains passing those points, and that Germany suppressed them, thereby necessitating the occupation of those towns.

FRENCH NOT TO INCREASE PRESENT HOLD ON THE RUHR

Duesseldorf, March 8.—(By The A. P.)—France will not increase her present hold on the Ruhr, This was the reply of General Degoutte, the French commander, made in a statement tonight to the newspapermen in answer to Chancellor Cuno's address before the reichstag on Monday. German reports, General Degoutte declared, had only fooled France in her struggle in the Ruhr, and he predicted that shortly the French and Belgian economic blockade would begin to bear fruit.

The object and resolve of France's policy in the Ruhr has changed, said General Degoutte. "We entered the Ruhr to compel Germany to honor her obligations, as the Cuno government had come into the open revolt. The struggle on this account has assumed a character we have not desired and we cannot be held responsible for the outcome. We could not mildly overlook acts of rebellion and open defiance, for our security was at stake. However, we have not molested nor ill treated anyone here.

"We now have been in the Ruhr for eight weeks, and it cannot be denied, I think, by German leaders that incidents between the troops and the inhabitants have been confined to a strict minimum. If the Berlin government had hoped to provoke serious trouble, it has been deceived.

"German propaganda describes us as tyrants and executioners, some of these stories have been so exaggerated as to be amusing. It is so easy to invent.

"In his reichstag speech Chancellor Cuno referred to the Recklinghausen incident, where it was alleged French officers entered a theatre with horsewhips and chased out the civilians. Now, the officers in question have offered their word of honor that this story is absolutely false.

"The struggle in which we are engaged is an economic one, limited to certain products and certain individuals who are the holders of Germany's wealth. As for us, there is one thing they may be certain of; we shall not relinquish our grip. The result of German's resistance has been to strengthen the will of France to continue the struggle to the end.

"There is not a man in France who does not feel that the future of his country, the future of Europe, is at stake in the Ruhr. This is a moment that if France lost ground here it would be a triumph for German nationalism. It would mean the entry into power of the partisans of the old regime and the revenge—the end of the German republic. The pretended French militarism, which some denounce obstinately, is defending here in reality the cause of democracy and the peace of Europe."

FIGHT EXTRADITION OF JOSEPH B. MARCINO

Boston, March 8.—A long, hard fight by Abraham Goldman, father-in-law of Joseph B. Marcino, alleged leader in the looting of $213,000 from the First National bank of Warren, and sought as a fugitive from justice, against removal from Chicago to this city in connection with the theft, was predicted tonight by United States Attorney Robert O. Harris. Mr. Harris, with an assistant and three witnesses, will leave for Chicago Sunday to bring back Goldman and Frank L. Tylor, president of the closed institution.

Mr. Harris also mentioned the possibility of Taylor, who had agreed to return, joining Goldman in fighting removal to the jurisdiction of the local federal court.

FUEL PASSED FROM ONE AIRPLANE TO ANOTHER

Y., March 8.—Contact between airplanes flying at reduced speed to prove messages or fuel could be passed from one machine to another was successfully achieved at Mitchel field today by Lieutenant Clyde V. Finter and Lawrence B. Sperry, inventor. Eight contacts were made at various heights during the half hour of tests.

Sperry, who piloted a messenger plane weighing 800 pounds, had his craft fitted with a wooden upright, and during the tests connected the pole with a metal ladder suspended from the bottom of the larger machine.

Largest Fire Loss in City of Providence

More Than $1,000,000 Damage Caused by Fire and Water to the Shepard Stores in Business District.

Providence, R. I., March 8.—Damage estimated at more than $1,000,000 by insurance men was caused by fire and water to the Shepard stores, in the heart of the business district here tonight. Every available piece of fire apparatus was called to the scene by four alarms. Starting at about 8.30 p. m., the flames by midnight had swept the greater portion of the sixth floor of one section of the building and were not yet under control.

Thousands of people were attracted to the scene.

Experienced insurance men tonight declared the fire to be the largest ever experienced in this city.

The origin of the fire has not been definitely ascertained, but it is believed to have started in a "paper chute" that runs from the sixth floor to the basement of the building. Firemen responding to the first alarm later the fire broke out anew and it became evident that the area affected was widespread. Within an hour the fire had reached dangerous proportions and firemen were pumping into the upper floors tons of water which filtered through to the basement, damaging tens of thousands of dollars worth of valuable stock.

The building and its contents are said to be fully covered by insurance. Up to midnight there were no reports of injuries to the fire fighters.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED FOR THE STEEL CO. ENTERPRISES

Buffalo, N. Y., March 8.—Twenty corporations comprising the Leonard R. Steel Company enterprises, into which the public has poured more than twenty million dollars in the last three years, was placed in the hands of receivers today by Federal Judge John R. Hazel. Auxiliary receivers will be named for every store and branch of Steel corporations in this and other states.

The receivership, it was said, is a friendly one and designed to avert a crash of the entire financial structure by the hostile attitude of certain stockholders and creditors, which, it was declared, had become apparent during the last 24 hours.

The principal companies named in the receivership proceedings are the L. R. Steel Company, Inc., the parent organization; L. R. Steel Company, Ltd., operating chain stores in Canada; the Federal Stores Company of Youngstown, Ohi, the F. E. Nelson Stores Company of Massachusetts in which Steel companies had a 75 per cent. interest; the Mary Lincoln Candy Shops, Inc., stores and Tetley, the Steel Department Stores Rotailing Corporation of Delaware and the Sears Department Stores, Inc., with branches in Colorado, Illinois, Utah, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, Washington, Maryland, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Ohio, Maine, Alabama, Idaho, Florida and Arkansas.

In addition to department stores, the corporation owned or controlled restaurants and cafeterias. A statement issued last October listed ownership of about 90 stores, ten of which have since been sold or discontinued.

A report that the receivership would be immediately followed by an inquiry into the manner in which the stockholders' money was disbursed found no confirmation.

No statement of present assets and liabilities is available, auditors now at work on the finances of the various their task. The petition submitted to corporations, not having completed the federal court placed the assets of the twenty corporations at about $13,000,000.

This figure it is understood, was based on a partial financial statement issued on February 3rd by W. M. Wilkins, chairman of the executive board who has been in charge since Leonard R. Steel's retirement in January.

The February statement was from the balance sheet of the L. R. Steel Company, Inc., and its merchandising subsidiaries and showed total assets of $12,401,671 and a surplus of $1,196,711. Cash on hand and in banks was $294,000 and merchandise inventories $2,122,000. Other assets listed were: Investment in subsidiary companies $2,389,943; organizing, financing and advertising $2,239,000; leaseholds, good will, trademarks, etc., $1,076,500.

Leonard R. Steel, who has been living at his country home here since his retirement, refused today to comment on the receivership.

FAVORABLE REPORT OF NET RAILROAD EARNINGS

Washington, March 8.—Net railroad earnings during January were more than twice those in January, 1922, according to tabulations of Interstate commerce commission reports made public today by the Association of Railway Executives. They amounted to $60,454,700 against $29,486,000 last year and represented, the association's statement said, an income of 5.54 per cent. annually on the value of property investment in transportation service.

The returns include practically all the Class I carriers, this group including the corporations which own 90 per cent. of all the country's rail mileage. The earnings resulted from a record-breaking increase of business given the roads during the month.

The fire was of unknown origin, starting in the plant of the New Haven Hat and Cap company on the top floor of the building.

Officers of the company estimated that their losses was above $5,000. The heaviest loss, however, was caused to the stock of Bradley and Sowles, stationers, where it was estimated $15,000 worth of office supplies were ruined. An additional $5,000 damage was caused in the shop of Herman Bergman, fur printer, [illegible] electrical apparatus.

[illegible] AT HEARING ON COUNTY COMMISSION

An Effort to Have the Commissioners Legislated Out of Existence Savored of Comedy at Hearing Before the Judiciary Committee—Mr. Hyde of Brooklyn in Advocating a Bill for a One-Man Commission, Declared That the Windham County Jail Was "the Best Boarding House in Brooklyn"—Desires to Save the Salaries of Two Commissioners.

Hartford, March 8.—An old problem in a new form came before the legislative committee on the judiciary this afternoon and, as has been the case at hearings before this committee of late, the comedy element furnished a good many laughs to the large audience. The question was "What shall we do with our county commissioners?" And there were many to advocate that they be legislated out of existence.

There was a smile on the face of Judge A. McClellan Matthewson of New Haven, who in 1919 issued a brochure which urged that the commissioners be done away with and a new form of business administration devised. The county commissioners long have been regarded as a cog in the state political machinery and although many had tried to throw wrenches into it, no legislature ever got to the point of seriously considering doing away with the commissioners. The new plan advocated last session was to place county affairs in the hands of a business agent.

Today the committee gave attention to the bill of Representative Dunham of Wethersfield, which calls for a commission to study, investigate and report in 1925 as to whether the commissions should be abolished.

The popular idea of the functions of these commissioners for years was that they issued licenses to sell liquors and did little other work of material consequence. Representative Dunham said he had carefully looked over the statutes to find out just what the commissioners had to do, and he had fourteen items, none of which, nor as a whole, appeared to him to furnish work enough to keep them busy. One item was the issuance of liquor licenses, but prohibition had taken away that job.

Representative Frank Fenton of Windham, who had a bill of his own, threw his support to Mr. Dunham's bill, citing the lack of responsibility thrown upon the commissioners and remarking that state, county and town governments so overlapped that the county commissioners probably did not know what they had to do, and may not hve done some things that they were supposed to do.

Mr. Hyde of Brooklyn, who had a bill for a one-man commission, opened the hearing and quickly ran into a cross-fire of questions which produced laughs. Mr. Hyde criticised the administration of the Windham county jail, which, he said, and a license was usually allied and was "the best boarding place in Brooklyn." He denied that he wanted to abolish the county commission because of the Volstead act, although the jail was a burden with only a dozen inmates. He wanted to save the salaries of two commissioners. After many questions, to which Mr. Hyde replied with some humor, the case was rested on Mr. Hyde's assertion that there was not enough work for three men that two salaries would be saved, and that people of the county favored abolishing the commission.

Mr. Fenton, who followed, admitted when questioned that if commissioners were abolished many statutes would be upset. He said the theory and practice of the county government was wrong because the electors themselves had no say as to who should be chosen. He made a plea for popular election of commissioners.

When Mr. Dunham took up his bill he remarked that the committee had had a merry time with Mr. Hyde but it would not have to with him because he had facts and could answer questions. The committee tried their hand at questions, but most of them were met by Mr. Dunham with the remark that he was advocating a bill to have the subject investigated and had no declaration to make as to the present form of county government, no criticism of the personnel, and only desired to show that the problem was serious enough even to be taken up by the committee. Before he got through he said he admitted he was having worse luck than before any other committee. His parting shot was that there was a lot of smoke hanging over the matter and a commission ought to inquire and see what it was all about.

DISAPPEARANCE OF RUM SEIZED AS "EVIDENCE"

New York, March 8.—Police officials refused tonight to throw any light on the mystery of how ten cases of rum which had been seized as "evidence" found its way into exclusive Washington bootlegging channels.

Timothy Shine, headquarters records, showed, was arrested in April, 1922, on a charge of violating the Mullan-Gage law, and his big stock of liquor was seized. The liquor was turned over to the police property bureau, labeled "evidence," and stored in a warehouse.

Inquiries at the property department as to whether the liquor had been returned to Shine on court order, or had been spirited from the warehouse, went unanswered.

Shine was reported out of the city.

E. C. Yellowley, acting state prohibition director, said he had never heard of the case. No liquor that ever got into the hands of federal enforcement officials in this district has found its way back to bootleggers, he declared.

INDUSTRY OUSTS BEAUTY AS THE QUEEN OF PARIS

Later a "Queen Bee" was elected and, escorted by the cortege, went to the Elysee Palace, where she was received by President Millerand.

Mid-Lent was observed informally as a half holiday, with traffic diverted from the main thoroughfares which, despite a light rain, were thronged with crowds of Parisolans to watch the gambols of boys and girls dressed in carnival attire.

STORM IS RAGING OFF THE COAST OF NEWFOUNDLAND

St. Johns, N. F., March 8.—The storm that swept the north Atlantic coast of the United States yesterday was raging off Newfoundland today. A garage and an automobile also were destroyed and most of the furniture in the house was lost.

LOCKED FIVE HOURS IN SAFETY DEPOSIT VAULT

Paterson, N. J., March 8.—Charles Digiacoma, 19 years old, bank clerk, was taken from the safety deposit vault of the People's Park Trust company here, shortly after 10 o'clock tonight, after being locked in the vault five hours as a result of a joke on the part of a fellow clerk.

Digiacoma, taken to the General hospital, was speechless after he became conscious. Physicians believe he will recover. He is at times hysterical and his only message was written on a slip of paper and read "I want my hat" the note is believed to refer to the clerk who locked him in.

Firemen and contractors worked fantically in their efforts to open the vault, which is operated by a time lock.

Firemen managed to cut two small holes through the roof of the vault at 8 o'clock and communicated with Digiacoma, who urged haste and said he was being affected by lack of air. Physicians pumped oxygen through these holes unitil the youth was removed.

ENGLAND NOT TO REQUEST PREFERENTNAL TREATMENT

London, March 8.—(By the A. P.)—Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, declined a proposal in the house of commons this afternoon that he take steps to urge that the American government grant preferential steps to urge that the American government grant preferential treatment to imports from England.

His declaration was in answer to Sir John Norton-Griffiths, laborite, who had asked whether the chancellor would "consider the desirability of urging upon the United States government that some preferential treatment should be extended to imports from this country, having regard to the fact that, while our American liabilities must largely be discharged in goods, yet British merchants are faced with the greatest difficulty in entering the American market by reason of the high tariff barrier."

Mr. Baldwin replied: "I have the greatest sympathy with the member's object, but I don't think any special steps are possible."

REPORT IN BASEBALL CIRCLES THAT RED SOX AND DODGERS MAY BE SOLD

New York, March 8.—Baseball circles and two major league clubs on the block today—the Boston Americans and Brooklyn Nationals—but although interests in both admitted were for sale to the highest bidder, doubt was expressed tonight as to the prospects of either changing ownership at present.

Harry H. Frazee, president of the Boston Red Sox, declined to comment on reports reviving the possibility that he might sell his interests. It was learned, however, that he had not conferred today with Ban Johnson, president of the American league, on the subject, as suggested in advices from training camp sources.

The Boston magnate has repeatedly expressed a desire to sell if he could get his price, but so far no definite offer is understood to have been made to him.

Owners of the Brooklyn club, meanwhile, admitted they had been approached by representatives of Edward E. Simms, wealthy Kentucky turfman and oil operator, with an offer of $500,000 for their interests, but did not appear to regard it favorably.

Charles H. Ebbets, president of the club, who has on several occasions expressed a desire to sell his holdings and retire from the game was quoted by the Brooklyn Eagle's training camp correspondent as saying the price was not satisfactory.

In Brooklyn, Stephen W. McKeever, who, holds a half interest in the Dodgers, declared emphatically he would consider no proposition to sell and added that "there isn't enough money in New York to buy our share in the club."

Baseball men regard the attitude of Mr. McKeever as practically quashing the proposed deal because of an agreement he and his brother are understood to have with Mr. Ebbets under the terms of which each party has first option on the other's holdings in the event either desires to sell.

Proof of the existence of this fact was seen in the statement by Mr. Ebbets that he could reach no decision regarding the Simms offer until conferring with the McKeevers.

McINNIS SIGNS FOR TWO YEARS WITH BRAVES

Boston, March 8.—John "Stuffy" McInnis will probably make his initial appearance in the National league as first baseman for the Boston Braves. The glorious star, recently released by the Cleveland Indians, has affixed his signature to a contract with the Braves for two years. The salary was not announced but it was reported to be $10,000 a year.

When Christy Mathewson took over the executive reins of the club after its recent sale to a New York syndicate by George Washington Grant it was intimated that a number of deals calculated to strengthen the club were pending.

In engaging McInnis the Braves are declared to have bid against most of the clubs of the major leagues as well as several in the minors. Cleveland released him when it found his $14,500 salary too heavy to carry. McInnis will report at the Braves training camp early next week.

The acquisition of McInnis was hailed by Boston fans as a step forward for the Braves. "Stuffy" is popular here and his work in the several world's series in which he engaged with the Red Sox and Athletics has not been forgotten. He is a good hitter consequently maintaining an average of .300 or more and is regarded as one of the greatest right handed first basemen in the game.

MRS. HURD WINS THE BELLEAIR GOLF TITLE

Belleair Heights, Fla., March 8.—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, the former British and American women's champion, added the Belleair championship to her achievements on the links when she defeated Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, of Huntingdon Valley, in the final round, today, one up.

The match came to the last green with Mrs. Hurd leading by one hole. Mrs. Fox reached the green in three while Mrs. Hurd required four.

Mrs. Fox's approach was two feet short of the cu.

Beginning of the second nine, Mrs. Fox lost the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth in a row and became two down. One of these holes she got back at the seventeenth, when Mrs. Hurd put her ball into the lake. Had it not been for a mistake on the home green, the match would have been square.

Mrs. Fox made the round in 87, the same number of strokes as her opponent.

In the gallery was little Mis Nancy Elkins the grand child of Mrs. Fox, who was very much interested in her grandmother's playing and disappointed when she did not win.

Approximately five thousand fans witnessed the bouts which were held in the Meriden state armory, it being the first card staged in a state armory since the use of the armories has been secured in the Nutmeg state.

Willie Davis, of Elizabeth, N. J., won a ten round decision over Jimmy Clooney, of Hartford, in the ten round semi-final.

Kaplan floored Herman for a count of four in the first round with a left hook to the jaw and opened a bad cut over Herman's eye in the ninth round.

Miss Wethered, who is a sister of Roger Withered, British amateur star, won the women's title last year by defeating Miss Cecil Leitch.

BENTON TO REPORT TO MORAN TODAY

Orlando, Fla., March 8.—"Rube" Benton, is expected to reach here to join the Cincinnati club tomorrow, Pat Moran, manager of the Reds, said tonight.

LANDIS DECIDES THAT RUBE BENTON IS ELIGIBLE TO PLAY WITH REDS

Chicago, March 3.—(By the Associated Press)—The controversy over Pitcher J. C. "Rube" Benton, was settled tonight by a decision by K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, declaring Benton eligible to play in organized baseball, approving his transfer to the Cincinnati National league team by the St. Paul American Association and severely criticizing those who brought charges against Benton nearly two years after the alleged irregularities occured.

The National league had objected to the transfer of Benton on the grounds that he had knowledge of the 1919 world series scandal and failed to bring it to the attention of the proper authorities.

The question involved, the commissioner said, was whether Benton was eligible to play anywhere. The standards of the American Association are as high as those of the majors', he ruled, adding that if Benton was ineligible to play with Cincinnati he was ineligible to play with St. Paul.

"It had never been contended, commissioner Landis said, that Benton was guilty of dishonest ball playing. The charges against the player were known throughout the baseball world in 1920 but no disciplinary action was even considered while Benton played through the 1920 season and until August 1921, with the New York Nationals and the succeeding year and a half with St. Paul. After two years those same matters had been brought forward in the form of charges, with no new facts involved the decision said, concluding.

"This is at war with every concention of justice and fair play. Certainly the time to present and to act upon charges which seek to permanently disqualify a man of his chief means of livelihood, is at the time the matters alleged become known, not at the objectors' discretion of two years later."

B. P. Merriman, of Waterbury, Conn. T. Russel Brown, of Montcalm, and Lake Champlain and Donald Parson of Youngstown came through to the semi-finals in company with Scofield.

HATCH INSURED BY GOOD EGGS

Each spring hundreds of inquiries are received by county agents on the best methods of hatching eggs and care for baby chicks. The failure of many hatches is blamed on the hen or the incubator, but according to one agent, the fault more often can be traced to causes prior to incubation. To begin with, there is the all important matter of fertility, a consideration subject to a multitude of influences. Among the most important are the health of the parent stock, the number of hens mated with one male, feeding, housing and food range.

The county agent points out one important factor for consideration is the number of hens per male, depending upon the breed, the season, and the size of the flock. The heavy, or Asiatic breeds should have a ratio of seven or eight to one, the American breeds 10 or 12 to one, and the Mediterranean 12 or 15 to one during the natural breed season. Out of season the ratio in each case should be less. When a pen of 100 breeders is kept, a large ratio, that is more hens per male, will often bring satisfactory results.

During the late winter and early spring, when eggs for hatching are gathered, great care should be taken to assure their being laid under the best conditions, and to make certain they are gathered from the nests at the proper time. Dirt nests with plenty of fresh, clean material in them are best. During the cold weather eggs should be gathered several times a day to prevent freezing. It is often impossible to detect a frozen egg until it is candled, when tiny cracks will be seen. Dirty nests will soil the eggs, and if washed or placed dirty in the incubators will result in poor hatching.

After collection, eggs should be graded according to shape, size and color. In doing this the first thought should be to discard for table use the thin-shelled, soiled, unevenly shelled, very large and very small eggs. This is necessary insurance. Eggs of uniform size, shape and color should be chosen.

Special care should be given eggs for hatching. They should not be kept longer than two weeks. Two days is ideal and if kept for two weeks they must be placed in a room where the temperature is continuously between 50 and 60 degrees fahrenheit.

Storrs college at one time set 1100 Rhode Island red eggs. One-half of these eggs were three, four or five days old, while the other half was 11 or 12 days old. From the first half 71 chicks hatched from each 100 eggs, from the second half 63 per hundred.

NOW IS TIME TO BUY MATERIAL FOR SPRAYING ORCHARDS

Farmers are being urged to buy their orchard spraying and dusting materials at once, if they have not already done so. Not only is it necessary to buy, but farmers should make sure that they actually have the materials at home in their possession. The reasons for this are readily apparent.

In the first place, it is only six weeks from now to orchard spraying time. The first spray, when buds are opening, usually must go on in this district, about April 15, and there is no reason why it should be later this year. Secondly, railroad and express conditions this year make deliveries slow and uncertain. Third, some chemicals, arsenate especially, are scarce and high, owing chiefly to their great increased use in the south for dusting cotton.

Five or six sprayings or dustings are urged this year to produce high quality, perfect fruit. For large trees about six gallons of spray, or one pound of dust are required for each application. If the trees are small, less is required, in proportion. With the help of the spray calendar, it is easy to figure how much of the different materials is required.

USE WHOLESOME BREADS DURING WINTER MONTHS

During the winter months, when fewer green vegetables are used, it is especially necessary for the housewife to put some wholesome breads on her table to keep her family in good physical condition. While white bread is a nourishing food, whole wheat bran and oatmeal breads are more valuable as foods since they contain some of the outer coatings of the grain and are a source of vitamines. Both bran and whole wheat have a mechanical effect on the intestines that tends to prevent constipation.

In addition to its value as a food, whole wheat flour is economical. In the milling of 100 pounds of wheat, about 72 pounds appear as white flour in the finished product. The remaining 28 pounds go in to the shorts and bran, which are not used as human food. White flour contains on an average, 12 per cent. of moisture. The digestibility of white bread is about 96 per cent. Every 100 pounds of wheat therefore supplies 67 pounds of water-free digestible food material in the form of white flour. The digestibility of whole wheat bread is about 90 per cent. Whole wheat flour contains on an average 11½ per cent. moisture. One hundred pounds of wheat supplies therefore 70.96 of digestible food material in the form of whole wheat flour, as against 87 pounds in the form of white flour, a net gain of 13.96 pounds of food from every 100 pounds of wheat.

GOOD MANAGEMENT SHOWS ORCHARD CAN COME BACK

That the farm orchard can be made to pay well, if given the proper attention, is shown by results obtained by A. H. Hurlbut of Cornwall, Conn. Mr. Hurlbut has a total of 272 apple trees on two adjoining farms.

One hundred and fifty-three of these trees are of the Baldwin variety, there are 20 R. I. Greening trees and the others (as is typical of many New England orchards) consist of 17 varieties as follows: Penaukee, King, Blue Parmain, Westfield, Peck, Hurlbut, Wealthy, Ben Davis, Esopus, Red Astrachan, Fameuse, Roxbury, Porter, Winter Sweet, Gravenstein, Duchess, Pumpkin Sweet. The 272 trees are in three blocks, one of which is about 20 years of age, another from 30 to 40 years and the third from 50 to 60 years.

In the fall of 1921 and the following winter, Mr. Hurlbut pruned carefully. First, all tops were given a light thinning out, removing the smaller interfering branches scattered throughout the entire tops of the trees.

Two or three weeks before blossoming time in the spring of 1922, an application of about five pounds of nitrate of soda and five pounds of acid phosphate were made to each tree. These materials were applied in circles about the trees, extending several feet beyond the tips of the branches. A luxuriant growth of grass resulted which was mown and allowed to remain on the ground as a mulch for the trees. Mr. Hurlbut applied three sprays as follows: The Pink, the Calyx and one about 10 days after the Calyx. During September and October of 1922 he harvested 885 barrels from the 272 trees. These were sold to a Bridgeport wholesale house at the following prices f. o. b. the shipping station: A grade Baldwins $4.16 per barrel; A grade other varieties $3.80 per barrel; B grade all varieties $2.60 per barrel. The total receipts amounted to $3,256.20.

An accurate account was kept of all expenses. Man-labor for pruning, spraying, picking, etc., was figured at $2.00 for nine hours, or a total of $255 per day of nine hours, amounting to a total of $114.60. Cash expenses including fertilizer, new ladders, barrels, etc., were $805.28. The total expenses amounted to $1,607.86, which, when substracted from the receipts of $3,256.20 left Mr. Hurlbut a net income of $1,648.34 from his apple trees, or over $6.00 net per tree.

Mr. HurlBut has had help from the county agent and from W. H. Darrow, pomologist of the Extension Service of the Connecticut Agricultural college.

In 1922, according to Mr. Hurlbut, the orchard produced the largest and best crop in its history.

FARMER SHOULD FENCE OFF UNPRODUCTIVE PASTURES

The average farmer should make his pasture smaller rather than larger.

The average pasture is made up as follows: One-third of its area is fairly good grassland, the other two-thirds is brush, wood, lumber and swampland. This latter two-thirds should never be used for pasture for milk production for several reasons.

First, in the woodlots very little grass is to be found, consequently the dairy cow is kept moving all day to get a mouthful here and a mouthful there. In this plight she does not get the time to lie down to chew her cud, the material she does get has very little food value because of its high fiber content, and in the woods and near the swamps the air is always filled with little flies that pester the cows. When the cow comes to the barn she is nervous, not well fed and consequently she gives less milk than she would if kept in the small, well grassed plot of the pasture and not allowed to ramble all over.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Trapped In Their Hiding Place

Well, I guess you know what I'm going to say, but I'll tell you just the same. It didn't take Uncle Lucky and Little Jack Rabbit two winks and a half to hop into the hole at the foot of the tree and to fasten the door tight with a hickory stick. Then they listened and heard Danny Fox say to Mr. Wicked Wolf:

"It makes me mad as mad can be,
To always lose these rabbits.
There is something the matter with you and me,
We'd better change our habits,
For every time they get away,
Just as they've done again today."

And then, these two bad animals beat on the door and tried to get in,

Then Charley Chickadee began to sing

but they couldn't and pretty soon they grew dreadfully angry. Then Charlie Chickadee began to sing:

"Why don't you lead an honest life,
And buy a silk dress for your wife?
Old Danny Fox, so cute and sly,
You couldn't catch a little lame fly.

And you Mr. Wicked Wolf, so thin,
Go buy Mrs. Wolf a diamond pin:
You're the two poorest hunters I've ever met,
You don't know enough to go in
When it's wet!"

Now, it was very foolish of little Charlie Chickadee to sing this song to Mr. Wicked Wolf and Danny Fox, for they looked at each other and then they looked up at the little bird and then they sat down on the doorstep and said:

"We'll just wait here till Uncle Lucky and Jack Rabbit come out and if they don't come out by super time, one of us can go home and get his while the other waits until he gets back."

"Goodness, gracious, meebnus!" said Uncle Lucky "that sounds pretty bad. Maybe we'll have to stay here forever and maybe longer. What will we do for something to eat?"

"Oh dear, oh dear!" said Little Jack Rabbit, "I have only a carrot candy and a lettuce sandwich in my knapsack."

Well sir: Pretty soon it grew dark and the Twinkle, twinkle little stars came out in the sky and Mrs. Silver Moon looked down and shone right on those two wicked animals sitting on the front doorstep of Charlie Chickadee's treehouse. Charlie had gone to bed for it was too dark to fly about in the Shady Forest.

Well, by and by, Uncle Lucky peeped through the keyhole but Mr. Wicked Wolf was still there and so was Danny Fox. They never took their eyes off the front door and every once in a while they'd lick their lips and say:

"Oh, for a lovely rabbit stew,
We can wait, for we've nothing to do."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

REPRESENTING NORWICH

For the most part the support for the bill before the legislature calling for fines and imprisonment for the violators of the 1921 law regarding time seems to have come from Norwich.

This might seem to indicate that Norwich was overwhelmingly in favor of standard time, when as a matter of fact it is not. The matter has been before the people of the town and on the two last instances it was shown that Norwich favored daylight saving.

Thus when those from this town appear before the committee for legislation that is in direct opposition to what has been sought by a vote of the people it becomes misrepresentation rather than representation. They may be representing a certain faction, unwilling to abide by a majority vote, but they do not represent the community's decision.

Norwich, like other cities in the state, knows the value of daylight saving. It knows by experience what the handicaps are in trying to do business on time that differs from the railroad schedules, and it is fully conscious of the fact that the railroads are changing their schedules, not because they are necessarily committed to daylight saving but, because the majority of the states that they serve desire it. The railroads are not trying to set the time for Connecticut, but some in Connecticut are trying to get southern New England and New York to change their minds regarding the advantages which they have found in daylight saving. The railroads in changing their schedules for the summer are endeavoring to respond to majority sentiment.

THE CONSULS AT NEWCASTLE.

While firmly supporting the action of the state department in closing the American consulate and entering into arrangements for the giving up of the lease at Newcastle, England, there are those who take the view that it has come to a pretty pass when American consulate officers can be removed at will by the British politicians.

There hasn't been any question on the part of this government that Great Britain had the right to terminate the right of consuls to continue their work in behalf of this or any other country. That is recognized but it is expected, and with reason, that when any such action is taken it will be based upon facts that justify it.

It is because this country has been unable to find, after investigations continuing over a considerable period, that there was any justification for the removal of the consulate officials that it has taken the attitude it has. It hasn't undertaken to say that the consuls could do anything they pleased without being rebuked, or that this government would stand back of them in violating their privileges. It does take the position, however, that when their actions are such as another government believes they should be given their papers and sent home, the charges against them should be of such a nature that they will hold water when looked into. And it is because this country does not find that the consular agents at Newcastle did anything outside their rights in such a position that it finds that if those representatives cannot be maintained at Newcastle it will not permit others to go there.

This means, of course, that this government stands solidly back of its agents whose right to serve as consular agents at Newcastle was, in the opinion of this country, unjustly terminated. It would expect no different conduct from any other that might be sent there, and consequently it expresses its disapproval of the British action by promptly closing the American consulate at that point. It stands by its agents till it is shown that they have done wrong.

TIME TO HELP ITSELF.

Chancellor Cuno of Germany takes the position that because it considers it is being wronged by France in its invasion of the Ruhr that it can do nothing but protest. From the statement which he made he indicates that Germany cannot make a move to bring about an adjustment.

This attitude is due to the fact that he does not consider that Germany was responsible for the action taken by France, and consequently he considers that any move that is made should be made by outsiders.

Germany isn't ready to throw up its hands. It hasn't as yet been pressed that hard by the French, but the desirability of having some agreement reached concerning the question of reparations is indicated when it is pointed out that it would be willing to listen in case it was approached on the subject.

The present situation would not exist but for the attitude which Germany has been taking considering the meeting of its obligations. It doesn't admit it, but it is because of its actions that the French are today in the Ruhr, and yet it is not commercialized in Berlin that they are there in accord with the provisions of the treaty of Versailles which anticipated just such backing on the part of Germany.

Germany has been relying upon aid from the outside which would permit it to suppress the position it has been taking. It counts this assistance when it lets it be known that it holds itself honorable of a reasonable approach. But with Germany having failed to keep current in her reparations, and with this development into the Ruhr based upon that attempt the quicker Germany realizes that it lies within its own power to clear up the situation the quicker will it obtain the relief that it desires. The German attitude may be changing but it doesn't redound for other countries to pull its chestnuts out of the fire, when the situation could easily might have been prevented had that course prevailed some time ago. It seems to be time to help itself even though making overtures might seem to be ineffective.

THE AUTO SHOW.

There is nothing strange about the fact that the automobile show makes a strong appeal to a large number of people. This would not have been so far the latest reason a couple of decades ago, when people would run blocks to get a view of a one-lunger, but it has come with the development of the industry and the great increase in the number of machines.

The country may be flooded with automobiles but that only whets the interest of a greater number in such machines. The number who are familiar with autos in one form or another is increasing each day. Consequently, they are not only desirous of getting some points in regard to the large variety of machines and their operations but they want to see how the new features look and work.

The makers of autos are turning out improvements each year. Some are vital changes and others only affect the appearance. They all appeal nevertheless and it is at the auto show that the opportunity is presented to show them to advantage and to permit of close comparisons.

And when it comes to fascination there is just as much magnetism in an auto show for the owner of a machine, or one who is contemplating acquiring one, as there used to be for the horse owner in the horse show or the stables at a race track. The large number of the shows scattered among the cities of the country, large and small, shows the importance of getting the product before the public. Business never suffers through wheeling the interest and presenting the good points of an article, whether it is a potato parer or an automobile.

RAISING APPLES.

The state board of agriculture of Rhode Island is calling attention to the reappearance of the San Jose scale and is putting forth timely warning in order that the raisers of apples in that state may fight the disease before it gets too late.

Apple raising in the New England states is not what it should be. Nevertheless the orchards that do exist ought not to be neglected and whatever advice of this character is given serves an admirable purpose if properly acted upon.

In a section of the country where so great a quantity of the fruit is consumed it is regrettable that a larger part of the apple requirements is not produced here. We have the land, we have the markets and we have the ability to raise good fruit. When apples are selling for from five to ten cents a piece it would seem that the chance to get the benefit of some of this business would be seized.

Go into a fruit store and ask for native apples. The clerk or proprietor holds up his hands in blank astonishment, almost as if he never knew such a thing existed. Native apples to a great degree have come to be known as nothing better than pie apples. There are of course instances where no such idea prevails, for apples can be grown hereabouts of just as fine texture and taste as elsewhere, but the apple orchards to a large extent are permitted to take care of themselves and therein lies the secret of the lack of the proper production of New England apples.

The Rhode Island board of agriculture is endeavoring to get protection for the apple trees through the warning it issues. If it can send home the appeal it may also develop some day a greater interest in apple raising by drawing to the business the attention it deserves.

Yesterday I was having one of somewhat bothersome moments trying what it could do for Mrs. Wanton's complexion, and Cousin Hamilton, engaged in his usual Pierce, Everything looked very artistic, except my shoulders, which I never could easily so reconcile by a new mask and new facial which eventually I had in the house.

"I'm sorry, Lucille," said Cousin Fannie, when I spoke to her about it, "but I don't see how I can do anything to that dress today because I promised to take over to Mrs. Grosse those laquites that my settlement dressmaker made."

"They can't have to go today, do they?" I asked.

"Yes, dear, is packing the box to send overseas, and she wishes to get it off tomorrow surely."

"I'll tell you what. I'll carry the laquites over to Mrs. Grosse myself, and save you that long tiresome trip to the north side. Then you can get comfortably busy at home and refurbish that muffle gown. You know dominie Fannie, dear I might have been engaged to Arthur Pierce myself if I had carved to be, and I don't what Edna Hamilton to think me a dowdy. Shouldn't the skirt be shortened a wee bit?"

"Well, yes, perhaps," generated cousin Fannie, as she took the frock into her capable hands.

"I'll take the laquites right over to the north side now," I said, not realizing what a huge parcel it would be to carry.

When I got downtown I phoned George Meagher and asked him whether he didn't want to acquire a little merit by taking me and my burden over to Mrs. Greene's. He suggested that stay downtown for dinner with him, and then he would be delighted to drive me over to Mrs. Greene's in the early evening. I checked the parcel at Gink's where I was telephoning from, and then I went to the movies to pass the time.

When I left the theater it was pretty half past 5 and I had to hurry, for there's one thing I never do, and that waiting.

Cousin Fannie certainly made a splendid success of my corn-colored voile. After she had cleansed theskirt sewed on the fresh lace, and made a new sash and pressed it all carefully it looked like an important creation. Indeed, it was the most chic thing at the luncheon, and it gave she a wonderful morale to know that I was so well dressed. I saw Joyce Hamilton's eyes take me in my white felt hat, with its dull yellow roses, to the tip of my extremely smart suede pumps. I knew that she could not by any stretch of the imagination think I looked forlorn.

"Good gracious, Lucile, what in the world did you do with those laquites?" asked mother, with great annoyance in her tone, the moment I got home from the luncheon. "Mrs. Greene telephoned to know why Fannie hadn't brought them, and, of course, I said that you took them over and she said you didn't. I have called up every

Julia Dent, Wife of U. S. Grant.

Like Penelope of old, Julia Dent Grant, wife of the eighteenth president of the United States, was wedded to a soldier named Ulysses. Also like Penelope, her husband journeyed around the world. But there the resemblance ceases. Mrs. Grant herself is quoted by historians as saying:

"Having learned a lesson from my predecessor, Penelope, I accompanied my Ulysses in his wanderings around the world."

Julia Dent Grant was born in St. Louis, the daughter of Frederick Dent a prominent man of that city. At the age of 18, shortly after she had completed her studies at a fashionable school, the charming girl met Ulysses Simpson Grant, then only a lieutenant. He was stationed at the Jefferson Barracks in St. Louis. It was not long before the young people were deeply in love, and in the spring of 1844 their engagement was announced. After the war with Mexico they were married, the ceremony taking place in August 1848.

Like that of most wives of soldiers, Mrs. Grant's life was one of constant moving about. She went with her husband to the innumerable camps to which his duties took him until in 1852 she fell ill, and was not able to accompany him to California, whither he had been ordered. She spent two years at the home of her parents, and at the end of this time Captain Grant resigned from the army, that he might be near her.

The Civil war, of course brought him back into the service, and it was during this time that Julia Grant revealed her rare and hardy spirit. She was with her husband wherever it was possible, and spent all of her time on or near the scene of action. She saw him twice inaugurated President, and was the fourth mistress of the White House to which a widow's pension of $5,000 a year was granted by congress. She bore four children, three sons and a daughter. Mrs. Grant is buried beside her husband in the imposing Tomb in Riverside Park, New York.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Women Preachers.

Mr. Editor: Many months ago I read in a published letter to you an inquiry as to the Biblical doctrine of the validity of women as preachers. I then waived cautiously to answer that question from a man who seemed to be directly the truth. Duties prevented. I felt that I had the time to devote to the writing of a grave letter on the subject of women preachers. The issue being recently revived by letters to The Bulletin from several sources challenged me to tackle an answer. No man has come forward with an adequate solution so I hope that mine will allow a woman to touch them on the subject. H. E. Coffey wrote a letter dated February 25, 1918, and with the title, Should Woman Assume the Role of Teacher. He is wrong in his premise and so his ultimate ideas are wrong.

Here is his statement, as printed: "It was my contention—and I am supported by no less an authority than the Apostle Paul himself (1 Tim. 2:12) that woman's position in the church should not be that of teacher. If we are to be governed by the customs and precepts laid down by the Lord Jesus and the apostles then women should not be allowed to assume leadership and heading in the church. There are many places of Christian activity in which women can engage without assuming the authority of a teacher and leader."

Again I quote his statement "the wife is surely a picture of the church of the gospel era. But for the wife to become a teacher and assume the authority rightly belonging to her husband is in effect to destroy the very picture. To follow out the Bible teachings in this regard does not lessen woman's true dignity, rather it enhances true regard for her, as queen of the home . . . woman is by nature of more tender disposition than man and needs to be shielded from the grave and more dangerous responsibilities that always comes to one who is a teacher of God's Word."

Pardon me, Mr. Editor, if I use an American idiom which is slang but it expresses my thought so that the people will understand me. This doctrine of H. E. Coffey is "bunk" and the bunkiest of bunk. In the first place the Bible does not support such nonsense and that is why his premise is wrong. The Bible unequivocally endorses women preachers and teachers. Deborah (Judges 4:4), Anna (Luke 2:36), Philip's four daughters (Acts 21:9), are written of as of women who prophesied. To prophesy meant to teach to or to preach to the people God's will for them.

The duty of a prophet was not only to foretell events. The prophet was a teacher or a preacher. The apostle Paul informed prophesying by women in his first letter to the Corinthian church. Paul instructs that the women should have their heads covered when they prophesied or preached (1 Corinthians 11: 5, 6). Later in the same letter, after emphasizing that all things must be done decently and in order, he pronounces "let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience as also saith the law. And if they will learn anything let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church." (1 Corinthians, 14: 34, 35).

This refers to interrupting the meeting by asking questions or in other manner, and so bringing confusion.

Paul was a student of Greek and Roman literature, and he would not write a letter instructing women how to preach and forbidding them to preach.

It was a question of propriety and order to be observed in a public meeting. The same rule is applicable today. Women should not interrupt a meeting today any more than then by disobeying the rules of order. She should observe her modesty at all times. We do not like to see a woman today usurp authority over the man in any position in life. A woman should at all times be womanly and that is what Paul meant in these disputed points. He recognized her prophetic gift as equal to that of man and gave her a right to exercise it as the child sent letter to the church at Corinth indicates. The reference to 1 Timothy 2:12, which H. E. Coffey gives relative to the same matter: "but I suffer not a woman to teach nor to usurp authority over the man but to be in silence."

She is not to usurp authority over the man, but what can be the prophetic gift, the same will the prophetic insight is to recognize it and to allow her to speak. Such things will be done decently and in order as Paul exhorts the people to do regarding it in 1 Corinthians 14:39.

Respectfully yours,

JOHN TROLAND.

Norwich, March 2, 1922.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Payson Smith who has been elected president of the department of superintendence of the national education association, has been commissioner of education for Massachusetts since 1916, in which year he went to Massachusetts from Maine, where he had occupied a similar office for nine years. Smith is a native of Portland, Maine, who after studying at an academy in his home state, and at Tufts College, entered the teaching profession, and within the borders of the Pinetree state built up a reputation for ability and administrative efficiency that led ultimately to his being put in charge of Maine's educational system. During his administration he did much to establish on a better basis the matter of the rural school, and to give the calling of teacher greater dignity within the community.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE MURMAN COAST.

The questionable proximity of British Bolshevik's right to fish along the Murman coast, which led to a clash between Russians and Britain in those far north waters, and the British decided to send a war vessel to the region for future protection. Reminding of this land on the fourth and which Russia touched to sell to the Esquimaux Bulletin from the Washington D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

When it is realized that the Murman coast is on the Arctic Ocean, and naturally possesses a frozen waste, with great drifts of ice, it is rather amusing to think of the land with its fishing villages is almost as populous as before. A few Lapps are scattered over the Kola Peninsula, which stretches edge formis the Murmank Coast is living largely on their reindeer. As in many Arctic regions, mosquitoes are a serious pest along the Murman Coast in summer, and even the reindeer flee to the interior highlands to get away from them.

Approximately $75,000 in value in the 50 cars on display is represented at the automobile show at the Norwich state armory where a good crowd was present to enjoy the display of fine cars that has been carried out under the auspices of the Norwich Automobile Dealers' association, Battery E, and First Combat Train, 102nd Field Artillery.

There is no question but that persons interested in the purchase of a new machine need not go to the metropolitan shows to see the 1923 models for they can without any effort at all satisfy themselves right here at the Norwich show.

During the evening there was an attractive musical programme by Herb Smith's orchestra and two Willimantic singers pleased with their solos. These were Mrs. Mary Mathieu, soprano, who rendered My Buddy, and Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses, and Arthur J. Roy, baritone, who was heard in Every Day and For the Sake of Auld Lang Syne.

One of the striking objects at the show that no one fails to admire is the Rec phaeton in "perfect blue," which is a paint job by the Dell garage of this city. The work matches the trade name of the colors for both are perfect.

HEARING ON COUNTY COMMISSIONERS IS HELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 8.—The several bills that have been introduced concerning county commissioners were heard by the committee on the judiciary this afternoon. Mr. Hyde of Brooklyn appeared in favor of the bill introduced by him to reduce the number to one. He was not very clear as to just what he wanted but the inference was that he and some others were not satisfied with the doings of the commissioners in Windham county. His clear point was that the county would save the salary of two commissioners, amounting to $1,000.

Asked if one commissioner, if required to do the work of three, would not want more money, he replied that he had never known one to resign. Another saying would be in the cost of dinners—one instead of three, and their friends.

Mr. Fenton of Windham was not dissatisfied with the action of the commissioners of Windham county. He was not insistent upon the bill introduced by him, but was of the opinion that there should be an investigation of the office as suggested by another bill.

Mr. Dunham of Wethersfield favored the bill that would investigate the office of county commissioner. He proposed that a committee consisting of one senator and one representative be appointed by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house to make a thorough investigation of the subject.

Mr. Schatz of Hartford was of the opinion that the question of the commissioners was of sufficient importance to merit an investigation to determine the need of such an office. He was not advertising the office but the number should be reduced. He asked that a commission be appointed to inquire into the necessity for the continuance of this office.

No one appeared in favor of the bill introduced by Mr. Woodruff of Milford concerning the number of commissioners in New Haven county.

Judge E. M. Matthewson of New Haven was of the opinion that the office should be abolished and the duties of the office taken over by an official of the state.

Lecture on Self Mastery

Wednesday evening before a large audience Dr. Emma Dunham gave a most interesting lecture on self-mastery through conscious auto-suggestion. The subject was handled most efficiently covering many phases of the great law of suggestion, and its application to the problems of everyday life, physical, mental and spiritual, and how to overcome them. She showed the thorough knowledge she has of this subject in the illustrations and demonstrations used, and how by right living and thinking she can obtain in life what they desire; by living unite the natural laws.

We feel sorry for some men who are compelled to listen to their own talk.

"GRAND TO HAVE YOUR HEALTH"

says Miss Jenny Evans of Detroit, Mich. Few of us appreciate our health until we lose it. Mrs. Evans worked in a factory, but owing to a weakness and pains in her back, she was forced to give up her work. "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me well. It is grand to have your health to feel well all the time and to go around like other women without that awful torture of female trouble. Women who are suffering from such troubles should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is backed and thousands have recommended it to women as the standard remedy for female ills."

NORWICH PEOPLE PLAN FOR NEAR EAST PLEDGES

It is an encouragement to the Norwich Near East relief committee to know that in addition to the personal gifts received, certain clubs, societies and organizations are planning to make pledges or outright donations to aid in Armenian orphanage support. Every $100 donated by Norwich people is the means of keeping alive for one year a poor Armenian orphan who otherwise must perish.

In speaking of the character of the work going on in the Near East and what it means to the orphans, Mrs. Richard R. Emrich, who spoke Tuesday evening at the Osgood Memorial parish house to members and friends of the Norwich Near East relief committee, told a story of what one saw in one city in the Near East. Her story is as follows:

"A bare room. A long table, at which sit rows of children. Mere shadows of flesh-and-blood boys and girls are they. So emaciated are their faces, so sunken their eyes. So clawlike their hands.

"Before each child is a cup of tea with six raisins in it. At each place is a three-ounce piece of bread. Their first meal since coming under Near East relief protection.

"When I am asked just how bad is the situation in Turkey, I think of this crowd of children that I saw at supper at Alexandropol a short time ago. The boys and girls were half starved. The food we had to give them was not nearly enough to satisfy hunger that had not been appeased for months, perhaps years. Later they would thrive on the carefully balanced diet.

"They asked a blessing before they ate. And after every crumb had been eaten, they gave thanks. To the formal thanksgiving they added, 'We thank thee, oh Lord, that thou hast not permitted us this day to go hungry.'

"If it were not for the clothing and food which America has supplied these thousands of families and children they simply could not go on living. They have absolutely nothing. America must go on. She cannot stop now."

ENTERTAINED BY MR. AND MRS. STANTON

With two clothes horses set up from end to end of the stove, and a part of her clothing, including Mrs. Sterling Nelson was found lying in the snow on the yard of her home at 702 Central avenue Thursday afternoon about 2:10 o'clock when the firemen from the Central station and from Greeneville responded to a telephone call to the place for a supposed fire.

Mrs. Nelson, who was 70, was so terribly burned that her recovery was regarded from the first as impossible and her condition was very low all Thursday night at the Backus hospital, to which she was taken as soon as possible after she was found. She died at the hospital 15 minutes after midnight.

Mrs. Nelson's clothing had apparently caught fire at the stove and she had run out all ablaze and fallen in the snow. When the firemen arrived a quilt as thrown over her, but parts of her clothing were still on fire. Her body rested on the snow, as the quilt was not wrapped around her.

It is understood that this is the fourth time this winter that her clothes have caught fire, as she was apparently careless and did not realize her danger in getting near the stove.

Chief Stanton found the lid of the stove off, a spider, with some grease like meat in the stove, and a rack of charred greasy rags on which Mrs. Nelson lay, in the snow. Among the rags in the house were considered the firemen found three pictures of Reminal on them.

A call for Dr. Paul J. Geelin was sent out by Chief Stanton when he found the sufferer's name. Dr. Geelin arrived quickly and sent in a telephone call to the Backus hospital for the ambulance, which happened to be out on another call. Chief Stanton then asked for the auto police patrol and while waiting for that made preparations to use the Squad A wagon to get the woman to the hospital. He had all the hose thrown off in order to make room for a bed on the wagon and was just about ready to convey her to the hospital that way, wrapped in a blanket, when the police patrol arrived and took Mrs. Nelson to the hospital.

Chief Stanton followed with Mr. Nelson, her husband, in his car. Mr. Nelson having come from his work at the United States Finishing company.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Nelson are members of the local branch of the Salvation Army.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN LYME AUTO SUIT

Richard W. Joseph of Lyme lost his suit against John J. Tiffany of the same town, when the jury in the superior court at New London brought in a verdict for the defendant in Joseph's suit against Tiffany for damages through an automobile collision on July 23, 1921 on the state highway between Hamberg and Lyme.

Joseph sued for $8,000 and Tiffany had a counter claim for $2,000. The jury brought in its verdict at 4.35.

Mr. Tiffany's testimony was that the accident happened between 5.30 and 5.45. He said that W. C. Latham, his hired man, was riding with him at the time of the accident. The witness said that when he first saw the Joseph car it was in the gutter at the driver's left and in order to avoid a head-on collision, he (Tiffany) sheered to his left. The Ford struck his car in the rear end and the former overturned. He helped lift the car and Joseph was under it.

Tiffany said to Joseph: "I'm surprised to find you driving on this side of the road," to which Joseph answered to Tiffany, "Why didn't you keep to the right?"

Tiffany denied that he ever said to Constable Bugbee that it was his fault and that he was to blame for the accident. The witness declared that Joseph made no effort to turn out and let him pass so he had to pull to his left in order to avoid a collision. He said he had no room to turn to the right. Tiffany testified that he was driving 20 miles an hour, having looked at his speedometer just before the collision and that his car was running on three cylinders instead of four.

Tiffany testified that he had his car under perfect control at the time of the accident and declared that Joseph was to blame for the collision. Tiffany insisted that he was on the left hand side of the road as he was turning the curve at which the accident happened and that Joseph was on his left. The witness declared that had he known that Joseph was not going to give him the right hand side of the road he could easily have gone to his left and avoided the collision, but he supposed that Joseph would turn out until he saw that he was not doing so and then he (Tiffany) turned to the left but not in time to avoid the collision and Joseph's car struck his rear wheel.

Mr. Tiffany admitted that he offered "to go 50-50" with Joseph on the cost of repairs to both cars, although he knew that the damage to his car was less than the damage to Joseph's.

William C. Latham, who was riding with Tiffany at the time of the accident, was the next witness for the defense. He said that as the Tiffany machine was approaching the curve, he saw the Ford coming in the opposite direction. The Tiffany car was over to the extreme right of the road and the Ford car was to its left side or on the Tiffany car's right. The witness said that neither Tiffany nor the driver of the Ford made any attempt to turn out until the two machines were within about 30 feet of each other. Then he said to Tiffany that there would be a head-on collision and Tiffany turned to the left the Joseph car keeping straight ahead and hitting the rear of the Tiffany car.

George Berry told of arriving on the scene of the accident a few minutes afterward and examining the tracks of both machines. He said that the tracks of the Tiffany car were on the right hand side of the road going north, which was the direction in which the Tiffany machine was running and that the tracks of the Joseph car were on the left going south, which was the direction the Joseph car was going.

Berry was the last witness for the defense. At the conclusion of the testimony, Attorney Morgan made the opening argument for the plaintiff and he was followed by Attorney Keefe, who made the first argument for the defense which he concluded at the noon recess.

In the afternoon Attorney Geary made the second argument for the defense and Attorney Tanner made the last argument.

Witnesses Tell of Speed.

Wednesday afternoon Frank S. Harris, who boards with William Coult, near whose house the accident happened said that he was at the well when the accident occurred and went to assist in righting the overturned machine. He said that Tiffany's car was going at a fast rate of speed just before the collision.

His testimony was corroborated by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Harris.

James F. Bugbee, a constable of the town of Lyme, told of being notified of the accident and going there immediately. He said that Tiffany said to him that he (Tiffany) didn't know but what he was to blame for the accident.

William Coult, opposite whose house the collision occurred, said that he arrived at the scene of the accident soon after it happened and said that Joseph's car after it had overturned was on the right hand side of the road.

John C. Chapman, who lives a short distance from the scene of the accident, said that he saw the Tiffany car pass by the house and that it was going between 25 and 30 miles an hour. A few seconds later he heard a crash and turned in time to see the Joseph car overturn. He afterward helped to lift the car.

Henry E. Chapman, father of the preceding witness, about 70 years old, said that he saw the Tiffany car by the house and it was going "pretty fast."

LENTEN SERMON ON USING POWER OF GOD

I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to them that believe, was the scripture topic of the Lenten sermon delivered Thursday evening at the union services of Christ Episcopal and Trinity Episcopal churches at Trinity Episcopal church, by Rev. John H. Deming, rector of St. George's church, Newport, R. I.

The entire history of the world civilization is due to the successive use of power of man. It had used it in his industrial and personal life. Once the boats were driven by man power, slaves rowed the galleys, but later someone discovered that the breezes in the air had power and a sail was rigged up, making the power of the wind drive the boat. At one time meal was ground in a hollow rock but man or woman discovered the power of the stream and used a wheel to make the waters furnish power. Steam was later discovered, and in our own time the gasoline engine has been developed until man can fly in the air and travel at great speed on the earth.

Electricity also came in our day. Never before in the world was there as much power per man, as today. Power is to solve the problems of the future.

But, there is another power, recognized by man long before other powers, the great spiritual power. To make progress spiritually in our Christian lives we must have power to utilize the resources of God, accept and use the power of the Holy Spirit. I often wonder why, when man has so used power in physical life, he has made so little use of spiritual power God can give him. I wonder why it is that there seems to be so little spiritual power per Christian when there is so much physical power per man.

Never before in the history of the church has there been such organization. Our churches today are better than ever before and we have organization to take care of everything, but yet we lack in our churches the power of that little band of Christians that made Rome afraid of them. There seem to be few outstanding Christians with personal spiritual influence radiating from them.

Word comes from all sources that Islam is evangelizing Africa today as a continent. Islam is conquering Africa under our eyes. You ask why, and I tell you it is because every Mohammedan is an evangelist. He takes his religion with him and makes converts wherever he goes. In our churches most of the work is by proxy, the church is run by a little band of workers who do the work because they have to, while the majority sit back willing to let the load rest on the shoulders of a few workers.

What is it that makes Christianity different from other religions? It is because the religion of Christ teaches us that He is the way of the light and by His power He can save. Other religions do not offer that wonderful power of uplift.

If we mean what we pray, come to God in penitence and humility He will reach down and set us on our feet. We must surrender our will to His; that is why so many professed people have so little spiritual power. They let God into a part of their life, a small part, and keep the rest hidden from him. You get out of business, the home, or anything only what you put into it. Most people play with religion on Sunday, and at other times are absorbed in material things. I don't mean all must engage in church work, but mean that God will use only that part in you that you allow Him to use, like the factory having unlimited power that opens but one small room to the power, closing all others, so are these people who allow God to use only a part of their life, time, and love.

There are various kinds of power. The power of word. Some people do little for the church, for God, each willing that others should do all. You ask them to take a Sunday school class and they say "Oh, no I haven't time for that." Not enough of us can even manage our own lives properly. Doesn't it seem strange that the man who can conquer the power of electricity, of the powerful locomotive, is unable to conquer his passions, desires, and temper. He is helpless to harness his own soul; he has never let the power of God come into his life to aid him in conquering his desires. He has never let the power of God fill his life with good, the power that would make us all good to live with.

Then there is the power of God to give us the spirit of happiness and faith. How many need the power to go on with their faith even when things go wrong, to have that power which makes joy and happiness shine out through our hearts at all times. If our religion does not make us happy it is because too many chambers of our hearts are not filled with God. We may never be saints, but we can all be happy, have that power of God that possessed Paul who said, "I am crucified with Christ and Christ lives within me." To continue to be happy, at all times knowing that whatever befalls us must be what God intends should happen. We must all first fulfill the conditions of the Holy Spirit, surrender our wills and find a little room of that power that conquers sin, and makes us happy, calmly and joyful, a power for good.

The scripture was read by Archdeacon Russell Brown, reporter and Violet Bowden, clarinet, and Rev. Richard R. Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church read in part.

PROPOSES RADICAL CHANGE IN CITY STREET SPRINKLING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 8.—Among the proposed bills that have been favorably reported on, that will come up for action during the coming week are several of general interest to the people of Eastern Connecticut.

House Bill 195, as amended by the committee on roads, river and bridges provides that the up-keep and repairs of roads built with state aid shall be paid by the state the same as if they were part of the trunk line system.

The bill permitting the city of Norwich to sprinkle the streets is a radical change from the system now in vogue. Instead of selected streets being treated and assessment laid upon the frontage sprinkled, the bill provides that the cost shall be included in the general expense and the cost included in the tax laid. In part the bill reads:

Section 1—The city of Norwich is authorized to provide for the sprinkling with water, oil or other substances of all public highways and streets within the limits of said city or such portions thereof as may be deemed best by the authorities of said city having the care of the same, and for that purpose said city may make appropriations and lay and collect taxes in the same manner as for the other expenses and purposes of said city.

Section 2—The assessments heretofore made by said city for street sprinkling during the year 1923 shall be abated and shall not be collected with the taxes laid at the annual meeting of said city next to be held, provided the electors of said city in said meeting shall so vote.

The act incorporating the Eastern Connecticut Railway Company is so amended that Robert W. Perkins of Norwich, Edward M. Day of Hartford and Charles K. Whittlesey of New London are constituted a body politic and corporate, under the name of the Norwich and Hallville Railway Company.

This evidently rings the death knell of the Norwich and Westerly road. This will be greatly regretted by those who have enjoyed this ever country trip to the seashore.

Another bill authorizes the New Lyme Traction Company to purchase all or any part of the present line of the Shore Line Electric Railway Company from its junction at the corner of Connecticut avenue and Union street in New London through the towns of New London and Waterford to Kenyon's Corner, so called.

A substitute for Senate Bill 283 provides for sessions of the court of common pleas in New London county on the first Tuesday in January and April at New London and the first Tuesdays in October and February at Norwich. Adjourned sessions may be held at either place.

Senate Bill 18 allows the appointment of three deputy sheriffs in New London county.

TRYING $4,000 SUIT, FOR HIS BROKEN LEG

Trial of the suit for $4,000 damages brought by Edward Olaff against Arthur E. Andrews, both of this city, was begun in the superior court at New London late Thursday afternoon before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury.

Olaff sues Andrews for the injuries he received in having his leg broken in a collision between the automobile driven by Andrews and a motorcycle upon which Olaff was riding on the night of June 8, 1918, on Central avenue. Olaff's brother, John, was operating the motorcycle with Edward as passenger. John also had his leg broken and has previously obtained a judgment against Mr. Andrews for $1,000. This suit is now on the way to the supreme court, an injunction against execution having been obtained.

After the jury had been empaneled Thursday afternoon, Attorney Thomas M. Shields, counsel for the plaintiff, called to the stand Civil Engineer Geo. E. Fitcher who explained a map and three pictures of the scene of the accident. Attorney J. J. Desmond is counsel for the defendant.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At East Killingly Thursday afternoon funeral services for Mrs. Ralph Smith were conducted by Rev. I. W. Chamberlain, pastor of the United Baptist church of that place. Mrs. Andrew Potter, Grace Sheffield and Harry Hayles sang Face to Face, and at the close Mrs. Sheffield sang, There are Ten Thousand Over There. The bearers were Ernest Chase, Frederick Smith, Harold Hammond and Russell Hammond. The body was placed in the receiving tomb at Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

County Game Warden Charles Letters and Special Deputy William J. Lynch both of Putnam, came here yesterday to begin an investigation that it is hoped will lead to establishing the ownership of dogs that have been running deer and otherwise hitherto wild things for weeks past within the limits of this town. Dog owners are aware, or should be, that their dogs may not be allowed at liberty only in violation of the law excepting as they are engaged in hunting while under supervision. Game officials take note of the fact that a dog out hunting with its owner may leave the quest on which he is engaged and go off hunting deer on his own account, and that it is often difficult to head off such dogs, but the fact is that certain dogs have been allowed their freedom and go hunting on their own account, in violation of the law, and it is to round up such dogs and stop the practice that the officials begun their work in town.

Incidentally while here Mr. Jarvis investigated a case in which a roaming dog raided a poultry yard near Goodyear on Wednesday and killed 17 hens at the Jackson place.

Killingly High school's basketball team squeezed out a victory in a sensational finish, 23 to 22, in the game with the Central Falls R. I. High school in that place Wednesday evening, after a dashing comeback from a position that seemed to threaten defeat at the end of the first half, when the score was 18 to 6 in favor of Central Falls.

The game was the roughest in which Killingly has participated during the present season. This is attributed to the fact that the referee allowed almost a free hand to the players and that the game was played in a small hall where much action are apt to develop more rapidly than in a large hall.

Central Falls scored the first goal of the evening and by dint of very hard and rough playing piled up a total of 12 points while Killingly was managing to gather six during the first period. In the second half Killingly played at top speed and gradually by spectacular playing cut down the lead and eventual overcame it, nosing out a victory by the slender margin of one point.

Williams played a fast game at center for Killingly. During the second half Walnut, playing opposite Williams at center, was withdrawn and replaced by Holmes. In this period the game was so violently contested that there were various times when it appeared that players on the opposing team would clash in personal combat.

Reeves, playing brilliantly for Killingly, shot one goal that was extraordinary and, as developments showed, might be said to be a special reason why Killingly won the game. In attempting a pass to another Killingly player Reeves threw the ball so that it struck against the low ceiling, from which it bounded against the backboard and then caromed through the hoop. Blakely, Killingly's right forward, shot three difficult baskets and played a wonderful game. Downs, now playing at guard, put up an exceptionally fine game considering that he was making his first appearance on the regular team. Wilk Mosnier, the other guard, the pair broke up many of Central Falls' plays.

F. W. Litchfield, vice president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, in discussing why American tire manufacturers have opposed the Stevenson act said this was done because the act, while restricting export only, necessarily brings about artificial restriction of rubber production, which the tire manufacturers believe is economically unsound.

"There is no division of opinion among American tire manufacturers as to the desirability of producing rubber on American soil, Mr. Litchfield said, "but no one should be fooled into thinking that establishing rubber plantations in the Philippines is going to bring the price back to the levels of five years ago. Rubber sold at this time a year ago for 16 cents a pound. But those are not normal figures. Ten years ago we had to pay as high as $1.30 per pound. And the price never has been below 40 cents up to the summer of 1920."

"New rubber plantations in the Philippines, even if they could be brought into bearing immediately, instead of after seven years, would not give the American 16-cent rubber or 19-cent rubber. Rubber cannot be profitably produced for that figure in the Philippines or anywhere else. The low-priced rubber of 1921-22 represented distress sales."

PUTNAM

The first important development growing out of the destruction of Donahue block by fire just over two weeks ago was the announcement on Thursday that a contract for sale has been entered into by Charles Seder for the purchase of Mrs. Hardin F. Hopkins' property on Main street next adjoining, to the north, the site of the destroyed Donahue block.

The Hopkins property has a frontage of approximately 75 feet on Main street and a depth of approximately 110 to 120 feet. The structures on the property which Mr. Seder is to take over include a building originally exclusively devoted to dwelling purposes, but for years past occupied on the street level floor by stores, while the second floor has continued in use as apartments, while there is another dwelling in the rear of the property, fronting on a side street.

No figures were given out as to what Mr. Seder paid for the property, but the price is understood to be somewhere between $17,000 and $20,000.

The Hopkins property, which is in an extra good location in the center of the city's business activities, will readily lend itself to the development of one of the most attractive business blocks in Putnam, and this is being anticipated following the information made public on Thursday.

Mr. Seder was a tenant in the Donahue block, where he had long been stablished, conducting a men's clothing and ladies' garment business that has been very successful. His entire stock with all the store fixtures was destroyed in the fire that ate up the building and since that time there have been various rumors as to what course he would take to re-establish himself. His contract to take over the Hopkins property appears to answer this speculation.

Announcement of the plan to purchase will be of very general interest in Putnam, where Mr. Seder is well known and one of the most active of the city's business men.

What may be regarded as the closing chapter in an interesting criminal case that grew out of an attempt, last summer, to bribe State Officer Albert S. Field, officer in charge, and State Officer Merrill Keith, is the payment by a surety company to State Attorney Charles E. Searls of $2,000, being the sum under which Barnett C. Hart the alleged briber, was released on bail. Hart did not appear when the case was called for disposal, so the bond was ordered forfeited by the court.

Hart's case has been of very general interest throughout eastern Connecticut. He dashed into the limelight one summer afternoon last year when he rushed up from Providence to Jewett City to aid two truck drivers who had been held by the state police after it had been ascertained that the trucks they were driving were loaded with thousands of bottles of what later proved to be real beer, packed in cartons and destined, it has since developed, from Providence for New York.

It has since developed that Hart had no real personal interest in the beer shipment, but apparently agreed to act for those who did have such interests when the truck drivers found themselves in trouble. At the time he happened to be staying at the Biltmore hotel in Providence, though he claims Chicago as his home. In response to the emergency call he rushed in an automobile to Jewett City and there attempted to straighten out the difficulties with the state police who were acting, but all his pleading was in vain. It was, according to Officers Field and Keith, while they were escorting the captured trucks from Jewett City to the barracks at Danielson that Hart made the alleged bribery offer, handing each of the officers a $100 bill. This led to his immediate arrest. There was a delay of two or three days in securing his release from custody until such time as he would be required to answer in the superior court of this county to the serious charges filed against him. Eventually bail was obtained and Hart went his way. Last fall he returned here and talked with officials who were closely in touch with the case. He was very frank in his conversations and made an impression. Underlying the entire situation, however, was his fear that those who have always remained under cover in the case would "lie down" on him, as the saying is, and allow him to serve a penitentiary sentence if necessary to their own ends and protection. In a word, the unseen and all-important figures in the case were not trusted to stand back of him by Hart, and he finally went away with the result that his heavy bonds have now been forfeited.

Hart was a dapper young man in his late twenties, one who had seen much of the world and had wide experience with the people that make it up and their methods of doing business. It is understood that the surety company was well protected before it gave bonds for Hart, as the loss suffered by his disappearance probably falls upon parties whose identities never will be made known here. All of which is an interesting sidelight on how the world wags these ultra dry days.

Incidentally garnishee processes are ready to be served on Officers Field and Keith in an effort of the surety company to recover the two $100 bills that Hart is alleged to have offered them as bribes. There likely will be a lively effort on the part of the state, which will claim the money, to prevent the surety company from recovering the bills, which it will be held have about the same status as money seized in a gambling raid.

At the home of her nephew, Lewis F. Battey, the death of Mrs. Lucinda Battey Dexter occurred at 3 o'clock Thursday morning. Mrs. Dexter being 82 years of age and the last of a family well known in this city and in nearby territory for a great many years. She was a daughter of Nathaniel and Ada (Hopkins) Battey and was born in Foster, R. I., just across the state border from the town of Killingly. In early life she married Henry R. Dexter, who has been dead for a long term of years, and they lived for a great many years in Foster and the neighboring Rhode Island town of Gloucester. Mrs. Dexter came here to make her home about 25 years ago, living with her brother, Ambel Battey and her sister, Susanny, both of whom have passed away in the past two or three years. Mrs. Dexter was the last of a family of two sons and five daughters. Her husband was a veteran of the Civil war, serving in the 6th Rhode Island Infantry.

Taken to the hospital, last fall so badly crushed by a falling tree that it was believed that there was no chance for his recovery, Louis Macdonald, a woodchopper, is out again and well on the road to health and strength. His recovery is almost a miraculous one and speaks volumes for the remarkable care he received while a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, as well as for his own stamina. Macdonald was at work in the woods in a neighboring town when a falling tree crushed him, smashing his face almost to a pulp and otherwise injuring him. Several days after the accident a section of his jawbone was found imbedded in the trunk of the tree that injured him. He is quite badly disfigured as the result of the accident.

The following of county interest was given out Thursday at the office of the County Farmers' association in this city:

At a meeting of the Windham Farmers' Club held some time ago, an institute committee, composed of Thomas Mara, George A. Cook, and F. L. This committee, with the aid of local farmers, has arranged for one of the best programs that has been put on in the town of Windham in some years. Ladies as well as men are invited to this institute, and a real interest has already been developed so that next Wednesday, March 14, at Guilford Smith hall, South Windham, a large attendance will hear the following program: 10 a. m., H. O. Daniels, deputy food and dairy commissioner; subject, 25 Years in the Dairy Business; John E. Labelle, successful poultryman, subject, Growing Good Chicks. It is possible this city will have a machine especially built for painting white traffic lines on street surfaces. Putnam has a considerable network of such street markings and the machine will be a money saver in that it will do the work much quicker and cheaper than it can be done by hand.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The property tax in the town of Stafford will remain the same as it was last year. At the town meeting last week it was voted to make the assessment 18 mills, the same as last year. The grand list is now over $6,000,000, and there is a consequent increase in revenue. The expenses have also increased so that it was impossible to make any reduction in the rate.

Feminie Carpenti has sold a house and lot on Telland avenue to Henry Rath.

Town Clerk J. Carl Converse was in Hartford on business Tuesday.

The weavers at the Warren mill are still out and there seems to be no indication of an early settlement of the wage dispute.

The snow has finally disappeared from the streets in the borough. There is still a good deal of snow in the outlying districts and in some places it is still much easier getting around with sleighs than with wheels. The present winter probably breaks the record for continuous sleighing, there being about three months of it so far.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Announce Cast Role For "The Glorious Girl" Necessitates Tuesday Night Performance.

So great has been the welcome of "The Glorious Girl," the love burlesque musical comedy in Norwich that in addition to a matinee and evening performance on Monday evening, March 12th, it will be repeated again Tuesday evening, March 13th.

Each afternoon and evening the rehearsal hall has been a real training school, where groups and principals, under the supervision of Clark Morgan have been busily engaged in perfecting the dances, choruses and routine of the show, and much enthusiasm and interest is witnessed throughout Norwich over the production which has been stated by both press and public to be the most elaborate and best equipped amateur show on the road.

The different choruses and dancing groups, all in special costumes will feature with the principals in "The Glorious Girl," which has a well defined plot, resultant and typical of a few of the many emotions and motives dominating the activities of the business and social world, interspersed with genuine humor and wit and mingled with lilting tunes and melodies.

Massive drops and curtains of velour, silk, satin, silver and gold cloth and a special electrical equipment will be used. The curtain rises on the Curio Shoppe, which reveals a beautiful brown satin drop, representing the walls of the Shoppe, containing many relics and quaint mementos, followed by the Persian scene, laid in a garden with gorgeous blue drop in the background, trees and massive pillars. An elaborate cloth of gold drop is also to be seen many times in the production, while drops of silver cloth adorn the wealthy residence of Mrs. Reginald Winterfield (Mrs. William Crowe, Jr.).

Excellent seats are available for the matinee and evening performances and they be procured at Sellas Spa.

Bartholmess Registers Big Score With Blond Boy, Now at Strand

One of the most human and gripping film stories of a decade is The Bond Boy, the latest vehicle for Richard Barthelmess, which began an engagement at the Strand theatre last night. A powerful photodrama revolving around the old practice of binding out children to masters until they become of age, it is another great screen triumph for the youthful star and his able director, Henry King.

The story deals with the experiences of Joe Meerbelt, who on the death of his father is bound out to serve an unscrupulous farmer, Isom Chase. Chase is hated by his young wife, Ollie. She tries to win the love of Joe, but remembering his bonds and Alice Price, the girl of his dreams, he remains cold. She turns her attentions to a young drummer and is about to elope with him when Joe interferes and spoils their plans. Old Isom Chase returns to find Joe in the room with his wife who is dressed for travelling. Threatening to kill Joe, he seizes a gun and accidentally discharges it so that he (Chase) is killed. Ollie flees and Joe is held for murder.

Condemned to the gallows for a crime he did not commit, Joe makes a sensational escape from jail and is tracked by bloodhounds. The story passes into a thrilling denouement and comes to a most happy and romantic finish.

The star is ably supported by Mary Thurman, in the role of the unfaithful wife, with Virginia Magee, who enacts the part of Joe's boyhood sweetheart. Others who contribute to the high quality of this splendid production by their dramatic work are Charles Hill Mailes, Ned Sparks, Lawrence D'Orsay, Leslie Backus, Rose Mary Alden, the inimitable screen mother, who "mothers" Barthelmess, Thomas Maguire, Leslie King and Robert Williamson.

"The Bond Boy" is, in short a magnificent picturization of George Washington Ogden's famous story of the same name—a living, moving masterpiece.

It's a First National attraction produced by Inspiration Pictures, Inc., and it will remain at the Strand theatre today and Saturday.

The other subjects on the bill included a comedy Pest of the Storm Country and a news weekly.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sale on Oak Street.

John A. Moran, the real estate broker, sold for Mrs. Henry L. Lathrop her modern two-apartment house, 421 Oak street, to Stanislaus and Marcella Kiscell, who will, after making some changes, reside in one of the apartments.

Broad Theatre.

The latest Metro photoplay to star the charming Viola Dana is Crinoline and Romance, and it is to be shown to the large family of Miss Dana's enthusiasts at the Broad theatre today and Saturday. Many novelties, both in characterization and in story, are promised for this film, and photoplay fans should be entertained hugely, if accounts of the picture can be depended upon.

Miss Dana's versatility takes an entirely new course in Crinoline and Romance. In the photoplay she is seen as a naive southern miss, completely sequestered from the rest of the world on her grandfather's estate in North Carolina. The star is everything that her role calls for—demure, vivacious, spirited, and fascinating. Her acting in this picture is said to provide a real surprise for theatregoers.

The story of the picture tells of the young girl's determination to escape from the rigidity of her surroundings. She visits the home of her aunt, and there tastes modern "social" life, only to be bitterly disappointed and disillusioned. There is a great deal of charm and amusing incident in the telling of the story, and it affords the vivacious star ample opportunities to indulge in her distinctive brand of comedy.

Supporting Miss Dana are players of real skill. Two of her suitors in the story are portrayed by Allan Forrest and John Bowers. Claude Gillingwater plays her sturdy southern grandfather, and others of importance are Lillian Lawrence and Gertrude Short.

Crinoline and Romance is a Harry Beaumont production for Metro, based on the story written and adapted by Bernard McConville. John Arnold photographed the production.

Ruth Roland will also be seen in The Timber Queen and the Pathe News and a Lee comedy make up the remainder of the bill. Continuous show Saturday from 1.30 to 10.15.

Broad Theatre

The Broad theatre has booked the William Fox feature picture "Who Are My Parents?" for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. This is a heart story that has made a great hit with the public wherever it has been shown. The unusual circumstances attending its advent on the screen attracted to it from the start. The name of its author is a secret. Known only as "Mr. X" he has shown such decided ability as a ster ywriter for the screen that the Fox organization has given him orders for several more scripts.

An important feature in the construction of the story is the compact method used in building the plot. Every scene and character develops the plot, which hinges upon the determination of a father to prevent his daughter from marrying the man she loves.

The production is impressive from start to finish. J. Searle Dawley, the director, has shown excellent judgment in his selection of locations and no expense has been spared that would add to the success of the picture.

Will Handle Rickenbacker Auto in Section

H. B. Patterson, Inc., of New London who are representing Packard cars and trucks in this territory, are announcing that they have added to their line the "Rickenbacker" car—manufactured by Rickenbacker Motor Co. of Detroit—of which E. V. Rickenbacker, the former well known race driver is the vice president and general manager.

Mr. Rickenbacker during the World war won the title of "Ace of Aces"—by his aeroplane duties in Europe.

The Rickenbacker is a comparatively new product but had been in the experimental stages for 2 1-2 years before offered to the public—and is built in 3 models, only, five passenger phaeton; four passenger coupe and five passenger sedan—and is a work of art throughout.

This car will be shown at the New Loondn auto show March 20 to 24th.

It is known as the car with absolutely no sound of vibration.

Mr. Patterson personally spent one week at the Rickenbacker factory and only took on this line after considering some eight different makes of automobiles—believing that in selling this car he would be giving to the public more automobile per dollar spent, than in any car procurable at these prices which range from $1425 to $1965.

This line will be handled together with the Packard and announcement will be made shortly, giving location, etc., regarding service and sales station to be opened in Norwich.

H. V. Rickenbacker has made arrangements and will in the near future be in New London and Norwich and the people of this section will have the opportunity of seeing and talking with him personally.

Bluebirds are often seen in this country as early as February.

Declares Tanlac Made Clean Sweep of Indigestion, Chest Pains, Nervousness and Insomnia.

"I haven't finished taking Tanlac yet, but I am ready right now to go on record as endorsing it," said Daniel E. Abers, 206 South St., Stamford, Conn., a well known die-maker for the Yale & Towne Co., recently.

"I suffered from a bad case of indigestion and almost everything I ate caused me suffering and misery from gas, bloating, sour eructions, and pains around my heart. After eating food of any kind, I would be in distress and my nerves were so upset I couldn't get a good night's sleep.

"But since I've been taking Tanlac, I have only had one or two slight attacks of indigestion, where before they came almost daily. My appetite is much better, too, my nerves are steadying down, and I am sleeping like a log. Tanlac has helped me so much already that it is a pleasure to say a good word for it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

BILL FOR ABOLISHING ONE-MAN TROLLEY CARS FALLS IN THE HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 8.—The house convened at 11.15 with Speaker L. J. Nickerson in the chair. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Coolidge.

Unfavorable reports were received on bills, ordering five-cent fares in the city of Stamford, regulating jitney and railway fares and protection to public from trolley companies in hands of receivers.

The report on bill abolishing one-man trolley cars, which was reported adversely, was objected to by Mr. Guilfoile of Waterbury who sought to have the bill recommitted. With but one dissenting vote the motion was rejected and report of the committee was accepted.

Motor Vehicle Bills.

The committee on railroads made unfavorable reports on bills concerning overloading of motor vehicles as it was already taken care of in existing statutes, concerning operation of public service motor vehicles operating over fixed routes, providing for regulation of public service motor vehicles by town or borough authorities, an act concerning insurance for owners of jitneys, amending the law concerning motor vehicles, providing that no public service motor vehicle shall carry in excess of fifty per cent of its seating capacity.

The committee on public health and safety were not in favor of the bills introduced by Representative Wellington of Sprague regarding the appointment of an inspector of plumbing for state institutions nor of the bill that would permit of a dentist who has practiced prior to August 1, 1907, being licensed without examination.

Age Limit For Judges.

MARCH

Slayer of winter, art thou here again?
O welcome, thou that bring'st the summer nigh!
The bitter wind makes not thy victory vain,
Nor will we mock thee for thy faint blue sky.
Welcome, O March! whose kindly days and dry
Make April ready for the throstle's song,
Thou first redresser of the winter's wrong.

Yea, welcome, March! and though I die ere June
Yet for the hope of life I give thee praise,
Striving to swell the burden of the tune
That even now I hear thy brown birds raise,
Unmindful of the past or coming days;
Who sing, "O joy! a new year is begun!
What happiness to look upon the sun!"

O what begetteth all this storm of bliss,
But death himself, who, crying solemnly,
Even from the heart of sweet forgetfulness
Bids us "Rejoice! lest pleasureless ye die.
Within a little time must ye go by.
Stretch forth your open hands, and, while ye live,
Take all the gifts that death and life may give."

"Can you tell me the time, sonny?"

"Just 12 o'clock," was the reply.

An American sergeant in Germany learned that the little town in which he was located had once been the home of Martin Luther. Desiring more information, he asked a German speaking doughboy to get the facts from some of residents.

A day or two later the doughboy, writhing in merriment, went to see him.

"By gosh, that's one on you, sarge," he chortled. "That guy Luther you've been asking about? Say, that baby's been dead 350 years."—American Legion Weekly.

The liberal Spanish government has begun taking measures against gambling, a vice which of recent years has spread enormously in Spain. There is hardly a town, however small, where no quasi-public club a roulette table is not in operation. In the larger towns roulette tables contribute a considerable proportion toward the charitable institutions. The demoralising effects of the vice are also apparent in the army where gambling takes place in the canteens.—London Times.

Some authorities say that the bowie knife was invented by Colonel James Bowie, who was born in 1796 and was killed in the Alamo with Colonel Travis and David Crockett in 1836 during the Texan revolution against Mexico. Colonel Bowie was a great hunter and one of the most daring Indian fighters in the southern states. On the Potomac river is the grave of a man who was killed by Bowie in a duel before the latter went to Texas. Bowie, about whom very little is known.—Detroit News.

Local Woman Fine—Goldine Corrects Terrible Stomach, Gas, Heart Pressure

Friends and Neighbors Noted Change in Mrs. Gardine—Stomach Distressed So Vomited Up Everything — Gas Pressed Around Heart, Worked Over Her Half Hour to Relieve Smothering—No Relief From Doctors — Back to Work Through GOLDINE.

"I can hardly believe how wonderfully Goldine helped me. I took both Goldine Tonic-Nervine and Goldine Alterative at the same time and Goldine certainly did more for me than all the doctors' medicine. My stomach got so bad I felt something just as though I was going to die," declares Mrs. Grace Gardine, Montville, Conn. "My trouble started six years ago and it seemed I had everything—awful headaches, catarrh, deafness, dizziness, constipation, rheumatism in the knees, no appetite and so nervous I lay awake nights in agony. But the worst was my stomach. Gas formed around my heart so they worked over me half an hour at a time to relieve smothering. I had such terrible pain I vomited up everything. Three doctors did not relieve me, but I felt better before I had taken up one bottle of Goldine. On the second bottle I could eat things I never ate before. I used to feel so dosey in the daytime; but as I kept on with Goldine, I had a fine appetite, slept well, felt real spry as I used to and went back to work. Everyone told me about the change in my looks—my case was the talk of the neighborhood. I have been fine for the last three years and have been recommending Goldine to all my friends." Faithful use of GOLDINE will surely help you too. "Every bottle makes a friend."

SEVERE STORMS CAUSED BY ACIDS

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

TROUBLE THREATENED IN CHANGING STANDARDS.

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

Let's talk a little, this morning, about standards.

By that word I don't mean the ensigns which generals set up at their headquarters, nor that which King Henry's standard-bearer carried before him into the field of Ivry. I mean the standards which are set up in almost every field of human effort by which we measure and judge other work.

The standard I mean is that highest attainable perfection and accuracy by comparison with which we decide how near true other productions or acts are.

For instance; there are standard weights and measures. The standard bushel, for one, which contains exactly 2150.42 cubic inches. And the sealer who tests measure or standard makes any alleged bushel measure which does not conform accurately to the standard is a false measure; any foot-rule whose markings do not correspond accurately to those on the standard is a lying rule.

There are still other standards. The gold standard by which we measure values is one. The sterling standard for silver is another. Many factories and shops have established standards of efficiency. Health boards fix sanitary standards. There are standards of economy, and standards of morals, and standards of etiquette. There are even such things as standard plumbing and standard tailoring. To say nothing of standard time, of which you probably know more than I do.

Some of these standards are established by human agreement, either in the form of statute law, or of universally accepted custom. Some are inherent in the very nature of things, and can't be changed even by a unanimous vote of all the two-legged creatures in the universe. But all are accepted as the ultimate criterions by which things in similar classes are tested and judged.

Human experience has come to recognize that such standards must be established in order to prevent intrinsic confusion and also, to enable society to keep some sort of check on its own dealings with itself.

For, as there is no rose without its thorn and no great good without some compensating evil, so the very adoption of standards brings as an inevitable accompaniment the temptation to evade them.

While the common sense of mankind sees clearly the absolute necessity of fixed standards of weights and measures, for example, the spirit of greed, which is almost as universal as that of common sense, urges its possessors, to evasions of the standards by stripping weights, making false measures, and using other forms of petty larceny.

If a dealer can buy a full, standard bushel of potatoes for a dollar, say, and re-sell them to his customers for thirty cents a peck, he'll make twenty cents on the bushel. But if a fair peck doesn't satisfy him, and he can, by slightly lifting the bottom of his peck measure so it won't hold quite as much, manage to squeeze five thirty-cent pecks out of that bushel, then he'll make a profit of fifty cents.

If in selling meat he weighs his own hand with every order he slaps on the scales, he thereby increases his daily gains by a very considerable sum.

If in measuring off taffetas or muslin by the yard, he measured his own thumb in with every yard he strips off the bolt, that also enlarges his bank account appreciably.

If a farmer puts a few forkfuls of manure in the center of every bale of hay he presses, or a half-dozen cobble stones in every bag of potatoes he sells, he enables himself to make the profit on an extra bale of hay or an extra bag of potatoes in every load he ships.

The establishment of standards of weight, measure, etc. must have been effected very early in the history of the race. References are made to them in the very oldest literature discovered in Egypt and Chaldea. That the tendency to violate them for extra gain was also an early human trait is shown by numerous decrees affixing punishment for false weights, found in these same inscriptions. In our own Hebrew Scriptures, as early as the days of Leviticus, the divine command was set forth: "Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in mete-yard, in weight or in measure. Just balances, just weights, a just ephah and a just hin shall ye have." And King Solomon in his Proverbs declares that "Divers weights are an abomination to the Lord." These commands and denunciations would not have been made had perverse human nature been given no occasion for them.

In our own day we've seen attempts to establish what its sponsors pretended to call a "double standard" in finance. The very words condemn themselves. One might as well speak of a square circle or a seven-foot yard-stick.

Even worse in a practical way has been the widespread attempt of shallow-brained legislators to confuse standards by enacting that certain weights shall always be equivalent to certain measures. Almost every state has laws solemnly fixing the weight of bushels of corn, wheat, oats, rye, potatoes, peas, timothy-seed, etc. The very idea would be ridiculous, if it didn't lead to so much that is vexatiously serious. The attempt shows an utter failure to comprehend the radical, inherent difference between a measure of capacity and a measure of weight.

A bushel, for instance, is always a measure of bulk, of capacity, of contents. It is 2150.42 cubic inches —no more, no less and nothing else. It may be a bushel of air or a bushel of feathers or a bushel of corn or a bushel of gravel—it is always and in every circumstance exactly 2150.42 cubic inches of whatever is measured, and the weight of the measured substance had no possible connection with its bulk.

It would be just as reasonable to say that a yard of cotton cloth should always weigh six ounces, or that a pound of tea should always be a yard long; or that a grown man should always be five feet, ten and one-half inches high.

A measure of bulk is one thing; a measure of weight is another thing; a measure of distance is another thing; a measure of area is still another. They are by their very nature separate and distinct and inherently non-interchangeable.

The crude and arbitrary attempts of various legislatures to make them alternate for each other are worse than attempts to mix oil and water; they are like saying that a tree is equal to a door-mat—no matter how big the tree, or what shape the door-mat.

It may, indeed, be true that the average weight of a bushel of buckwheat is a certain number of pounds. But that is simply an accident. A bushel of buckwheat is always 2150.42 cubic inches of grain, no matter what it weighs. This, for the simple reason that a bushel is a measure of capacity, not of weight.

But it happens that, in one state, the legislature has gravely decreed that a bushel of buckwheat shall consist of 48 pounds; while in another state an equally dogmatic legislature has enacted that a bushel of buckwheat shall weigh 44 pounds. You don't need to have me draw a diagram and write an essay to show what a chance this gives cunning dealers to manipulate profits into their own pockets.

In a similar way, an average bushel of oats may, very likely, weigh about 32 pounds. But not always. Sometimes it weighs less; sometimes more. In my own farming experience I have harvested more bushels weighing from 24 to 36 pounds than ever. In which connection I have also noted a suggestive fact, to wit, namely, that is to say, when I pay the thresher six cents a bushel for threshing light oats he always measures them; when I come to sell them the dealer always weighs them. This means that while I pay for the threshing of a hundred bushels, I am able to sell them as only about eighty bushels. See the nigger in the woodpile, eh?

Two other attempts at changing standards are just now threatening to cause much trouble. There has always been a certain standard of wages. It has never been an absolutely fixed one. Nevertheless, it has been very real, and all employers and all employees have been in the main governed by it. Of late, that standard of wages has risen enormously in the field of mechanic labor. The standard of wages in shops and factories and mines and furnaces and railroads, etc., is now almost double what it was eight years ago. Of course, the tendency of this movement is to raise farm wages in a like degree and to a like extent. But there the world is going to come up against a stump. Farm wages simply cannot be advanced in this way, unless prices for farm products are advanced in proportion. The farmer can't pay wages which his sales don't provide the money for. He is compelled to sell his products now, for practically the same prices they brought before the war. A few are a little higher; some are actually lower; the average is about that. He can, therefore, continue to produce only by paying about the same wages as before the war. Yet, with the mechanic trades paying double pre-war wages, how can wage-earners be expected to return to the farms and accept lower rates?

This is a case where the erection of a double standard is going to work disaster, if some modification is not effected.

The second attempt at topsy-turvying standards is in the increasing spread of the eight-hour day crusade. Already that is the accepted work day in a majority of the great industrial concerns of the country. Yes and I do not need to pass any judgment on its value or its rightcousness in shops and factories. But you and I both know, as every other intelligent man in the country must know, that the eight-hour day is a natural impossibility in farming.

Some phases of farm work may be practicable on that basis. For some months of the winter season it may be adequate. But in the feverish hurry of spring planting, in the exigencies of early summer cultivation, in the rush of haying and harvesting, the farmer who limited his labor to eight hours a day would be likely to have to call on his harder working neighbors for something to eat before the next winter was over.

Yet the farm-hand, knowing that his fellow wage-earners in shop and factory are loose after eight hours' work, is beginning to grumble if he is asked to put in longer hours in the fields. We cannot blame him. At the same time, we can't meet his demand. What's going to be the outcome? Can you prophesy? I admit that I can't.

But I do know as well as one can know anything in this uncertain world that double standards, whether in weight or measure or wages or labor, are reasonably sure to end in a bad mix-up.

Please don't think I'm kicking about the increasing custom of selling things by weight. I'd just as soon sell potatoes by the hundred weight as by the bushel. Probably you'd just as soon buy them by the fifteen-pounds as by the peck. In many cases weight seems to me a fairer standard to buy and sell by than measure. What I object to is the opportunity for chicanery, sharp practice, trickery and graft which is given by the artificial attempt to combine in one two standards which weren't made to combine, and which won't coalesce, no matter how many legislatures stir them together.

What we all want is a set of simple, universally accepted standards for both producer and consumer, both buyer and seller, both employer and employee. Standards which will work in no sharper's favor nor to any honest man's disadvantage.

MARKET WAS REACTIVE.

New York, March 8.—Readjustment of a weakened technical position was the reason generally given for today's reaction in the stock market. The recent sustained rise of prices, particularly in certain industrials, invited profit-taking and short selling which the market was unable to digest except at a sacrifice of quoted values.

Other influences, which are believed to have aided the decline, were the withdrawal of a stock exchange house from the Fay Taxi-cabs, Inc., promotion, marking up of the call money rate from 4 1-4 to 5 per cent., just before the close, and a sharp break in the Durant issues on the curb, which was ascribed by the sponsors of the stock to a "raid" by short interests.

The recession of prices, which ranged from 1 to 4 points in a number of active issues, was checked up by the building up of the independent steel shares on reports of an unusually large advance in the average price of steel products, which is now about $3.75 above the 1922 high established last September.

The United States Steel touched 108 1-4 but fell back to 107 7-8, off 3-8. The supporting influence provided by the buying of these shares turned the course o prices upward again around mid-day although heaviness set in again just before the close.

Equipments enjoyed a temporary period of strength during which American Locomotive established a new top at 125 1-4, but they soon yielded to selling pressure. American and Baldwin Locomotives dropping about 1 1-2 points below yesterday's final figures; Pullman, 1 1-4, and Lima, 3-4. Some of the other popular industrials which had been strong recently but which yielded to pressure today were American Woolen, Stewart Warner Speedometer, Studebaker, Bosch Magneto, American Smelting, Kelly-Springfield Tire, United States Rubber, Houston Oil, General Asphalt, Pacific Oil and California Petroleum, all off 1 to 1 1-2 points.

Rails were again sluggish and reactionary. New York Central, Pere Marquette, Great Northern preferred, Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson and Union Pacific each dropping a point or more.

The time money market was moderately active with loans for all maturities arranged at 5 1-4 per cent. interior institutions continue as the principal takers of commercial paper, the ruling rate for prime names being 5 per cent.

Trading in foreign exchange was quiet and irregular, demand sterling selling lightly above $4.70 and French francs hovering around 6.05 cents. The Norwegian krone was under pressure, yielding 11 points to $3.18 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 8.—Bond prices generally were reactionary today in sympathy with lower stock quotations, fluctuations being confined to narrow limits. U. S. government bonds, while comparatively quiet, advanced slightly to bring them more in line with the new government financing announced for March 15th.

Weakness of Central European government liens was the feature of the foreign group, the Czecho 8's declining fractionally and the Serbian 8's one point. Mortgages of dividend paying companies lost ground along with those of the non-dividend paying companies in the railroad division. Louisville & Nashville 4's dropping a point, and Union Pacific refunding 4's receding fractionally. Lake Shore & Michigan Southern 4's, of 1931, and Reading General 4's each lost a point and New York, Westchester & Boston 4 1-2's, 1 1-4.

An advance of 1 1-4 points by Lackawanna Steel 5's of 1950 featured the industrial division. Chile Copper 7's dropped one point and the 6's were down fractionally.

Total sales (par value) were $11,523,000.

Public offering was made today of $15,000,000 Duquesne Light Company of Pittsburgh, seven per cent. cumulative first preferred stock, Series A, at 103 and accrued dividend to yield about 6.80 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 8.—While awaiting the government report on farm reserves, the wheat market today scored a little advance owing to an unexpected upturn in quotations at Liverpool. The farm reserve report, which came out after trading here had ended for the day, was generally construed as bearish concerning wheat and bullish regarding corn and oats. Wheat closed unsettled at 1-4 to 3-4c net advance, with May 1.18 7-8 to 1.19 and July 1.14 1-2 to 1.14 5-8. Corn finished unchanged to 3-8c lower, oats unchanged to a shade higher and provisions showing 7 to 15c gain.

The government figures on farm reserves of wheat were pracaically identical with a private estimate issued here Monday by a leading private authority. Bearish opinion as to the significance of the estimate was based on comparison with last year's total, which was 19,000,000 bushels less. As a result of the pause pending the issuane of the government report, the volume of wheat business transactions today were unusually light, and predictions in some quarters that the report would prove bearish failed to bring about any material selling pressure. Absence of rain or snow in the west and southwest, with continued fair weather in progress, appeared to be more or less responsible for upholding the wheat market advance here which reflected th rise at Liverpool.

Notice was also taken of discussion of the advisability of reducing the domestic spring wheat planting by as much as 1,000,000 acres and devoting the ground to flax in the production of which the United States shows a deficiency.

Corn and oats held within narrow limits, most of the trade consisting of evening up for the government report.

Improved cash demand gave strength to provisions.

Lard touched a new high price record for the season.

MONTREAL POLICE BELIEVE NORWICH ABDUCTOR FOUND

Montreal police authorities believe they have located Ernest Benjamin Saunders of this city and Ethel Mildred Borden, 17, of Plainfield, for whom a search has been made since the two disappeared from Montreal in March, 1922. It is believed the couple is living as man and wife under assumed names in a small town near Montreal and they will soon be arrested.

Saunders and his wife, Johanna Beswick, formerly lived on Penobscot street in this city and it is alleged assisted in the abduction of the Borden girl from the Baltic convent on Sept. 26, 1921. The three fled to Montreal and lived there together under the names of Barbara Hunter, Benjamin Hunter and Faith Hunter, the last named being Mrs. Saunders.

Faith in her husband or blindness to the dangers of his association with the Borden girl seems to have characterized Mrs. Saunders but she had a rude awakening when on March 8 last she found that they had deserted her in the Canadian city, taking with them her wedding ring and her marriage certificate. Until now nothing definite had been reported of the missing couple. Mrs. Saunders returned to this city where she died of lobar pneumonia on Jan. 15 last.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Greeneville Congregational church held its regular meeting Wednesday evening with Mrs. C. F. Sears of Prospect street. A good number of the members were present. A free will offering amounting to $35 was made for the furnishing of the new kitchen in the church, a new gas range and water heater have been installed, besides other improvements being made. The society planned to hold a supper during the first week in April. It was voted to contribute $10 to the Salvation Army.

After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed, fruit salad, cake and cocoa being served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. William Munroe, Mrs. Geo. Mitchell and Mrs. F. S. Lathrop.

GRAND TOTAL OF $9,902 ON HAND FOR FUND FOR SALVATION ARMY

There was no let-up Thursday in the drive for the Salvation Army's $15,000 building fund and by the time reports were turned in at the 5 o'clock meeting in the afternoon at headquarters, the grand total in sight, in cash and pledges actually received, was $9,902.93.

This does not include what is believed to be some very considerable amounts already collected and in the hands of the workers, but not reported. General Chairman Harry M. Clark and Executive Secretary A. W. Nicol want the workers to loosen up and reports on what they have up their sleeves. This is especially true of the chain manipulators. The "links" should report to the link higher up until the chain is complete.

Campaign Notes.

A campaign worker issued the following notes Thursday:

Mighty good work, Miss Nelly Donohue, accomplished with your chain in Norwich Town, with little links to find. To date $56, with more to follow.

Superintendent Oscar W. Carpenter, of Greeneville Congregational church Sunday school talks very inspiringly when he hopes we go over the top twice, and backs it up with a nice check of $20 from his school.

Thank you, Ladies of the Auxiliary, Fletcher Post, American Legion, for your check and letter. Carry on the good work.

Captain George Finn is still leading and is leaving nothing to chance for he intends to lick Captain Schwartz at any price. Now, Captain Abner, what do you say about it, and do you like playing second fiddle? Call a "council of war" of your workers, including Max, and you'll scare the life out of Finn for sure.

Captain Francis, the nice boy of the Salvation Army party, blossomed forth yesterday as a "Professor" and put up some mighty good talks to the kiddies at Greeneville, etc. Here are some of his interrogations and the answers. "What is the Salvation Army?" Answer by small boy, with brown hair and blue eyes, "Drummers." "What is the Salvation Army doing?" Answer, by very bashful little girl, "Building a Home" and so on. Well, the children are surely going to provide lots of bricks for our new home in Norwich and will live to be mighty proud of their help at this time to the "sallies".

Still they come, group lists and cash from the workers. Thanks, men of the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co., for your total of $27. Then the boys from Hall Brothers scattered seeds of kindness by sending us $32. Big cheers for the workers and sincerest of thanks. We promise you service all the year through and if ever you need a friend or a word of comfort, see the captain of the Salvation Army.

All roads lead to the Trinity Methodist tomorrow night, that is for the workers and a big feed in the bargain with "peppy" speeches from some "leading lights." The time is 6.15, comrades and you'll not miss this final convivial, will you?

Be sure and get to the Central Baptist church Sunday evening quite early, otherwise you may not find a vacant seat. It will be a wonderful gathering and a time of great rejoicing.

Mrs. Charles Preston is full of optimism regarding "Tag Day" on Saturday and is prepared for any emergency. The names of the workers would look so nice in print, but Mrs. Preston says "nothing doing" until tomorrow. And of course we dare not beggar the question.

Who said No. 13 was unlucky? Captain "Bob" Montgomery does not think so and is slowly but surely gaining ground and will make some of the other numbers sit up and take notice.

DANIELSON PHONE SERVICE BADLY CRIPPLED BY BLAZE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, March 9.—Practically all of the more than 1000 telephones in the Danielson division were put out of service about 10.30 Thursday night when the terminal rack in the terminal room at the central office took fire from what is believed to have been a short circuit probably caused by some lines of the company coming in contact with electric light lines. About five minutes before the fire broke out at the telephone office there was an explosion that sounded like the crash of a pistol as something went wrong with the arc light near Furitan restaurant. All the street and store lights immediately went out but flashed back on again in a few seconds.

Within five minutes the rack at the telephone office was ablaze. George Miller, an employe at the Danielson garage saw the blaze through a window of the terminal room and ran to the office to notify the night operator Miss Rose Laroche who was at the switch board on the second floor of the building. Miss Laroche showed exceptional coolness calmly directed Miller to smash in a window of the terminal and use an extinguisher on the blazing rack. Miss Laroche managed to notify the chief operator Miss Katherine D. Alyward who rushed to the office just before the last of the local lines went out of service.

An alarm quickly brought the fire department, but only one tank of chemical was necessary to extinguish what was a small but dangerous and very expensive fire. Cablemen and other telephone employes from the Danielson division and various other sections of eastern Connecticut were enroute to Danielson to begin repair work within an hour after the fire was extinguished and worked all night in order that the service as far as possible be restored Friday morning. All fuses on the switch board except on two toll lines blew out during the fire so no local service and only a limited toll service was available until after midnight. A cable and a score of lines supplying service to hundreds of stations were put out of commission by the fire.

TWO FINGERS CAUGHT IN GEAR OF LATHE

William C. Noyes Jr., of 16 Sunnyside avenue was painfully injured Wednesday afternoon while working on a lathe in the garage at 317 Laurel Hill avenue. In some manner his left hand became caught in the gears of the lathe and before the hand could be withdrawn the ends of the index and middle finger of the left hand had been badly crushed. Mr. Noyes was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital Wednesday evening where the nails on the two crushed fingers were removed.

He returned to his home Thursday morning but it will be several days before it is known whether or not the fingers can be saved. Mr. Noyes is the son of Mrs. William C. Noyes of Sunnyside avenue.

GAVE SURPRISE SHOWER AT TEMPLE SPRING FARM

Tuesday evening in spite of a driving snow storm, a merry crowd of people gathered at Temple Spring farm, the home of G. A. Bullard, intent upon surprising Miss Ida Lefingwell and Roger Bullard, whose engagement was recently announced, with a shower of presents. This evening was chosen because of the presence of the youngest daughter, Mrs. C. R. Potter of New Hampshire, who is now visiting her parents.

After chatting and dancing until about 10 o'clock the company gathered in the parlor and two women came in bearing a large box. This they placed upon the floor in front of Miss Lefingwell. Upon opening, it was found to be filled to the brim with packages, all wrapped and tied. The openin and inspecting of all the bundles gave much enjoyment to all. Then refreshments were served by Misses Alice and Ida Lefingwell and songs by Miss Nola Lefingwell were greatly enjoyed.

The affair was the happy idea of Mrs. Clarence Sholes of West Thames street, aided by the hearty cooperation of relatives and friends.

It's neck or nothing with the giraffe.

CHIMNEY ON FIRE AT WASHINGTON STREET HOUSE

Blazing pieces of soft coal thrown out of the chimney and falling on the shingle roof at the residence of W. F. Hill, 74 Washington street, set the roof on fire in several spots just before 6 o'clock Thursday night. The fireman from the Central station who responded to the telephone call for help had to rip off shingles in several places and use chemical when they reached the roof by ladders.

CROSBY DISCREDITS LORD BALFOUR'S VIEWS ON DEBTS

Former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Sustains Ambassador Harvey—Loans Made to Allied Governments Were Made Without British Endorsement—Had Been No Discussion as to British Responsibility for the Purchases Here of the Other Allies—Even the Loan of $170,000,000 to Russia Was Made Without Endorsement of Any Government.

New York, March 9 (By the A. P.).—Oscar T. Crosby, assistant secretary of the treasury during the war, emphatically characterized today as a "misapprehension" the assertion of Lord Balfour yesterday in the house of lords that the United States had demanded a British guarantee before financing other allies.

Entering the controversy in London between Lord Balfour and Ambassador Harvey, Mr. Crosby, who discussed war loans with Lord Balfour when the latter came here in 1917 as head of the British high commission, and who later served in Europe as president of the inter-allied council on war purchases and finance, declared he could recall but one incident on which the "misapprehension" might be based.

This incident, he said, was the granting to Russia of "a relatively small loan" of $170,000,000, upon British endorsement, at a time when Russia was represented here only by a charge d'affaires holding over from the czarist regime, with no authority to assume obligations for the provisional government of Russia. Mr. Crosby admitted, however, that this loan had been left to the charge of Great Britain.

Mr. Crosby's formal statement follows:

"I can recall but one incident which, resulting in Lord Balfour's mind, may have given rise to the misapprehension appearing in his last statement. It occurred while Lord Balfour was in Washington, and discussion concerning it was had, in part, with him.

"Shortly after our entrance in the war, it became my duty to obtain a statement of the commitments of the various allied governments for materials under contract in the United States. This statement was had from the Morgan firm, who were acting as fiscal agents for Great Britain and other allies.

"Secretary McAdoo had not waited for this report before making loans under the act of congress approved April 24, 1917. With his usual promptitude, he had the president's approval for a loan of $200,000,000 to Great Britain made on April 25. This was followed by large advances directly made to France and Italy as soon as the money could be found, and before the first Liberty loan was floated.

"Meanwhile it was clear that we should know how much we were expected to raise for our associates to cover their needs in the United States. When the Morgan statement above mentioned was received, I reported to the secretary that it showed about $170,000,000 of contracts for deliveries to Russia, but with British endorsement. Russia was at that time represented only by a charge d'affaires holding over from the czarist regime. He had no authority then to sign obligations for the provisional government of Russia. Secretary McAdoo could not lend money without having corresponding obligations of the borrower. As soon as the necessary authority was given, loans were made directly to the new Russian government without endorsement of any other government.

"There was no discussion as to British responsibility for the purchases here of the other allies. But as to this Russian affair, it seemed to have been so dominated by British influence (necessary, doubtless, in the confusion of the time) that Secretary McAdoo felt it was wise to leave the account as we found it.

"We knew nothing of the quid pro quo which might have existed between the endorsing government, Great Britain, and Russia. No opportunity had been given the United States to consider the propriety of these Russian commitments 'for the better prosecution of the war.' Secretary McAdoo never insisted upon any vexatious inquiry into the requisitions of the allied governments, but it was his duty to learn what he could, without actually hindering the measures necessary in war.

"Lord Balfour thought we should have taken over this relatively small amount, and I fancy his memory has retained the impressions resulting from from the incident, while he has not kept pace with the other vastly larger transactions in which his government was not asked to assume any responsibility whatever for allied purchases (other than British) in our markets.

"Lord Balfour says, 'We explained to the American government that we should be able to find all the dollars necessary to purchase our own war materials without borrowing from the United States or anybody else. Certainly no such statement came to my knowledge. On the contrary, the need of borrowing dollars for British requirements here (and even in neutral countries) was always to the fore in my contact with the subject.

"Insofar as Great Britain may have thus financed France of Italy in neutral countries, giving British obligations for the necessary funds to the United States treasury, the act was voluntary on their part.

"As the war progressed, loans were negotiated in some neutral countries by Great Britain and France separately, and also separate advances were made by us to allies for protecting their exchanges in New York.

"Lord Balfour seems to have confused the supply of British goods on sterling loans to the allies with the supply of American and neutral goods for which gold, or its equivalent, was necessary. I can see nothing that we could have done that was not done, except to finance France, Italy, etc., for their purchase of British goods in British markets. That would have supplied Great Britain with dollar exchange which otherwise was so sadly lacking for British purchases abroad. Perhaps Lord Eustace has in mind this sort of transaction.

"I do not remember that it was ever thought by British treasury officials until some time in March, 1918, when a large part of the existing debt already had been incurred. That arrangement would have violated the spirit of the act under which the president and Secretary McAdoo so boldly discharged the heavy responsibility placed upon them by the American people. Nor was it necessary, as the event proved, since the British government continued to find sterling credits (in paper money, substantially) to cover French, Italian, Belgian, Greek and other purchases in Great Britain.

"Now that the two treasuries have settled the matter, harmoniously, it would be better, in schoolboy language, to 'let the cat die.' So it seems to me."

NO GUARANTEES EXACTED FROM GREAT BRITAIN

Washington, March 9. — Treasury spokesmen, answering inquiries today concerning statements made yesterday in the house of lords by Lord Balfour, declared this government's position had been made clear last August and they desired "to let the controversy drop."

Senator Mellen reiterated that the United States had exacted no guarantees from Great Britain and referred questioners to the August statement, in which the treasury secretary asserted that the British government had not even been informed in most cases when other governments had requested advances.

Indifference to the Balfour statement appeared to be the general treasury attitude and there were no indications that anything further would be done to rectify what officials have described as a misunderstanding by Lord Balfour of the whole loaning transaction.

A PROBLEM CAUSED BY THE IMMIGRATION LAWS

New York, March 9.—Faced with a problem that probably would have taxed the wisdom of a Solomon, a bearded old Russian Jew sat on a bench at the Ellis Island immigration station today, praying for a discerning heart. In his hand was a telegram which had been sent to him by immigration officials.

"Request to know what is your decision regarding your family," it read.

In another part of the station was his wife and two daughters. He had not seen them for years. He had worked and shaved in this country and finally had seen his way to bring them to him.

In response to the telegram he had come to the station to learn that his youngest daughter was feeble-minded and would be returned to Russia. Either his wife or the other daughter must return with her. He was to decide which one was to stay.

The feeble-minded daughter is suffering from pneumonia in the immigrant hospital. Upon her recovery the deportation is to occur.

The old man pondered his problem for perhaps an hour. His life and his wife's, perhaps, were nearing their end. The little remnant of happiness left with her probably danced before his eyes, a tempting morsel. But he would sacrifice it; sacrifice it for the sake of the daughter, still young, with life and happiness in a new land before her.

He announced his decision. The wife will visit him until the feeble-minded daughter is recovered from pneumonia; then she will return. The other daughter will stay.

About 400 workers were involved. Independent manufacturers will meet the joint settlement committee of the union tomorrow.

"FLYING COP" CAPTURED VOLSTEAD LAW VIOLATOR

New York, March 9.—Detective Bob cAllister, known on the track as "the flying cop," today lost in a handicap event to a man never known in the athletic hall of fame.

McAllister, noticing two motorists enter a cafe, inspected their automobile and discovered a bottle of liquor. When the pair left the restaurant, they saw McAllister and fled on foot.

McAllister caught the nearest, but the other, taking advantage of the delay, escaped.

FORD PAYS INDEBTEDNESS OF LINCOLN MOTOR CAR CO.

Detroit, Mich., March 9.—(By the A. P.)—A desire to "play square" with those who have helped to make the automobile industry what it is," even though some of them have been his business enemies, prompted Henry Ford to pay the balance of the indebtedness of the Lincoln Motor Car company it was learned authoritatively today from persons close to the manufacturer.

Announcement today that Mr. Ford voluntarily had undertaken to pay approximately $4,000,000 to creditors of the Lincoln company sets a precedent in the business world, according to Ralph Stone, president of the Detroit Trust Company, receiver for the concern. Mr. Stone pointed out that by the terms of his purchase of the Lincoln Company, Mr. Ford was under no legal obligation to reimburse its creditors.

The Lincoln company, then in the hands of a receiver, was purchased at auction by Mr. Ford last year. He paid $8,000,000 for the property. After preferred claims were paid there was left for distribution among other creditors the sum of $3,450,000, which amounted to 47 1-3 cents on the dollar. The $4,000,000 being paid by Mr. Ford makes up the difference between the amounts received by the creditors and the sums due them originally.

In announcing the settlement today, Mr. Stone made known for the first time that Mr. Ford had the action in mind when he decided to bid for the Lincoln property at the receiver's sale.

Mr. Stone said a further saving to the creditors was effected when the government agreed to reduce its claims for alleged overpayment or war contracts from $9,500,000 to $1,550,000. This agreement was reached only a few weeks ago.

Alleged overpayment on war contracts to the Lincoln company brought about some of the charges in the impeachment proceedings instituted against Attorney General Daugherty. The impeachment proceedings failed in the United States senate some time ago.

Associated with the Lincoln company before its sale to Mr. Ford were some of the most prominent men in the automobile world. The creditors, all of whom now have been paid in full, numbered about 900.

MRS. BUZZI OFFERS HER SERVICES TO AUTHORITIES

New York, March 9.—Mrs. Anna Buzzi, divorcee, who was released from jail yesterday in $5,000 bail as a material witness in the murder of Frederick Schneider, wealthy contractor, today offered her services to the authorities.

Schneider and Mrs. Buzzi lived together for seven years. She was taken in custody after his body, two bullet wounds in the head, was found in his automobile in a sparsely settled section of the Bronx.

Nicholas Fuelner, a truck farmer, standing in his barnyard, had seen a woman walk away from Schneider's car when it stopped in the road.

Today Mrs. Buzzi expressed a willingness to walk down the road while Fuelner watched from his yard in an effort to identify her as the woman he saw just after Schneider was slain.

"I was home all day, and can prove it," Mrs. Buzzi said today. "I never left the house until after 7 o'clock at night, when policemen came, told me Fred had been hurt and took me to the station to question me. I never knew until 1 o'clock the next morning that Fred had been killed.

"We had not quarreled, and Fred had given me no cause for jealousy. As far as I know he had not intended returning to his wife. He was getting ready to build a new 14-room house for me and he was to live with me."

Hart, state prohibition director, was given today at the trial of Hart and 15 other defendants on a charge of violating the Volstead act.

The testimony was given by Assistant Federal Prohibition Commissioner James E. Jones, called as a surprise witness by the prosecution to describe conversations which he alleged he had had in Washington with William A. Orr, once secretary to former Governor Whitman and one of the defendants.

Ready for Merger of Big Packing Plants

Announcement Expected Soon by the Armour & Co. and Morris & Co.—Value of Armour Stock Fixed.

Chicago, March 9.—Merger of the Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. packing plants was virtually completed today, and the consolidation awaits only formal announcement to become effective, it was announced here tonight when it was learned that arbitrators had fixed on the value of Armour stock to be exchanged as part of the purchase price for the Morris interests. Announcement of completion of the merger probably will be made next Tuesday or Wednesday, it was said.

The price agreed on in exchanging the stock will not be made public until formal announcement of the merger is made.

Earlier in the day it was learned that the merger plans were completed except for agreement on the valuation of stock. The Morris and Armour interests were unable to agree on this point and it was submitted to Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase Securities corporation of New York and James B. Forgan of the First National bank of Chicago for arbitration.

Tonight it was learned that an agreement on stock valuation had been reached at the Florida home of Mr. Forgan, where Nelson Morris, head of Morris & Co., and other executives of the packing concerns met.

Filing of a complaint against the merger by Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture will not hold up the deal, it was said here today, it being expected that the merger will have been completed before hearings on the complaint begin. The packers, it is said, stand ready to go into court in an effort to prove the consolidation legal in every respect if this becomes necessary.

LEAPED FROM NEAR TOP OF WASHINGTON MONUMENT

Washington, March 9.—A leap from a small window near the top of the Washington monument, 504 feet from the ground, brought instant death today to A. Birney Seip, grandson of the late General William Birney, who served with distinction during the Civil war as a brigadier general in the Union army.

Seip had been suffering from a nervous disease for several years, relatives said, and had left home unknown to his mother.

He had suffered a breakdown several years ago while attending Cornell university and had just come home from a Philadelphia sanitarium. Monument attendants expressed the belief Seip could not have fallen from the window, which is only about 13 inches high and extremely narrow.

Although there are attendants stationed at the top, no one saw Seip leave the window. His shoes were ripped off by friction from contact with the side of the monument and the force of the wind during the plunge.

A coroner's verdict of death by suicide was returned.

DECREASE IN FATAL AUTO ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE

Hartford, March 9.—Constant efforts to keep down the rate of fatal automobile accidents in Connecticut have resulted in a sharp decrease in deaths for the first two months of this year, according to an announcement of the department of motor vehicles tonight. The number of fatal accidents for January and February has dropped from nineteen in 1919 to nine this year.

In presenting these figures, the department declared that in view of the increase in registration of automobiles and the hazardous driving conditions, because of icy roads, it was hoped that fatal accidents were being kept under control.

ANOTHER DELAY IN THE SACCO-VANZETTI HEARINGS

Dedham, Mass., March 9.—Another postponement was added to the long list of delays ensuing after the conviction of Nico Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti for murder in 1921 when, at the request of counsel for the defense, the hearing scheduled for today on motions for a new trial was laid over for one week.

When court convened today armed state constabulary were stationed about the courthouse, while within the building police officers of Dedham and the adjoining town of Norwood were on duty to guard against any possible demonstration.

Sacco, on a hunger strike for the past twenty-three days, appeared energetic and fairly strong, although perceptibly thinner than when he went on trial. His spirits apparently were high in anticipation of action in his case. When Judge Thayer asked to hear from the defendants as to whether they were willing to have the postponement, as first he refused, declaring "I want to eat." This was taken to mean that as soon as a new trial had been granted or denied he would abandon his fast. Vanzetti, on the other hand, appeared eager for the postponement and with Fred H. Moore, attorney for the defense, earnestly entreated his fellow prisoner to agree to his counsel's request.

FLEEING BURGLAR FELL DOWN FLIGHT OF STAIRS

Waterbury, March 9.—Henry B. Sanderson, a marketman of this city, whose sleep was troubled Wednesday night with a premonition that burglars were about to visit him, awakened shortly after 3 a. m. today to discover a man standing in the doorway of his bedroom, with a flashlight in his hand. When Sanderson shouted "What do you want?" the man fell down a flight of stairs, but later succeeded in escaping. A burglar's jimmy had been used by the intruder in gaining entrance to the house through a window on the lower floor and was found beneath a rug in a hallway. Nothing of value was carried off by the burglar. A watchman employed to protect a building being constructed in the vicinity of the Sanderson home told the police today that he saw two young men running from the scene of the attempted burglary. Mr. Sanderson now believes in dreams.

Mr. Cosgrave said this latter amount was required immediately to equip twelve armed trawlers for coast guard service and the prevention of gun-running.

The original budget estimates call for 7,500,000 pounds sterling.

A BIG AID TO ECONOMY

Economy is not only a matter of saving. It consists also of spending money to the best advantage. You can often add materially to the effectiveness of your purchases by reading the advertisements in The Bulletin.

Advertising identifies goods of unquestioned value. When a store or a manufacturer puts his name on a product and tells you about it, you may rest assured that it is worth while. It does not pay to advertise merchandise that is not sound. The comebacks are too costly.

Make a practice of reading advertisements. Read them as news from the business world, published for your benefit. They help you to live better, dress better and make more of your income in every way. They are a step toward real economy.

Don't fail to read The Bulletin's advertisements.

PROPOSALS OF GERMANY ARE NOT ACCEPTABLE TO FRANCE

Paris, March 9 (By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare today addressed foreign relations committee on the subject of the situation in the Ruhr. M. Poincare renewed his declarations, made before the chamber of deputies, that France would not accept any mediation in the situation nor enter into indirect conversations. CRIMINAL LIBEL CHARGED BY GREEN ROOM CLUB

New York, March 9.—Officials of the Green Room club will go before the grand jury Monday to ask the indictment of John S. Sumner, secretary of the Society for Suppression of Vice, on a charge of criminal libel, Harry Reichenbach, a director of the club, announced tonight.

It also was revealed that the club had cancelled its engagement to produce "Reigen," a Viennese play by Arthur Schnitzler, at the Little Theatre, and that the cast had accepted the decision.

This announcement came after hours of the Green Room club, comprising a number of leading actors and playwrights, had won its first skirmish with vice crusaders who opposed its plan to produce "Reigen."

The club obtained a supreme court order directing police commissioner Enright and John S. Sumner, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, to show cause next Monday why they should not be restrained by injunction from interfering with the production, which Sumner had denounced as malicious.

In announcing that they intended to go ahead with their plans, despite the decision of Otto H. Kahn, proposed guest of honor, not to attend, directors of the club asserted that they had no intention of presenting as broad a performance as that given in Europe.

BARRACKS OF ENLISTED MEN AT FORT MYER AFIRE

Washington, March 9.—Fire broke out tonight in the barracks of enlisted men at Fort Meyer, Virginia, just across the Potomac river from Washington. Fire fighting apparatus was rushed to the scene from Washington in an effort to confine the flames to one building, in which about 100 men were quartered.

All of the men, it was stated at the reservation, got out of the building in safety. Troops stationed at the fort joined with volunteers from nearby towns and firemen from Washington in fighting the blaze. The reservation adjoins Arlington cemetery.

The fire, destroying the building in which it originated, spread to an unoccupied wing of the hospital. Fifty patients were removed to safety.

Firemen succeeded in keeping the flames from the occupied portions of the hospital as the patients were carried to nearby barracks. The blaze was brought under control about two hours after it had been discovered in the kitchen of the barracks which was destroyed. The barracks housed an artillery unit.

Fifteen firemen and soldiers were injured, none seriously, in fighting the flames which did damage estimated at $110,000.

UNCLE JOE CANNON IS BACK HOME IN DANVILLE

Chicago, March 9.—Uncle Joe Cannon was back home tonight, in Danville, after a half century of public service.

"Back in Illinois," were his first words as he stepped from a train here today into a whirling March wind. The words were softly spoken, and he brushed his hand across moist eyes.

"Then, spying old friends, he exclaimed:

"How's everything? How you and the folks been?"

The congressman importuned him to stand for a flashlight. Uncle Joe straightened up just perceptibly and barked:

"Shoot! but make it snappy! Shoot all at once, every one of you!"

He refused to discuss women in politics, or answer other political questions, but he talked almost wistfully of home. At one time he said:

"I'm going home. I'm going home to get some sleep."

Then with a smile:

"Believe me, when I get home, I'm going to eat up the house."

Later, he reverted to the journey from Washington, saying:

"Oh, yes, I guess I'm out of politics. I'm out, of condition. Going home to 'rest to get well.'"

A pause, his deep-furrowed face set his old jaw, and he added:

"And I guess I'm out of many [illegible] on the [illegible]

"And I guess [illegible]

$1,500,000 PROVIDENCE FIRE LEAVES 1,200 UNEMPLOYED

Providence, March 9.—As a result of the $1,500,000 fire which swept almost a part of the fifth of the downtown street half of the Shepard Company department store in the heart of the business section of the city last night and this morning, Providence suffered its heaviest loss from that cause in its history. In addition more than 1,200 people have been thrown out of work temporarily and the store itself will be forced to forego business activity for at least two months, according to Robert F. Shepard, assistant manager of the company.

The flames, which raged uncontrolled from 3.30 o'clock last evening until four o'clock in the morning, combined with smoke and water not only rendered the building useless for occupancy for some time, bu trained at least three-quarters of the store's stocks, much of which were in the fire-swept fifth and sixth floors storage rooms. A big section of the roof was eaten away by the flames.

Fire Chief William F. Smith is of the opinion that there were two fires, one of which broke out at 3.30 o'clock in the ventilator shafts on the restaurant floor and which was quickly discovered and overcome, and the other which followed the first fire sudden and which was scarcely known by the fireme abefore the entire sixth floor burst into flames. The theory also exists that the fire may have been hidden between partitions, for some time before it became visible at any point.

Robert F. Shepard said today that reconstruction work would begin immediately.

"When my baby was born," says Mrs. Postaway, 106 High Street, Bay City, Michigan, "I got up too soon. It made me so sick that I was tired of living and the weakness run me down something awful. I could not get up out of bed mornings on account of my back; I thought it would break in two, and if I started to do any work I would have to lie down. I do not believe that any woman ever suffered worse than I did. I spent lots of money, but nothing helped me until I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt a whole lot better after the first bottle, and I am still taking it for I am sure it is what has put me on my feet."

If you are suffering from a displacement, irregularities, backache, nervousness, sidesche or any other form of female weakness you should write to the Lydia E. SAVING COSTUMES FOR "THE GLORIOUS GIRL"

In an interview last evening with Director Clark Munson, representing Harrington Adams, Inc., of Ohio, in the presentation of "The Glorious Girl" at the Broadway theatre, under the auspices of Nemrod Grotto, it was learned that Norwich will witness the feature theatrical event of the season. In addition to the elaborate and expensive stage settings and electrical equipment, special attention has been given to the costuming of the different groups and choruses, and a brief discussion of a few of the groups follows:

To the tuneful melody, "My Girl," sung by William (Lyle Fillmore), "The Glorious Girl" feature dance of the production is presented. Owing to the intricate steps and square routine of this dance, special training is required of the members of this group, which is regarded as the most difficult of the choruses, and necessitates the singing of one chorus between dances, that the girls may rest before responding to encore. The costumes designed by Lester, of Chicago, designer of many of the Follies costumes are very elaborate, consisting of a light blue satin costume with gold bodice and blue satin turbans, gold tailer slippers and hose and assorted colored balloons worn at the wrist complete a very attractive costuming.

"If It Has No Name—Simply Call It Art," is the theme and song number for the setting of the Artists' group.

Whether it be a painting, mood or fancy, a new fad or some new whim for pastime, for want of a better name, call it "Art" and a delightful dance number satires this idea. A lilting tune, "Call it Art," is sung by Hertia, played by Robert Gray, and a group of local young women in striking costumes execute the number. The artists' costumes are among the prettiest worn in "The Glorious Girl." They are tailored of velvet corduroy in grey and delft blue and the tams worn sequettishly on the sides of the girls' heads, make a snappy appearance. The combination of a catchy song, a clever dance and pretty costumes make this scene one of the best "The Glorious Girl" affords.

A charming parade and drill number which on account of its precision of routine will prove a favorite among the groups, are the Letter Carriers. These young ladies will wear novel costumes of uniform style, made up of grey satin with trimmings of red braid, Mrs. Olive Potter, as Margaret, will sing "A Letter Carrier," which is the musical setting, and will prove a pleasing feature of the number.

The costuming of The Days of the Week group is represented by the significance of each day of the week. Monday (washing) will wear a costume representing a large wash board and tub. Tuesday (ironing). Wednesday (dusting). Thursday (mending). Friday (baking — a large chocolate cake). Saturday (shopping). Sunday, a quaint Puritan frock. The costumes are of satin in a color scheme of white and brown. Miss Hazel Banfield as the soloist will be heard to advantage in the song hit of the number, "Just a Week."

Excellent seats are now available for both matinee and evening performances at Sellas Spa. Matinee at 4 p. m. Evening performances at 8.15 p. m. sharp.

Strand Sunday

A big, quick moving thrill full of the sizzling action of tense, dramatic warm with the glow of romance and all set amid the soul-baked stretches of the Arizona badlands—that's Harry Carey's latest screen drama, "The Kick-back," scheduled for exhibition on Sunday night at the Strand theatre.

Big situations tumble one after another in this absolutely thrilling story of daring and courage and the intrigue of land thieves who prey on their fellow-men.

The Kick-Back runs hectic, like a racing motor, from opening—and still more speed. As a long-nosed and fighting desperately murder-bent citizen of a band of crooks who seek the waterhole he owns in the middle of the desert, Carey has a role that fits him like a well cut suit. Others in the cast are Ethel Grey Terry, as his leading lady, and Harry R. Walthal as the crafty Aaron Ryan, whose villainy besets the cowboy landowner until the final triumphant climax in which the latter triumphs with the aid of the United States cavalry.

Charles Ruttenberg is Speed and a Gennett comedy His Hidden Purpose completes the bill.

The Amboli dowing river is the world in the Ghats in India, which rises 12,500 feet above the sea and falls 13,000 feet in 124 miles.

PIONEER A. C. DENIED INJUNCTION TO PREVENT FIRPO-BRENNAN BOUT

New York, March 9.—Application of the Pioneer A. C., for an injunction to restrain Luis Firpo, South American heavyweight, from boxing Bill Brennan next Monday night at Madison Square Garden, was denied this afternoon by Supreme Court Justice Erlanger.

The application was denied on the grounds that the Pioneer club had insufficient evidence to support its claim of a prior agreement with Firpo. The decision upholds the judgment of the New York state athletic commission which previously had decided against the Pioneer club, and received the last legal obstacle in the way of the Firpo-Brennan match.

"A mere denial of the equities of the bill," Justice Erlanger's decision read, "will not defeat an application for an injunction if a prima facia case has been established herein. A careful examination, however, of the proof submitted convinces me that no just basis for injunctive relief has been exhibited.

The sale of tickets for the match, which had been temporarily halted today by promoter Tex Rickard pending the outcome of the legal proceedings, was resumed as soon as the decision was announced.

Both Firpo and Frank Coultry, general manager of Madison Square Garden, were in court this morning when attorneys for both sides submitted their cases. A throng of interested spectators watched the proceedings.

The Pioneer club based its appeal for an injunction on an agreement alleged to have been entered into with Firpo last summer shortly after he returned to the Argentine. This agreement, it was said, called for Firpo to box Jack Herman. Subsequently Firpo and Herman met at Ebbetts field under the auspices of the Pioneer club that he was to box another opponent later, to be selected by the latter organization.

Firpo, however, who returned to South America shortly after defeating Herman, denied the existence of any other colligations when he signed a contract with Rickard to meet Brennan.

MANY BIDDERS FOR EBBET'S BROOKLYN INTERESTS

New York, March 9.—Bidders for the Brooklyn National league baseball club, or at least the half interest owned by President Charles Ebbets, promise to become as numerous as rookies in the Dodgers' training camp at Clearwater, Fla., if the present influx of prospective buyers continue.

A second proposition for the purchase of the club's franchise and property, according to the Brooklyn Eagle's correspondent, was made to Ebbets today by Maurice Straus, Brooklyn real estate operator. Straus told the correspondent he was acting in behalf of a millionaire resident of Fond-du-Lac, Wis., but refused to identify him other than a former president of the Milwaukee club of the American association.

Straus was quoted as saying he had merely asked Ebbets' price and had not advanced a definite offer of his own. The Brooklyn owner laughed at a suggestion that he had named the "usual two million" but declared he wanted to "see the color of the money" before talking business with would-be purchasers.

"Everybody wants to buy, but apparently nobody will make a reasonable offer," the squire of Flatbush was quoted as saying.

An offer of $50,000 for the club, made on behalf of Edward F. Simms, wealthy Kentucky oil operator and turfman, was revealed yesterday. Ebbets, however, declared the price unsatisfactory while his partners, Edward J. and Stephen W. McKeever, who hold the other half interests in the club, declared emphatically thier holdings were not on the market at any price.

FOOTBALL ONLY SPORT WITH NO DEFICIT AT YALE

New Haven, March 9.—Of the twenty activities supervised by the Yale Athletic association only football is on an entirely self supporting basis, according to a report made public tonight for the year ending June 1922. Of the other major sports baseball came closest to being self-supporting while the crew and track were by far the most expensive.

Although the association reported receipts of $710,599 for the year 1921-22, expenses were almost as large, being $650,320, leaving net receipts of $60,279 which were applied to repaying advances made by the university. The association reported a cash balance on hand June 30, 1922, of $8,387.

Football receipts amounted to more than half a million dollars of which $495,471 were gate receipts. Expenses however, were $294,380, which included expenses of visiting teams, training and upkeep of the bowl.

The baseball team was almost self-supporting, reporting receipts of $77,068, and expenses of $78,696. The hockey and swimming team were the only other sports in which receipts even approximated expenses. The hockey team reported receipts of $35,435 and expenses of $60,599, while the swimming team reported receipts of $5,281 and expenses of $7,719.

The crew and track both showed large deficits. The crew brought in $9,716 and cost $56,434, while the track team reported receipts of $4,321 and expenses of $39,851.

The baseball team made out fairly well, reporting receipts of $7,391 and expenses of $13,888, while the tennis team brought in $3,259 and cost $7,348.

The only sports that reported no receipts were golf, gun club, rifle club, and soccer, run at a cost of $3,518.

YACHT CREWS FOUGHT NEW LONDON FIRE

New London, March 9.—The crews of some of the many yachts moored here joined forces today in fighting a fire that for a time threatened to spread from a shore line house to four of the best known yachts in these waters. Their efforts were successful and the fire was confined to the house where damage estimated at $5,000 was caused.

The yachts endangered for a time were the Cythera, owned by Mrs Edith Harkness, the While-A-Way, owned by Harry Payne Whitney, and used to take off the Yale crews, the Halycon, owned by D. Wilcox Flint, and the Narada, owned by Henry Walker.

The fire started in a large house owned by John C. Geary, former democratic leader in this state, which is now occupied by two families. Fred Howard, one of the tenants, attempted to thaw out frozen pipes and a few minutes after he had apparently finished, the fire broke out. The crews of the yachts, moored a short distance from the burning house, turned out and fought the blaze. The house was wrecked.

BACKUS HOSPITAL HAS BEDSIDE X-RAY UNIT

The William W. Backus Hospital has made an important addition to its x-ray equipment by adding a portable x-ray bedside unit which can be taken right to the side of a patient in order to secure x-ray photographs. This will be especially valuable in the case of fractured limbs as the picture can be taken without moving the patient from bed. Before this it has been necessary to take the patient into the large x-ray room to take all pictures.

This latest addition makes the Backus hospital's x-ray equipment almost complete and one of the best to be found anywhere in this part of the state.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Police Dog Arrests Danny Fox

When Mr. Merry Sun awoke,
And shone down from the sky,
On Mr. Wolf and Danny Fox,
They weren't there for any good.

These two old robbers of the wood.
And now you remember what happened in the last story, I'm sure, but in case some little boy or girl doesn't I'll tell you that these two little rabbits were ridden inside the tree, with Danny Fox and Wicked Wolf sitting right outside the door.

Hold up Yours, said the Policeman Dog.

"Oh, dear, Oh dear!" said the old gentleman rabbit when his gold watch and chain struck seven and woke him up. "I dreamt I was in my little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot st., Rabbitville, U. S. A. I wish I hadn't woke up!"

Don't be worried, don't be hurried,
Leave it all to me,
A friend in need is a friend indeed,
And he's Charlie Chickadee."

And then that little bird flew away right over the heads of Mr. Wicked Wolf and Danny Fox, and by and by he came to the Police station in Bunnytown and when he told the little rabbits' friend the kind policeman dog what a fix he was in, that kind policeman dog picked up his club and his big revolver and started off for the Shady Forest as fast as he could and pretty soon he came in sight of Charlie Chickadee's tree.

"Don't let them see you," said the little bird.

"Why not?" asked the Policeman Dog.

"If they don't, how am I to tickle them with my club or sting them with a bullet from my big revolver?"

"Because there are two of them and only one of you," said the little bird. "Now you take my advice. "Blow your whistle three times and say: "Come on boys, we've got them, and then they'll think the whole police force is after them and they'll run away."

"No, sire," said that brave Policeman Dog, "I'll whip them all alone," and then he gave three big jumps and landed right close to Danny Fox and before that old robber knew what was going to happen there was a pair of handcuffs over his front paws.

"Hold up yours," said the Policeman Dog, and up went Mr. Wicked Wolf's paws as quick as a wink for when he turned around he looked right into the barrel of the Policeman Dog's revolver. Well, as soon as his handcuffs were locked, the Policeman Dog said:

"Uncle Lucky, can you take us to the jail in your Sledmobile.

At this, the old gentleman rabbit opened the door in the tree and hopped out and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

$35,000 VALUE INDICATED IN STEINER BLDG. SALE

The deer transferring the Steiner building on Main street to the Mohican Co., passed on Friday and was recorded at the town clerk's office. It carried $125 in tax stamps which indicated a transfer valuation of $125,000. Attorney Thomas M. Shields was counsel for the Mohican Co. in making the transfer.

So far as is known here nothing is to be done at present with the Steiner property by the new owners, who have a lease on the present store location in the Dowson property that has 3 1-2 years to run.

Price attended. The exact date will be set later but it will probably be about the middle of the month.

About 125 delegates from the posts in different parts of the state will be expected, and the local post will ask citizens who can do so to open their homes for the accomodation of the old soldiers over one night.

The program will include a business meeting on the first day, a big public campfire at night, and the election of officers on the morning of the second day. The business of the convention will be concluded by noon of the second day, after which it is probable that plans will be made to give the delegates automobile rides to points of interest.

PARTIAL VETO RIGHT.

The favorable report by the constitutional amendments committee of the legislature on giving authority to the governor to veto a portion of a measure without affecting the remainder of the bill is one that has been sought in the interest of better legislation.

Time and again has it been the case in federal as well as state legislation that portions of a bill have been regarded as undesirable but it would be impossible to veto them without having the disapproval apply to the entire bill, and rather than prevent the loss of the benefits contained in the remainder of the bill all would be permitted to go through.

Such a change must come about through a constitutional amendment, and even though the general assembly acts in accord with the committee's report it will mean that the matter must go before the people at the next election for approval or disapproval.

The idea of having important legislation held up because of bad features connected therewith has long been deplored. The tricks of lawmaking have been employed to force through undesirable features at the expense of the good. By giving the governor the opportunity to point out what he may consider unwise or objectionable in connection with a bill and to strike it, without killing the entire measure, indicates a recognition of the handicap that lawmakers feel in the matter of enacting the kind of legislation they would prefer. The committee has undertaken a big task.

NO HUMAN FLY IN MERIDEN.

Had the appeal been made to the mayor of Meriden two weeks ago for permission for a human fly to climb up the front of the city hall, it seems possible that it might have been granted. Within that time there has been a tragedy which may, perhaps cost the inadvisability of permitting such affairs; and it must be regarded that Mayor King of Meriden used excellent judgment when he refused to be a party to anything that might result in the repetition of the New York affair.

Publicity it serves no good purpose. It is a hair-raising stunt but the idea of getting a mob together for the purpose of seeing a human being commit suicide isn't what can be regarded as elevating. Meriden is going to be much happier for the decision of its mayor. That New York case is going to be an obstacle in the way of such daredevil work for a while.

It is to be supposed that the Meriden climber has all the confidence that the New York man did and it is not improbable that he had more. In the case of the man who attempted to climb the New York hotel it is declared that after he had reached a certain height he was heard to say repeatedly, "I can't make it." The rescuER was in keeping with his thought. Possibly it was the purpose of the human fly who wanted to risk his life in Meriden to practice the Coue formula and insist that he could make it and that he was getting better and better.

That policy was not announced but commendable was the action of the mayor in refusing the necessary permission. The idea that he should be permitted to take a chance on being killed may appeal to some but without a question the sentiment of the people of that city will be in accord with the good judgment exercised by their chief executive. Meriden takes the right position against a possible public suicide.

ENDING NEEDLESS EXPENDITURES.

In connection with the dropping of some over 10,000 government employes during the two years of the present administration someone has remarked that it will not be very popular among those dropped. Probably not, but it is to be hoped that something besides the pleasure of those involved was at stake in the action that was taken in the various departments.

During the war there was a tremendous increase in the number of government employes. They were employed sometimes in anticipation of more work, and from the manner in which they got in each other's way it is open to inference that the work never developed. Regardless of what may have been the need for the large number during the emergency, the fact that it is over made it apparent that the list of government employes was too large and it could not be expected that all would be retained. A wonding out was called for and as the duties imposed by the war have diminished there have been other conditions. It would be folly to suppose that the government, (post, business, to employ as that had been called in by them as necessary.

Good business administration called for the elimination of the employes that were not needed. That is the policy the administration has been working under and that is why nearly 10,000 have received their discharges. It was in fact no more than they could have expected under the circumstances. It shows that the government, notwithstanding are getting back to normal quite the scale on in these war-time industries.

It was the policyholder of the taxpayer that was paying attention before the axe of them who were not needed. The interest of the big majority of the people who were paying the bills were being considered. It is all in keeping with the efforts there were necessary for the elimination of waste and the reduction of huge expenses and the country is certain to look upon the saving of somewhere about $150,000,000 effected by the reduced payroll as a demonstration of efficiency in government. The reductions intended to be made, and it has been made.

PROTECTING THE HIGHWAYS.

When the state highway department makes an appeal to the operators and drivers of motor trucks to refrain from carrying excessive loads during the next month it must be regarded as a sensible request and one that should get the very cooperation that is sought.

Already it has been stated by the highway department in Hampden county that damage to the extent of many hundred thousand dollars has been done to the roads of that state thus early by the heavy motor trucks. It is well known what havoc has been wrought in Connecticut roads in other years during the season when the frost is leaving the ground, and whatever can be done in the way of preventing needless expenditures for the repair of roads whose damage might be greatly lessened is worth seeking.

For the protection of roads which were not built for the purpose of carrying such loads as have at times been imposed on them it has been necessary to restrict the amount of load. It is the abuse of rights that inevitably results in such restrictions, but in view of the great damage that can be caused when the roadbeds are in an unsettled state it is for the interests of those who are dependent upon good roads and those who are taxed for them to have due consideration for the way in which they are used.

It is far preferable that there should be a voluntary reduction in the loads carried by the auto trucking in the interest of road protection than having any such action forced because of persistent abuse. The appeal is a consistent one and is put forth in the interest of good roads.

SUPPORTING THE LAW.

It is hard to tell whether a new leaf has really been turned over in New York, but from the fact that there has been a second conviction of a woman in murder cases where there has been no question but that the accused committed the crime such as impression might be gained. Whether the several instances where others who gave confessing the killings were given their freedom have brought about a changed view of such cases through the seeming encouragement which they held out to others to go and do likewise remains to be seen.

In the second case of conviction, guilty in the second degree, being rendered in both instances, the idea seemed to have been held by the woman that in view of the fact that she considered she had been wronged it remained for her to take the question of punishment into her own hands, shoot to kill and then make some sentimental plea that would obtain her discharge and hold her guiltless of having committed a capital crime.

Whatever may have prompted the trouble it is evident that the law does not justify killing under such circumstances. It was possible to have secured justice through the proper channels. Nevertheless there are those so thoroughly imbued with the lynch spirit that they consider themselves above the law and get the idea that they are a law unto themselves. To judge from the action of the New York juries in the two latest cases they consider it is time to correct any such impressions. The decisions should have a wholesome effect, something which has long been needed in this very direction.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

A [illegible] recently [illegible] in the [illegible] Cal., one of the [illegible] engineers, where 90 degrees is high temperature, where to work well and quickly one must eat, and that with [illegible] seems to [illegible] a meal [illegible] over a stir. When he is overheated all he has to do is to blow off, and then go on smiling once more, but when a stir gets overheated it has to blow up, and that takes it beyond "the smiling and the weeping," too, of far as we know. We need not shed any tears over the popping of Nota Cal, because she went up like a skyrocket in 1943, and the hum in the heavens then made has just reached us. Now as light travels at about the rate of 186,000 miles per second, Miss Nota Cal was then living at quite a distance from our back yards. M. Flammarion, the French astronomer, tells us that we are likely to be hit by a "cold" star, get hot and blow up within a million years. Isn't there always somebody ready to take the joy out of life?

As the writer of these paragraphs never had any use for either rum or tobacco, he has a right to speak right out in meeting. It is evident that a propaganda has been started in this country against the tobacco trade. It is sending out its feelers by way of legislating against the sale of cigarettes. I will not comment on the wisdom of this move. Several states, I believe, have made their sale illegal. It is the trend of the movement that I want to call attention to. If the anti-cigarette law is generally adopted, the attempt will soon be made to abolish tobacco altogether. If this is done, we shall lose everything we have then for gained by way of reform. Banishing the public sale of rum was a mighty stroke in the interests of righteousness, but we cannot blink the fact it has left behind a wound that does not heal. It ought to be our first duty to heal that sore, not to open subjective cold into it. The time is not ripe for blacklisting tobacco. If the attempt is made the people may rise in their wrath and repeal prohibition.

Even if this is called the great age of science—and thus it is, comparatively speaking—still how many forces there are surrounding us that ye do not know, or, at least, very imperfectly. Dr. Steinmetz, the electrical wizard, has told us that as yet we have only touched the outer rim of electricity. Magnetism is another natural force that we know still more imperfectly. We are simply acquainted with some of its visible results. To say that magnetism is a power that attracts certain substances is not an explanation, much less a definition. Of the many ways in which magnetism displays itself, none is so wonderful as animal magnetism. Let two speakers deliver the same message; let both of them be honest, sincere, and good speakers, yet one of them will grip his hearers like a vise, while under the other they will all go to sleep. Magnetism explains the difference.

If "necessity is the mother of invention," it is not at all likely that we shall always have to submit to the tyranny of anthracite coal. In years past it was said that "cotton was king." That was strictly true from the industrial standpoint. It was the leading article of commodity that the country produced, and its value overshadowed that of any other. That day passed with the dominance of the south. Then it was said that "corn is king." And when that commodity ran up into the billions of dollars yearly the title of king was justified. But here in New England, where cattle is not raised at all, and corn not in great quantity, neither has been true. If anthracite coal that now holds the center of the stage, and before his majesty we all bow. But let us voice that soon we shall creep out from underneath his sceptre, with the feeling that we have rid the earth of much state and crushed rock.

We have infallible evidence that spring is hovering near. The pussy willows and the boys have begun to blossom; the pussy willows with their soft, fuzzy buds, and the boys with their hard, smooth tops. We have many signs of spring that are not all reliable. Even the willows sometimes get a little previous, but the boys rarely ever make a mistake. When tops and marbles leave their winter quarters it is perfectly safe to begin to think about garden seed. A comic almanac once said: "When peas as soon as they begin to play marbles." It is well known that migratory birds sometimes get left in their instinct about spring. They come north, get disgusted and go part way back to their places of hibernation. But when the boys get out their marbles, they stay out until it is time for ball and bat.

The writer had a terrible shock a while ago, not of the apoplectic order, but more of the twinges of conscience. It came about in this way: Mrs. Man Who Talks said, back in February: "Hezekiah, isn't it about time you were trimming the grape vines?" As there was much wisdom in the suggestion, the grape vines were tackled forthwith. It goes, of course, without saying that the trimming was done scientifically. As you cannot raise grapes and grow a woodlot on the same vines, it was necessary to remove a tangled mass of last year's growth. When the job was done the vines looked sick, but it had been done according to the books. It was right here where the shock came; would it be necessary to trim me to such a fright as that, in order to do satisfactory work? Am I nine-tenths punkwood? Just how much waste material in both body and mind are we carrying about? Looked at in this way, man, "the measure of animals," will lose much of his surmise.

One of the new phases of science—I will not call it a fad, because it had elements of permanence—is the radio. It is not working smoothly at present because it is new and has so many difficulties to overcome. It has proved beyond question that the currents of the air can be made vehicles of communication. Marconi's great invention, or discovery, has put this beyond doubt. It is certainly wonderful to be able to sit in one's own study little parlor and hear a concert given in Newark, a lecture in Schenectady or a church choir in New York city. Sending such things through the air is called broadcasting. But why don't we broadcast life itself? Why can't every church of the living God be a radio center from which the higher and better things of life may be wirelessly broadcasted? Who can't every great heart broadcast some of its riches to others?

We have had many fads pursuing us, have solved the question of dirigible, and they have all had some elements of the truth. But disease still stalks in our midst as the most terrible of mortal terrors. Faith cures, prayer cures, and auto-suggestive cures we have had in splendid reality. But if they can do all their friends claim for them, how can they possibly suffer an eclipse? But one of the most remarkable of the new theories is the new treatment of tuberculous children at The Seaside, Nimtic. This is the science of heliotherapy, which means healing by means of the sunlight. Anyone who has seen those little happy "brownies" playing in the sand at Crescent Beach must be a believer in the mode of treatment. Campaign Notes.

One of the headquarter's workers was inspired to the following Friday night:

Hundreds and hundreds of envelopes in from the schools, with a bountiful harvest of pennies, nickles, dimes, quarters, halves, and bills. Wonderful boys and girls, and so very good of you to take us to your hearts in this way. You'll be proud of it all through life.

One is not anxious to draw comparisons, but surely that dear, sweet boy, crippled at that to, from Pearl street school "played the game" in grand style, when he contributed the whole of his savings of sixty-one cents. Boy, we love you and shall pray God to bless you right through life until you enter into His kingdom, to receive your reward.

Our "chief accountant"—Adjutant John Strain, kept his staff mighty busy counting school money, but nevertheless they all seemed to enjoy this form of recreation.

Three big cheers for the kids and them "rings."

Lots of people are calling at the campaign headquarters with their contributions, because they have been overlooked. Too bad and we're sorry, but we assure you it is not intentional. If you have been overlooked, "phone 834 and the express man ("John") will be on the trail before you have time to count twenty.

Were real glad to see Captain Noreen on the move and he should soon be over the hundred mark.

The best yet! That was the unanimous opinion of all present at the supper and "get together" held at the Trinity Methodist church Friday night. Rarely has such enthusiasm been seen at a gathering of this nature, and all and one enjoyed immensely the humorous vein of both

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE IN CAMPAIGN FOR $350,000

Connecticut College at New London announced on Friday its plan for a Ten-Ten-Ten campaign, from March 25 to June 6 to raise $350,000 in order to qualify for the allotment of $154,000 from the general education board, the whole adding $540,000 to the college's endowment fund by Jan. 1, 1924.

The plan is that $300,000 shall be underwritten by the joint efforts of undergraduates, alumnae, former students, faculty and officers of administration, of which $3,000 is now already in the treasury of the college, leaving a balance of $296,000 to raise, of which $10,000 has been pledged in former and informal efforts.

The number of persons available as workers in this campaign is approximately 700 as a minimum, so that it was quickly considered that to ask each one to be responsible for $100 would be unbalanced and unfair obligation to impose. To this end there has been devised what is called the Ten-Ten-Ten Plan, which means that over a period of ten weeks, beginning March 25 and extending to June 6, every student of the group above mentioned will seek ten persons whom they will ask to give ten dollars each.

The college organization for the drive is President Marshall, chairman; Prof. Gerard E. Jensen, vice-chairman, Miss Mary E. MAKE ARGUMENTS FOR 48 HOUR WORK WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 9.—Fred Holdsworth of Norwich appeared in favor of the bill introduced by Mr. Walker of Plainfield concerning the working hours of minors and women.

The bill provides that no minor under 16 years of age and no woman shall be employed more than eight hours a day in any manufacturing or mechanical establishment, nor more than 48 hours in any one calendar week.

It was suggested by Mr. Walker that the day limit be nine hours a day, with the same weekly limit, as this would permit of the Saturday half holiday, which mill workers would never be willing to give up.

Ira Ornsbeen, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, endorsed the amended bill, and gave a lot of figures showing that the 48 hour week had not lowered production.

He said that he did wish the committee to understand that the proposed bill regulated the hours of labor unions. The unions did that themselves, but he wished to appear in behalf of the unorganized mill workers.

A. D. Gauthier of Baltic, president of the Connecticut Textile Union, spoke in favor of the bill, and quoted from the reports as to the earnings of the mills which had increased their dividends while cutting the wages of the employees.

The Ponemah, Lawton Mills and Manhasseit Company were among the number quoted. The figures, he said, show that they can earn as much by a forty-eight hour week as the workers' power is much greater. Massachusetts has had this law since 1919, and it does not appear that they have suffered in their dividend-earning power.

Mrs. Flowers and Mrs. Mosie of Baltic spoke in favor of the bill.

A rising vote showed a large number in favor and more than twenty representatives from textile unions wished to be recorded in favor.

Representative Fenton of Windham and Senator Tone of New Haven requested to be recorded in favor.

A rising vote of more present showed a much greater number in opposition than were in favor. The opposition came largely from manufacturers and was conducted by Ralph C. Wells, Agent Bickerson of Ponemah and Wauregan mills was one of the speakers in opposition to the bill.

FAVORS FREE HIGHWAY BRIDGES IN STATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 9.—It was stated by Representative Howard G. Edgecomb, clerk of the committee on finance, that the committee had unanimously voted to recommend the bill abolishing the tolls on the bridges in New London, Saybrook and Middletown. The bill was presented in the senate this morning and was placed on the calendar.

The bill framed by the committee is as follows:

Section 1. No fees or tolls shall be charged or collected for travel upon any trunk line bridge in the state.

Sec. 2. Chapter 403 of the Public Acts of 1921 is hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect January 1, 1924.

But two committees held hearings today, the judiciary meeting for a short time in the morning, and the other committee in the hall of the house this afternoon. At the afternoon executive session were held by the committee on [illegible] and [illegible] and there were [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The truth for a day proved too much for the girls and their endeavors to tell the plain truth put them in predicaments that brought forth considerable laughter from the audience. Needless to say the girls failed in their endeavor to tell the truth for 24 successive hours.

III—Schottische. Dance.— Elizabeth Johnson, Gwendolyn Jones, substituting for Beatrice Leonard, Anna Blake, Jean Peck, Marion Aguer, and Harriet Geer.

The entertainment closed with a scene representing camp and the girls gave their camp fire cheer.

ADDRESSED CENTRAL BAPTIST WOMEN ON EVANGELISM

The women of the Central Baptist church met in the church rooms Friday afternoon, about sixty being present. The meeting was opened by C. Edward Smith, with a devotional service after which Miss Polly Mitchell sang, as a solo, Jesus Thou Art Standing Outside the Fast Closed Door. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, and Mrs. David A. Pitt explained the revised constitution of the organization.

The address of the afternoon was by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, whose subject was Evangelism. In the course of his address Rev. Mr. Pitt explained that the mother of the home is the one from whom the child receives its first Christian training. Next to the mother is the teacher, whether she is a grammar school, high school, or Sunday school teacher, as long as she is a Christian. Everyone should be an evangelist for there is no one who is too poor or humble to engage in this great business.

In committee reports it was suggested that coin cards would be a fine means of raising money, and another suggestion was that a rummage sale be held in the near future.

It was voted to hold a banquet at the next meeting of the organization, and it was also voted to assist in the packing of a barrel for the Mather school. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Gale for the gift of a bookcase, which is to keep the many gifts of carefully selected and valuable literature, previously given by her to the organization.

After the collection the revised constitution was read and the women of the organization were asked to sign, which they did. A social hour followed the meeting during which tea was served by Mrs. David Pitt.

PICTURES AND TALK ON TRAVELS IN ITALY

The February meeting of the Woman's Guild was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community House with the president, Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, in the chair. Matters of routine business were transacted following which the meeting was turned over to the Misses Lucas, who gave a most interesting stereopticon lecture on their trip to Italy and Sicily.

Miss Mary Lucas took charge of the slides and Miss Nancy Lucas explained the scenes as they were thrown upon the screen. Having spent the entire summer of 1922 visiting in Italy and Sicily the Misses Lucas were able to give an illustrated talk that was most instructive and interesting. To add a bit of local touch to the story of Italy the Misses Catherine and Eleanor Regina sang, played and danced after the ways of Italy. The songs were in Italian and while dancing Miss Catherine Regina played the tambourine and Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., accompanied on the piano.

The programme proved to be one of the most enjoyable ones held in recent months and a vote of thanks was given the Misses Lucas for their entertainment, and to the Misses Regina for their acts, and to Joseph Carlevale through whose aid the guild was able to secure the Regina sisters.

The meeting adjourned after The Star Spangled Banner had been thrown on the screen and the audience joined in singing the national anthem.

NORWICH AUTO SHOW HAS ANOTHER CROWD

The automobile show at the state armory being conducted by the Norwich Automobile Dealers association under the auspices of Battery B, and First Bn. Combat Train, 192nd F. A. C. N. G. continued to draw large crowds Friday and it is expected that today (Saturday) the closing day of the show will see the largest attendances of any of the four days.

Each evening while the people have been inspecting the 40 or more cars in the armory drill shed, attractive entertainment programs have been put on by Herb Smith's orchestra and other entertainers. Friday evening solos were rendered by Arthur F. Campbell.

From all accounts the show this year has been the most successful ever held by the association and many cars have been ordered and prospects of future sales located.

MAKE ARGUMENTS FOR 48 HOUR WORK WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 9.—Fred Holdsworth of Norwich appeared in favor of the bill introduced by Mr. Walker of Plainfield concerning the working hours of minors and women.

The bill provides that no minor under 16 years of age and no woman shall be employed more than eight hours a day in any manufacturing or mechanical establishment, nor more than 48 hours in any one calendar week.

It was suggested by Mr. Walker that the day limit be nine hours a day, with the same weekly limit, as this would permit of the Saturday half holiday, which mill workers would never be willing to give up.

Ira Ornsbeen, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, endorsed the amended bill, and gave a lot of figures showing that the 48 hour week had not lowered production.

He said that he did wish the committee to understand that the proposed bill regulated the hours of labor unions. The unions did that themselves, but he wished to appear in behalf of the unorganized mill workers.

A. D. Gauthier of Baltic, president of the Connecticut Textile Union, spoke in favor of the bill, and quoted from the reports as to the earnings of the mills which had increased their dividends while cutting the wages of the employees.

The Ponemah, Lawton Mills and Manhasseit Company were among the number quoted. The figures, he said, show that they can earn as much by a forty-eight hour week as the workers' power is much greater. Massachusetts has had this law since 1919, and it does not appear that they have suffered in their dividend-earning power.

Mrs. Flowers and Mrs. Mosie of Baltic spoke in favor of the bill.

A rising vote showed a large number in favor and more than twenty representatives from textile unions wished to be recorded in favor.

Representative Fenton of Windham and Senator Tone of New Haven requested to be recorded in favor.

A rising vote of more present showed a much greater number in opposition than were in favor. The opposition came largely from manufacturers and was conducted by Ralph C. Wells, Agent Bickerson of Ponemah and Wauregan mills was one of the speakers in opposition to the bill.

FAVORS FREE HIGHWAY BRIDGES IN STATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 9.—It was stated by Representative Howard G. Edgecomb, clerk of the committee on finance, that the committee had unanimously voted to recommend the bill abolishing the tolls on the bridges in New London, Saybrook and Middletown. The bill was presented in the senate this morning and was placed on the calendar.

The bill framed by the committee is as follows:

Section 1. No fees or tolls shall be charged or collected for travel upon any trunk line bridge in the state.

Sec. 2. Chapter 403 of the Public Acts of 1921 is hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect January 1, 1924.

But two committees held hearings today, the judiciary meeting for a short time in the morning, and the other committee in the hall of the house this afternoon. At the afternoon executive session were held by the committee on [illegible] and [illegible] and there were [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

ADDRESSED CENTRAL BAPTIST WOMEN ON EVANGELISM

The women of the Central Baptist church met in the church rooms Friday afternoon, about sixty being present. The meeting was opened by C. Edward Smith, with a devotional service after which Miss Polly Mitchell sang, as a solo, Jesus Thou Art Standing Outside the Fast Closed Door. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, and Mrs. David A. Pitt explained the revised constitution of the organization.

The address of the afternoon was by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, whose subject was Evangelism. In the course of his address Rev. Mr. Pitt explained that the mother of the home is the one from whom the child receives its first Christian training. Next to the mother is the teacher, whether she is a grammar school, high school, or Sunday school teacher, as long as she is a Christian. Everyone should be an evangelist for there is no one who is too poor or humble to engage in this great business.

In committee reports it was suggested that coin cards would be a fine means of raising money, and another suggestion was that a rummage sale be held in the near future.

It was voted to hold a banquet at the next meeting of the organization, and it was also voted to assist in the packing of a barrel for the Mather school. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Gale for the gift of a bookcase, which is to keep the many gifts of carefully selected and valuable literature, previously given by her to the organization.

After the collection the revised constitution was read and the women of the organization were asked to sign, which they did. A social hour followed the meeting during which tea was served by Mrs. David Pitt.

PICTURES AND TALK ON TRAVELS IN ITALY

The February meeting of the Woman's Guild was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community House with the president, Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, in the chair. Matters of routine business were transacted following which the meeting was turned over to the Misses Lucas, who gave a most interesting stereopticon lecture on their trip to Italy and Sicily.

Miss Mary Lucas took charge of the slides and Miss Nancy Lucas explained the scenes as they were thrown upon the screen. Having spent the entire summer of 1922 visiting in Italy and Sicily the Misses Lucas were able to give an illustrated talk that was most instructive and interesting. To add a bit of local touch to the story of Italy the Misses Catherine and Eleanor Regina sang, played and danced after the ways of Italy. The songs were in Italian and while dancing Miss Catherine Regina played the tambourine and Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., accompanied on the piano.

The programme proved to be one of the most enjoyable ones held in recent months and a vote of thanks was given the Misses Lucas for their entertainment, and to the Misses Regina for their acts, and to Joseph Carlevale through whose aid the guild was able to secure the Regina sisters.

The meeting adjourned after The Star Spangled Banner had been thrown on the screen and the audience joined in singing the national anthem.

NORWICH AUTO SHOW HAS ANOTHER CROWD

The automobile show at the state armory being conducted by the Norwich Automobile Dealers association under the auspices of Battery B, and First Bn. Combat Train, 192nd F. A. C. N. G. continued to draw large crowds Friday and it is expected that today (Saturday) the closing day of the show will see the largest attendances of any of the four days.

Each evening while the people have been inspecting the 40 or more cars in the armory drill shed, attractive entertainment programs have been put on by Herb Smith's orchestra and other entertainers. Friday evening solos were rendered by Arthur F. Campbell.

From all accounts the show this year has been the most successful ever held by the association and many cars have been ordered and prospects of future sales located.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A remarkably fine record was made by special forces of the Southern New England Telephone company in restoring service to subscribers in the Danielson division following the fire that put the terminal equipment out of commission Thursday night. Scores of subscribers never knew from loss of service anything about the fire for their instruments were ready for their use Friday morning, though every local line was out of order at midnight.

Forces that rushed here by automobile during the night from Putnam, Norwich, New London and New Haven made such marked progress with the restoration work during the small hours of the morning that a large proportion of the subscribers were getting normal service by 7 a. m. The situation improved every hour during the forenoon and at the noon hour scarcely a dozen lines were out of order.

The speed with which the repair forces were assembled and rushed here from distant parts of the state, with all necessary replacement equipment, and the accelerated manner in which these specialists on cables, terminals and switchboards worked was a revelation to those who in a general way knew the extent of the damage in the terminal room and something of the complicated and delicate task of overcoming it. Some of the expert workmen who came here had to journey the hundred miles from New Haven over snow-choked roads and in near zero weather, yet they did it and were at work while Danielson slept.

Few organizations in the country could match the accomplishment of the Southern New England company's workers and the Western Electric company men in such an amazing, brief period of time and with no advance warning. As an exhibition of efficiency it had a million lecture courses on the subject backed off the earth.

As a demonstration of what the company does to furnish to its subscribers under any and all conditions it offends by about 100 per cent. the vast majority of complaints that subscribers are inclined to make, most of these complaints being without real justification or cause.

Incidentally, wire service companies were trying vainly during Friday to determine where the heavy shot of juice came from that cut in on the Danielson electric light and telephone systems. The first warning of trouble was like the sharp bark of a revolver, following by a dimming of electric lights and their prompt return to normal candlepower. The top fixtures of an ornamental street light near the Puritan restaurant promptly melted off and and clattered down to the street and in another minute the terminal room at the central telephone office was aflame. It later developed that a bushing on an oil switch blew out at the high tension sub-station, but this would not appear to account for the damage that followed down town. Representatives of the different interested companies were investigating the matter during Friday.

From time to time in this column, at the request of officials, there has appeared during the past six months warnings to owners of dogs in Killingly that all such animals must be licensed and that they should not be allowed to roam unattended, in violation of the law. Recent developments would tend to indicate that these warnings have not made even an appreciable dent on those who, so to speak, appeared to have decided in favor of making their own dog laws.

The killing this week of 17 hens at the Jackson place near Goodyear by three roaming dogs has brought matters to a head. Acting on a complaint in this matter Dog Warden Charles H. Ayer and Special Deputy Commissioner William J. Jarvis of the commissioner on domestic animals went over into Goodyear and within a period of forty minutes rounded up 11 malicious dogs and four that were roaming about. Owners of these dogs will appear in town court the first of the week.

A particular feature of the case that irritates Warden Ayer is the manner in which some of the owners of these unlicensed animals are squirming and complaining now that they find themselves in difficulty. Every dog owner is supposed to know that he must have the animal licensed and that it is forbidden to allow them to roam. And every dog owner does know it, but some of them try to save the license fee and take a chance on being detected.

Being detected, they begin to howl in many cases and want to be let off easy or allege they are not being fairly treated. This sort of performance arouses the ire of Warden Ayer and he said Friday that the season for warnings is closed. The man who receives a visit from the warden hereafterabout an unlicensed dog or a roaming dog will know that he has something coming to him. And this also goes for visitations by Mr. Jarvis.

It would appear from the mood of the officers on Friday that now is the one best day of the season for registering unlicensed dogs. It is cheaper than getting caught with one—much cheaper, and much more convenient.

What was regarded as one certain and sure sign of spring was pointed out here Friday. A man was observed riding a motorcycle. Most of these machines seem to have been spending the past three months with the groundhog.

A new system of reading gas meters is to be inaugurated within a month by the Peoples Light and Power company. This system is known as continuous reading and will replace the present system of reading all of the meters on two or three days of the month.

Under continuous reading some meters will be read each day, but in no case will any meter be read over once each month. Under the new system the office work will be more evenly distributed through the month instead of being marked by a rush period following the meter readings.

When the new system is adopted it need not occasion the surprise of any subscriber if a single bill is rendered covering a period of six weeks or if a bill should happen to come in covering a period of only ten days. This cannot be avoided during the month that the change over is being made, but thereafter one's meter will be read on approximately the same day each month and all bills rendered will cover such a period. The continuous meter reading system to be introduced here is in vogue in Putnam and various other cities of the state.

Approximately one-third the month of March will have passed with today. It is rather unusual that a below zero should be experienced this late in the season, as was the case Friday morning when it was 2 below.

Joseph Goulet, a Danielson patient recovering after an operation for appendicitis, will return to his home Sunday from the Day Kimball hospital.

Howard A. Elliott, chief special deputy of the commissioner on domestic animals, was a visitor here on business Friday.

A Polish-speaking priest is to be at St. James' church next Monday afternoon and evening to give special attention to the Lenten religious requirements of the Polish members of the church.

Philip Johnson of Wauregan will leave Sunday for Syracuse to take a course in forestry at the University.

Friday the county commissioners held a regular meeting at the county jail in Brooklyn, described by Representative Charles Hyde of that town as the best boarding house in Brooklyn, all of which might possibly start a rush of business.

Members of the W. C. T. U. will meet next Tuesday afternoon at the Old People's home.

Mrs. W. E. Keach of the West Side had members of the Methodist church at her home Friday afternoon for a sewing meeting.

Jewett Collins of New Haven was a visitor in Danielson Friday.

Rev. Frederick L. Williams of St. Andrew's church, Norwich, will be the Lenten preacher at the evening service at St. Alban's church next Thursday.

Mrs. Charles W. Hale of Hawkins street had members of the Rogadabout club at her home for a meeting Friday afternoon.

Next Saturday brings St. Patrick's day, observed in many parishes as Mi-Careme.

Mrs. W. H. Judson will have members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church at her home for a meeting next Wednesday afternoon.

Fresh eggs, from poultry yards in this immediate territory, are selling this week end for 45 cents a dozen.

Miss Cathleen Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Moran of Brooklyn, has entered a convent at Fitchburg. Miss Moran formerly was employed in the office of the People's Light and Power company.

Present indications are that little business will be transacted at the March term of the Windham county superior court in this city. No cases had been tried to date during the term and it was generally understood on Friday afternoon that Friday morning, without any cases being assigned, Judge Allyn L. Brown was not in attendance, as Clerk E. M. Warner called the calendar list for the benefit of the legal fraternity. Various things have interfered with the progress of business this term. In one instance counsels or important witnessing are ill and cannot appear. In others attorneys in cases are engaged with legislative duties or are busy in other courts of the state. Other handicaps add to the death of cases ready for trial, though it is likely that some cases will be assigned next Friday and tried during the following week. During the last week of the month Good Friday comes and this will shorten that court period by one day.

"Alle Gehen" Taint Your Life. For full information, ask the post-master, or Watch This Sign on Easter Sunday. There is the text of a mystery message born on a huge sign raised on the upper front of the First National Bank building, Friday morning. It has the city guessing, especially that Alle Gehen leader. The words are reminiscent of the Pharaohs and old King Tut, but the assistance is given that the sign has nothing to do with any dead and gone kings, but is in the interest of a real live wire proposition. And that is all there is to be said about it at this time, other than the sign has the city "rubbering," in the slang phrasing of another day.

Rumors were flying thick and fast Friday as to what type of the structure Putnam can look forward to having as the result of Charles Sedder contracting to buy the Hardin F. Hopkins property, on Main street, as announced in Friday's issue of The Bulletin. The public speculators were engaged Friday in building all kinds of business blocks on the property, including a structure that would have a theatre as well as business places as a feature. And Mr. Sedder in the meantime was quietly refraining from divulging any plans he may have for the property or in commenting upon the deal in any way.

A Dairymen's Institute is to be held next Thursday afternoon at the Congregational chapel in Eastford, the session opening at 1.30 p. m. County Agent F. L. Davis, with the co-operation of Directors H. B. Buell and W. S. Warren of Hartford, has arranged the following programme for the institute:

1.30—Feeding the Dairy Cow, A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist, extension service, Connecticut Agricultural college. Rations will be figured on a blackboard; bring in your dairy ration. This will be an interesting discussion on a subject of prime importance to every dairyman.

3 p. m.—The annual meeting of the New England Milk Producers' association. County Agent F. L. Davis and J. R. Stromberg, county president of the N. E. M. P. A., will talk. All the men who ship milk, as well as other dairymen will be interested in the reports to be given on the dairy industry.

Special activity in the textile industry and the increasing demand for trained men in this field brings to notice the local trade school textile course as an important factor of endeavor. Of the five or more trade courses given at the school it would seem that the textile course has special advantages as related to the his particular industry, says a statement issued by the state trade school.

Our local industries are predominantly textile and the quality of the course is such as to give very definite training in the fundamental theories, practical application and related science of this oldest of established arts. The soundness of the industry needs no emphasis, suffice it to say that it ministers to one of the three prime requirements necessary for the maintenance of society, namely, clothing its permanency and value as an industry is therefore established.

The textile field offers not only an appropriate sphere for useful productive contribution to society but at the same time individual reward for such service in a higher proportion perhaps than many other industries. This is due to a number of contributing factors but first to the high degree of specialization and secondly to the fact that development of general textile knowledge is not inherent in the industry itself, except in a few rare cases. In this respect the industry differs from many of the other trades.

As an instance of this, in a machine manufacturing plant if an executive for a department is needed it is always possible to apply to the machine shop and find any one of a dozen men who have sufficient general knowledge of the machine business to become good executives provided, of course, they have the necessary native ability. The same is in some degree true of the building trades and other industries which develop material for their own perpetuation and leadership from within. On the other hand high specialization and machine production prevents the textile industry from developing adherents with any broad general training, the tendency being to develop specialists in one of two particular operations. This is not an arbitrary condition set up by the industry but is inherent in the manner and means by which its product is manufactured and is the only way the market condition can be met, high specialization and efficient production is necessary and therefore desirable.

The industry however must always depend upon men with sufficient general training to visualize the variety of processes, machines and quality of materials and how each is inter-related and becomes a part of the whole scheme in textile manufacturing. It is this function that the textile department of the local school aims to fulfill by providing a set of experiences and studies in application and theory that is the only safe basis for success in any line of endeavor.

This department is the only cotton textile school in Connecticut. There are two special types of courses outlined for consideration, one being the regular trade course, the other the high school cooperative. The latter course is especially attractive on account of the somewhat broader training and a high school education in four years.

The Windham County Congregational Ministers' association, which meets quarterly, is to be with Rev. S. T. Livingstone of Thompson on Tuesday next. The morning programme is to include an address by Rev. Simeon E. Comad, pastor of the Congregational church in that city, his subject to be A Question of Honor Between Ministers and Church. At the afternoon session Rev. Fredick B. Harrison of Woodstock will deliver an address on The Mind in the Making. The meeting is to be held at the parsonage.

Up at Tourtellotte Memorial High School members of the senior class are making ready for one of the most important events in their high school career—the annual Easter season trip to the national capital at Washington, in observance of a custom that has taken the senior classes to the school on the trip at Easter time for a number of years.

Miss Eleanor C. Carpenter of this city has been appointed as one of the floor pages to serve at the national congress of the D. R. R. to be held in Washington during the coming month. The appointment comes from Mrs. George Maynard Minor, president general of the organization. Miss Carpenter will be one of 100 pages representing all the states of the union.

A workman on the addition to St. Mary's school was injured Friday morning and had to leave work and go to his home.

Work of clearing the ruins of the Donahue block was again proceeding Friday after an interruption due to the bad weather of the past two days.

Plant department men of the S. N. E. B. 195, concerning the repair of certain states and roads that are feeders to trunk line highways; H. B. 831, including in the trunk line system the road between Glastonbury and Portland on the east side of the Connecticut river; H. B. 577, amending the motor vehicle law.

JEWETT CITY

The fifty-first annual ladies' night of Mount Vernon lodge, No. 95, F. and A. M., Norman B. Parkhurst, master, was held Friday evening, and has been placed on record as one of the most enjoyable of the social events of the season.

Not varying from the usual custom, the Masonic banquet was the signal for the gathering of Masons, their wives and daughters and sweethearts from all the local jurisdiction, who assembled to participate in and enjoy the many pleasures of the occasion. The supper was served at 7 in the Congregational vestry under the direction of Mrs. W. A. Richardson, president of the ladies' society of the church. Here the artistic taste of those in charge were admirably displayed. The table settings were not a little enhanced by the arrangement of special napkins, bearing Masonic emblems in colors true to ancient form.

At 8 o'clock in Rixux hall the large and appreciative audience was delighted with the several numbers of a carefully prepared programme. Solo, tenor, by William Dealtey; Nirvana, by Stephen Adams, who responded to merited encore with, For You Alone, by H. E. Geehl. The numbers by Frank Mell, were so selected as to well display the skill of the reader, An Afternoon Tea and The Young Man Waited. Everybody, if hearty applause is an evidence, thoroughly enjoyed the songs by the Plainfield Male Quartette, Uncle Moon, Down the Trail to Long Ago, The Road and Mason's Old Gray Mule.

The black face comedian sketch, "Almost an Actor," put over by Herbert Thompson and Earl Hiscox, late of Thatcher, Primrose and West's celebrated minstrels, was a scream, and then some. The two noted comedians doubtless excell anything yet in captivity. Mr. Dealtrey was accompanied by Mrs. George H. Prior and the quartette by Harold Barstow. The voices in the quartette were Christopher Kraus, first tenor; Sidney Mathewson, second tenor; Philip Peterson, baritone; Ray Greene, basso. The music for the evening which was universally declared to be unsurpassed, was by the Mount Vernon orchestra, Adolph Heinrich, director.

The grand march, the first couple being Worshipful Master and Mrs. Norman B. Parkhurst, has hardly been equalled for general attractiveness at any preceding celebration of the local fraternity.

As a special feature, a closing figure had been planned, in which the three principal officers of the lodge and their ladies, were escorted to stations corresponding to their ranking positions. The sixteen dance numbers were conducted with every thought given to the comfort and pleasure of the over two hundred guests present.

The dance programmes were remarked for their elegance, whereupon were seen delicately traced in colors and gold, a number of degree emblems arranged in Masonic design. The committe for the evening were: Master of ceremonies, Norman B. Parkhurst, W. M.; floor director, Robert J. Guy; aids, Wallace H. Payne, Harold Haanan, Herbert Thompson; reception committee, Arthur M. Brown, Fred L. Kanahan, William T. Crumb, Charles H. Barnes, Charles Anderson. The efficient committee of arrangements, who perfected the plans and successfully conducted the affairs were: William McClaggage, E. A. Thompson, Harold Field, George T. Bell, Lawrence Drescher.

Thursday evening at 10.30 the borough electric lighting system did an up and down, on again, off again, stunt that was wonderful to behold. Superintendent E. S. Hiscox, hurrying to the local plant, found that trouble up the line was operating his big circuit breakers. This was at the same hour that electrical trouble was occuring in Danielson, when too much juice got into the telephone exchange, causing a fire there.

The unconfirmed report reached the borough that the Shepard Company fire in Providence had dropped high tension wires, which had crossed in, onto the Danielson system, burning out a big transformer there, and thus being the direct cause for the local disturbance. Superintendent Hiscox, in checking up the probable cause for trouble on his board, was unwilling to admit that the kicking out of his breakers was directly traceable to the Providence fire.

Levi Adams has received from Charles Lewis, of Yuma, Arizona, a handsomely bound, illustrated publication issued by the Yuma board of trade. It is of especial interest to many here because Mr. Lewis, its donor, is a Jewett City boy, born and reared in Griswold. Now he is prominently connected with this booming city, and tells all about the richly endowed section of the great southwest.

Notable among the signs of coming spring, that cannot be denied, is that grackles (they used to be known as crow black birds), have arrived in the big pines on East Main street. For forty years every spring, without fail, they have come and looked over their year's nesting privileges. It is a noisy job and their bright iridescent plumage is a sight to see, as they busily select this branch or that, for their airy summer home, always in the tip-top of the swaying pines. He peers down at each passer by, and as one notes the brilliant metallic blueish green of his plumage, he is telling, that he is just in from Texas, where, perhaps, on the Rio Grande, he has not been bothered with the winter's cold and snows.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

From all accounts railroad accidents on the New London Northern road in the first week of March, 1873, were as plentiful as flies in summer. Every day an accident was reported, one of them near Yantic being a large one.

When people tired of talking of the wrecks, the experiments with the town clock and democratic and prohibitionist conventions gave them a new lead.

Some of the happenings in and near Norwich fifty years ago are gleaned from the file of The Bulletin as follows:

Monday, March 3, 1873.—The members of Crescent council received a visit from the grand officers of the state last Friday evening, on which occasion the Council and the "Temple of Honor" prepared a feast of good things. At the close of the exercises the doors were thrown open and guests invited within. There were remarks by the visiting officers and later refreshments were served.

Saturday afternoon when Benjamin H. Wells was alighting from a wagon on Water street he slipped and fell striking on his head, fracturing his skull. He was rushed to Barstow & Palmer's where medical assistance was rendered.

Arrangements are being made for a race at the fairgrounds for a purse of $200 between Lady Tompkins and Hiram Smith's Vixen, to come off in May; $50 forfeit has been put up.

The Hon. L. Blakeman returned on Saturday after spending the winter in Florida.

Tuesday, March 4, 1873.—Two engines and 35 cars were totally wrecked Monday afternoon in a wreck about two miles above Yantic. The accident was caused by conflicting telegrams to the conductors of the colliding freight trains. The two freight trains were supposed to pass in this city but for some reason the south bound train could not make the connection, and notified the officers of the road at New London of the fact, but the north-bound freight was sent ahead and now there are 25 cars strewn about the ground in all sizes and shapes. The two locomotives were wedged together by the force of the collision and were practically smashed to junk. The men on the trains jumped for their lives and fortunately no one was seriously injured, although many were cut somewhat by the numerous turns they made after striking the earth in their flying leaps to safety.

The propellor Delaware that has been fast in the ice below the rolling mill was able to get out yesterday when a tug from New London came up and broke the ice from around her.

The Wauregan Steam Fire Engine company held its annual meeting last evening and elected H. H. Osgood foreman.

Wednesday, March 5, 1873.—The Shetucket Hose company elected the following officers at the regular meeting held Tuesday night: Foreman, James McGuire, Jr.; first assistant, Edwin Weimore; 2nd assistant, J. D. McDowell; secretary, W. S. Dearborn; treasurer, J. W. Baird; steward, Albert Marshal; fire police, E. H. Berry and J. W. Gilbert.

It is the intention of the reading room committee to call a public meeting of its friends and patrons on Main street to take measures for its support if they decide to continue it. The sum of $1,500 is needed to pay the rent and provide papers and periodicals, and meet incidental expenses.

It is planned to divide the hall into three parts, one for the reading, one for games and a third for conversation. It is hoped that the reading room will be continued and that some of the leading people of the city will take charge of it and arrange for its existence in the future.

The Rev. Treadwell Walden has accepted the call to the rectorship of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Boston, and will begin his duties, Eastern Sunday, April 6th.

Gen. J. B. Colt presided over the democratic convention of the third congressional district held at White's hall Tuesday. Hon. James A. Bill of Lyme was nominated for candidate for representative in congress after some discussion and then the delegates enjoyed a feast at the Wauregan.

Tuesday, March 6, 1873.—The prohibitionists held their first organized convention Wednesday at White hall with G. W. Goddard of New London in the chair. Elisha H. Palmer of Montville was nominated for candidate for representative in congress.

A broken rail threw two cars off the track at Montville yesterday afternoon and trains on the line were delayed for several hours until the car was placed back on the rails.

A Franklin street man who has a keen eye claims the record for scout-craft this year. He reports seeing and hearing several mosquitoes near his home.

People made a rush to the E. Chappell Co., yesterday when it was reported that the much longed for chestnut coal had arrived. Coal has been scarce because of the river freezing over keeping boats from the harbor for several weeks.

Henry H. Burnham, of Norwich, was appointed treasurer at the meeting of the Burnham family of Connecticut, held at Willimantic yesterday. About fifty members of the family were present.

Friday, March 7, 1873.—William W. Kingsley, of New Haven has been secured to come to this city and give his course of lectures on France, which course has recently been given in New York city. The lectures are 8 in number and tickets sell for $5. The sale is going on and from all indications Breed Hall will be filled at each appearance of Mr. Kingsley.

At a meeting of the court of common council held recently the Hook and Ladder boys asked permission to sell their apparatus. It seems that considerable opposition has cropped up among the members, some of whom want to sell all the apparatus, others only the hose carriage not the truck.

One of the fine elm trees on Union square was cut down yesterday and the other is soon to follow the same fate.

Saturday, March 8, 1873.—They have been experimenting on the court house clock, and with what result is yet a question. The dials did not show distinctly when illuminated and various ingenious devices have been restored to, to remedy the deficiency. Last evening a new invention was tried, as the passers by noticed as they saw the varied colors of the clock faces. Funnels have been introduced, the larger ends covering the dial plates, and the gas being lighted at the smaller ends, with a hope of so concentrating the light as to illuminate the dials sufficiently. The funnel on the east side of the tower was coated with red paint and that of the south side in white paint, and the trial began. The south dial reflected a white light and the east side a red light, and the faces of the clock reflected nothing that could make a person on the street see the time of night. Try again gentlemen.

David P. Otis has been nominated for judge of probate by the prohibitionists.

Another accident on the northern road, this time at South Windham delayed the train from 5 a. m. until 11 a. m., before reaching Willimantic. The passengers becoming hungry raided a South Windham store and cleaned out all of the raisins, figs, candy, tobacco, etc. The proprietor of the store claims business was the best in years, and hopes to get another rise up soon.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

When the Green Gits Back in the Trees.

In the spring when the green gits back
in the trees,
And the sun comes out and stays,
And your boots pull on with a good right squeeze,
And you think of your harshest days,
When you cert to work and you want to rest,
And you and your wife agreen,
It's time to spade up the garden lot,
When the green gits back in the trees.

When the whaze o' the mill-furnaces o' winter time
Is all pulled out and gone,
And the sap it thaws and begins to climb,
And the sweat it starts out on
Settler's forehead a-gittin' down
At the old spring on his knees,
Kind o' like just a-loafin' round,
When the green gits back in the trees,
Just a-pettern' round as I do please
When the green, you know, gits back in the trees.

Let Me Walk With the Man in the Road.

Who only a half truth the poet has sung
Of the "Man by the side of the
way."
Our Master had neither a house nor a home,
But he walked with the crowd day
by day,
And I think, when I read of the poet's desire,
That a bottom by the road would be goody
But service is found in its tenderest form
When we walk with the crowd in the road.

So I say, let me walk with the man in the road,
Let me geek out the burdens that crush,
Let me speak a kind word of good cheer to the weak
Who are falling behind in the rush.
There are wounds to be healed, there are breaks we must mend,
There's a cup of cold water to give;
And the man in the road by the side of his friend
Is the man who has learned how to live.

Then tell me no more of the house by
the road,
There is only one place I can live.
It's there with the men who are toiling along,
Who are needing the cheer I can give.
It is pleasant to live in the house by the way,
And to help, as the poet has said;
But the Master is bidding us "Bear yo your load,
For your rest waiteth yonder, ahead."

I could not remain in the house by the road
And watch as the tethers go on,
Their faces beclouded with pain and with sin,
Go burdened, their strength nearly gone.
I'll go their side, I'll speak in good cheer,
I'll help them to carry their load;
And I'll smile at the man in the house
by the way,
As I walk with the crowd in the road.

And there in the road that goes by the house,
Where the poet is sharing his song,
I'll walk and I'll work 'midst the heat of the day,
And I'll help fallen brothers along—
No busy to live in the house by the way,
Too happy for such an abode,
Had my heart sings its praise to the Master of all,
Who is bestowing me serve in the road.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM SISTER READY.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Congratulations for 13 happy years of association together.

Best wishes to all. Yours,

SISTER READY.

ANOTHER NEW MEMBER.

Dear Social Corner Editor: Have just been reading your Social Corner page with much interest and find very much interesting matter and my name is now in line.

COLLECTING CHEERFUL, HELPFUL POEMS.

Dear Social Corner: I wonder if there is room for a new member in the Social Corner. I have like reading of The Bulletin, though not a subscriber and have been thinking for some time of writing a few lines. I was interested in Iola's letter in The Bulletin of March 3rd, referring to the old song, "Flowers, lovely flowers, in a sheltered dell they grow."

When my children were in school, now twenty-five years ago, it was in their school song book. My mother heard them singing it and joined with them, as it recalled her own childhood. She said it was one of the earliest songs she learned as a child. So it must be very old and yet sung at the present time. I cannot seem to find the book my children used, but will try to get the song if I can.

I was also interested in Iola's quotation "It is in winter, that we dream o. spring."

I could narrow the little poem which begins and ends with that line, two years ago and it has been of much comfort to me, and I have copied it many times to send to other others.

To keep up my courage during the long winter days I have collected what I may call a Rosary—a collection of cheering, hopeful poems forecasting the coming spring which I repeat often to myself and also copy in my letters. The poem mentioned above is one of them, also the dear little poem by Mrs. A. D. Whitney, February—

"Will the winter never be over?
Will the dark days never go?
Must the buttercups and the clover
Lie always hid under the snow?

"Ah! hush me your little ear, is love!
Hark, 'tis a beautiful thing;
The weariest month of the year, love,
Is shortest and nearest the spring."

It is a little late for this last poem as we are already in touch with the spring—like weather March is giving us—but some one may treasure it for the February's yet to come.

I wonder if any one ever reads Thoreau's Seasons nowadays. I am sure I am advertising myself as a fossil of a past century to even mention the book as it is doubtful if the past two generations know even the poet's name.

It was in me sixty to eighty years ago for advanced grammar classes, which wrestled with the grammatical knots of the bleak verse. In many schools it was required to be committed to memory. I remember my oldest sister having to transpose the blank verse into plain prose. My own school days were of later date though I remember one term that I studied the intricacies of the poem beginning, "Come gentle spring, ethereal mildness, come!"

I came across the old school edition in a collection of old school books a few years ago and on looking it over became so interested in it. I have kept it beside my dictionary and other books in daily use and often read the descriptions of nature, particularly those relating to storms for which the poet seems to have had a great fondness and a graphic skill in portraying them by word pictures. His winter scenes are very realistic and although the Seasons were originally published from 1726 to 1730 and described English scenery—most of the nature scenes apply to our New England rural surroundings even two hundred years later. The introduction to winter certainly sends the shivers down one's spine, but at the close of the first paragraph is a bright jewel of Hope which I have released from its sombre setting and placed in my rosary.

"Thus passed the time
Till through the lucid chambers of the south
Looked out the joyous spring,
Looked out, and smiled."

The few balmy days of the past week may incline us to think spring is really parting the curtains of her southern windows and peeping out and smiling on the snow-covered windows and frost-bound earth. But as her legal right to reign does not begin until March 21, by almanac decree, we must not be surprised to see her suddenly withdraw her smiles when she sees stern old winter once more asserting his right to rule a few weeks longer.

I must have a name to admit me to the Social Corner. The spirit I have tried to cultivate through this unusually trying winter both in nature's adverse experiences as well as those of daily living so beautifully summed up by the poet in his concluding lines of Winter—

"The storms of Winter Time will quickly pass
And one unbounded spring encircle all,"

Inspires me to sign myself,

HOPEFUL.

GREETING FROM N. E. B.

Dear Social Corner Members: Just a moment, please, I wish to thank A Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar which he sent some time ago. I try to get all my "thank you" letters written before January, but this time I am late, not because I did not appreciate the gift, but that old fellow Procrasination was in the way. I thought I had better wake up and answer the roll call or some one might think I was snowed in.

Grace: Did I hear you say, "I thought so?" You wouldn't if you took a trip in the woods with my young daughter and me. It was great sport. I think I enjoyed it as much as she did. If we took a trip like that often we would grow young. You can laugh as loud as you please and no one will be shocked.

Just try it, sisters, some time when you have the blues and see how many animals you can track in the snow. I never saw so many rabbit tracks. There were quail, squirrel, other animals and birds.

We have been having such interesting letters on so many different subjects with a page full and running over that I will sign off until later and let some other Social Corner sister have a chance.

RECIPE FOR PNEUMONIA.

Mr. Editor and Corner Sisters: I wish to thank the editor for the yule to walip that came sliding my way and I thought to myself, I wonder where I stand, on the top, on the side or at the bottom, and I decided I must be some where on the hill as the rolled would have reached me.

I was so glad to see so many letters in the Corner last week and I just decided that some of the sisters must have been frozen in, through the cold weather, and now spring is coming they have begun to thaw out. And I think we shall not have any more trouble through not having letters enough to fill the page.

I would like to ask the sisters how many in looking over their lives have had their hopes blasted? We all make plans for our future, that of our children, and different ones. We plan, save, think, save for something, and then like Jack Frost that comes in the night and destroys the labor of the summertime, things change the course of many lives of those who call

KITCHEN PARTY WITH THE NEIGHBORS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: What a lovely week since we took a call [illegible] to attend the one in Willimantic the 15th. How I wish another would come!

Will not the sisters what I made for my supper this week? Have made two pretty [illegible] and slippers, crocheted a pair of pillow shams, made two petticoats (one of nursery braid) and made three pair of rompers, three little dresses and helped do other sewing for grown ups. Am now making a red garment of an attractive pattern in mending party fashion. If so made on the [illegible] trouser leg (one is the outline stitch to find three original colors, pink, pale blue and lavender with green leaves and stems.

Dew Kist: Glad to see you can still write.

Black Eyed Susie: Will have to wait for my Norwich visit until warmer weather, I guess. When I come will surely bring the book along.

Grandma: Will no doubt see you at Franklin hall Saturday.

Wish to thank the editor for the pillow slip which was a surprise to me when reading the Corner last Saturday morning.

Hope all the sick sisters are on the gain and all the well sisters keep well.

A HIT OF MISS ENSTLE.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: This is just a "bit of news" letter. I wanted to let Annetooby know how glad I am that the stork visited her home and I wish I could see the little one. I have a little boy five years old. The story didn't bring him through. It was the justice of the peace. When he gets to going full tilt I wonder if it wasn't the secretary of war instead. Where is this ward, do you live, Annetooby? I live in Philadelphia on Plainfield street. I guess everyone knows who I am, so I may as well tell those who don't. Yes, I guess everybody knows the Air family, which includes Mrs. Free Air, Mr. Hot Air and little Master Fresh Air.

Isn't it wonderful to be so constituted as to be able to see the humor in all situations? The other night I thought I'd try Fred Cook's auto-suggestion. I was pretty sure that I was in for a hard headache the next day, so I kept saying over and over I am getting better and better every minute. Then I said every hour with concentration power, I'm feeling better and better. Finally I fell asleep and when I woke up I had the hardest headache I have ever had, so although I don't say that auto-suggestion helps anyone I must say that I guess maybe it stripped the gears on mine.

Aura Aumly: Do you live on a hill? I think I have got you this time. I won't tell a soul.

Grandma Gray: Was you the one that called me up and told me your name? I thought you said Peggy Gray and I have been looking for Peggy Gray letters ever since. Now I think you must have said Grandma Gray. I have pieced up a bed quilt. The pattern is the state House steps.

It's getting along towards supper time so I will close with best wishes and heaps some more

APPROVED RECIPES.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I am sending two of my recipes that have been approved by the domestic science department of Lasell seminary:

Noodle Pudding: A noodle pudding much relished by the Hungarians and good enough to be relished by every one, is made by placing a layer of fresh, hot noodles in the bottom of a pudding dish, spreading them with butter and sprinkling them plentifully with cake of damson jam, then another layer of noodles is added, buttered and sprinkled with jam, and so on until the dish is filled.

On top of the last layer of noodles, lumps of butter as well as of jam should be placed. The butter will melt and form a brown top. Sometimes I make a meringue and dot it with damson jam.

Blanquette of Veal and Ham: One half pint of boiled ham, one and one-half pints of cooked veal, one pint of cream sauce, one teaspoon lemon juice, the yolks of two uncooked eggs, salt, pepper, two hard boiled eggs.

Have the veal and ham cut in delicate pieces, which add to the seasoning of the sauce. When it boils up and the yolks which have been beaten with four tablespoons of milk. Cook a minute longer, garnish with the hard boiled egg.

I will send some more later.

LIKE THE OLD FASHION KIND

Dear Social Corner Sisters: We have the Saturday Bulletin of each weeks, mostly to keep in touch with the Corner sisters, and I read that several of the sisters are on the sick list. I can sympathise with all as I have been a shut-in most of the winter and shall be glad to see spring with all the snow gone.

I can remember my grandfather telling about the winters we used to have—when loads of goods (if moving) or wood were being hauled across lots where snow was so deep that there were no stone walls in sight, and the chrust hard enough to hold up the load. I think this winter came near to the old fashioned ones.

I am sorry Biddy is sick and will send her a card.

Katy-Did is better and was at my home last week.

Wandering Jew:—I was surprised and delighted when your letter came. Guess you will be glad when warm weather comes. Hope to see you at the next meeting.

I guess I won't try and write too much as this is my second attempt and one can see I am not much of a letter writer.

Hoping all sick ones will soon be well.

HOME AND THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I am interested and glad to hear from all the sisters who have written about the old historical phrases, words, etc., and I agree with all who have spoken in favor of the old hymns. They will never pass out of existence and are held in fond memory in many a heart. I think of many that hold some special memory of persons and occasions that are dear to me. The more one hears the jazz songs of today, the more does the good stand out in the songs of old. Of course, there are many good songs composed today, but I am speaking of the coarse songs that many hear. We can have comical songs without being silly and coarse. But many a person has been cheered by the dear church hymns and the good old national songs that will never be forgotten.

Then there is the tendency of many young people of today to spend so much time at movies and shows, etc. There was a family of happy young folks who seemed happy and contented. Someone asked one of the young girls of that family one time: "Why is it you never go to the shows in town? How can you be so contented in a small place?" She replied: "I do not have to be amused. After your school work is done, and other work is out of the way, we have games, music, etc., and the church and Christian Endeavor societies furnish plenty of pleasure and social intercourse. Besides, there is a lot of fun in [illegible]

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY (Jan. 2.)

SOME TESTED RECIPES.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Have read all of the Social Corner letters and enjoyed them very much.

Would like to have attended the March meeting on the 7th in Norwich, but as the old saying is "I would feel like a cat in a strange garret," not knowing any of the members.

I would like to suggest something. How many of the sisters agree with me, or would it be impossible? I thought it would be nice if each member should wear a pin with the initials "S. C." Then when we met them on the street or in different places we would know they belonged to the Corner, and get acquainted that way and then it would be interesting too.

Was sorry there was a slight mistake in my last letter. It should have read, "I don't agree with Just Me as I love the old schoolhouse where I went to school, and wished myself back there many times."

Calla Lily: I must be about your age, and I am in for dancing too. I would rather dance than to eat. I like the old-fashioned kitchen dances, as there is a lot of fun in them.

These are tested recipes, as my daughter has used them. Hope some of the sisters will try their luck.

Delicious Cornflake Cookies: Two whites of eggs beaten stiff, one cup of sugar, one cup of cocoanut, two and one-half cups of cornflakes, mixed together. Drop by spoon on greased tins and press a little with the fingers so they will hang together and bake.

Surprise Cookies: These are fine if you have good luck. One cup of sugar, one egg, one-half cup shortening mixed together, one-half cup milk, one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons cream tartar, one teaspoon vanilla, three and one-half cups flour or enough to roll out good. Cut in small circles (use baking powder box cover) put filling on one and place another on top, then bake like cookies.

Filling for Cookies: One cup chopped raisins, one teaspoon flour, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup water, cook on stove until thick.

Well it is time I closed. With best wishes to all the Corner members.

COUNTRY SISTER (June 1)

PINEAPPLE SPONGE PIE.

Dear Sisters: It has been a long time since I have written to The Corner, and on reading the letters of late I see that they are all saying that the old writers ought to write more. But I have been busy embroidering and crocheting since I last wrote and could not find time to write, but will try and do better hereafter.

There have been very good letters lately and I hope the sisters will keep right on and do as good as they are doing. The page is full nearly every week.

I wish the sister who thought she knew me would let me know who she is, for by the pen name she has got me guessing.

Brave: How are you this winter? It has been a bad one for you, so cold and stormy.

Auntie No. 1: How are you all?

How many sisters have had neuralgia? I have had it nearly two months and I know how to sympathize with others, for it awful painful. I for one will be glad when warm weather comes again.

Have any sisters ever tried pineapple sponge pie? I am sending in a good recipe for it.

Pineapple Sponge Pie: One and one-half cups of pineapple, one cup sugar, two eggs, one cup of juice of pineapple, two tablespoons of flour, one tablespoon butter. Cream butter and sugar and flour well together, add yolks of eggs; beat all good, then add pineapple and juice. Lastly stir in lightly the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Bake in an open crust.

Will try them also for the sisters with best wishes.

ROSY POST (Jan. 12.)

A FRIENDLY CHAT.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I remember when the Social Corner page was started in The Bulletin. There was a picture of half a dozen ladies in the upper Corner of the page. I can't just say what year but to give a guess should say it is fifteen years old. What a lovely spring day March 1 was! It did revive us surely. We are so glad to welcome spring, spring, the beautiful spring. Now that the warm rays of the sun have melted the ice and snow that has covered the ground all winter the sleighing is a thing of the past. I enjoyed a sleighride the evening of Feb. 21. It was over the country roads so we had to furnish our own light and I carried a lantern while my lady friend held the lines over Babe Winter's Little Spencer.

My home was in the Road district of Stonington for several years so was not very far from Wequetequock.

Country Sister: Now you have aroused my curiosity. Do you live near Yantic now? I had been a resident of North Stonington since 1906 until last fall.

I will close for I don't want to take up too much space in our columns.

To all the sick and shut-in sisters I will say, "Smile smile, for summer will surely come in due season.

Best wishes to the Corner.

A STRANGER IN THE CITY

(June 1.)

FIVE AND SEVEN STRANDS IN BRAIDED RUGS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I am very glad that I have been welcomed to the Corner for I have been wanting to write for a long time, so here I am at last.

I wonder if any of the sisters could tell me how to cook turnips that have a bitter taste so that they will be good.
